WOULD INCREASE POSTAL RATES AND SALARIES ONE YEAR, PENDING HEARINGS

Agreement Was Reached Yesterday by Joint Congressional Postoffice Sub-Committee to Recommend That Provision of the Administration Bill—Senator Moses of the Senate Sub-Committee Hopes to Have Cost Ascertainment of Postal Salary Raise Whipped Into Shape Before the Vote on the President's Veto is Taken January 6th.

Washington, Dec. 31.—An agreement was reached today by the joint congressional postoffice sub-committee to recommend that provisions of the administration bill increasing postal rates and salaries be effective for one year only, pending further hearings.

With the conclusion of hearings on the measure today the sub-committee took under advisement the proposed legislation and Chairman Moses announced that several amendments re-casting the rate increases of the various classes of mail were favored.

Senator Moses called the sub-committee into session for Friday morning at which time he will present the amendments. It is the hope of administration leaders that the bill be whipped into a shape for a report to the senate by Tuesday when that body has agreed to vote on President Coolidge's veto of the postal salary increase measure, passed last session.

Senator Moses did not state the opinion of the senate and house joint sub-committee on the reparation of the rate increases among the various classes of mail recommended by the post office department. He said, however, that sub-committeemen were inclined to favor eliminating the present differentials in second class mail rates, under which religious, agriculture and educational publications receive preferential rates. Under this plan all second class matter would be placed on the same basis.

It is the purpose of the sub-committee to have the salary and rate increases go into effect for one year within sixty days after enactment of the bill into law, and to reopen hearings on the rate increases later with a view to recommending permanent legislation at the next session.

HEARING ON STATE GRANTS FOR THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Hartford, Dec. 31.—Men and women connected with public schools in cities and towns to the number of 250 attended the public hearing at the state capitol today on a proposed new plan of apportionment of state grants for support of public schools. This plan was devised by the commission on revision and codification of school laws of Connecticut, and this commission proposes to ask the state legislature to incorporate provisions into the statutes. Charles M. Bakewell, chairman of the commission, presided. The plan in substance is to encourage towns to give higher educational advantages superior to the standard. The recent record of distribution is full of absurdities and fallacies, Senator Howard declared and the proposed plan is sound. He emphasized the existing inequality of the present law of distribution, while the new plan favors the state aid for towns which are carrying financially in educational work.

This plan does not aim to raid the state treasury, he said, and state grants will not exceed by much the present appropriation.

The plan provides that any town which the proceeds of a five mill tax, increased by the enumeration grant, yields a sum equal to less than $60 per pupil in average daily attendance shall receive from the state a minimum standard grant to bring the local funds plus the enumeration grant up to $60.

ANALYSIS OF LIQUOR SHOWED IT POISONOUS

Stamford, Conn., Dec. 31.—Analysis of the 25 bottles of liquor seized here in the car of William Taub, who said he was bound for New Haven, showed that it was poisonous and would have caused permanent blindness or death, according to a report of State Chemist Henry L. Borg. The state chemist, who resides here, made the analysis of the liquor at the request of local authorities, who expressed belief that it was bound for New Haven for use in New Year's eve festivities. Taub's car was stopped on suspicion and he was arrested when the liquor, labeled as whiskey, gin and sherry was found concealed under the seats of the automobile.

The analysis of the liquor marked "gin" showed that it contained 38 per cent. grain alcohol and quantities of poisonous substances, the state chemist reported.

OPTIMISTIC FORECAST BY ELBERT H. GARY

New York, Dec. 31.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, today issued the following New Year's statement:

"In view of the material and moral strength, together with the standing and influence of this country, protected and advancing under the leadership of a wise and constructive administration, and the extraordinary opportunities for success offered to all who are fortunate enough to be inhabitants, every individual should not only give thanks to a kind and merciful Providence but should at the beginning of the new year firmly resolve to contribute his or her time and energy to the welfare of all who need assistance, up to the measure of ability and propriety."

AMNESTY BILL DEFEATED IN FRENCH CHAMBER

Paris, Dec. 31.—(By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies, by a vote of 340 against 136, tonight voted the passage of the amnesty bill as amended by the senate. The government in urging the passage of the bill, declared it would take the necessary measures to prevail upon the railroad companies to reinstate the strikers who were dismissed in 1920.

The chamber had previously insisted upon the measure carrying a clause which would have compelled the railroad companies to reinstate the men. The senate passed the bill with the compulsory clause omitted.

TWO GUNMEN SHOT AND KILLED TAILOR IN BOSTON

Boston, Dec. 31.—Two gunmen shot and killed Harry Hamberg in his tailor shop in the South End district here tonight when he responded too slowly to an order to throw up his hands. Only one shot was fired, the bullet entering Hamberg's mouth. The gunmen escaped.

BRITAIN HAS NOT OFFERED LOAN TO IRISH FREE STATE

New York, Dec. 31.—No offer of a loan has been made by Great Britain to the Irish Free State on condition that Ireland agree to withdraw its claim to separate representation in the league of nations, it is declared in a statement by Timothy A. Smiddy, minister plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State at Washington, forwarded here today.

Denying the recently published allegation of the Irish republican newspaper Sinn Fein of Dublin that the British government had offered a 20,000,000 pounds sterling loan on such conditions, the minister's statement says:

"A false interpretation has been given to the fact that the British government has introduced a bill guaranteeing 30,000,000 pounds sterling for the payment of the principal and interest on a loan to be issued by the Irish Free State for the completion of land purchase. It is merely backing the credit of the Irish Free State with British credit without any real risk to the British exchequer, but with full liability to the Irish Free State, which will provide the principal and interest."

REVIEW OF WORK OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, Dec. 31 (By the A. P.)—The League of Nations has passed the point where failure to obtain results on any particular problems imperils the existence of the league. This statement is made in the official review of the year's activities of the league.

According to the statement, the league has become a fixed part of the international landscape, and time alone is necessary for it to fulfill or to founder upon its expectations. The year's experience has demonstrated that the questions of universality of membership and of arbitration, security and reduction of armaments are bigger and more complex than was at first imagined, and time is needed to obtain the desired results.

The annual summary directs attention to the importance of American official and unofficial participation in the league's activities. It mentions Washington's collaboration in the preparations for the international conference to be held in May for the adoption of a convention to control international traffic in arms.

ESSAY CONTEST OPEN TO STUDENTS OF ALL COUNTRIES

Boston, Dec. 31.—A world essay contest open to students of all countries was announced today by Mrs. Kannie Fern Andrews, secretary of the American School Citizenship league, with headquarters here. The result of a similar contest covering the year 1923-24, for two sets of prizes known as the Seabury prizes, was announced recently.

The 1924-25 contest will have one class open to students in normal schools and teachers' colleges on the subject of "Methods of Promoting World Friendship Through Education." The second class, open to seniors in secondary schools, will be on the subject of "The Organization of the World for the Prevention of War." Essays will be received up to June 1 next.

ARREST OF A BANDIT SUSPECT IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Dec. 31.—Following complaint by Gabriel Astaina of 220 Wallace street that a man had attempted to hold him up on Bradley street, near William street, the police late today arrested Bernard Reynolds of 49 Edwards street, charging him with breach of the peace. His bonds were placed at $1,000.

Astaina said that the man confronted him and, pointing what looked like a gun at him, demanded "every nickel you have." Astaina told the police he broke away from the alleged holdup man and, running up the street a short distance, found a patrolman. The patrolman returned to the scene of the alleged holdup and found Reynolds near by.

Dealings in Stocks Portend Prosperity

Twenty Leading Industrial Stocks Established a High Record for All Time.

New York, Dec. 31 (By the A. P.).—Spectacular bullish demonstrations in a half dozen industrial and public utility issues featured the closing stock market session of the year, which witnessed the establishment of a record high for all time by the average of twenty leading industrial stocks. The previous high record was attained during the post-war boom in 1919.

Total sales were slightly in excess of one and one-half million shares, with many cash transactions being recorded during the day to establish profits or losses for 1924 income tax purposes.

General Electric was the sensational individual performer, soaring 25 points to 322 in reflection of Wall street's endeavor to fix a monetary value for the "rights" accruing to stockholders through the segregation of the public utility holdings of its principal subsidiary, the Electric Bond and Share company. The stock of the segregated company was quoted in "outside" market today as high as $115 a share, or more than double Wall street's original estimate. Quotations on these shares after the market closed, however, ranged between $90 and $100.

Radio corporation shares at one time today mounted about nine points to a record high at 66 7-8, and closed with a net gain of 7 3-8 points. With this spurt, General Electric's holdings of 375,000 shares showed an appreciation of about $15,000,000 over the market value at the time Radio was listed on the exchange. More than 155,000 shares of Radio stock changed hands in the day's trading.

Other leading industrials which moved up 3 to 8 points included American Express, American Car and Foundry, Nash Motors, American Can, Texas Gulf Sulphur and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

Today's total sales of 1,571,000 shares brought the year's turnover to 282,029,800 shares as compared with 236,186,226. Most of the increase has been accounted for in the post-election boom, which has witnessed nineteen 2,000,000 share days, and volume of sales exceeding that for any similar period in the history of the New York stock exchange. The record turnover in November alone of more than 40,000,000 shares was eclipsed only in one monthly period before, back in 1901.

The average price of twenty representative industrial issues as the year closed stood at 119.77, an increase of more than 17 points above the low mark of the year. The final average of twenty railroad stocks of 101.56 was ten points above pre-election price and 20 points above the 1924 low.

FORECASTS PROSPERITY IN THE COTTON TRADE

New York, Dec. 31.—General prosperity in the cotton trade in 1925 was forecast today by Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., president of the New York cotton exchange, in a statement emphasizing the importance of a good crop in the south next year and succeeding years, in order that America might maintain supremacy in supplying the greater part of the world's cotton requirements. As a result of a more satisfactory crop in 1924, he said, the cotton industry was beginning to recover from the serious conditions caused by the short crops of 1921, 1922 and 1923, due to the ravages of the boll weevil, which had an off-year in 1924.

Winnipeg, Dec. 31.—Russia purchased approximately 50,000 barrels of flour in the Canadian markets today. It is estimated that over 250,000 barrels have been taken for Russia during the past few weeks. Open Investigation Of Prohibition Unit Decided Upon by Senate Committee Under Chairmanship of Senator Couzens.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Open investigation of the prohibition unit, which formed the basis for a heated disagreement between the administration and the senate at the last session, was decided upon today by the senate committee under the chairmanship of Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan.

The decision was reached after the committee had heard from both its own investigators and officials of the internal revenue bureau and the prohibition enforcement division. A definite date for beginning the hearings was not fixed, but it probably will be at a time not more than two weeks' distant.

Meantime, the committee's special investigators, including John S. Pyle, formerly assistant prohibition director for western Pennsylvania, will continue their work in gathering facts in the prohibition division. These will be laid before the committee at the hearings and enforcement officials then will present their side of the case.

Under present plans, the committee will confine the hearing to subjects of general policy and their effect in actual operation without undertaking a dragnet inquiry of special cases, such as that, for instance, at Weehawken, N. J.

W. M. WOOD RESIGNED BECAUSE OF ILL HEALTH

Shawsheen Village, Mass., Dec. 31.—The resignation of William M. Wood from the presidency of the American Woolen company, which he built from modest beginnings to a position of dominance in the woolen and worsted industry, was a choice between continuing in the harness of business and dying shortly or relinquishing his responsibility and regaining his health, his son, Cornelius A. Wood, said today. The statement was in further explanation of the change by which Andrew G. Pierce, Jr., of New Bedford succeeded as president the founder of the corporation, now capitalized at $90,000,000.

The son of the retiring executive, who was elected first vice president in succession to Mr. Pierce, said that his father's medical advisers declared it was absolutely compulsory on him to give up his duties as president if he would live. "My father had a life or death decision to make. He chose life," the son said.

It was added that the former president, retaining his place on the board of directors, would be as active in that position as directors of the company generally.

The official statement of Mr. Wood's resignation follows:

RING, BELLS OF THE NEW YEAR!

Ring out the old, hard ways of cruelty
Inflicted by the strong upon the weak!
Ring out the old, dark ways of savagery!
Ring for the rights of those who cannot speak!
Ring out the lust for gold, the hideous arts
That make for woe, destruction, fiendish war—
The old misunderstandings—that men's hearts
May turn in loathing from it evermore!

Too long, too long mankind has stumbled on
In darkness, blind, the troubled thorny way!
Ring, ring, O bells, to welcome in the dawn,
Rose-hued, resplendent, that proclaims the day
When Love and Peace, with banners white unfurled,
At last have come to dwell in all the world!

Ring out the old, sad ways of bitterness—
All hatreds of the present and the past!
Ring in the news that Peace has come to bless,— Stilled is for aye the cannon's roar, the blast
Of war's shrill bugles; that no more, unfeeling,
Man shall in cruelty his hand upraise
In slaughter of the innocents! Your pealing,
O bells, would it could mean that kindlier ways
Have come in love the old ways to replace!

O might your tongues this joyous message send,
Broadcasting clearly throughout all the space
Of this wide earth, peace that shall know no end,
True brotherhood and justice, Love's rebirth—
When Right, not Might, at last shall rule the earth!

BONUS ISSUES MAILED TO VETERANS OF WORLD WAR

Adjusted Service Certificates to the Number of About 600,000 Were Placed in the Mail at Midnight—More Than 250 Sacks of Mail Were Transferred From the Bureau to the Railroad Station—Certificates Represented $730,000—Thirty Thousand Checks For $50 or Less Are Not to Be Mailed Out Until March 1.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Approximately 600,000 adjusted service certificates, representing $750,000,000, as part of the bonus voted for World war veterans by congress, were placed in the mail at midnight tonight by the veterans' bureau. Promptly as the New Year began more than 250 sacks of mail were moved from the bureau to the railroad station. Under the law the certificates were not to be issued before Jan. 1.

By arrangement with the post office department a postal branch was established at the bureau and as each certificate was completed it was addressed, stamped and the stamp cancelled ready for the train.

Thirty thousand checks for amounts of $50 or less, representing the cash payment for soldiers who served only a short period, have been prepared at the bureau but these under the law are not to be mailed out until March 1.

In mailing the insurance certificates the only preference made was to those veterans who have died since applying for the bonus. These total not more than 700 and beneficiaries of these soldiers may receive payment immediately. The certificate, properly indorsed, together with proof of death of the soldier, must be returned to the veterans' bureau before payment is made. Payments on any other certificates are not to be made before March 1.

Director Hines estimated today that from now on about 20,000 certificates will be mailed daily. A day force of about 300 clerks and a night staff of 100 are handling the job.

To date the war department has received 2,000,000 applications for adjusted service certificates, with an average of 12,000 arriving daily. More than 400,000 applications were returned to veterans because they lacked signatures, finger prints or other necessary data.

Thus far 15,000 applications have been disallowed. War department bonus machinery has reached the point where it is able to forward 50,000 approved applications daily to the veterans' bureau.

Major General Robert C. Davis, who, as adjutant general of the army has been charged with the administration of the bonus act in so far as it affects the war department, has certified 1,500,000 applications to the veterans' bureau for extension of the benefits to the claimants.

The war department believes it has completed more than half of the bonus job, and that as a result of the experience gained no difficulty will be met in keeping the applications flowing steadily through its machine to the veterans' bureau, no matter how many may be received a day. As yet General Davis has not heard from about 1,800,000 veterans as to whether they intend to apply for compensation.

CORROBRATIVE EVIDENCE IN FORBES CONSPIRACY CASE

Chicago, Dec. 31.—(By The A. P.)—R. C. Routsong, assistant director of the United States Veterans' Bureau corroborated today, as a witness for the defense in the Forbes-Thompson conspiracy trial, the chief allegations in the defense contention that the award of the Northampton, Mass., hospital contract to the Pontiac Construction Co., of Detroit, was in the best interest of the government.

The prosecution case held the Northampton contract award to be one of the major, if not the principal, overt acts in a conspiracy between Charles R. Forbes, former director of the bureau and J. W. Thompson, contractor, to defraud the government.

Routsong testified that Forbes demonstrated no unusual concern over the award other than apparently had been occasioned by his determination to get the foundation in as quickly as possible. The witness affirmed that the bureau was under considerable public and official pressure for greater speed in the expansion of hospital facilities at the time of the award, July, 1922, and that to him it appeared reasonable that Forbes held time to be the essence of the contract.

HOW NEW YEAR'S EVE WAS ENJOYED IN BERLIN

Berlin, Dec. 31.—Hot toddies, doughnuts and carp were devoured by the Berlin population New Year's eve in the largest quantities known since the World war. It is estimated that the bakers sold more than 10,000,000 "Berliner pfannkuchen," a delicacy which is a step-brother to the doughnut. The difference is that the usual hole in the center is filled with jelly.

Although carp, the national German fish, cost more than double the price it brought before the war, it was in such great demand that it dominated freight and canal boat shipments during the entire week.

Berlin's first normal New Year's eve was further emphasized by the fact that the police closing hour for cafes and saloons was advanced to 5 a. m. The street railway company also installed an all-night service. The leading hotels charged $10 per dinner, exclusive of drinks.

ONE KILLED, SEVEN BURNED BY KEROSENE EXPLOSION

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Seven persons, five of them children, were in Erie County hospital tonight as the result of burns received in a kerosene explosion which today killed Sherman Gordon in his home in Gowanda, near here, and sprayed flaming liquor over other occupants of the house. All are Indians.

Gordon attempted to revive a dying fire in a stove with a can of kerosene. The kerosene placed on the hot coals exploded, scattered liquid fire about the room and over the occupants, and set fire to the house.

Neighbors attracted by the sound of the explosion carried the victims out and turned in a fire alarm. The blaze was subdued before the house was destroyed.

SISTERS DROWNED WHEN THEY BROKE THROUGH ICE

Stratford, Dec. 31.—Sophie and Mary Fetchko, 10 and 8 years old, respectively, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fetchko of this town, were drowned at Lordship Meadows off Long Island sound this afternoon when they broke through the ice in a creek. The children had been sledding with companions. At a bend in the creek their sled struck a weak spot and they went under the surface about 15 feet to the bottom. Grapiers recovered the bodies after two hours' work.

CONNECTICUT CO. TO START MOTOR BUS SERVICE

New Britain, Dec. 31.—Announcement was made today by the Connecticut Company that, beginning Monday, January 5, motor bus service between this city and Hartford will be inaugurated. BARGE HARTFORD WAS ON ROCKS OFF SILVER SANDS

New Haven, Dec. 31.—Grounded on the rocks off Silver Sands and buffeted by the waves since early Tuesday morning, the barge Hartford of the Thames Tow Boat company was floated late today and is now safely moored at Belle dock. Save for a few leaks sprung during the long siege by the waves, the barge is none the worse for the incident.

The grounding, which occurred when the tide was close to its height, was the result of hazy conditions of the atmosphere, it was said. The barge was drawn by the tug Harold of the same line and contained 1,500 tons of coal en route from New London to New Haven.

The tug was not caught and after it was found the barge could not be moved, the former left for New London Tuesday afternoon for aid. Two tugs were sent from New London and they worked Tuesday night and yesterday in a vain attempt to float the barge.

The aid of the New Haven Towing company was finally sought and with the aid of the high tide, three tugs and a steam wench and anchor, the barge was finally floated. The crew stuck to the barge in the hope that it would be floated by the tide.

The Hartford has had plenty of thrills on her trip north from Norfolk with 4,000 tons of coal a month or so ago. She got tangled up with dock troubles at the start of the trip and then a few weeks ago she was rammed in New London harbor by the steamer New London.

Augustus H. Johnson announced on Wednesday that he had disposed of his wholesale business conducted from a local office to Herbert A. Gillette, of Mansfield, who will take possession today, January 1. The business is one which has been built up through years of hard labor by Mr. Johnson so that now its trade reaches to many points in eastern Connecticut. Mr. Johnson has been engaged in retail and wholesale business for some 35 years. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and when he was three months old his parents moved to Woodstock. When a small boy he removed to Putnam where he received his elementary schooling and a few years later, in 1882, the family moved to Willimantic where Mr. Johnson became a newspaper boy. When under twenty years of age he started a periodical business with an office on Railroad street. He later purchased the MacFarlane store in the Loomer Opera House block and conducted this retail business for 19 years. For the past five years he has devoted his time to the wholesale business. He will now take a rest. Mr. Gillette was formerly connected with the Boston Grain company and is at present a member of the firm of Wilson, Anthony and Gillette who conduct a shop here.

Business conditions are considerably better than they have been within the past eighteen months. The Holland Silk Manufacturing company is now operating on a regular schedule of 45 hours a week, which the officials hope to maintain.

McCarthy and William F. Meehan. Bandmaster C. N. C. Wheeler was presented a beautiful electric floor lamp, a gift of the members of the troops. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Killingly's grand list from returns filed the past fall by owners of taxable property has been completed by the assessors and shows property values assessed at $6,939,596, an increase of $133,391 over the total of the grand list for last year.

The assessors' report contains a great deal that is of interest to all concerned with Killingly's affairs either as taxpayers or residents. Of special interest is the fact pointed out by A. V. Thompson, member of the board of assessors, that the number of lists of taxable property have increased 67 per cent. since 1917, and number 2062 on the newly completed grand list, this being an increase of 169 over the total for last year. Important, too, is the increase of 29.9 per cent. in the grand list since 1917, the increase in taxable valuations since that time being $1,367,354.

Of those of all who pay taxes in the town of Killingly 147 are non-residents.

This year's increase in the grand list is largely accounted for in two groups of investments — dwelling houses and automobiles. Twenty new dwellings built in the town during the year help account in large measure to account for the increase by $59,000 of the taxable valuation of that class of property. Assessments against automobiles increased by $63,000 during the past year.

Dwellings in Killingly now number 1507 and barns 1229. The new list shows an increase of 100 barns over the figures in the list for last year.

One may dwell in serious contemplation on a certain comparison in the new list. There are less horses and cows in Killingly than there were last year and many more pleasure automobiles. Not only is this true of Killingly during the last year, but it has been repeatedly true of every other year since 1917—always less horses and cattle, always more pleasure automobiles.

This may portend nothing serious for Killingly, but it does indicate that agriculture, for one thing, is not being carried on within the limits of the town on such a broad scale as was the case a few years ago and that, on the other hand, more and more of the town's people are sufficiently affluent to invest in a motor car and the prospect of all the pleasure and satisfaction to be derived therefrom.

There are 54 less horses and 170 less cows owned in Killingly today than there was a year ago. The horses of the town have dwindled in number to 336, and the cows to 822. That is a considerable shrinkage for twelve months, for a herd of 170 cows and a string of 54 horses would make some live stock for one farm, or even three or four farms. Back in 1917 there were 525 horses in Killingly and 1118 cows. The number of each has steadily diminished. Shrinkage in the number of horses may be accounted for in some degree by considering the replacement of numbers of the faithful beats with motor trucks or pleasure cars, but it does not account for all. Accounting for the reason of Killingly having almost 300 less cows than it had in 1917, one listens to the plaint of the farmer that herds for many are no longer profitable; that farm labor is scarce, largely inefficient and so high in cost that many farmers must restrict their operations to what can be accomplished by the farmer himself and members of his family who may be available for some degree of assistance.

Meanwhile, the motor car blooms in prominence in the tax list. The new compilation of the assessors sets forth that 1235 motor vehicles are owned in this town. This is an increase of 209 since the grand list of last year was completed. Back in 1917, Killingly people thought a good many cars were owned here when the list showed only 853. Today, approximately, there is a motor vehicle in Killingly for every eight of its inhabitants. Visionaries may be looking with longing eyes for the day when there will be eight cars for each person.

The new list shows 117 exemptions to soldiers and sailors and to the blind.

There was something of tragedy for officials and others in touch with the prosecution of overdue personal taxes cases considered by the town court Wednesday morning. In that some of those haled to court pleaded their extreme poverty in explanation of not having met their obligation. That their pleas were based upon truth was established to the satisfaction of the court. Some of them came from homes where there was no fuel on these bitter winter days and very little food. One could but pity them in view of all the circumstances. The cases against them were nolled. The town, however, is engaged in clearing its records in personal tax matters, and in many cases there is no other way of getting at the facts than through an order for court appearances, all notices and other means of ascertaining delinquency being ignored. Judicious consideration of each individual case, however, is assured by the court. Others who appeared before the court Wednesday morning paid their taxes and the costs usually assessed.

This is a morning of the year when it will be quite useless for one to see an officer of the law with a view to requesting permission to operate his automobile under last year's number plates. No officer has any authority to grant one that permission, so one will be saving time and the officers' patience and good nature by not asking them to grant the impossible.

Each year numbers of car owners fail to get their new registration plates by January 1. Then comes the days of the officers' travail. This year will be no exception to the rule. Danielson men who drove to New London or to Hartford on belated trips for registrations found the issuing offices stormed with applicants Tuesday and Wednesday. This indicates that some will not have their new numbers today. The old ones cannot legally be used. But if you have no new numbers you can help make the officers' new year happy by not pestering them about it. They would like to be generous, but the law does not permit.

Deposits in the savings departments of Danielson's three banks topped $7,000,000 in 1924, figures released Wednesday show. This is the highest point touched in accumulating savings in Danielson and speaks volumes for the thrift of the people of this town and those of other towns hereabouts who make Danielson a banking center. In exact figures, the amount of money in savings institutions here at the close of 1924, was $7,254,909.24. The bulk of this money has been accumulated since the outbreak of the World war in 1914—the year that marked the era of new high high wage standards and the transaction of business in greater volume than this nation ever knew before. Add to the savings figure the millions in Liberty bonds and other securities accumulated here during the World war, throw in the grand list and other holdings and one gets a view of local wealth that gives one a right to say in all sincerity this should be a real happy new year, at least financially, for this community.

Louis Bertorelli, one of the borough's business men, has purchased from J. W. Winkleman a very desirable house lot on Broad street, between the Bitrood and Gallup properties. Mr. Bertorelli said Wednesday that he contemplates building a residence on the lot the coming spring.

There was not much of the clamor of old-time New Year's eves in Danielson. An exodus was on. From late afternoon until well after 10 o'clock a stream of cars rolled out of Danielson on their way with anticipating passengers to cities that offered the glare of the white lights, dinner and theater parties, dances and what not. Youth is still having its fling. Nor did youth journey alone New Year's eve. Some of the old timers who are still pretty good at staying out made a night of it. They were on hand to welcome 1925.

A meeting of the Civic federation is scheduled to be held at the health station in the town hall building Friday afternoon.

The twenty new dwellings erected in this town the past year, most of them in Danielson, would help make a showing on a new street, it may be mentioned. Twenty more next year is at least a probability.

The postoffice will be open until 10 o'clock this morning. After that hour the lobby alone will be open.

Numbers of Danielson people attended watch night parties where something of the awe of a passing year was borne in upon one as well as the joy experienced over the birth of a new one, with all its promise.

SON OF MR. AND MRS. KEELEN IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Dec. 31.—Walter Joseph Keelen, Jr., four months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Keelen, was found dead in bed at their home on the West Side during the very early hours of Wednesday morning. The child had been ill since Sunday with bronchial trouble, but its condition was not regarded as at all serious. On Tuesday evening the child seemed to be in excellent spirits, promising a speedy recovery. Finding of the body of the child came as a great shock to the parents, who received many expressions of sympathy from the friends in the community in their bereavement on the eve of a holiday.

When Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Morse celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home on School street Saturday evening, the house was decorated with yellow carnations, laurel and roses. The children and grandchildren, all of whom, with the exception of one, reside in Putnam, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morse. There was also one great-grandchild present. A golden wedding poem written by Mrs. Anna Putnam Flagg of Abington was read by Miss Esther Fox, Mrs. Morse's half-sister. During the evening refreshments were served and several musical numbers were given by three of the grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Morse were presented several beautiful gifts. Mr. Morse, who is 72, is in good health and active. He was born in West Woodstock in 1852, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Morse. He lived in West Woodstock until his marriage with Sarah Fox, the daughter of Abiel and Lucy Ingalls Fox, of North Ashford. Mr. and Mrs. Morse were married in West Woodstock in 1874 and moved in their present home the following June. Mr. Morse's father and mother celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1892.

Mrs. Morse is 73. She has a half-sister, Miss Esther Fox, who teaches in Waterbury. When not teaching she makes her home with Mrs. Morse. Mr. Morse was engaged in the meat business for forty years, having a market adjacent to his home. For some time past he has been busy adjacent to his home. For some time past he has been busy changing his market into tenements.

Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Morse. One died in infancy. The three living are Raymond E. Morse, who lives at home; Harry Morse, who has been in the meat business with his father, and who is now employed at the Mansfield store, and Mrs. George D. Clark of Walnut street. There are eight grandchildren and one grandchild. Mr. and Mrs. Clark celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary Oct. 21, 1922.

Mrs. Emily A. Cogswell, 81, died Tuesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Leon N. Walker on Grove street. She had been in feeble health for a long time and for the past six weeks she had been confined to her bed. Mrs. Cogswell was born in Sterling, Conn., Sept. 21, 1843, her parents being Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Walker. In 1870 she married Samuel Cogswell who was engaged for nearly all of his mature life in the mill business at Dayville. He died in October, 1911, and since then Mrs. Cogswell has made her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leon N. Walker. Until a year and a half ago Mr. Walker lived at North Grosvenordale. For years he was first selectman of the town of Thompson. Three years ago he formed a partnership with Lebeus E. Smith of this city and in 1923 moved to Putnam.

When the city court convened Wednesday morning Judge M. H. Geissler announced his decision in the case of Charles Berzuh whose hearing consumed all of Tuesday. On the first count, charging him with keeping liquor with intent he was pronounced not guilty. On two other counts charging him with the illeral sale of liquor the court found him guilty, imposed a fine of $500 in each count, and sentenced him to jail for 30 days on each count. Berzuch appealed and was released on a bond of $1,500.

John Tobozsky, who lives near the old fair grounds, was found guilty after a hearing on three counts, fined $200 on each, and given a suspended sentence of 30 days on each.

Frank Miner pleaded guilty on two counts, was fined $100 on each, and given time to pay, and got a suspended sentence of 30 days on each count.

The post office hours for New Year's Day will be from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. There will be no delivery either by city or rural carriers, and the money order and postal savings windows will be closed. Distribution of mail to boxes will be as usual in the morning and all outgoing mail will be taken care of.

Cargill Council, Knights of Columbus, celebrated New Year's eve at their hall on Union street. There was a turkey supper, vaudeville acts and a musical program.

Earl L. Austin was in Hartford on Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Mary McDonnell, 48, widow of Thomas J. McDonnell, died Wednesday at her home in Pomfret. She leaves two sons.

R. H. Chandler of Thompson is spending the holiday week in New York.

Miss Nellie Kent, formerly of Putnam, now a teacher in the Clinton, Mass., High school, is spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sanderson.

The Headquarters company's basketball team is to play the Woodstock Academy Alumni team Saturday evening.

There is to be a meeting of the board of management of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter, D. A. R., on Monday afternoon, in the trustees' room of Putnam Savings bank.

Thomas F. Ryan, for many years head of the finishing department of the Putnam Woolen company, was given a mahogany cabinet and a box of cigars by the employes under him, in recognition of his uniformly fair and considerate management.

FORTY PER CENT DIVIDEND TO FIRST NAT'L DEPOSITORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Dec. 31.—Although there has been no official announcement from Comptroller of the Currency Henry M. Dawes or George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank, it is known that checks are being made out for the payment of the first dividend to depositors and that the amount is 40 per cent.

These checks have to be forwarded to Washington to be countersigned by the comptroller, then returned here for distribution. An immense amount of clerical work is involved. A bank official familiar with the situation estimated that it would require from four to six weeks before the checks are in the hands of the depositors. The fact that the work of paying the first dividend is under way and that it is 40 per cent, is very gratifying. Two months ago Mr. Dawes authorized the statement that the first dividend would be from 20 to 25 per cent. Now, that it is possible to make it almost double that amount gives grounds for the belief that the depositors will be paid in full.

At the time the bank closed its doors the commercial deposits were slightly under $1,000,000 and the savings deposits were about $600,000. A dividend of 40 per cent means the distribution in Putnam and vicinity of approximately $640,000. All of this money has been tied up since Aug. 11, earning nothing either for the depositors or the bank.

Mr. Coffin refused to comment when questioned about the dividend. "The amount of this," he said "and the time of payment of the dividend are matters entirely within the province of the comptroller and I am not authorized to make any statement about them."

THE PAST AND THE FUTURE.

According to the annual survey by The Bulletin concerning industrial, building and business activities in eastern Connecticut during the past year, it is disclosed that the same uncertainty which prevailed throughout the country earlier in the year did not skip this section. The slump tells why it is not possible to show a gain over the previous year in all lines, but the showing, all things considered is an encouraging one.

While the mills and manufactories experienced a dull period in the earlier part of the year, meaning reduced production and a dropping in the distribution of wages, conditions have undergone a marked change for the better in the past few months and the prospects are excellent for prolonged prosperity ahead and it is the future in which we are interested.

In spite of the dullness, however, it is to be noted, with due consideration for what it means, that the savings bank deposits have increased and local construction work shows a pleasing gain. These are barometers of no slight significance. They provide an excellent foundation for the bright look ahead for the coming year.

In the matter of development, Norwich and the towns in this end of the state must continue to look optimistically. Putnam has been staggering under a heavy load, but its refusal to be discouraged is an inspiration. Early fruits of its claim that it can come back are already being shown.

More and more each year is this end of the state giving consideration to the excellence of this location for manufacturing purposes, to the facilities that are at hand and those that are available and should be had.

Better transportation facilities, with the full use of the Thames river by deepening the channel, is a goal on which efforts must be centered, and increased if such a thing is possible.

And in combination with rail and water facilities there is nothing that be of much greater benefit than cheaper power. Through the counties in eastern Connecticut there has been made available in the past several years, through employment of water privileges and the establishment of large generating stations, a high grade and dependable electrical service. The advantage of it is reflected in the manner in which it has appealed to communities and industries. It not only means much today but it holds great promise for the future when consideration is given to the unmistakable attraction of cheap power.

While each of the busy centers of this end of the state is seriously concerned with its own problems and its own betterment, all of which may be needed and admitted, there unquestionably exists a magnificent opportunity for genuine cooperation that will provide better facilities, better opportunities and better growth and development for all concerned. The chance for a common betterment is a big one. The effects of pulling together need no demonstration. Organizations have been formed for this very purpose along certain lines in recognition of its value.

The merits of such activity in behalf of better roads, safer highways and better farms will be found to apply with equal force to that whole list of things, such as better transportation facilities, cheaper power and more manufactories, all looking to that growth and increased industrial activity which is so much desired by communities, separately and collectively. The need of a bigger and better eastern Connecticut may well be kept to the front.

REWARDING THE FLIERS.

Honors have been gained already by the round the world fliers which no one can deny them. The very fact that they have done something which no one else has carries its own significance. But there was certainty that the government would undertake something fitting in the way of a reward and that appears to be forthcoming in the plan which has been approved by the war department and which, with the sanction of the president, will undoubtedly get the support of congress.

By the recommendations Lieutenant Smith would be made eligible for a major's commission by being advanced on the promotion list 1000 files. Lieutenants Wade, Nelson and Arnold would be advanced 500 files and Sergeants Harding and Ogden would be given regular army commissions of second lieutenants. All would receive the distinguished service medals which are intended for those rendering excellent service in times of peace, while the men would also be permitted to receive the decorations offered by foreign governments.

The plan differs somewhat from suggestions previously made. Consideration is given to the fact that while their service is one that has never before been rendered there must be maintained a distinction between such a peace time accomplishment and the display of bravery on the battlefield. Likewise it could not be expected that recommendations would be made that would establish awkward precedents by the violation of existing rules and regulations. Recognition of the character of the service and the credit deserved is indicated by the statement that the proposed reward is the most generous ever given by the government in time of peace.

Throughout the country there is recognized the need of special recognition by the government for the record breaking accomplishment and it is highly probable that the nation will give approval to what congress does.

REMAINING AT COLOGNE.

The time was ripe for the good effect of such a move as the evacuation of Cologne by the allied forces. No step at this time would have served to establish better relations and feeling between the allies and Germany than the carrying out of the terms of the Versailles treaty on the date set.

By the terms of the treaty Cologne was to be evacuated five years after the effectiveness of the treaty, which would be the tenth of January, provided that Germany had lived up to the treaty requirements. Nothing would have been simpler than for the allies to admit that Germany had done as it promised to do and therefore withdraw their forces, but there looms up the awkward claim that Germany has not done its part. It is pointed out that Germany has failed to comply with the disarmament requirements, and Germany knows full well that there could be no feature of the treaty about which the allies would be more particular than that which is supposed to prevent Germany from retaining old war material or providing new.

What is the outcome going to be? The allies are so strongly convinced that they are right about Germany's military status that they have indicated that there would be no retirement from Cologne on the tenth of January. Germany denies that it has disregarded the disarmament mandate. Thus there is apparently a question of fact which all should be anxious to have cleared up. It is most unfortunate for Germany that it has permitted any such idea to become established in the minds of the allies, to say nothing of the evidence which the allies claim to have. If Germany is being misrepresented now is the time for it to throw open its doors, invite the allies in and bid them disclose where it has failed to disarm.

Germany must know that the desired improvement in relations is not going to develop as long as it tries to cover up, or while it acts in a way to create suspicion. For its own good it should have taken every precaution to see that disarmament was accomplished and could be proved. The present situation exists because the allies are confident they can prove their claims. That being so it is most unfortunate in view of the good headway that had been made concerning reparations.

ALBANIA'S TROUBLES.

Through long years of experience it has come to be recognized that, if it is impossible to find trouble elsewhere in Europe or to unearth the necessary requirements for the generous shedding of blood such as goes with war, the Balkans seldom disappoint. War clouds can be easily raised in that region. In fact it seems as if they were held in leash ready to be set loose at hair trigger provocation.

That was the condition before the war, and we need further evidence to show that it has undergone much of a change since that time. One would expect that great conflict to bring about a change everywhere except in the Balkans. That part of the world which has thrived and depended upon wars for so long indicates the need of something different than war, horrible as it is, to reform it.

Just at the present time it is the revolution in Albania that is giving concern. What the outcome will be there is no telling. As is always the case the internal struggle is being watched with deep interest by surrounding nations, not so much with the idea of aiding the Albanian government, but with a view to what they may be able to get out of it. Jugoslavia has been endeavoring to get certain boundary rectifications. Italy would like to get a foothold on the otherside of the Adriatic that it might thoroughly control what Mussolini calls the Italian lake.

The weak position which Albania holds in the Balkans is no secret. Whenever it is unable to deal peacefully with its own affairs it is simply providing interesting possibilities for its neighbors. What may become of Albania no one knows but with international machinery existing for the prevention of war, and the covetting of the territory of others, it seems to be affording another opportunity for this organization to apply the necessary safeguards.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Happy New Year!

Have you obtained and placed your new number plates?

The chief business of states for the next few days will be inaugurating governors.

The man on the corner says: Take a firm grip, show plenty of optimism and make it a happy New Year.

The tariff on exalic acid has been increased. What, if anything, does that say to your old straw hat?

Having studied the new traffic regulations there ought to be no arguments with the police or traffic officers.

Among the other things that can be anticipated this month in addition to the total eclipse of the sun is the January thaw.

How long will the new traffic regulations serve to meet the requirements when there are already objections to them before they have become effective.

SOONER OR LATER

"Tell you," said the Hyde Park man feelingly, when his friend from Woodlawn dropped into his office around lunchtime. "I am sorry for the poor women who haven't bobbed their hair!"

"There's a catch somewhere," said the Woodlawn man, dubiously. "A real, noble, true man likes a womanly woman—"

"Sure," the Hyde Park man agreed airily. "And all that! I'm sorry for 'em because they are so agonized over whether or not they shall have it done. If they've had it done at least their misery is difinite, but if they haven't they're right up in the air and nothing is sadder than a poor weak woman clawing around the atmosphere trying to drag down whatever it is she is sobbing about and not being able to name it!

"Every time I go home I find Imogene in front of a mirror with the third of the hand glasses she has worn out looking at the shape of her head. She wants to know passionately what my real honest opinion inside I think she would look like a perfect fright if she bobbed her hair? I'd like to see the man who'd tell any woman—more especially if he is married to her—that she'd look like a fright under any circumstances! I give the required reply. Well, do I honestly think she is too old to do it? Again I'd like to see the man, etc.

"You'd think she would by now be perfectly happy and satisfied, instead of which she wring her hands—if I'd only give a little thought to her problems instead of just saying anything to get rid of the subject! If she could depend on my opinion as being what I really, truly thought!

"Meanwhile the beefsteak is getting cold and I maneuver her toward the dining room. She can't get a hat to fit—everything is made small headsizes and wherever she goes the clerks just won't bother with her after one look at her long hair bobbed up. They say it's no use they have nothing in stock that will go on. Well, say I go ahead and have it bobbed then!

"Oh, I'm just saying that to get rid of her! Louise Plunes bobbed hers and then her husband claimed he had never agreed to it and people who live across the street can hear the discussions which rage nightly in the dunes household! Men are like that! And I am so sarcastic when I get het up! Besides every now and then she reads in the cable news that Paris has set its face against the bobbed hair and of course that settles it. Although American women are terribly independent and are beginning to set their own styles and the papers claim more women than ever are patronizing the barbers. Is that so bob it. I advise her. Well, but what if the news from Paris is correct? Well, maybe she hadn't better bob it. I agree.

"Oh, I make her so furious! Just echoing what she says like a parrot! Haven't I any opinions of my own and for heaven's sake, what are they?

"Well, I concluded that in our house hold something drastic must be done. If Imogene didn't bod her hair three-quarters of her brain would be milling over the question of whether she wouldn't have looked lots better if she had—and if she did do it she'd only have to suffer six months before it would be grown long again. So this morning I said, 'Dearie, please go and get your hair bobbed today. I know it will be terribly becoming to you and I'm wild to see you with it that way'—and she was tickled to pieces and said she'd go right away as soon as she could get dressed."

The Hyde Park man paused to answer the telephone.

"Well," he said to his Woodlawn friend, "that was Imogene. She gave Mrs. Myrtle cut her on the front steps and advised her on no account to bob her hair and she wanted to know what I really thought about it?"

"Let's go eat," said the Woodlawn man after a great silence.—Chicago News.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

WHY HURRICANES STRIKE THE UNITED STATES

Solomon might have added to the four things which he "knew not," the mysterious way of a hurricane over sea and land, for little was known of the workings of weather until a generation or so ago. Now science has learned what this super-wise king found too difficult, and that the Atlantic coast was fully warned against the storm which lashed it from Florida to New York the latter part of August.

Summer hurricanes and the conditions that cause them are subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Soc.:

"The so-called West Indian hurricanes that cripple a Gulf of Mexico city or an Atlantic coast port every so often are probably as ancient in their origin as the Atlantic ocean and the North American Continent," says the bulletin. "They are the creatures of atmospheric temperature and pressure, and variations in these in turn are caused by the sun beating down on the expanses of Atlantic water and the land mass of our continent. The first such storm on record devasted parts of Cuba in 1494.

"Annually, between July and October, about ten hurricanes are born somewhere east of the Caribbean Sea, usually to sweep westward, then northward, and finally back northeastward, their paths forming pretty accurate parabolic curves. The primary factor in the birth and careers of these storms is believed to be an area of high atmospheric pressure or 'high,' that exists practically permanently over the middle Atlantic. In other words, a great blanket of heavy, sluggish air lies continually over this area. Along its southern edge in the tropics little swirling disturbances occur which are the seeds of possible hurricanes. But there is a certain infant mortality among these stormlets, especially in winter and spring. Then the Atlantic 'high' extends in a broad band on into the North American continent, forming in effect a fence of heavy air which the storms can not pass. Confined to the tropics they are dissipated without causing the United States any concern.

"But when summer heat has warmed up the land 'high' withdraws to its ocean home, jutting out like an air peninsula toward America. The atmosphere over the land becomes an arena for shifting 'highs' and 'lows.' It is as though an atmospheric football game were in progress. The newly born storms of the tropical Atlantic regions seek, because of the general drift of the atmosphere, to move northward. The highs, whether stationary or in motion, furnish the interference which they must dodge. The weakest place in the defence is between the permanent mid-Atlantic 'high' and the American coast. Most tropical hurricanes, therefore, move east to avoid the mid-ocean barrier and then dash northward well east of the coast. Once around the end of the 'high' they swing northeastward and continue on even into Europe.

"Some of the storms do not have such plain sailing. If the Atlantic 'high' extends farther westward than usual the disturbances must swing over the land to round the end. It is upon such rather infrequent occasions that the Atlantic coast suffers as it did in August.

"By a still farther westward extension of the high pressure area the storms are prevented from moving north and sweep into the Gulf of Mexico. It was such conditions that brought about the terribly destructive Galveston hurricane in September, 1900, and that which cost many lives at Corpus Christi in September, 1919. The Galveston storm turned northward, passing through Texas and Oklahoma, and finally passed to the Atlantic down the St. Lawrence Valley. The Corpus Christi hurricane, however, belonged to the rare type with an approximately straight path. A chain of 'highs' formed an impassable barrier to the north and the storm moved on into Mexico where it was finally dissipated among the mountains.

"Hurricanes are not winds that drive straight ahead. They are swirls of the cyclonic type. These swirling storm centers move relatively slowly across sea and sometimes at no greater speed than eight or ten miles an hour. But they suck air toward them from all sides at terrific speeds, up to 100 or more miles an hour.

"The United States Weather Bureau had rather poor facilities for tracing tropical storms until after the Spanish-American war in 1898 when reporting stations were established in the West Indies. Now, with the development of radio, ship reports make it possible to keep still closer track of these potentially destructive storms."

Evans Kept on Despite His Pain

Braving hardships and making sacrifices, Robley D. Evans fought his way to the rank and glory of an officer in the navy, then had to defend his life and spend his later years in pain.

Born in the mountains at Floyd Court House, Va., he owned a pony, a gun and a negro boy and learned to smoke and chew tobacco at six. Four years later, his father, a country doctor, died, and the boy was taken to Washington to live with his uncle.

Then came new ideas of life. Told by a delegate from Utah that if he would establish a residence in the territory he would be appointed to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, the boy, now 13, made his way across the plains on a mule, undaunted even when wounded by Indians.

An acting midshipman on the Constitution a year later, he refused his mother's plea that he join a Confederate cause at the beginning of the Civil War, and when he learned that she had sent in his resignation he wired for reinstatement.

Shot four times in the attack on Fort Fisher he "got his man." In the hospital he held the surgeons at bay with a revolver and prevented amputation of his legs when only 18. Through the rest of his life he limped and secretly endured constant pain. Not until his later years did his suffering become known, and then through accident.

Unflinchingly he went on and gained the sobriquet of Fighting Bob. After the Civil war he served at Washington Annapolis and in European waters. Made a commander at 33, he directed the Yorktown off Valparaiso, Chile, just after American soldiers had been killed by a mob, and he twice dared the ten Chilian forts and the entire Chilian squadron.

Captain of the Iowa during the Spanish-American war he ordered the first shot that was fired at the Spanish fleet of Admiral Cervera when it attempted to escape from Santiago harbor.

Commissioned rear-admiral at 58, he commanded the Asiatic and later the Atlantic fleet. At 61, still denying his pain, he as commander-in-chief, took an American fleet around the world for the first time, and although the effort to take our squadron where English and German warships could not go was at first criticised the world applauded our navy, our sailors and Rear-Admiral Evans.

French Warn Soviet To Stop All Propaganda

Despite the tremendous ovations given Leonid Krassin (above) Soviet Minister to France, the Herriot Cabinet has emphatically stated that unless the Third Internationale ceases its Communist propaganda in France, Krassin will be given his passports and put out of the country. Unless the Soviet desist, there is little hope of any sort of relations between the French Republic and Russia.

Stories That Recall Others

Donald Was Posted.

The family had been talking about census enumeration. The children had been greatly interested in the conversation that had taken place and when a change came Annette, the oldest girl, asked in a thoughtful manner: "Mother, was I born in New London county?"

Before her mother could reply, Donald, age five, spoke up and said, "Yes, you were born in New London county and barefooted, too!"

Greetings.

Miss Helen, age three, was up and dressed early on a recent morning and before breakfast made a call on her grandmother who lives nearby on the same street.

"Hello, grandma," she said. "I've got on my long underwear and we're going to have fried mush for breakfast. What do you know?"

The Santa Claus Myth

Manthei Howe

Snowflakes sifted down softly. Now and then the silence was broken by the jingle of a passing sleigh-bell or the protesting snort of a motor trying to buck the drifts.

In the living room Stancia was elbow deep in tissue paper, she was doing up the parcels that were to be sent out of town. There came a bang of the door, the stamping of feet, and little Delicia stood in the doorway.

"Oh, mother," and she sniffed appreciatively, "it smells lovely in here."

Stancia Varney smiled. "It's the sachet in the present for Aunt May. Just think how busy old Santa Claus must be these days."

Little eight-year-old Delicia paused a moment, then hurled her bomb: "Oh Mother dear, there isn't a Santa Claus now is there? Jane says there isn't and last year Alice SAW her mother and father trim the tree!"

For one panicky second Stancia Varney felt the smart of tears. It had come—the end of Delicia's babyhood, the time when she no longer believed in Santa Claus.

Now Stancia had been reading of the blow dealt to a child's trust when he discovered there was no Santa Claus. She had been worried by the article's prophecy that she would see in her child's eyes the dawning of distrust of Mother; a look of anguished disillusionment at such rank betrayal by an adult. At the memory of that article Stancia quailed. Then she beckoned to Delicia.

"Come here, Delicia," Mother's manner was delightfully mysterious and important. "I'm glad you asked me about Santa Claus, darling. There is a Santa Claus but not the kind you mean. That's where the surprise comes in. You see, mothers and daddies tell their little children about the Santa Clause that comes with reindeer and sleigh. It's a lovely make-believe story, just like when you play school with little Ted."

Delicia's eyes were fixed on her mother's interested wonder.

"The real Santa Claus," smiled Mother, "is right in here." She placed her hand on Delicia's thumping little heart, "it's the love you have for other people. It's the thing that makes you want to be kind and to make others happy."

Mother paused impressively. "This is the big surprise. You and Mother and Daddy and Aunt May, and all children who are big enough, and all the grown-ups are the Santa Clauses. Instead of just one Santa Claus there are millions. But you won't tell that secret to little Ted, will you?"

"No," promised Delicia breathlessly, "no I won't."

"I see," Mother was careful to explain, "Ted isn't big enough yet to understand. We'll have to wait a year or two before we tell him, and won't he be surprised!"

LOW INCIDENCE OF MEASLES IN STATE

Only 105 cases of measles have been reported to the state department of health during the last four months as compared to an average of more than 500 cases per month during the past ten years, says this week's issue of the state department's health bulletin.

This four month period is the only period in ten years when for four consecutive months fewer than 100 cases were reported for each month. Altogether 63,965 cases of measles with 959 deaths have been reported during the past ten years.

During this period the largest number of cases reported for any one year was 19,426 reported in 1916, and the second largest 9,659 reported in 1923. The lowest incidence for any one year appears to have occurred in 1915 when 3,461 cases were reported and the next lowest in 1921 when 4,620 cases were reported.

As for seasonal incidence it appears that prevalence of measles is greater in May than in any other month of the year. Of the 63,965 cases reported in 10 years more than ¼ (¼ or 10,955) were reported in May while about ⅛ in 180, or 451 cases to be exact were reported in September during which month measles prevalence reaches its lowest point. From this point the number of cases reported increases month by month until a high incidence is reached during March, April and May, reaching the highest point in May. While more cases were reported in May than in March, 10,955 as against 9,619, more deaths occurred in March when the deaths numbered 152 against 136 for May. A total of 959 deaths out of 63,965 indicates that 1 1-2 per cent. of all cases of measles terminate fatally.

The unusually low incidence of measles extending over a period of 4 months appears to be merely a coincidence due to absence of measles in epidemic form in any large community of the state. This follows from the fact that the figures for the state merely constitute the sum total of figures for all communities in the state. For a small city measles may be expected to occur in epidemic form every four or five years with practically no cases occurring between epidemics. When it happens that no epidemic occurs in any part of the state over a period of months the incidence for the entire state during that period of entire state that period is low. That is what has happened during the past four months. How long the low incidence will continue will depend on how long the different communities in the state may remain free from epidemic measles.

It is especially appropriate at this time when everyone has been buying Christmas seals, to note the effects of the attack of the many health agencies against this disease. During the twenty year period of 1903-1923 inclusive the mortality in Connecticut from tuberculosis all forms, has dropped from 163.2 to 88.3 per 100,000 population. This decrease has been more marked since 1917, when the rate dropped from 152.4 to 89.3 in 1923.

Contrasted with this cheerful news we have the ominous increase in deaths from cancer. In 1903 there were 721 deaths in Connecticut from this disease. In 1923 there were 2,449 a little more than double the previous figure. The death rate has increased in this period from 76.4 to 98.2 per 100,000 population.

Rosa A. Faulkner, wife of Alfred H. Faulkner of Trading Cove, died Saturday at her home. She was born Feb. 28, 1857, in Middlebury, Vt., one of thirteen children born to George and Phoebe Harris. At an early age, her parents moved to Jewett City, in which place in Oct., 1878, she was united in marriage with Alfred H. Faulkner of Lisbon by the Rev. Henry Lyons. Gager, Rev Robert Day of Yantic officiating. There was a wealth of floral tributes. Burial was at Maplewood cemetery.

FORMAL OPENING OF SKATING POND TODAY

Provided the ice on the new public skating pond near Backus corner, East Great Plain, is hard enough, the formal opening of the pond will take place this (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock. Owing to the rise intemperature Wednesday, there was some question as to whether the pond which was re-flooded Tuesday would freeze over hard enough for the carrying out of the programme planned for this afternoon.

Late Wednesday night the temperature was dropping well below the freezing point and indications were that the night would be cold enough to provide good skating at the pond this afternoon. Paul A. Brown, president of the West End Community association has made the skating pond possible, said Wednesday night that if the ice in in proper shape for skating the programme will be carried out as planned.

The programme will be started at 2 o'clock with a grand march for the skaters. Other events will include a mile race for young men, 500 yards for boys, 500 yards for girls and a mile race for boys. One of the features of the programme will be a baseball game on the ice. Mr. Brown stated that if it is found necessary to postpone the programme, it will be given on the next future date to be announced through the press.

A large sign has also been placed at the foot of the Willow street hill, designating that section of the street between Chestnut street and Broadway as a one way street going east. The new new signs are in yellow and black which are the colors recognized generally for traffic signs. The limits for parking and sections of streets where no parking is allowed have also been plainly designated by yellow and black signs.

COURT ORDERS SALE OF BRANDEGEE'S ASSETS

The property at Washington is valued at $18,731.50 and the senator's Washington debts total $180,000. W. Don Lundy, the senator's former secretary, and the National Bank of Commerce of New [illegible], Conn., the administrators, told the court they would borrow enough money on certain securities belonging to the estate to pay off a mortgage on a farm in Montgomery county, Maryland.

Shortly before the death of Senator Brandegee, he sold his Washington home and the purchaser has asked for the removal of his household effects.

For Community Welfare In The New Year

The clear page of 1925 awaits the record we are to write upon it. That it shall be a record of health, prosperity and success for every individual and of advancement in civic and social lines for the community is the New Year's wish of the city government of Norwich. Let us remember that the good of each is the good of all, and with high purpose and worthy endeavor to achieve the best, make the New Year one in which, as a community and as individual citizens, we shall register a record of which we shall be proud.

Mayor of Norwich.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS HAVE CABARET SHOW

Fully four hundred people attended the New Year's Eve frolic of Wauregan lodge, No. 8, Knights of Pythias, held at Olympic hall and an evening of pleasure was enjoyed. To the strains of delightful music by D'Atri's Wauregan Hotel orchestra of 10 pieces, dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening, being interspersed by over 30 song, dance and cabaret numbers by entertainers from the Clement Bureau of Hartford.

The affair was the first of its kind staged in Norwich in many years and bids fair to become an annual event by the Knights of Pythias of this city. The hall was most attractively decorated for the frolic, hundreds of many colored electric lights making a most attractive picture, while beautiful shades, bunting, streamers and festoons made the auditorium a place of beauty. The stage setting was also novel and nicely worked out, pink background on gold holding the wreaths of 1924 and 1925, lighted up with red lights, while on either side was the insignia of the order.

Table reservations were entirely taken up early in the evening and Fern's restaurant, which had charge of the catering, had a corps of a dozen efficient waitresses who cared for the wants of the patrons throughout the evening.

The entertainment program by the Clement Bureau included The Ducy Musical Revue, a snappy and classy song and dance number by Mary Ducy and Arline Talmadge, and this was followed by a cabaret number by the Carpenter Sisters, James Walsh, accompanist. The ensemble number included four neat costume song and dance numbers, a French Soldier number, Hinky Dinky, Bathing Revue and Snow Ball. Later in the evening Arline Talmadge had her audience tapping to her snappy jazz songs and the Carpenter Sisters appeared in their novelty dance. The concluding numbers on the programme were Billie & Mollie in Song and Dance Land and Mary Ducy in songs. Numerous encores were given by the artists after repeated demands by the audience. Additional entertainment which featured local songsters was furnished by Peter DeVito, popular tenor and Harry Schwartz, known as "Big Boy."

An impressive and novel number came at midnight when the wreath and candle representing 1924 suddenly began to fade out and the wreath and candle for 1925 were lighted. The hall was darkened during this impressive ceremony and as the midnight bells and chimes rang out Alex Pasnik, on behalf of the Knights of Pythias, made the following address:

All Hail: Knights of Pythias and Friends. A happy new year to you all and to your guests. Welcome 1925. With the bells just ringing out 1924 be it resolved by the exalted order of Knights of Pythias, that the new year bring to you all, health, wealth, happiness and prosperity and a bright outlook for the future.

The steeds of life are everlastingly rushing before the chariot of life. The work before us is great and the time is short. Have you performed the share of work allotted to you? Have you fulfilled the purpose for which you were placed in this universe?

Hurry, lest you be overtaken before the work of life is done. This earth is given to you and your friends to share and enjoy. Have you guarded the share of your friends? Have you treated them like brothers? Have you defended the heritage that has been entrusted to you? Have you been lax or remiss in your duty? Now is the time to make a new resolve—to begin anew.

The purpose of creation is the evolution of a perfect man, living in a universal brotherhood with his fellow man. Therefore, join our ranks, man to man, shoulder to shoulder, let us fulfill God's will and make this a happy sojourn for men.

Begin tonight by leaving all care behind, let this be a forerunner of a happier, healthier, wealthier and wiser Knights of Pythias in 1925.

Immediately at the close of the address by Mr. Pasnik the orchestra struck up a lively dance piece and 1925 was welcomed in with noise makers and rattles, while hundreds of colored streamers were sent into the air by the joyful throng.

The affair was a complete success from every viewpoint, due to the untiring efforts of the following committee, Abner Schwartz, Alex Pasnik, Maurice Friedman, Joseph M. Lahn, Dr. S. M. Goldberg, Joseph Friedman, Rudolph Henschel and George Schiller. Stage settings were by Joseph M. Lahn, assisted by Mrs. William H. Johnson and the auditorium decorations were by Maurice Sussman and Jake Ableman.

MANY NORWICH DRIVERS ARE WITHOUT NUMBERS

Many Norwich people will be without car registrations for 1925 due to the holdup at New London during the last three days of 1924. Many Norwich people sent their money to that office on Monday and expected to receive their 1925 markers by Wednesday night, but they were doomed to disappointment, as only a few came up at 9 o'clock. Over two score people were turned away when the names were called and their markers were not listed.

The state department has stated that 1924 markers shall not be used after midnight Wednesday, but many were seen about the streets until the early hours of Thursday.

The disappointed drivers Wednesday night seemed to feel that this city is entitled to a station where they can get markers, and another year may see an effort to bring this about, as Norwich is the natural center for eastern Connecticut. Autoists claim that Norwich is the mid-city and the place where the motor vehicle department should have located in the first place, rather than in New London, which is in the far end of the county, a distance as far as Hartford for thousands of automobile drivers.

UNCAS PAPER WHISTLE WELCOMES NEW YEAR

The whistle of the Uncas Paper Board company was blown for ten minutes about midnight Wednesday to welcome in the new year. The whistle started to blow at 11.55 and continued until 12.05 and was heard in many parts of the city.

But of course the old bachelor doesn't hold his own.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM TACKLES FAST FIVE FROM FALL RIVER THIS AFTERNOON

What promises to be a stellar holiday attraction will be staged at the Parish hall court this afternoon when the Army-Navy five of Taftville meets the American Thread five of Fall River, Mass.

Denny Murphy, premier catcher of the Pacific Coast league, who is in town on a visit, has been signed to coach the team. Although he has not been seen in action in several years, Denny has a statewide reputation as a performer on the chalked court and is considered to rank with the top-notchers in this vicinity. He knows the game from A to Z and will be in uniform New Year's afternoon to instruct the younger players and to jump into the game if the occasion demands. The local team had a few workouts last night and have greatly improved their teamwork. The visitors have come through with a few victories over fast teams and are said to be a formidable aggregation. Reliable Murphy of the Cowboys, Mills of Harvard, Hooper and Thomas Columbia, are among the players from the Bay state who will go with plenty of confidence of victory as the Fall River Five invades the Rose City. The visiting manager says his team will be in their best form and are eager for a successful showing on the Parish floor. The lineup of the visitors will be: Higgins and Mills, forwards; Bergeron, center; Hooper and Bathrovd, guards.

The preliminary encounter between the Army-Navy Seconds and the Taftville local teams. Last season the Army-Navy Seconds emerged victorious in a championship bout. This year Manager Raymond of the Taftville team feels his team will take the visitors into camp. In a heated argument which followed a challenge was issued to the local champs, which they accepted, and the outcome of this battle is good will be anticipated with interest. The game is called at 3:15 o'clock.

FANS ANTICIPATE GREAT GAME AT BERKELEY

Berkeley, Calif., Dec. 31 (By the A. P.)—Football fans of the San Francisco Bay region are looking forward eagerly to the east-west game tomorrow between Pennsylvania and California.

The weather was gloomy today, with a constant threat of rain. Despite previous statements that the game might be postponed until Saturday, if the weather appeared unfavorable the contest will be held tomorrow, whatever the elements decide to do, it was announced this evening by R. W. Cortelyou, the California athletic manager.

The Bears rested today, Coach Andy Smith having decided that further work was not desirable. Lou Young put the Quakers through a final secret practice. They still were somewhat stiff from their transcontinental journey.

The size of the attendance will depend largely on the weather, though more than 40,000 seats already have been sold, according to the management.

Neither team has been defeated this season, and California has not tasted the bitter potion in five years. Penn is linked with Yale and Dartmouth for eastern honors this year. As a defensive team the Quakers have made a remarkable record, allowing but 17 points to be scored against them all season.

NATIONAL BOXING BODY AT ODDS WITH N. Y. COM.

Baltimore, Dec. 31. (By the A. P.)—Declaring that "so-called championships" held under the auspices of the New York state athletic commission have no official standing outside of that state and that the winners are looked upon elsewhere as merely "paper champions," Latrobe Cogswell, president of the National Boxing association and chairman of the Maryland State Athletic commission today launched an attack on the New York commission, charging that body with dominating the boxing game and attempting to dictate the matches.

Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of Brooklyn, who recently defeated Abe Goldstein, in a match for the world's bantamweight title, will not be recognized as the 118-pound champion outside of New York state, declared Cogswell, nor will the winner of the match this Friday between Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., and Danny Kramer of Philadelphia, be recognized as the featherweight champion.

Neither of these matches has had the approval of the National Boxing association, Cogswell declared, adding that the results of them also would be ignored by the International Boxing Union, of which the N. B. A. is the American leader.

The position of these organizations toward the New York state commission is outlined by Cogswell in the statement he issued today.

NOTRE DAME FAVORED TO BEAT STANFORD

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 31.—Notre Dame, outweighed, but with the odds with them, are ready for Stanford university, whom they meet tomorrow afternoon in a post-season intersectional football game here. It will be the first time the Notre Dame players have exerted themselves in a warm climate such as Pasadena has.

Thirty-four team members of the South Bend institution, headed by Coach Knute Rockne, arrived today. Late today they were herded into Rose bowl, where the gallowing back will test shoes on the turf. The "Four Horsemen" were in fine fettle and were held down by warning words from Rockne.

The Palo Alto athletes topped off their practice this afternoon with light scrimmage. The 31 players have found that the field at the bowl is to their liking and declare that they will play under the best of conditions. The Stanford team will be kept in seclusion until the game starts following their practice today.

Pennant Races Prove the Greatest Ever

The winning of the world championship by the Washington Senators in a great seven-game struggle with the New York Giants was the climax of the great baseball season of 1924. Counted out of the race in their own league before the pennant hunt had even started, the Senators, led by the youngest manager in either league, swept on to victory over the Yankees and Tigers in the American League and over the Giants in the October battles for the world championship.

This was the great team triumps for the year, and credit for it goes to the whole Senatorial outfit, but the leadership of Bucky Harris, the pitching of Walter Johnson and the hitting of Leon ("Goose") Goslin were the three main factors that made it possible for the Senators to get into a world series and to bring a pennant to the Capital City for the first time in forty years of endeavor.

The victory of the Senators was not only immensely popular, even in New York, but it was considered a great thing for baseball. Everybody wanted to see Walter Johnson in the world series before old Father Time cut him down. Many fans were rooting for Bucky Harris, the youngest leader in the big league. Other baseball enthusiasts had become convinced that the all-New York annual struggles for the world championship were not for the best interests of the game. They rooted for Washington and rejoiced in the triumph of the Senators.

The final battle in the October series was epic. With the score tied in extra innings and the teams tied at three games each, "the championship" was at stake, and Walter Johnson, after eighteen long years of warming up, was on the mound. He had been hammered in two previous games by the Giants, and it seemed as if his chance had come too late.

But the tale of Johnson's triumph will be told and told again—how he fanned Kelly, how he fanned Frankie Frisch, how he held the Giants scoreless until the Senators finally got the break that won the championship. It was a fitting finish to a great season.

To add to the honors that Johnson won during the season he was elected the most valuable player in the American League. His record for the Senators was 23 games won and seven lost, which gave him the leadership of the league in pitching. In the earned run method of accounting he was also the ranking hurler of the younger circuit.

Dazzy Vance, of the Robins, who won twenty-eight games and lost but six, was the leading witcher of the National League, and it was a coincidence that Dazzy was elected the most valuable player in the National League, the first time such an award had been made in the Heydler circuit. The Brooklyn speed-ball pitcher was a wonderful help to his club, kept it in the pennant race to the last furlong and performed many individual feats of brilliancy as a pitcher too numerous to mention.

The victory of the Giants in the National League was not unexpected. At one time they had a lead of ten games, which almost entirely disappeared in the final dash against the Robins and Pirates, but McGraw jockeyed his men about from position to position and just managed to win. Among the individual brilliant feats of the season should be mentioned the magnificent batting average of .429 compiled by Rogers Hornsby, which sets a new mark for modern baseball, and the 46 home runs gathered by Babe Ruth, which put him back in undispited leadership of the circuit clouters.

Greatest Year For Football In History

The greatest ever! That, in brief, describes the college football season of 1924. It seems almost incredible to say annually that each football season outrivals its predecessor, yet this is absolutely true when referred to the last campaign. For attendance, class of competition and brilliance of individuals the 1924 season surpassed all others and with the mammoth plans mapped out for the coming year it is impossible to say just now how much better the coming season will be. That it will be greater is taken for grantew. The American public is ever showing more interest in the game.

Statisticians have estimated that more than 10,000,000 persons saw football games during the last season. This mark surpasses any previous figures. In addition, a new record was set for one game when 100,000 persons saw the Stanford-California battle on the coast. At least ten games in the east passed the 50,000 mark for attendance and two reached 80,000, these being the Army-Yale and Army-Navy battles.

In intersectional conflict the west outclassed the east. Notre Dame, with one of the greatest backfields in the history of football, outclassed all opposition from the east and south and led the west to a majority of victories over the east. Notre Dame was generally considered the best eleven in the country.

Only three major college elevens in the east remained undefeated and all three were held to tied games. These three, Yale, Penn, and Dartmouth, were universally placed in a section by themselves as the leading elevens of the east. Yale was held to two even games and had close calls in several others, although coming from behind to win. Army and Dartmouth held Yale even, while Brown and Harvard led the Elis at some stage of their battles. Penn, held to a scoreless tie by Penn State, had bad scares when it won by a margin of a field goal from Columbia and Georgetown, Dartmouth with its greatest team in years, conquered an imposing array with ease, defeating Cornell, Harvard, and Brown and outplaying Yale, although held even.

Chicago won the conference title after a most exciting race. The Maroon was the only undefeated conference team, although tied in three games. In the south, Alabama captured the Southern conference title, but Center, a non-conference team, defeated Alabama and must be considered the best team in the south.

Probably the greatest individual player of the year was Red Grange, of Illinois, who gained country-wide acclaim as the result of his sensational playing throughout the season. The west also had the best backfield combination in Stuhldreher, Layden, Crowley and Miller, of Notre Dame. Outstanding backs in the east—players who were mentioned on practically every all-east eleven—included Dooley, of Dartmouth; Koppisch, of Columbia; Pond, of Yale, and McBride, of Syracuse.

Aside from attendance, perhaps the most notable feature of 1924 was the number of upsets recorded in all sections. Strong teams met unexpected defeats, weak eleyens rose to great heights. Cornell was a notable example. The Red eleven lost to Williams and the latter lost to Columbia, but when Columbia faced Cornell the latter was the victor. Other big upsets were the defeat of Illinois by Minnesota, the latter's defeat by Vanderbilt and Bucknell's triumph over Rutgers, when the latter had gone through an unblemished campaign.

FIRPO WILLING TO MEET GIBBONS AND BOUT WILL BE ARRANGED

New York, Dec. 31.—(By The A. P.)—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavy weight now in Paris on a pleasure jaunt, has accepted terms for a fight in London under the auspices of the National Sporting club, which is seeking to sign Tom Gibbons, American light heavyweight, as an opponent for the South American in a 20-round bout in March.

The Proposal of the promoters to which Firpo is said in Paris dispatches to have given his verbal consent, calls for a purse of $100,000 of which sixty per cent will go to the winner, in addition to a $1,000 belt, and forty per cent to the loser. These terms were wired to Gibbons at St. Paul last night but Eddie Kane, the American's manager, declared that before taking any action he would await the arrival here of Thomas S. Rice, sporting writer of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and American representative of the National Sporting club. Rice who negotiated with Firpo in Paris, sailed today for the United States, empowered to deal directly with Gibbons and Kane.

According to Paris dispatches Firpo agreed to meet some other opponent if Gibbons is not available. Firpo named Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight or Charley Weinert, Newark boxer, who recently outpointed the Argentine, as candidates, but drew the color line against Harry Wills.

In boxing circles it was considered unlikely Gibbons would accept the match in view of his disastrous financial experience with promoters after knocking out Jack Bloomfield, English heavyweight, at the Wembley stadium last August. It was recalled he failed to collect the full guarantee pledged him for that bout. Gibbons himself declared in St. Paul that if he accepted, he would make sure his share of the money was ready.

Another consideration involving Gibbons is his prospects of a return match with Jack Dempsey, which Tex Rickard has considered promoting as a final indoor season attraction at Madison Square Garden or an event for the early outdoor schedule.

Sub Base Wins Title For Eastern Service Teams

Ending up the football season with the Submarine Base football team the Eastern Service championship, the Submarine Base football team for 1924 had a fairly successful season. Out of the eleven contests played, seven were won, three lost and one game tied. Besides winning the Eastern Service championship, the victory over the New London All Stars gave the tars the city championship.

In the collegiate circles, the Sub Base team lost to the Springfield College eleven and tied Providence College. Playing All-New Britain in the only contest the Base played in the pro field in this state, the tars lost by a single touchdown. Marked success met the Sub Base efforts on the gridiron against other service elevens. Large scores were rolled up at the expense of these service teams. A total of 189 points was rolled up against eleven teams, while the opponents of the Base scored but 62.

The football record for the season of 1924 follows:

Submarine Base	Opponents
12 U. S. S. Wright	0
0 Springfield College	6
31 Worcester A. A.	7
8 Newport Torpedo Station	6

Although the exact scores of the Submarine record for the season of 1923-24 are not available, yet the tars had a fairly successful season. Fourteen games were won and five lost. Among the games lost were with the Dixie A. C. of Hartford, recognized state champions in the pro field during the past season. Taftville handed the Base the only two game defeat the tars received.

Plainfield fell twice before the Base attack, and three New London teams were easily defeated with the Newport Torpedo and Training stations losing games to the gobs.

Players, E. Barts, L. F.; H. Compton, R. F. (captain); G. Murphy, C; B. P. O'Hare, L. G.; R Harris, R. G. Captain, H Compton, manager, Lieutenant Arnold; coach, Ensign Green.

The baseball record hung up by the Submarine Base failed to impress the followers of the gobs for this team failed to repeat the success of the season before. The Base began the season with a Dungaree league which gave every baseball inclined player a chance of performing upon the diamond. Baseball with its latent possibilities, uncovered one or two good players during the playing of the Dungaree league.

Immediately after the termination of the league, the first team was selected. A seven string victory was hung up by the gobs, and an equally successful season from the year before seemed to hold the Base in its grasp. But when the St. Mary's nine broke the ice, the Sub Base also broke down, and lost in the succeeding games the Eastern Service championship and the important series with the Norwich State Hospital. Eleven victories out of 15 starts, although a good record on paper, did not win the coveted place in the baseball standing which the Base desired.

NEW JUNIOR TENNIS CHAMPION IS CROWNED

New York, Dec. 31.—One new titleholder emerged today from the contest for youthful tennis laurels while another champion was dethrown in the indoor tournament at the seventh regiment armory.

Edward Jacobs, 14-year-old Baltimore lad and protege of William T. Tilden, the National champion, captured the National Boy's singles title by defeating Frank Shields, of Siver Beach, N. Y., 6-2, 6-4, in the final round of this division of competition.

Jacobs, a southpaw with a terrific service for a player of his size and years, bombared his way to victory over Shields, who was always on the defensive, although he put up a plucky fight in the second set.

The vanquished titleholder was Kenneth Appel, of East Orange, N. J., and Mercersburg Academy, who was defending the junior singles crown he won last year. Appel, badly off form and erratic, was put out in the semi-finals by H. L. Johnson, of Newton Academy, Waban, Mass., in straight sets, 8-6, 6-1.

Tomorrow Johnson will fight it out for the junior title with Horace Orser, New York schoolboy, who won the other semi-final match today from Malcolm T. Hill, of Newton Academy, the 1923 boys' singles champion, 6-3, 6-2.

Hill and Johnson will defend their junior doubles championship tomorrow against Orser and Appel. This quartet was victorious today in the semi-finals, Hill and Johnson defeating Seely Mason and Edward Jenkins, New York, 6-1, 6-3, while Orser and Appel disposed of Andrew Bicket and Edward Burns, New York, 6-2, 6-0.

C. F. C. vs. J. C. Speedboys.

The fast C. F. C. basketball team of the Central Baptist Sunday school will attempt to chalk up its second victory tonight when they clash with the Jewett City Speedboys.

The C. F. C. lineup will be the same that won in their first encounter on Christmas afternoon, namely: Lambert and Lefingwell, forwards; Ludlow, center; Brown and Armstrong, guards.

The game is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. and will be played in the "Y" gym through the courtesy of the Young Men's Christian Association. Everybody cordially invited.

"Y" Emps to Play This Afternoon

The "Y" Emps are booked for what promises to be a strenuous contest this afternoon, when they engage in a struggle with the Plainfield Buddies who are rated as being one of the fastest junior teams in this vicinity. So certain are the locals of adding another notch to their string of victories that they have agreed to push one of their fellow players down Main street in a wheel barrow after the game should the Buddies win.

WESTERLY

The locomotive of the first section of the west bound Shore Line express of the New Haven road due at the Westerly station at 12.03 Wednesday noon, met with a mishap after passing Bradford station. Just before reaching White Dog curve, in the cedar swamp, a spring became broken on the pony truck near the pilot. The engineer brought his train to a stop, then proceeded slowly to the telephone box near the distance block of the signal system and then very slowly to the Westerly signal tower. The second section of the express was run from Bradford to Westerly on a siding. A new locomotive was secured from Midway, and attached to the delayed train, left the Westerly station one hour late.

Ponds about Westerly are completely frozen over with clear ice five to six inches thick. The surface having been frozen when there was an absence of wind, is very smooth and hard, making excellent skating. Although not of sufficient thickness yet to make cutting practical, icemen have considered making preparations for the harvesting, which they hope will not be interfered with by snowfall. Fishermen are tilting through the ice and several good catches have been reported.

Edward W. Pierce of South Kingston was a Westerly visitor Tuesday.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

WATER SUPPLY MOST VENERABLE UTILITY

Of all the companies which directly serve the needs of the people of Connecticut the water companies are the oldest, yet the development of reservoirs and piping systems in Connecticut has come only within the lifetime of a generation. Bridgeport was the first city in the state to have a water works, which was put into operation in 1853, although one or two smaller plants were constructed as early as 1835. New Britain, Hartford, and New Haven followed closely after the Park City in laying pipes to bring the water from reservoirs into the homes of their citizens.

Today, there is a total of close to $30,000,000 invested in water companies in Connecticut, the largest investment being in Bridgeport where the plant and equipment are worth $10,000,000. New Haven is second with $7,000,000 invested in its plant. Greenwich, and Stamford are next with investments nearing two million each.

During the past 70 years, 233 reservoirs have been constructed in the state, 170 of which were developed by private companies. The largest single reservoir is in Fairfield and has a storage capacity of nearly four billion gallons. The new Easton Lake reservoir at Easton now being built by the Bridgeport Hydraulic Co., will have a capacity of six billion gallons.

Claims That Common Sense Aids Life's Span

Complexion better than ever before

Embarrassing eruption had resisted many treatments

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12:—"A year ago I had a very ugly and embarrassing itching rash on my chin. I tried so many different treatments on it which did little good, that finally I became discouraged. The druggist one day recommended Resinol Soap and I decided to try it, and after using it less than one week, the itching and burning ceased. I thought if the soap alone could bring such relief, then the Resinol Ointment must certainly clear away the trouble entirely. After applying it for three nights, you can imagine how delighted I was to find the rash all gone, with not even a trace of redness left.

I now keep Resinol Ointment within reach at all times—would not be without it. I find it very economical to use, as a little goes a long way. I have used Resinol Soap daily and will continue to do so. My complexion today is better than ever before, has a healthful glow and, in fact, is all that it should be—thanks to your wonderful Resinol Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. J——. LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Homesick Elephant

The Circus Elephant sat in his tent,
Trying to figure out what it all meant
Popcorn and peanuts and pink lemonade,
Oh dear, was it worth all the 'tention he paid.

"What makes you look so glum?" asked Little Jack Rabbit, slipping off his knapsack and sitting down at the feet of his kind old friend. "Didn't the boys and girls clap when you stood up on the big blue barrel?"

"Is it far away," asked the little Rabbit Boy.

"Yes, indeedy," answered the old elephant. But that's all he said. Nothing more.

"Whatever is the matter," anxiously inquired the bunny boy after a minute's silence.—a long time for a little rabbit to be quiet. I'll tell the Rabbit World.

"I'm thinking of my home in India, at last replied the old circus animal.

"Is it far away, more than a million hops?" asked the bunny boy.

"Oh, my yes. Far across the Big Blue Sea," answered the old elephant, with a sigh.

"Can't you swim that far?" asked the little rabbit. "You have big feet, four of them."

"I heard a little bell tinkling last night," went on the old elephant, paying no attention to the bunny boy's question. "A sweet little tinkling bell. It sounded like a far away temple bell in India." The next moment, the old elephant began to sing in a deep base voice:

"Oh, the temple bells are calling
As the soft starlight is falling.
And the evening breeze is singing
To the moonlit rippled bay.
Oh, I get so weary-dreary
Of the smelly tan-bark ring.
I want to be in the jungle land
Where it is always Spring."

"Close your eyes," said the little rabbit, all of a sudden, remembering the Dream Fairy who had once visited Uncle Lucky's little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville.

Obediently, and maybe because he wished to please his little friend, the poor old homesick elephant closed his eyes. "I hope the Dream Fairy will come," sighed the bunny boy, as he, too closed his eyes, knowing that she would never appear unless he fell asleep. Seeing the both of them lying so quietly side by side, Billy Breeze whistled a drowsy tune through the treetops, and in the next story you shall hear what the Dream Fairy whispered.

UNCERTAINTY ABOUT FRENCH DEBT CLEARED UP

Washington, Dec. 31.—The Washington government was in possession tonight of official information transmitted by Ambassador Herrick in Paris after his conversations with Premier Herriot and M. Clementel, French finance minister, which obviously removed much of the uncertainty that has characterized discussions of the Franco-American war debt.

Ambassador Herrick's report eased tension in quarters where debt interest predominated but from none of the administration officials was any word forthcoming concerning the contents of the Paris cables nor would state department officers admit even the receipt of such reports.

Inquiries there were met flat statements that the subject of Mr. Herrick's report was not one that could be commented upon.

Unofficial advices from Paris reciting the statement of M. Clementel to Ambassador Herrick in which the French minister recognized the obligation of his government to the United States and declared its intention to honor the debt, were received by administration leaders with no little satisfaction. The statement that Ambassador Herrick had transmitted M. Clementel's remarks to Secretary Hughes, however, produced only a reiteration of the department's decision "not to comment."

Much of the same attitude marked the action of officials here respecting reports of the arrival in New York last night of Montague Collett Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and Sir Allan Garrett Anderson, a director of the same institution. At all important offices in the treasury and state departments and even at the British embassy it was said thereby that nothing was known regarding the mission of the distinguished financiers to this country.

Treasury officials admitted only that they had received word of the visit when Governor Strong of the New York Federal Reserve bank requested that the department extend customary courtesies of the New York port to Messrs. Norman and Anderson when they arrived. Secretary Mellon, a friend of Mr. Norman's for years, did not know officially of his presence in this country, nor did Secretary Hughes.

Although the attitude of the United States on war debts and claims has been repeatedly presented to the allied and associated powers through official pronouncements made by government spokesmen here, it is regarded as probable that Messrs. Norman and Anderson, through personal contact with high officials of the Washington administration, might be helpful to their colleagues participating in the Paris meeting for the London government.

PRESIDENT'S GREETING TO AMERICAN SCIENTISTS

Washington, Dec. 31.—A brief but significant word of greeting from President Coolidge to the 4,000 members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and Allied Societies was the feature of today's session of the annual meeting of the association.

Greeting the scientists from the south portico of the White House, the president told them they held the future of civilization well-nigh in their hands, and expressed his confidence that the society would meet the task of devising institutions adapted to their discoveries.

"We need the truth and we turn to you, eager to give you all encouragement in your quest for it," the president said.

UNION MINERS MAY CALL SPECIAL CONVENTION

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 31.—Members of the executive board and field workers of District 1, United Mine Workers of America, will meet in Wilkes-Barre Friday morning to discuss the advisability of calling the special convention which has been demanded by the 12,000 striking mine workers of the Pennsylvania Coal company.

No change was noted in the conditions of the Underwood colliery, near Olyphant, where a number of men returned to work Monday. For the first time this week police authorities were not on the scene. Everything at the colliery was quiet.

AN ARREST IN HARTFORD BY NARCOTIC INSPECTORS

Hartford, Dec. 31.—John A. Walker, a Mulatto, 32, of No. 74 North street was arrested here today by federal narcotic inspectors and the local police charged with violation of the Harrison narcotic act. About an ounce morphine, sufficient for 1,728 doses, was found in his room. He will be arraigned before an United States commissioner Friday.

PROGRESS OF TRANSIT PROBE IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 31.—Two more witnesses today appeared before Supreme Court Justice McAvoy, transit investigator by appointment of Governor Smith, and held Mayor Hylan's administration responsible for the city's transit tangle.

Phillip Matthews, A. E. F. major and executive officer of the state transit commission, and George Keegan, assistant to President Frank Hedley of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, were the witnesses. Like railroad experts and transit commissioners who had proceeded them on the stand, they placed the blame for the major part of the city's existing transit woes upon the city administration's failure to live up to its obligations under the dual contracts signed by the administration in March, 1913.

Both Mr. Keegan and Mr. Matthews introduced charts and statistics in support of their contentions. Their testimony was in the main technical and unspectacular, but of vital importance to the investigation, in the opinion of Henry L. Sherman, special counsel to Justice McAvoy and the questioner of all the witnesses.

LOT OF THE WAGE EARNER STEADILY IMPROVING

New York, Dec. 31.—The wage earner, the national industrial conference board announced in a review of 1924 tonight, even with higher standards of living, "would seem to be a good deal better off today than he was ten years ago." Wage rates have doubled in this period while the cost of living has increased less than two-thirds.

However, the board found, the year 1924 by itself showed an industrial decline. Some attributed this overproduction for home markets and lack of sufficient export markets abroad, while "others believe that the dominant cyclical trend is still downward and will continue so until deflation is complete."

The board saw "an anomaly" in the general holding fast of wage rates throughout this "depression," and reported that "earnings fell because of the reduction of hours of work, but the rates per hour as a general thing did not." Textiles and a few other industrits reduced wages, but no general movement followed.

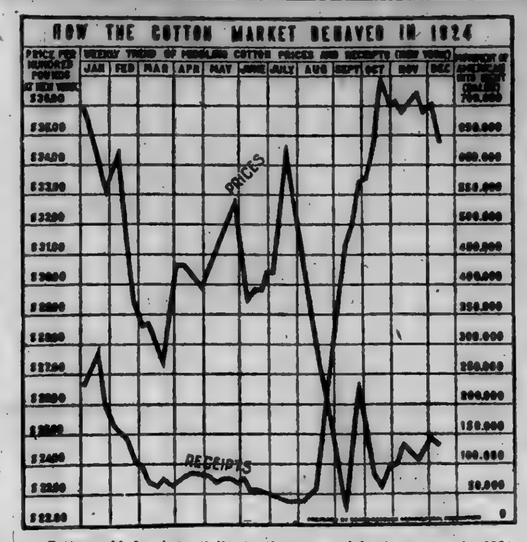
Priscilla Dixon Barclay, daughter of the late Courtlandt Palmer Dion and Ephra Williams Dixon of Stonington, Conn., left a net estate of $608,098.95 when she died on May 17, 1924, according to a transfer tax state appraisal of her property on file at New York in the surrogates' court.

Mrs. Barclay was married twice. Her first husband was Thomas C. Sloane, the youngest son of William D. Sloane, the founder of the well-known carpet house. Thomas C. Sloane, who was a well known society man and a member of the Old Guard, died of apoplexy in his 43rd year at Lenox, Mass., on June 17, 1899, leaving an estate of $1,560,658.72. He was born in New York city and graduated from Yale in 1868. When he married Miss Dixon she was of Brooklyn, N. Y.

One can judge some men by their deeds and some others by their misdeeds.



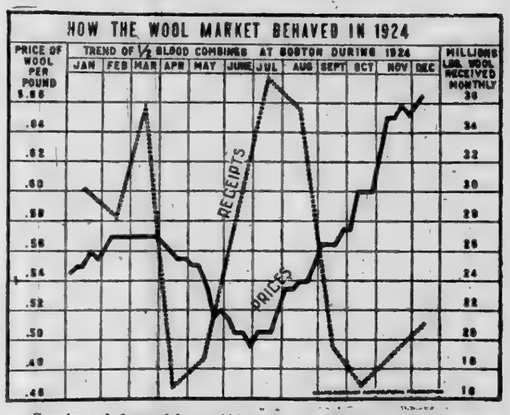
Cotton added substantially to the growers' bank account in 1924. This was the ninth largest crop on record and the fifth largest in point of value, according to a year-end summary of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The crop is estimated in 1924 at 15,153,000 bales, while the money value, based on the farm price of lint cotton on December 1, which was 22.6 cents a pound, is placed at $1,421,356,262. Cotton seed will bring an additional $200,000,000 to this sum. The production of linter cotton, moreover, will approximate 800,000 or 900,000 bales.

Although cotton gave royally of its yield and value, however, it does not reach as high in money power as in 1923. On December 1, 1923, the price of a pound of cotton on the farm was 31 cents. On the same date this year the grower could obtain only 22.6 cents. Cotton which the boll weevil has spared and favorable weather has encouraged cannot command as high a figure as scarce cotton.

Acreage planted to cotton in 1924 was the largest ever on record. Since August, 1924, 3,679,000 bales have been exported as against the 2,821,000 bales in 1923. The cotton export trade is still important in the United States markets, and with the economic recovery of Europe it is expected to become even more of a factor in American finance. The cotton manufacturing industry, moreover, is expanding at the close of 1924, whereas last year it was just passing through the trough of a depression period. The unemployment which resulted during a good part of 1924 will not be a factor in 1925 cotton industry.

Movement into sight of the 1924 crop was more rapid than for many years. This year's cotton receipts and the carry-over from the previous harvest recorded 9,288,000 bales from August 1 to December 12, 1924. This crop has been ginned rapidly.

The forecast is, according to the Foundation's report, that prices of cotton will begin to rise when the pressure of the present movement into sight relaxes. Probably the beginning of the year will introduce a rising scale of higher prices in the cotton market.



Supply and demand have ridden the year 1924 on widely separated tracks in the wool industry, says the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, in a survey just completed. Supply is reduced now to the point where consumption cannot be greater than current production. By October, 1924, demand had pushed the index for the price of wool to rest at 221 over the standard of 100 for 1913. Indications point to a situation within the next few years when production, which is expanding, will once more bring prices to swing at a lower index.

From 1922 until March, 1924, the United States wool industry had operated at a high pressure, and the consequence was a period of digestion of accumulated stocks of goods from March to June, 1924. Mills reporting to the United States Department of Commerce for June showed a consumption of 31,000,000 pounds, with non-reporting mills probably bringing the total consumption up to around 39,000,000 pounds. But this was the last slack month in the year. Since June the mills have been running at increasing pressure and the wool market has strengthened rapidly. On September 30, 1924, dealers and woolen mills held 391,000,000 pounds of wool against the 475,000,000 pounds stacked up on the nation's reserve shelves on September 30, 1923. October 1, 1924, shows a reduction of 33 per cent under stocks held on the same date in 1921.

America has consumed 750,000,000 to 800,000,000 pounds of wool annually within the last three years, while it has produced less than 300,000,000 pounds of the required amount. The United States has been forced, in consequence, to be a heavy importer.

NEW LONDON CAR-OWNERS PEEVED— GROTON LAWYER SCOOPS LICENSES

Spirit of Team Work Shown In New London

1924 in restrospect shows itself to have been a good year for New London. Business has been better here in other years but as usual New London industries, which are not entirely subject to business booms or reactions, did not fall into the trough of the general depression. In some lines as good business as usual is reported. Municipally, the city is better and more accessible. Several broad permanent street have been laid. Numerous new concrete sidewalks have replaced the former rough paths. Our park facilities have been increased and the beaches and the municipal tourist camp have been generally used. Our water supply remains pure and ample and provision has been made for its further extension. There have been few serious losses from fire, accident and theft. No epidemics have occurred in the year just passed. Many new buildings have been erected and 1924 will rival any year in the history of the city in the value of new construction. Generally, New London is a good place to live in. We should look forward to 1924 with confidence, certain that the hearty cooperation of city and citizens, that spirit of team work for the general good of the town which has made the past year so progressive, will lead to still greater accomplishments.

WALDO E. CLARKE,
Mayor.
WILLIAM A. HOLT,
City Manager.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 31.—Automobile drivers, and there are hundreds of them in this city, are up in arms, because of their being compelled to wait in line throughout the day at the office of the motor vehicle department to obtain their operator's license. The delay has been caused because of Attorney Charles F. Willard, Groton, having been delegated by many auto drivers to procure the licenses of the car drivers. Yesterday Willard appeared at the entrance to the motor vehicle department at 5 a. m. and awaited the opening of the office. When he was admitted he had in his possession the applications of 126 drivers. Today Willard appeared with 121 applications, but he did not fare as well as he did yesterday for an inspector of the motor vehicle department, was on hand and refused to permit the attorney to tender the entire number of the applications he possessed. However, Willard remained in line and each time he was admitted he tendered such a number of applications as would be accepted, then returning to the rear of the line, where he stood when the office closed at 5 o'clock. Willard received a fee of 50 cents for each application he handled. As a result of the delay in handling the great number of applicants many drivers of cars are without their registrations tonight, and with new markers being demanded at midnight the drivers will place themselves liable to arrest if they continue to drive their machines after the advent of the new year.

Now that the new year is at hand it is but reasonable to ask whether the Toolin murder mystery is to be allowed to go unsolved. That was a cruel murder and it was committed on a dark road, with the victim a young man who had been participating in pleasures where there was a supply of liquor. The party was at a road house where there was a dance and they left there to come to this city. His pals got here, but Toolin's body was found in the road where he had been attacked and his skull crushed. All the detective work to disclose the perpetrator of the crime has never resulted in anything tangible. It was assumed at one time that Toolin fell or was thrown from an automobile, but that theory is not accepted as a reasonable one to account for the crime. It is the generally accepted belief that Toolin was attacked, that he fought back and that then he was assaulted with some instrument that smashed his skull. The local police were not called into the case as the crime, if crime it was, was committed in an adjoining town.

New London should begin the new year with a determination to secure more manufacturing business. The city is without such now in great degree. It is located most favorably for the receipt and forwarding of raw and the manufactured material, having rail and water communication that is unexcelled in the state. This city has not 25 per cent. of the manufacturing it had fifty years ago, at a time when Water street, East New London, Fort Neck and adjacent territory was lined with industries. In the aggregate these establishments provided much employment for workers. Time was when this port was the home of more than a score of fishing vessels that carried crews of half a score or so. The wharves along the water front were then busy places. They, too, employed a large number of men and the aggregate business was such as to distribute much money in the stores here. There were ship chandlery stores here then where there is none now. The city cannot look for that business again, but it can seek manufacturing, for which it is abundantly equipped by railroad and steamboat facilities.

At the annual New Year's reception at the Winthrop club, Amity and Brainard Streets, this evening, Lieut. Leslie Arnold, world war flier, was the guest of honor and delivered a brief address in which he related of his experiences as an army flier.

Miss Jane Riley, 415 Montauk avenue, is spending a few days with relatives in Holyoke, Mass.

Groton is having cases of scarlet fever, within a week four cases of the contagious malady have been reported to the health authorities.

Mrs. Nathan Morris and children, of Linden street, are visiting relatives in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Fahey, Cole street, are in New York, to spend the holiday with relatives.

Schooner Pocomoke, owned by Jack Hansen, of New York, which was seized as a rum runner several weeks ago, was today released on bond. The craft yesterday was libeled by Deputy United States Marshal Joseph N. Park, New Haven.

The Canadian freighter "Explorer," of the Canadian Merchant Marine, left port today with 5,000 tons of automobiles, en route to New Zealand and Australian ports. Of the cargo of automobiles, but 2,000 tons of machines were loaded aboard the craft here, the remainder having been aboard the freighter when she reached port Saturday.

Four employes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad were notified from the executive offices of the company in New Haven today of their promotions. William S. Carr, assistant trainmaster is promoted to headquarters trainmaster. Harry W. Platt, chief train despatcher is advanced to first assistant trainmaster. Frank C. Palmer, assistant chief train dispatcher, is promoted to assistant trainmaster and Thomas J. Condon, assistant chief train despatcher is promoted to the same rating as assistant trainmaster. All the promotions become effective New Year's Day.

The probe to determine the efficiency of the police department will be resumed next Friday night, it is now planned by the committee conducting the probe, Councilors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius E. Whiton. The witnesses to be questioned at that time will be Street Sergeants Samuel Hick and Patrick Murphy. Sergeant John Cavanaugh will be the following witness and it is planned to interrogate a number of the patrolmen.

Thousands of residents of New London watched the old year out and welcomed the new one as it came in at the conclusion of the stroke of 12. All over the city there were watch night parties and at the hotels there was merriment and good fellowship. At the Mohican there was a dance that begun at 9 o'clock and did not finish until 1925 was recorded on the scroll of Time. The music was excellent and the affair largely patronized, a number from Norwich being in the party that danced away the closing hours of the year.

At the Elks' club all was life and jollity. The company that is playing at the Capitol were there to entertain during the early hours of the evening, for at 10 o'clock they departed to do the more serious work of entertaining in the theatre. There was a midnight frolic with an extraordinary bill. When the entertainers left the Elks' club dancing and feasting began.

There was open house at the First Baptist church where the programme was largely under the direction of the young people. There was vocal and instrumental music, and games and entertainment. The hour from 11 to 12 was given up to prayer and a covenant meeting.

The Pythians watched the old year out at their lodge room after the election of officers. On the whole there was the largest number of people ringing about here at 12 o'clock tonight that has been similarly engaged in a very long time. Now for 1925! Let's go to it and make it as prosperous a year as we have had in a decade!

Lieut. Leslie Arnold, U. S. A., who was given a rousing welcome at the Lyceum theatre last evening by his fellow townspeople, was tendered additional honors at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when he was made a member of the local Boy Scouts. The world flier was escorted to the municipal building by Scoutmaster Frederick Burdick and ten scouts and the scout oath was administered by City Manager William A. Holt. The group at the ceremony attending the administering of the oath to Lieutenant Arnold was photographed.

Albert O. Morin, 21, son of Louis and the late Selina Morin of Palmertown, died late yesterday at the private hospital following an operation for appendicitis. He was a carpenter by occupation and was born in Montville. Mr Morin, besides his father, is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Edward Bernatchez, New London; Mrs. James Phillips, Greenfield, Mass., Misses Laura and Lillian Morin of Palmertown, and by a brother, Joseph Morin, also of Palmertown.

Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan has applied to City Manager William A. Holt for retirement, the officer making the request because of ill health. It is probable that the request will be granted, but not until several months, when it will be definitely determined whether the officer is physically fit to perform further patrol duty. The officer is now confined to his home, 191 Montauk avenue, with chronic asthma, from which malady he has long been a sufferer. He has been unable to perform police duty the greater part of the year and as a result of his continued enforced inability to patrol his beat the officer made the request for retirement. His attending physician has been requested to make known later to City Manager Holt the exact physical condition of the officer. If at that time it is the opinion of the physician that the officer is not physically able to continue police duty, he will be retired. Until that time Officer Sullivan will receive half pay. Tomorrow Supernumerary Officer Clarence W. Martin will be assigned to regular patrol duty, taking the place of the regular officer. Patrolman Martin is a former state police officer and a son of Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin.

Attorney John C. Geary, senior member of the law firm of Geary, Davis & Keefe, is confined to his apartment at the Hotel Mohican with a severe attack of grip.

A portion of the plunder obtained by thieves who burglarized the barber shop of Joseph Caruso, 797 Bank street, Monday night was found in a vacant lot on Belden court late yesterday. The plunder recovered consisted of three razors, two razor cases, a pair of shears and comb, but this is only a small part of the loot of the crooks.

Patrolman William Manice in making his rounds through Huntington street early this morning discovered a man lurking in the shadows between St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and the rectery. Approaching the fellow, the latter started to run, but as he did so Manice drew his revolver and fired a shot to intimidate the intruder, at the same time commanding the fellow to halt. The marauder was not so easily scared, however, for he continued to run, and then Manice fired at the fleeing man. The shot missed its mark and the fellow escaped.

Submarines S-48 and S-3, stationed at the submarine base, were in collision late yesterday off the mouth of the harbor while engaged in trial tests. The S-48 suffered a damaged bow, while the other undersea craft escaped damage. The boats have been engaged a number of days in trial tests and when the collision occurred were on the water's surface. Following the crash, both craft reached the harbor without assistance and proceeded to the base. The S-48 is the undersea boat that sank off Bridgeport a year or more ago, at which time the crew with difficulty managed to escape death by drowning.

Wendell Nelson and Favier Couture, sailors aboard the United States destroyer Cassin; Miss Dola Chapman, School street, Groton; Mrs. Frederick Mitchell and infant daughter, Niantic; Miss Maude Hickey, Willimantic, and Edgar Gracey, a youth residing on Nameaug avenue, who Christmas day was struck by an automobile owned and operated by Y. C. Christensen, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence hospital.

The funeral of Miss Fannie P. Gleason was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, a large gathering of mourners attending. The bearers were Mathias R. Moran, James F. Ahearn, Herbert O'Neill and Edward S. Nellan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. Wollschlaeger.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Washington Strickland, widow of Henry R. Strickland, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 101 Sherman street, the services being conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The bearers were Richard B. Wall, Frank Harris, Christopher Newbury and Frank Comstock. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Edwin J. Sullivan, 60 years old, ticket agent for the New Haven railroad in Derby, was killed in his office at the station. It is believed that in turning off an electrical switch, his hand came in contact with a high tension wire.

WOMAN SO ILL WASHED DISHES SITTING DOWN

Mrs. Ashcroft's Remarkable Recovery After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines was put in my mail-box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."—Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 632 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PALACE THEATRE

With Marie Provost, Monte Blue and Helene Chadwick as the trio of stars in "The Dark Swan", the Warner Bros. classic of the screen which will be shown at the Palace Theatre for four days starting Sunday, there is little doubt that the picture, which is adapted from the novel by Ernest Pascal, will prove meritorious.

It is unusual for three players of such popularity to concentrate their efforts to one picture, but since the story by Mr. Pascal calls for three distinct stars, each of which plays an equally important part, Warner Bros. did not hesitate to engage this trio of luminaries, so that "The Dark Swan", could be adequately and faithfully reproduced on the silver sheet.

In addition to Marie Prevost, as the beautiful and unfaithful Eve, Helene Chadwick in the role of Cornelia, who is scorned and shoved aside because of her unattractiveness, and Monte Blue in the character of Lewis Dike, whom both sisters love, Director Millard Webb has done his utmost to secure a strong supporting cast. From the names which complete the line-up of players, such as Lilyan Tashman, John Patrick, Vera Lewis, Mary McLaren, Arthur Rankin and others, it can readily be imagined that the "best seller" by Ernest Pascal will be interestingly visualized on the screen.

BROADWAY THEATRE

A real New Year's treat is awaiting you at the Broadway Theatre today. Yes, six big acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville.

The big feature is J. C. Lewis, Jr. & Co. This famous family of five people offer a singing variety comedy act which includes harmonies, a melange of singing and dancing interspersed with farcical comedy and a touch of pathos.

Stevens & Laurel in Tales, Tunes & Taps open the program.

Harry Bolden, vaudeville's most versatile black-face comedian is great.

Brems & Fitz in third spot is sure to make a hit with their cross fire comedy and songs.

Billie Howard & George Luckie in "Tis Hard to Fool Us," a laugh in every sentence is promised.

Sixteen Simian players in Ponzinis Monkeys close the program. There is fun galore here for everybody.

From the spectacular thrills of "Graustark" to the lilting comedy of "The Husbands of Edith" is the gamut of George Barr McCutcheon, celebrow in picture form. "The Fast Worker," made by Universal with Reginald Denny and Laura La Plante from "The Husbands of Edith," comes to Norwich for the first time to the Broadway Theatre. It is a farcial combination of troubles resulting from a man masquerading as a strange woman's husband. William A. Seiter directed it.

BREED THEATRE

With a picture like "Tiger Thompson" it is easy to understand why Harry Carey is the most beloved two-gun hero of the films.

At the Breed Theatre yesterday, where this famous cowboy star opened a three days' engagement in his new Hunt Stromberg production, the audience discovered that a Western may have all the genuine drama and heart appeal of any other kind of screen entertainment.

Which does not mean, however, that the thrill element is lacking. The blast for the mine- the hair-raising rescue of the heroine from the careening buckboard, the train robbery and the trio of fights give "Tiger Thompson" all the punches that the excitement seeker craves.

But as is not usual with such pictures, there is a logical reason for each thrill and underlying the entire picture is a human story whose leading character tugs mightily at the heart.

"Tiger Thompson" affords Carey his best opportunity at characterization to date. And he makes of the reformed bandit, whose efforts to remain straight keep him constantly in danger a figure of genuine appeal.

Marguerite Clayton is a winsome and fearless heroine, and John W. Dillon and Jack Richardson prove what capable players they are by making the audience actually hiss them in certain scenes.

"Breezy" Reaves Eason, one of the screen's foremost directors of this type of entertainment, managed to inject the action moving at a fast clip every moment.

The sixth chapter of "Days of '49"—the Pathe News and a Monkey Comedy make up the remainder of the bill—Continuous show today 1:30 to 10:30.

44th Organ Recital.

H. L. Yerrington will give his forty-fourth annual organ recital at the First Congregational church this (Thursday) afternoon at 5 o'clock. He will be assisted by Mrs. Olive R. Roberts, soprano. The programme will be as follows:

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Dec. 31.—The stock market today closed the year with one of the most impressive demonstrations of strength witnessed in th ecurrent post-election boom. The average of representative industrial issues was lifted to a record high level, even eclipsing the peak established in the 1919 bull market, as violent advances took place in a wid assortment of high priced stocks.

Overshadowing all other developments in the market was a spectacular rise of 25 points in General Electric to a new high price at 322, based on a revision of Wall street's estimates of the value of a distribution to stockholders through segregation of the company's public utility holdings Opening with an overnight gain of 11 points, the stock was bid up one and two points at a time until the higi level was reached. Profit-taking subsequently caused a reaction but th shares closed within two points of the top for a net gain of 23 points.

Meanwhile a measure of the value of "right" accruing to General Electric stockholders by outside trading in the shares of the new Electric Bond and Share company. These sold as high as $115, more than double Wall street's first estimates, on a "when issued" basis. At the same time a sensational jump of nine points in Radio Corporation's shares brought the appreciation in General Electric's holdings of this stock to $15,000,000 over the market value at the time of its listing on the stock exchange. Closing at 64 3-4, after touching a record high of 66 7-8, Radio shares showed a net gain of 7 3-8 points.

The large volume of cash transactions, representing year-old settlements to establish profits or losses for income tax purposes, was a feature of the day's trading. Total sales exceeded 1,500,000 shares, with 25 individual issues breaking into new high ground.

Final dealings were marked by a rapid upturn of more than seven points in Sears Roebuck stock, based on reports that consideration was being given to an increase in the dividend next year. American Express closed 8 1-4 points higher at 162, and net gains of a number of other prominent industrials ranged from three to seven points.

American Can, after climbing to 161 1-2, fell back to 160 for a four point gain at the close, while other leading industrials which sold 3 points or more above last year's close were American Car and Foundry, which crossed 200, American Linseed preferred, Texas Gulf Sulphur, United Fruit, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Nash Motors. United States Steel common responded to reports of further improvement in the steel industry by moving up a point.

Trading was stimulated to some extent by a drop in the call money rate to 4 1-2 per cent. After opening at 5 per cent time funds continued scarce, but a light demand caused a slight easing in rates. Commercial paper quotations remained unchanged at 3 1-2 to 4 per cent.

Sterling closed the year at $4.73 1-2, within bare fraction of its 1924 high level, after recovering a cent from an early decline. Trading in other European currencies was quiet, French francs moving up 1 1-8 cents to 5.42.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Dec. 31.—Although preholiday influences retarded the pace of trading in the bond market today, prices held firm and in some groups scored moderate advances, sentiment was improved by slight easing in time money rates as the demand for funds slackened.

Chief trading interest centered in the recovery for funds of foreign bonds based on the improvement in the outlook for debt funding problems. French and German issues held steady, with Seine 7s advancing 1 1-4 points and a number of other European obligations moved up a point or more.

At the same time, interest in new financing was confined largely to prospects for additional foreign borrowing after the turn of the year. Preparations were said to be nearing completion for the sale of a $15,000,000 bond issue for the Thyssen Steel Works of Germany. A $10,000,000 loan for an unnamed foreign government also is scheduled for an early offering, while smaller issues for the cities of Graz, Austria, and Saar-Bruecken will be placed on the market early in 1925.

While price movements in domestic bonds were mixed, a broadening demand for some of the investment railroad issues was noted. New York Central debentures 6s advanced a point. Prospects for early action on the St. Paul Railroad's refunding programme contributed to improve in these liens. Virginia, Carolina Chemical bonds strengthened but a number of public utilities, including North American Edison 6s and local traction issues, lost ground.

Liberty bonds worked higher in reflection of the easier money situation, with the new U. S. treasury 4s mounting to a record high price of 100.23.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Dec. 31—Big European buying of breadstuffs led to sharp advances today in the price of wheat, rye and other grain. The wheat market closed strong, 3 3-8 to 5c net higher, the latter for December delivery, with May $1.75 3-4 to $1.79 and July $1.53 7-8 to $1.54 1-8. Corn finished 1 1-4 to 2 1-4c up; oats showing 3-4c to 1 1-8c gain, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 20c.

Aside from the revival of trans-Atlantic demand for wheat, rye and flour, much notice was taken of the fact that breaks in wheat prices here yesterday had no apparent influence on Liverpool prices this morning. The price breaks, however, seemed to have been largely responsible for making today's North American export business reach an aggregate equal to 3,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Upturns in the value of corn and oats were due almost entirely to sympathy with wheat. Advices indicating prospect for the Argentine corn crop failed to influence the market.

Provisions averaged higher, reflecting the course of grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Dec. 31.—Tractions in curb markets securities on the last day of 1924 were void of particular significance, strength of the radio shares being the outstanding feature. With only a few exceptions, the general list displayed a firm tone in the face of year-end realizing sales.

DeForest Radio led that group with an advance of 3 1-2 points on a turnover of nearly 15,000 shares, closing at 28 1-2; Radio Corporation, common, gained 2 1-8 and Dubilier and Hazeltine moved up one each.

An extra dividend of 5 per cent. declared by Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal, with the regular quarterly 2 1-2 per cent., failed to have a strengthening effect on its shares which lost about two points. Gillette Safety Razor and Goodyear Tire and Rubber were other industrials which yielded to profit taking, each receding fractionally.

The oils were mixed, Prairie Oil & Gas declining 1 1-8 points and Solar Refining and South Penn Oil, each 1. Penn-Mex Fuel advanced 2 1-2; Illinois Pipe 2 1-2, and Imperial Oil of Canada 2. Fractional gains and losses were made by other issues.

"Nickel Plate" common was active gaining 1 3-4 points to 94 1-2. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore moved up 1 1-8, American Gas & Electric closed a point lower and Ward Baking "B" advanced two points to 43.

SHOPPERS' MOTTO WORKS OUT WELL

Many cities in the state have obtained excellent results during the early part of the Christmas Shopping period by following out the motto introduced by the Connecticut Company, "Shop More From Ten to Four." In every city in which the "Ten to Four" plan has been carried out, the citizens have found that the usual traffic jams and overcrowding of trolley cars during the rush hours have been largely reduced. The shopping crowds made their trips to the central districts an hour after the working crowds had been taken to their place of business, and returned home before the business people had left their offices and shops.

Moreover, the shoppers found that they had ample time in which to conduct their shopping tours between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. They returned home minus the usual fatigue which results from pushing through the crowds in the central districts during rush hours and from being forced to stand all the way home in overloaded trolley cars.

So well has the plan worked in those cities where the shoppers have adhered to it, that the Connecticut Company has issued a special appeal for a more intense observance of the "Ten to Four" motto during the last hectic week before Christmas, in order that the disagreeable congestion and delays which always mark the last few days of purchasing may be avoided.

Reading is Cheap

The cost of reading in Connecticut is extremely low. Under the electric rates in the state a 50 watt reading lamp may be lighted four hours or through the entire evening at a cost of one cent.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The thickness of the earth from pole to pole is 7,900 miles. It bulges a little in the middle, and the thickness at the equator twenty-seven miles more than at poles.

The largest lifting plane in the world is one recently launched in England. It is a motor-driven craft and is capable of carrying 150 persons. There are two cabins in the boat, where medical attention and hot refreshments can be supplied when necessary.

There is enough telephone wire in the United States to make a net that would hold the earth like an egg in an egg-cup. Besides putting one span around the equator, this net would consist of 6,884 strands joined at the south pole and slightly less than four miles apart at the equator.

At Cherrapunji, champion rainy spot of the earth, in the Himalayas, the average yearly rainfall is 466 inches. In 1861 it is recorded that 918 inches, or 76 1-2 feet, actually descended at Cherrapunji. More than a third of this, or 372 inches, fell in July alone, and 41 1-2 inches—or more than most Americans experience in a year—came down in a single day.

A steam shovel, working on a new highway, near Reno, Nev., uncovered a huge block of ice under the ground, measuring sixty feet in length, twenty feet in width and ten feet thickness. It is believed that originally the ice, which is estimated to be about forty years old, was a field of snow on the mountain side above, and was compressed into its present form by an avalanche of earth, rocks and trees.

Few persons have any notion that Brazil nuts grow in spherical boxes somewhat resembling coconuts in shape and size. Such a box, contrived by nature, as it hangs on the tree, will contain a considerable number of the three-cornered nuts, packed so skillfully that if once removed nobody can ever get them back into the receptacle. The substance of which the latter is made resembles wood and it is so hard that it can scarcely be cut with the sharpest knife.

After more than a century of oblivion, the Marquesas Island ground dove comes to swell the ranks of birds in the United States National Museum at Washington. It has not been collected since it was first described in 1814. Another new specimen, the Rapa island pigeon, is a fit mate for the ground dove as it has previously been known by only one specimen, says Science Service. The birds are a part of the collection made by the Whitney South Sea expedition and have been forwarded to the National Museum by the American Museum of National History.

Telephone Busiest at 9

More telephone calls are recorded in Connecticut between the hours of 9 and 10 a. m. on business days than at any other time during the day. This peak of the load is due to the opening of business houses and the placing of orders at the grocer's and baker's by the housewives.

POETRY

MY NEW YEAR KIT.

Well, my kit is packed. To it I've brought
Worth while things that the old year wrought;
There's a little wisdom tucked away,
To serve at need on a future day.
And a host of memories, all dear—
A few regrets crept in, I fear—
But, my kit is packed, and to it I've brought
Worth while things that the old year wrought.

My kit is packed. O, midnight bells,
May your music weld as it throbs and swells
Faith for the days that lie before
With the gold of the hours that are no more;
For old years fade, their cycle done,
But promise lies in the one begun.
So, I've packed my kit, I've only brought Worth while things that the past has wrought.

THE HOMESEEKER.

With a pack upon his back,
Trudging Time's snow-beaten track,
Is a little bit o' fellow
Sheltered just by heaven's dome.
He's a happy, carefree scamp.
Not a lazy, worthless tramp,
But an urchin worth affection
And a place in any home.

He goes wandering about,
Giving glows of Gladness out;
In his pack, they tell me, Trouble
Is denied the smallest place.
You will know him by his grin—
Not a trace of woe or sin
Has impressed its pall so sombre
On his cheery little face.

What I like about him best
Is his optimistic zest;
If there's such a thing as courage
He has bravery to spare.
Not a shadow does he fear;
When the Ghosts of Gloom appear
He defies each apparition
Till it vanishes in air.

Oh, you'll love the little scamp,
Not a lazy, worthless tramp,
But a happy little vendor
Of contentment, hope and cheer.
So, I beg you, Friend of Mine,
Take him to your inner shrine;
Make him welcome as a baby—
Christen him The Glad New Year!
—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

SALE OF GAS CO. STOCK INCREASES

As a result of the presidential election, the sales of the securities of the gas companies of Connecticut have been stimulated to a great degree during the past month. The purchase of gas company stocks has gone up in a steady, even movement which began immediately after the election. Unlike many of the other stocks, the gas securities have been subject neither to "Booming" nor to sensational soaring. Moreover, the gas stocks have ascended at an even rate over the whole period.

The major part of the purchasing, according to financial observers, has been done by wealthy individuals who have funds available for investment in good yielding, but solid securities. Hardly any of the buying was done for the inside interests.

According to the Wall Street Journal, the prime reason for the selection of this particular type of public utility security for private investment is the fact that "these utilities have a record of good earnings and dividends." Another reason, says the Journal, is the fact that gas has already begun to take on the aspect of becoming the universal fuel, which will in time replace the dwindling coal supply. Gas consumption is constantly on the increase, not only in Connecticut but in every state. So great has been the development of gas consumption in Connecticut during the past few years, that the gas company officials are looking forward to an enormous expansion within the next decade.

G. AND S. TO RUN ONE MAN CARS

Following the plan of other traction companies throughout the country, the Groton and Stonington Traction Co., is making preparations to operate its line with the one-man car system. Master Mechanic John McGlone is at present making the necessary alterations to the present cars, such as installing release and safety valves for operating the doors from the vestibules and as soon as all of the cars have been transformed they will be placed in operation. The familiar Brewster green color will also be missed as a new color has been adopted, it being a shade of orange.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY FOR ACADEMY DANCING CLASS

Mrs. Edward Andrews gave a very pretty New Year's party Wednesday evening at the Community house for her Academy dancing class. There were 35 couples present. The rooms were tastily decorated with Christmas colors. Dainty refreshments were served. Miss Stockdale's orchestra furnished music for dancing. Mrs. Andrews was assisted by Mrs. Percival Chapman and Mrs. Ernest Baldwin.

NEW YEAR'S GIFT FOR ROTARY CLUB PRESIDENT

The Norwich Rotary club closed the year 1924 with a business session at the noonday luncheon at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday. The meeting, which was conducted by President Hugh B. Campbell, was largely attended there being only three members absent. Joseph C. Worth acted as song leader and there was unusually spirited singing as a result.

During the meeting Arthur M. Brown acting as spokesman presented a beautiful meerschaum pipe to President Hugh B. Campbell. President Hugh responded gracefully and extended the season's greetings to the members of the club. Another feature of the meeting that created quite some impression was the impromptu drum corps, featuring Ed Harris as snare drum soloist, assisted by Russ Clapp, Lew Young, Bunk Welch and Harry Shannon. Following this a delightful and expressive duet was given by Charles F. Wells and Georke W. Carroll.

At the business session there were brief reports by the various committee chairmen. F. Russell Smith reporting for the committee in charge of the Brown Glee club concert said that another postponement had been found necessary and that in all probability the concert would be held on February 18th.

Chairman Herbert B. Cary of the programme committee reported that the club's January activities will be as follows: Jan. 7.— Current topics, Charles E. Taylor; meeting in charge of the corpulent men, Herbert M. Lerou, E. La Rue Bliven, George W. Carroll, Otto F. Ernst, Charles F. Wells; song leader, Shepard B. Palmer. Jan. 14—Current topics, Frank P. Welch; talk by "Tad" Jones, Yale football coach, with Academy football team as Rotary guests and Henry A. Tirrell as song leader. Evening meeting Jan. 22, with official visit by District Governor, "Al" Lavery of Bridgeport; meeting in charge of Past Presidents Joseph C. Worth, Lucius Briggs, William G. Park and Charles A. Saxton; current topics, Arthur M. Brown; song leader, William G. Park. Jan. 28—Business meeting; current topics, Herbert J. Ferguson; song leader, Russell A. Clapp.

The talk on Current Events for the day was given by Myles E. Standish, who spoke briefly on New Year's resolutions, saying that if every member of the Rotary club should take the Rotary Code of Ethics as their resolutions and then live up to them there would be very little left to be desired. Even if the first ten of the code are forgotten we can go pretty straight if we but remember and practice the eleventh which says "All things whatsoever ye would that men do unto you, do ye even so unto them."

President Campbell spoke briefly saying that he hoped all would try to live nearer to the code of ethics during the coming year for Rotary is reaching out for higher ideals and is trying to make this a better community in which to live.

James L. Case brought the greetings of Harry M. Clark of Albany, a former member of the Norwich club. Mr. Case in a brief talk urged that the Norwich, New London, Willimantic and Putnam Rotary clubs work together to make eastern Connecticut more prominent and exert a larger influence in affairs of the state. Charles A. Saxton then called attention to some recent publicity in a banking journal concerning President Charles R. Butts and the Norwich Savings Society, which today has more depositors than there are people in Norwich. James L. Case added a tribute of thanks to the local men who have done things and the institutions which have contributed to the finacial stability of Norwich. President Campbell wished everybody a happy New Year and the meeting closed with The Star Spangled Banner.

In the City Court.

Lack of funds nearly caused two men and one woman to spend the New Year's day as guests of Jailer Oscar Main, when they were brought before the police court Wednesday morning on charges of intoxication.

The case against the woman was continued for six months by Judge Arthur F. Libby, while an Occum man was given a week to raise the $17.50 to pay his court bill and a Norwich man secured his $14.50 court bill from friends in court.

The more a woman tries to look young the more she doesn't.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose was celebrant of the mass, Rev. Henri F. Chagnon deacon and Anthony Murphy, a student at St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, Md., was sub-deacon. The bearers were John Daley, Dennis Murphy, John Murphy, Edward Kelly, Frederick Morin and Frank Fitzmaurice, all members of Ponemah council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus, of which Mr Nolan was a member. The honorary bearers were also members of Ponemah council and were as follows: Charles Bolduc, Jeremiah Donovan, John Sullivan, James Murphy, Leo Fournier and Myles Fitzmaurice. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Greeneville, where Rev. Father Bellerose read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Among those at the funeral were friends and relatives from Providence, R. I., Worcester, Mass., and Fall River, Mass.

Miss Louise Sigrist has accepted a position as nurse in the welfare department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. Azarie Gauthier of North Third avenue are moving to a house on North A street.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Blood are spending the remainder of the week with friends in Fitchburg, Mass.

Mrs. Alphonse Germain of South Third avenue has received word of the death of her father, Henry Jarvis in Fairhaven, Mass.

Miss Georgianna Lecomte of Norwich avenue has resigned her position with the weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Today, New Year's Day, being the Feast of the Circumcision of Our Lord and a holy day of obligation of the Roman Catholic church, there are to be special masses offered at 6, 8.30, 9.30 and 10.30 at Sacred Heart church.

Andrew Hario has resigned his position with the local mills and has left town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dudek of Terrace avenue expect to erect a house soon on the lot that they recently purchased from John Urick in Lisbon.

Spots on the Shetucket river were reported safe for skating Wednesday, but because the ice is not thick enough on the whole pond, few were found daring enough to try it. The Lisbon pond has been posted with notices of "no skating" and skaters in that town have to confine their pleasures to the small pond east of the big one. Scores visit Mohegan park each day and evening, where good skating is to be found.

NORWICH TOWN

The children of the Rock Nook home having entirely recovered from the mumps and chickenpox, enjoyed their Christmas tree Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. They had had their filled stockings and fine Christmas dinner, but the tree had been kept until all were able to enjoy it together. It was a beautiful large tree, lighted and trimmed. The rooms were decorated also, much of the paper trimming having been made by the children. The tree was at the end of the long dining room. The children marched in singing Oh, Come, All Ye Faithful, which was followed by the singing of Away in the Manger. There were Christmas recitations by many of the children, after which Mrs. Edward D. Fuller read to them, "Is there a Santa Claus? Yes. Thank God, he lives as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exists." The tree was covered and surrounded by gifts, each child receiving a present.

The joyous event Tuesday, arranged under the auspices of the Rock Nook home committee, made this large family of children in care of the efficient matron, Mrs. Jenny Murry, most happy. There were about 20 children present and twelve visitors, who included members of the committee and a few mothers of the children who were special guests.

At the 44th organ recital of Herbert L. Yerrington, this (New Year's) afternoon, at five o'clock at the First Congregational church, Mrs. Olive R. Roberts, soprano, of Norwich is to be the soloist.

Mrs. Eliza Smith, residing on New London turnpike, was taken to the Backus hospital Tuesday, ill with pneumonia.

Dr. Charles H. Lamb, one of the Norwich agents, is in receipt of the following timely suggestions for the welfare and care of horse during the cold weather, as issued by the Connecticut Humane society, H. Clay Preston, general manager, hints helpful to the owners or drivers of horses as lessening discomforts in winter.

A horse should never be left standing in cold weather, even for a short time, without covering him with a blanket; a warm stable blanket should always be provided at night. Frosty bits should be warmed by dipping in warm water, or by warming them in the hands before putting in the horse's mouth. Take the chill off the water he drinks. Be careful about exposing him when overheated. Icy or slippery pavements cause great suffering to the horse in winter, therefore he should have his shoes sharpened when the streets are slippery. Without proper shoes to prevent slipping the horse cannot do his work. From constant slipping he loses his courage and may refuse to go at all. So it is best not to take any risk of injury to him in skating over asphalt. On icy mornings one might carry some sand for emergencies, also load lighter when snow blocks the street.

When necessary, drivers should do a little shoveling and help the horse and at all time attempt no hard pulls up steep or slippery inclines. Horses draw and keep their balance better when unchecked, and they should be given frequent rests on snowy roads.

There are many kinds of emergency shoes on the market for temporary use in bad weather. A piece of burlap or old carpet tied around a horse's front feet will help give him a secure footing until a blacksmith can be reached. When a horse falls in the street and is unable to get his footing, suggest to the driver to sprinkle ashes or sand on the street, or put an old blanket under his front feet to keep him from slipping. Sometimes a horse becomes discouraged after making several attempts and gives up. Under such circumstances try rolling him over or change the position of his legs.

Help your horse with a little axle grease. Rub him down when he comes in wet. Feed carefully and well during the winter. Blanket and bed him sufficiently on cold nights. Send for a veterinarian before it is too late. Keep your temper and save your horse.

These humane suggestions are made in the interest of the horse, but do not forget that he is your property and the value of many horses is depreciated by their treatment in wintry weather.

FIRE AT MAX FERN'S HOUSE CAUSES DAMAGE OF $10,00

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Dec. 31.—Fire tonight caused the partial destruction of the residence of Max Fern, 195 Pequot avenue, together with the greater part of the furnishings of the place. The damage it is estimated will reach close to $10,000.

The fire was discovered at 9.3[illegible] o'clock and was located in the upper part of the house. An alarm was rung in from Box 511, corner of School street and Montauk avenue. With the arrival of the firemen at the burning house the flames had broke through the roof and, fanned by a strong wind made rapid progress. The entire upper part of the house was destroyed and after two hours' work the firemen subdued the flames. In responding to the alarm Northwest Hose company entering Broad street from Brainard street, collided with one of the big double truck trolley cars of the Connecticut company, the trolley car being damaged, as was the fire apparatus, a Seagrave pumper. Three firemen were thrown from the apparatus but sustained injuries no more serious than bruises and scratches.

Mr. Fern at one time conducted a restaurant in Norwich.

Business Falls Off In Eastern Connecticut In 1924.

GENERAL TOTAL IN BANKING, BUILDING AND MANUFACTURING LESS THAN 1923

LESS THAN 1923 BY $70,176,703

Business Transactions In New London County Were $848,380,676 — In Windham County $322,116,619 — Building Construction Set New High Record for This Section —Banking Figures Below Those of Year Ago—Big Industrial Plants, Especially In Textiles, Had Periods of Slackened Business.

The record breaking total in volume of business in building, banking and manufacturing in Eastern Connecticut in 1923 was too high a mark for the last twelve months to reach, handicapped as they were by a period of several months in the year when the big textile manufacturing plants, especially, were greatly curtailing operations. This period was not overcome until after July had passed, but in the latter part of the year these industries began again to hit their regular stride and the promise for the new year is good.

The general business total for New London and Windham counties in 1924 was $1,170,497,295, where it was $1,240,673,998 in 1923, a decrease in 1924 of $70,176,703.

New London county contributed $848,380,676 to the business total in comparison with $895,589,426 in 1923, while Windham county gave $322,116,619, where it had been $345,104,572 for 1923. In wages the New London county disbursements were $19,443,281 in comparison with $20,843,412 in 1923, while in Windham county the 1924 wages were $8,625,946 as against $10,180,967 in 1923. Total wages showed a drop from $31,024,379 in 1923 to $28,069,227 in 1924. The total volume of manufacturing business fell from $201,921,470 to $179,998,808.

Total banking was $953,388,487, consisting of $704,764,968 in New London county and $248,623,519 in Windham county. For 1923 the total banking figure was $1,000,422,528, of which $743,2 .6,292 was in New London county and $257,156,236 in Windham county.

In building operations a new high mark was set with a total of $4,965,752 to which New London county gave $3,585,752 and Windham county $1,380,000. In the previous year the grand total was $3,741,847, consisting of $2,416,847 in New London county and $1,325,000 in Windham county.

There is a strong feeling of confidence among bankers, manufacturers, merchants and builders that the twelve months just ahead of us are destined to be an era of better business than the twelve months just past, and it is anticipated that 1925 will make a handsome showing for this busy section of Connecticut.

Norwich Manufacturing At Lessened Figures

There was a mingled experience of increasing and decreasing business in the manufacturing plants of Norwich in the past year, but the general balance that is struck is less than that of 1923 which was a high water mark for many years. Mill organizations were maintained on short time for considerable periods, which resulted in lessened payroll distribution generally, although there were lines in which larger payrolls and volume of business were shown over 1923. The figures for 1924 show an approximate wage distribution of $9,116,929 and a product value of $32,492,061, with 8,188 employes, as contrasted with $9,948,523 in wages and $38,849,997 in product, with 8,661 employes in 1923.

The year saw one of the well known cotton mills, the Shetucket Co., go out of business and sell its plants here, accounting in good measure for the lessened wage disbursement in this line, which was $2,080,000 for 2,405 employes, turning out a product value of $5,673,000. In the year before the wage disbursement was $2,462,750 for 2,636 employes and a value of $7,613,800 in manufactured product.

Woolen mills were also on short time at some periods during the year, although there were individual instances where a gain was recorded. Their total wage disbursement was $2,045,000 with product of $8,290,000 and 1,760 employes. In the preceding year the woolen mills had employed 1,810 and had wage disbursements of $2,149,932 with product value of $8,597,487.

Paper and belting showed higher wage figures than a year ago, besides employing more hands. The wages account for 1924 totalled $633,293 and product value $3,075,664 with 443 employes. In 1923 there were 407 employes with total wages of $553,831 and product of $3,482,050.

Silk and velvet mills recorded a lessened business, showing wage disbursements of $1,295,321 and manufactured product $7,491,276, with 1,138 employes, as against $1,432,143 in wages, $9,417,309 in product and 1,258 employes in 1923.

Foundry and iron work was a line in which a gain was shown. These industries disbursed $486,144 to 273 employes and turned out product of $794,791 as compared with $437,000 in wages, $988,000 in product and 279 employes in 1923.

Manufacturers of metal goods and cordage recorded a gain in the year, showing 216 employes, wages of $250,500 and product of $753,000 as against 187 employes, $196,000 in wages, and $613,000 in product value in 1923. In the line of firearms and cutlery there were smaller figures in 1924 than in the year before. The wage disbursement was $529,900 for 392 employes with a product value of $995,000 as compared with the 1923 figures of 441 employes, $601,304 in wages and $1,180,525 in product.

In the miscellaneous industries, which diversify the lines of employment in the town, there was a lessened volume of business shown. They gave employment to 1,521, disbursed $1,796,771 in wages and turned out $5,509,330 in product as contrasted with 1,633 employes, $2,115,563 in wages and $6,957,826 in product in 1923.

New London Manufacturing In Smaller Volume

The general level of manufacturing industries in New London in 1924 fell behind the preceding year in common with what the rest of this section of the state experienced. Total wage distribution in 1924 was approximately $5,197,453, with 4,631 hands employed and a product value of $15,320,119. In 1923 this had been $5,371,731 in wages, $16,719,103 in product and 4,747 employes.

In manufactures of boilers and iron work there was a slight gain, the wages showing $77,727 and product of $199,000, with 80 employes, as compared with $76,520 in wages, $175,000 in product and 77 employes in 1923. Machinery and marine work was at a slightly smaller figure with approximately $2,550,541 in wages, $4,325,000 in product value and 1,915 hands as against the 1923 figures of 1,926 hands employed, $2,659,400 in wages, and $5,150,000 in product. Metal and iron work recorded a gain for the period,

NEW BUILDING OF MERCHANTS NATIONAL BANK, NORWICH

EASTERN CONNECTICUT BANKS HANDLED LARGE BUSINESS IN 1924

Part Figures For National Banks of New London And Windham Counties Were Smaller Than a Year Ago—Savings Banks In The Two Counties Showed Increase In Deposits and Number of Depositors.

While commercial lines of banking in Eastern Connecticut reflected the lessened volume of business in the textile industry and other lines, a peculiar angle of the banking situation is that deposits in savings banks increased. The indication is that habits of thrift and saving seem to have been firmly engrafted upon a larger proportion of the people than ever before, much of which result may be ascribed to educational campaigns along thrift lines conducted by the banks.

Total transactions of the New London and Windham county banks in 1924 were $953,388,487, which fell below the total of $1,000,422,528 in 1923.

The increase in savings deposits was shown on the total depos-

THE MAGNITUDE OF THEIR BUSINESS INTERESTS CLEARLY SHOWN

In securing the figures herewith The Bulletin is indebted to the custodians of the accounts, and thanks them for their prompt and obliging responses. Except in a few instances there was a ready response from those approached for information, but where estimates had to be made, they were carefully figured.

The greater part of the figures were based upon amounts actually taken from the books of the business houses. The promise to disclose no business secrets will explain why in a number of instances it has been necessary to assemble several lines into one sum. The immense figures reached must be a surprise to all as it is to The Bulletin, and the residents of the cities and towns of the two counties can well feel a pardonable pride in the magnitude of their business interests as here shown.

its of $79,729,190 at the end of 1924 as compared with the 1923 total of $76,459,492. To this total for 1924 the banks of New London county gave $65,014,361 and those of Windham county $14,714,838. In the preceding year the New London county savings banks had $62,907,574 and Windham county banks $13,551,918.

Norwich Banks Show Smaller Business Year

What was to have been expected in the banking experience for the past year, because of the slackened activities in some manufacturing lines in Norwich and a somewhat contracted year in retail trade is revealed in the figures of the transactions of the Norwich national banks. The Thames, the Merchants and the Uncas. These fall under the total of 1923, although the people evidently have had money to save and the savings banks show gains in savings deposits and in number of depositors from 47,935 to 48,581.

The total national bank transactions in the past year were $350,886,028.23, which contrasted with $390,274,674.00 for 1923, while the total savings deposits went from $36,225,584 at the end of 1923 to $37,254,761 at the end of 1924.

Call money has been at 3 per cent. and commercial paper at 4 per cent. in contrast to the higher rates which were charged in 1923, but the national banks generally have enjoyed a good return and report a profitable year.

At the savings banks an unprecedented call for loans for building new residences, all of a generally fine type, has been the experience of the year. In the fall all the savings banks dropped the interest rate on loans from 6 to 5 per cent., leading the state in this interest rate reduction. This has been an advantage that the customers of the banks have duly appreciated.

Some gain in number of depositors and an increase in total deposits from $20,353,542.07 in 1923 to $20,609,042.28 in 1924 is reported by the Norwich Savings Society. The thrift lessons taught to the children through the automatic teller system have been productive of good results which cannot fail to bear fruit in the future of the lives of those who have gained a new understanding of the value of money and the usefulness of bank accounts.

A moderate gain in number of depositors and in deposits was shown at the Dime Savings Bank which increased deposits from $4,010,275.55 to $4,022,164.22 at the end of the year.

At the Chelsea Savings Bank a gain of about 300 depositors was reported in the past year and deposits increased from $11,436,467.66 to $12,230,354.46. The Christmas and vacation clubs have been continued along with thrift clubs in schools and industrial plants, developing with great success, stimulating to saving and cultivating the habit of laying by some money for future needs. At Christmas time approximately $40,000 was distributed through the Christmas club.

The Bankers Trust Co., has enjoyed a successful financial experience in its third year, which was reached on Dec. 14, increasing its business in the commercial and savings departments.

Changes in Bank Officers

Several changes in bank officers have taken place during the year. The Norwich Savings Society lost by death in August its secretary and treasurer, Costello Lippitt, who had held these offices since 1881 and had been connected with the bank since 1865. Two of those who had been directors for many years, Judge Lucius Brown, a vice president and C. Henry Osgood, also passed away. Guy B. Dolbeare was elected to fill the place of secretary and treasurer and an additional assistant treasurer, Harold P. Hull, was elected, William I. Cook also being assistant treasurer. John F. Rogers and Casper K. Bailey were elected directors.

Early in January Harry F. Powers was elected cashier of the Merchants National Bank to fill the place left vacant by the death of Charles H. Phelps, cashier, who had been with the bank for over 52 years. William Manley Eastwood, Jr., was elected assistant cashier at the same time Mr. Powers was made cashier.

In the fall, John R. Tarrant who for many years had been with the Lime Savings Bank, was elected secretary and treasurer of the Bankers Trust Co., to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of George A. Winn, when the latter unfortunately proved disloyal to his trust, creating an embarrassing situation for the company, but at the same time affording such an extraordinary example of financial support to the bank on the part of its directors that the institution weathered the crisis magnificently.

New Bank Building

The Merchants National bank on Main street is preparing to enter its new banking bulding erected on the site of the old one after a piece of additional land had been purchased, making it possible to enlarge the banking quarters in remodeling the old building, so that the new home of the bank will be among the most modern banking houses in the state.

The front is of red tapestry brick, with limestone trim and granite base. In the center are two large bronze doors with a steel sash. The building measures 22 1-2 feet wide, 44 feet deep with a 20 foot ceiling inside and a mezzanine story in the rear which is to accommodate a directors' room.

As one enters the front door through a tiled and panelled vestibule at the right is the cashier's space enclosed by a marble rail.

The public space has a tiled floor with imported marble wainscoting and ornamental plaster walls and ceiling. The working space will be greatly enlarged over the former capacity. The first floor is of fire-proof construction.

A new reinforced concrete steel lined vault of ample dimensions is installed at the rear corner. It is constructed of Don steel, the new metal invented and used exclusively by the Mosler safe company, the only metal that will withstand the oxyacetylene torch, providing impregnable security for the security vault department.

The new vault will be guarded by every device known to the art of safe making. Even the most modern and destructive invention, so far as metal is concerned—the oxyacetylene torch—is ineffective against a vault of this type. It is a massive steel and concrete building within a building, with walls of concrete, reinforced with railroad iron. These walls will be absolutely fireproof and have a high resistance to explosives and the use of burglars' appliances, and will protect the inner steel lining against such modern devices as the electric steel burning arc, thermit, a powder capable of producing extreme heat, as well as the oxy-acetylene burner.

The concrete protecting top of the vault is imbedded with steel grillage on the top, bottom, sides, front and back, affording complete protection against any failing weight such as building walls or the shock from explosives. Directly behind the walls and lieing tightly against them is the steel vault lining. This lining is formed of interlocking plates and forged sections, so carefully arranged and bolted together as to form the closest possible approximation to a perfectly solid structure but superior to a solid as it possesses a slight amount of flexibility so necessary to resist shock.

The entrance to the vault is guarded by a huge steel door weighing approximately 20 tons, into which are fitted a number of controlling devices which connect the locks with the main bolting system of the door. These devices are designed to hold the door securely locked even if all the locks should be blown or otherwise forced from the door.

The vault door is of integral casting of steel without joints seams or screws making the door a single piece of the finest steel, in no way dependent upon screws for its strength, representing the finest and costliest type of construction which has yet been built by the safe engineers.

The vault door is a splendid example of modern ingenuity, and is so nicely adjusted and hung on special roller and ball bearings that a pull of only a few pounds will suffice to open and close it. When closed the door will be forced into place by pressure mechanism and the joints become proof against the entrance of wedges or liquid explosives. The door will not only be fireproof and burglar-proof but mob-proof as well. Once this vault is locked, it is the boast of the manufacturers that it will defy all human attempts to reach its contents until the maze of safety devices are released by the timelock.

The mezzanine floor is reached by a steel and marble stairway which leads to the directors' room. This room is 13 feet by 16 1-2 feet and has a panelled wood wainscoting and hinged sash opening into the upper part of the public space. On this floor also is located a toilet and locker space.

In the basement is located another tiled toilet room, a fire proof vault and the boiler room.

New London Banking At Normal Volume

During the year 1924 business in New London was probably below normal but in common with all other parts of the country showed an improvement after election.

During the year there has been much activity in business property on State Street where rents have been mounting to very high figures. The new Woolworth building is completed and will be occupied the first of the year, and during the coming year the Kresge Company will erect a new building on the property recently leased by it which will add further to the splendid appearance which State St., is now taking on.

There has been no great change in the banking conditions during the year, the only noticeable growth being in the savings banks and savings departments of the two national banks. The clearings for the past year are at about the same amount as the year before. The three Christmas Clubs, operated by the two savings banks and the New London City National Bank distributed approximately $250,000 early in December.

There have been several changes in bank personnel during the year. New London City National Bank lost during December its venerable Vice-President, William H. Rowe, who died at the age of 94 and who was at the time of his retirement from the bank two years ago the oldest banker in active service in Connecticut. John R. Latham, cashier of the bank, died last summer following an operation and Alfred D. Forbes was elected cashier in his place.

Milton M. Baker, for many years cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, resigned, early in November to become the resident representative of a Hartford brokerage and investment house, Earl W. Stamm, former chief examiner for the state banking department, being elected in his place as vice-president and cashier of the National Bank of Commerce.

In January New London lost its "grand old man" Ex-Governor Thomas M. Waller who was the moving spirit in the organization of the Mariners Savings Bank in 1867. At the time of his death he was honorary vice-president of the bank.

The New London Building & Loan Association which has had a steady and substantial growth decided to open an office for its secretary in the Plant Building. This association made a splendid record and has the benefit of the advice and services of some of New London's most progressive business men.

For the benefit of the public several banks of New London have jointly covered the expense of an agency of the William J. Burns protective association for the purpose of preventing so far as possible the sale of fraudulent and worthless securities to innocent investors.

To the Mariners Savings Bank of New London goes the credit of being the first bank in the State of Connecticut to inaugurate the school savings plan, so-called, which has become so popular all over the country and which is the most important present-day development in banking. During the school year which ended last June more than $16,000, was accumulated by the New London school children through the School Savings plan and a large amount was also accumulated by schools in the towns surrounding New London—the depository for some of these towns being the Savings Bank of New London which has recently taken up this work and has done much to develop it in the outlying districts.

We all look for better business during 1925. The New London Ship & Engine Company has business in prospect on which active work will begin shortly after the first of the year; there are possibilities of a sale of a part of the old Groton Iron Works plant; there is a possibility of considerable activity at the State Pier due to improved shipping conditions; and New London manufacturing industries all look for improved business, the sum total of which should be a growth during the year in financial strength and increased general prosperity.

Ever Upward Trend in Banking in Danielson

The trend is ever upward in the volume of business and resources of Danielson's banking institutions. To this rule 1924 was no exception. Indeed, all the circumstances considered, as to general business throughout the country, curtailed operations upon the part of the majority of the major industries in Danielson and the immediate vicinity and other impeding influences, the gains made have not been less than remarkable. This applies to the Windham County National bank, oldest of Danielson's banking institutions; to the Danielson Trust company, another commercial bank, and to the Brooklyn Savings bank of Danielson. They have rounded out a year that has been unusually prosperous, as even marked by increased business. Increased deposits and the accumulation of greater reserves, certifying that at the opening of 1925 they are stronger, more substantial than ever before.

More amazing, perhaps, than any other feature of the banking business in Danielson during 1924, has been the increase in savings. Roughly the gain in savings accounts in Danielson's banks during 1924 amounts to $785,000. It is in this impressive gain that the observer finds his greatest surprise. This increase was accumulated in a year when many were out of work for a large period of the year, when money was more difficult for other members to accumulate than in the more prosperous years and when fixed expenditures showed little if any sign of abating. The aggregate savings represent the efforts of several thousand people in setting aside money for another day and impresses one that the savings habit is firmly fixed with great numbers of people in this territory, many of them first set on the road of thrift through the purchase of a liberty bond of small denomination during the world war. The saving that the war induced for thousands, as it induced wasteful expenditures by other gone reckless with high wages, has become a fixed habit and in a considerable measure is responsible for the constant growth of bank accounts marking every year since 1917.

An unusual feature entered into the operations of Danielson's commercial banks during 1924. When the neighboring city of Putnam was left without commercial banking facilities through the closing of the First National bank in that city, the Danielson Trust Company and the Windham County National bank each opened a branch office in Putnam, put a staff of workers on duty in these branches and proceeded to supply Putnam with commercial banking facilities.

This was done merely as a neighborly deed—with a will to serve a sister community in a time of stress, and with no intention of permanently remaining in the Putnam banking field. The banks mentioned maintained their Putnam branches all through the late summer and fall months of 1924 up to November, when the establishment of the Citizens' National bank and the Cargill Trust company gave Putnam ample banking facilities of its own again, and then withdrew.

Putnam people and especially its business and manufacturing interests, have been very generous in their expression of appreciation of what was done for that city by Danielson's commercial banks and the service has served to add to the community of interests existing between Putnam and Danielson.

Operation of their branches entailed a vast amount of labor on the staffs of the Windham County National and the Danielson Trust Company, but this labor was performed with right good will and, now that it is over, the institutions are justly proud of what they were able to do.

Putnam Arising From Tragic Banking Year

In view of the developments of the closing weeks of 1924, it is a happy thought to set down that Putnam is now well on into the sunlight leading away from the darkness and disaster experienced by its First National bank during the summer of 1924 and that the city's bitterest financial experience is fast becoming, for the general public, but a memory.

Putnam, like a Phoenix, has risen from its ashes. Even such a terrific blow as it was dealt when its First National bank was closed in early August after a visitation and checkup by federal examiners, merely dazed the community for a time, but had no lasting effect upon its fundamental stability and strength.

Tragedy stalked large in the commercial banking affairs of Putnam during 1924. So much has been written and read about the lapses of G Harold Gilpatric, now serving a sentence of 15 years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., that there seems little need of reviewing them here.

It may suffice to relate that his defalcations and losses incurred through his manipulations of the funds of the First National Bank of Putnam, of which he was cashier, caused the wrecking of the bank, forecasts its eventual dissolution and left the city in an abyss of darkness and financial despair. The closing of the bank on August 8, left Putnam without a commercial banking institution and led to the adoption of emergency methods as set forth elsewhere in this edition, to tide Putnam over its period of distress. The surprise and shock that stirred the city to its very depths on announcement that Mr. Gilpatric had attempted suicide by shooting and that the bank was hopelessly involved has no counterpart in Putnam's history. Revelation after revelation during the time the wounded cashier was battling for his life at the Day Kimball hospital only served to make the situation more gloomy and to cause a greater degree of depression and doubt for the future of the city. Every day brought additional harrowing details of what had happened and what involved persons were destined to pay as a penalty. Business suffered, people lost confidence—some even abandoned hope. But out of this welter of misfortune there opened a path of light and renewed confidence and civic pride and industry that has brought Putnam in a few short months and on the eve of a new year to a militant spirit that is already sweeping the community on to new achievements that promise soon to bring it to heights it never before has reached.

Putnam's people have learned what it is to lose a million dollars and suffer the consequences. It has learned, out of its despair, to accept its loss as an incident not at all testing the ultimate resources of the community, but merely subjecting them to severe trial, and to turn toward the future with supreme confidence in its ability to make good. This Putnam is now doing with right good will and making a real successful enterprise of it.

In the place of the defunct First National bank there is the new Citizens' National company, a national banking institution, backed by the good will and cash of the citizens of Putnam and surrounding towns. It is occupying the home of the former First National bank. An added banking asset is the Cargill Trust company, its official personnel including some of the best known and most responsible citizens of Putnam and surrounding towns. Both of these commercial banks, opened in November, are amply equipped financially to handle the business banking for the territory of which Putnam is the center and are officered by men and directed by men who have the full confidence of the people of the community in which they live. Thus a wrecked bank is replaced by two new banks and Putnam is better equipped

In the line of manufacture of comfortables and silks there was a falling off on the showing of $1,333,547 in wages, $7,109,028 in product and 1,526 employes as compared with 1,595 employes, $1,445,000 wages and $7,764,000 product value in 1923. In cotton manufacturing lines there was a slight gain when 1924 shows $117,203 in wages, $500,000 in product and 100 employes as against the figures for 1923 of $75,000 in wages, $400,000 in product and 75 employes. Miscellaneous lines of manufacture showed somewhat smaller figures having $633,335 in wages, $1,797,091 in product and 643 employes in comparison with $670,811 in wages, $1,900,891 in product and 685 employes in 1923.

Industries In Willimantic Experienced Smaller Year

Manufacturing industries in Willimantic experienced the general recession in 1924, having slightly smaller wage disbursements than in the year before. In 1924 their total wage disbursement was $3,352,346 and value of product $11,049,845 as compared with $3,601,467 in wages and product value of $12,537,869 in 1923. At the same time the number of employes was about 3,159 in 1924 as against 3,340 in 1923

Among the cotton mills the wage total for 1924 was $196,128 and product value $354,757 as compared with wages of $341,243 and product value of $981,318 in the year before.

Silk and velvet mills had $425,000 in wages and $2,130,000 in product where these figures had been $451,150 and $2,450,000 respectively in 1923. Machinery and foundry work showed a 1924 total of $249,183 in wages and $490,038 in product value for 1924 in contrast to the 1923 figures of $225,750 wages and $519,551 in product in 1923 Among the miscellaneous industries there was a total of $2,482,035 in wages and $8,125,000 in product in 1924, which compared with $2,583,324 in wages and $8,577,000 in manufactured product in 1923.

Putnam Mill Business Was At Smaller Figures

Mill industries in Putnam recorded a generally slackened business in 192 over 1923, showing a wage disbursement of $663,000 and product value $3,751,000 in 1924 as compared wi $595,000 in wages and $7,274,000 product in 1923. That the total wages shows larger than the preceding year is due to the addition of a mill industry that had hitherto been included in the general Windham county classification.

In cotton manufacturing lines the 1924 wages were $244,000 and product $1,230,000 as against $74,000 wages and $3,300,000 manufactured product in 1923. Silk mills had $92,000 in wages and $720,000 in product, value in 1924 in contrast to the $112,000 in wages and $850,000 product value in 1923. Other manufacturing lines showed $115,000 in wages for 1924, with product value of $700,000, where the corresponding figures were $115,000 and $1,509,000 in 1923.

AGRICULTURISTS HAVE GREAT AID THROUGH COUNTY FARM BUREAU

Bringing Improvements in Farm Conditions—Placed 82 Pure Bred Bulls in Past Year—Cooperative Buying Pools Organized to Save the Farmers Money—Orchard, Potato and Poultry Work Were Among the Special Projects.

The New London County Farm and Home Bureau maintained its progressive programme of aid to the farms and homes of the county in the past year and recorded a substantial record of achievement. Under the presidency of H. R. Whitman of Waterford and the active direction of County Agent Walter T. Clark and the home demonstration agent, Miss Gladys Stratton, the work was carried on along varied lines of helpfulness, which will be continued through the coming year.

A programme that will move on with energy upon foundations that have been laid and will branch out into new lines of endeavor was adopted at the annual meeting in December, at which Imbert Fellows of Norwich was elected president, and the work will be pushed with vigor and determination to make it even more helpful in 1925. County Agent Clark gave the details of the past year in his annual report which is in part as follows:

County Agent Makes His Annual Report

Pobably the most outstanding example in which the local people functioned was in the pure bred sire campaign. This was much smaller than what was reported last year only more elaborate. The county committee met once and with the aid of the county agent and dairy specialist, appointed leaders for this project in each town. It was desired to select a man in each town who kept pure bred stock or was interested in bettering his herd. Each town chairman selected men to work with him with the aid of the county agent. These men in the different towns were furnished a list of scrub bull owners and a list of available bulls for sale. In this way it was possible to place a great many bulls which otherwise would have been almost impossible for one or two men to do.

Another exampe was in the cooperative buying. The buying committee met with the exchange managers at the farm bureau office and decided to have a fertilizer, seed and insecticide pool, where an exchange did not exist in a town. Local order takers were appointed who turned in their orders to the county buyer and they were placed on the open market for prices.

WALTER T. CLARK

The policy of the Farm Bureau in this county is to work with the organizations and concerns where both are to be benefited. We have worked with the local papers in sending out publicity material on meetings and the purebred bull campaign. The local papers are more than glad to take any publicity material and cooperate to the fullest extent. In this way we can get our work before the farm people where we could not with just the Farm Bureau news.

The work with the Granges has been confined to talks given at their meetings, these have been few however.

We have worked with the four Breed Associations during the sire campaign. All but one association sent in a representative for one week. At that time they made farm visits to farmers interested in their particular breed. They also worked with our mailing list by sending out literature telling the benefits of keeping a pure bred dairy sire of their blood or any other they might be interested in.

Fair exhibits were set up at three different fairs, these being Norwich, North Stonington and Cohanzie.

The Farm Bureau has worked with the New England Milk Producers' Association in the county and the Connecticut Milk Producers.

It also has cooperated with the New London County Agricultural Society in arranging for a Junior Club exhibit of dairy stock.

The local Farm Bureau has cooperated with the Tri-State Farm Bureau in its membership campaign.

Program of Work

The program of work was selected by first considering what was most needed in the county, second by what we had to work with, and third by what amount of time was available from specialists at the Connecticut Agriculture college. It was thought that in as much as the dairy industry was the chief agricultural industry in the county, it should receive more time than any other. Thus it was decided to continue with the pure bred dairy sire campaign as the dairy industry suffered from the need of high producing cows to make the business more profitable. This was the only project which was attempted to be put across as a county project. Other projects were distributed where it was thought they were needed and where people asked for them.

The soil program has been confined mostly to lime work. Several soil samples have been taken and acidity tests run by means of the tetrocynide which is very simple and can be completed on the farm and the amount of lime needed to correct the acidity in a few minutes. Several lime demonstrations were started in conjuction with what clover work was done this year.

It is planned to do considerable lime work this next year by interesting more farmers to use lime and the value it will give them in growing to better advantage.

Twenty-seven farmers received individual help in selecting their needs for chemicals by which to mix their fertilizer.

Farm Crops

The same seed corn demonstration was continued this year that was in operation last year. This is with Rhode Island Flint and is more a breeding demonstration than anything else.

The silage corn work this year has been confined to the encouraging of the use of Ohio Loaming or Sweepstakes or any other variety which will give weight and grain. Ninety-two bushels of seed corn were brought by the seed pool.

Alfalfa demonstrations this year were confined to four, Michael Tynda of Colchester, H. F. Beard of Boxrah, C. B. York of Stonington and J. L. Raymond of Lyme. Mr. Tynda sowed his alfalfa with oats this spring. Mr. York with Hubam clover and Mr. Beard and Mr. Raymond clear. All of these fields came up well and are going into the winter in good shape.

Without doubt alfalfa can be grown in New London county on a number of farms. It is our desire to select a few men about the county who are really interested and will follow instructions and go through with the project. It is much better to do it this way and have a few come through clean than to have a large number start and many failures. There are a total of five acres in these four demonstration plots.

Clover

Twenty-two clover demonstrations were started this year with the idea in mind of getting more farmers to using clover seed that would survive our winters. There were about 1,200 pounds of northern grown clover seed brought into the county from known sources. This seed was planted along side of European and South American seed to show what the comparison will be next spring, as to how each strain survives the winter.

Pasture

There were only two new pasture demonstrations started this year and eight old ones carried over. The new ones were treated with acid phosphate in 300 and 600 pound doses per acre and potash 100 pounds per acre. A plot was made for each with a check plot for the whole. Lime was put on one-half and one-half had no lime.

Potatoes

The potato work in the county was confined to encouraging the use of certified seed and the value of sufficient spraying.

There were seven and one half carloads of certified potatoes brought into the county by the exchanges and six cars brought in by hardware men and seed dealers. The seed dealers and hardware men are becoming more and more interested in certified seed and are getting in more each year. The farmers are also asking for such seed more each year.

The certified seed trial on Shedd & Dawley's field on Preston Plains had ten strains of certified seed and one home grown sample. At the time of digging a meeting was held there with about 200 people present. Much interest was shown in the trial throughout the season. Many people stopping there, as it is on the main road from Norwich to Westerly. At this meeting Mr. E. A. Brown of the Storrs Experiment Station spoke on the reasons where good certified seed could be purchased this year. Following is the yield of different strains in this demonstration:

Shedd & Dawley Farm

Strain	Yield
Rich, Charleton, Maine	338 pounds
Olson, Wisconsin	347 pounds
A. Reeves, New York	385 pounds
Reed Brothers, Maine	390 pounds
Jones, Vermont	300.6 pounds
Esterbrook, New Brunswick	271 pounds
Corina, Maine	340 pounds
New York Potato Seed Association	390 pounds
Dimock, Vermont	314 pounds
Windsor County, Vermont	415.7 pounds
Home Grown	297 pounds

Irving Foote Farm

Sprayed	339 pounds
Unsprayed	315 pounds

On Preston Plains at the Irving Foote farm four rows were left unsprayed while beside them the potatoes had been sprayed nine times. The difference in yield is not comparative as the spray probably drifted over and affected the unsprayed area somewhat.

Horticulture

The fruit program this year has consisted of nine orchard demonstrations, seventeen nitrate demonstrations one raspberry demonstration. There also have been eight pruning demonstrations held in the county this year.

The orchard demonstrations were carried over from last year and will be carried on for another year. All of these men excepting one put on all the sprays their orchards needed and applied nitrate of soda.

Seventeen men applied nitrate of soda on their apple orchards this year for the first time. The results were very satisfactory. Two men who never received enough fruit that was worth saving except for cider, tried nitrating and spraying for the first time and got a real apple crop, one getting 12 hundred bushels of apples, where he previously had about three hundred bushels of cider apples.

Three spray rings operated this year, spraying about a thousand trees with at least one spray, some having as much as five sprays. The quality of fruit in these spray rings is increasing each year. This year as a whole it was much better than last.

An insecticide pool was formed by which it was estimated about $350 was saved.

Mr. Beckwith in Franklin who worked on the pure bred bull campaign a good deal became interested in an orchard which he had. In past years most of the apples were used for cider apples. The county agent talked to him about using this orchard to increase his farm sales. He would like to but didn't know how to go about it. He attended a pruning demonstration and got a few pointers there, these were added to what he already knew. He also bought a sprayer in cooperation with another man and applied five sprays. Nitrate was sown about the trees.

He was surprised at the crop he got and at the quality of the fruit. In talking with him this fall he said that in previous years he had picked about three hundred bushels of cider apples, but this year he had about 1200 bushels to sell for market apples.

Vegetables

Most of the vegetabe work done in the county has been done through the Norwich Vegetable Growers' association, working with the vegetable specialist. The association meets each month in the farm bureau office with the vegetable specialist, where talks were given on vegetable subjects. An association was started a year ago in Groton but died because of lack of interest.

The demonstration work was largely strain and variety trials with sweet corn, early and late cabbage and staking early tomatoes.

Animal Husbandry

The principle project in animal husbandry was the sales of North Dakota horses. Two car loads of 30 horses each were sold in the county by the farmers of North Dakota, cooperating through the New London County Farm Bureau. One sale was held in Norwich where the average selling price was $137.50 and one at the state camp grounds in Niantic where they averaged $156. A saving of at least $30 on a horse was estimated as a result of the sale.

The sheep work, what little was done, was carried on directly by the sheep specialist at Storrs.

Dairy Work

The dairy project this year has been practically all pure bred sire campaign work. What other work was done in dairy was in feeding problems which was entirely individual work and often done along with the pure bred sire work.

During the week of Jan. 14 an extensive drive was made to place pure bred bulls or interest dairymen in securing one. A representative from each dairy breed except Jerseys spent a whole week in the county. During the day time each representative the dairy specialist and the county agent visited scrub bull owners, each in the company of a farmer from the town that was being canvassed in this way. We had at least five pairs of men visiting farmers in different parts of the county.

There were three truck loads of bull's brought in during the spring and soli to those farmers who were interested in buying and who were on the prospect list. A total of 26 calves were sold in this way. A great deal of credit for the success should be given to the local men. They gave a great deal of time, furnished transportation and if it had not been for them, it would have been almost impossible to place 123 bulls in a little over a year.

A number of bulls were placed by the publicity material sent out for the papers. For this reasons a survey in form of return post cards was sent out asking if a pure bred bull had been bought during the past year. In checking over the replies it was found that 123 had been placed.

JERSEY BULL, SON OF FAUVIC'S PRINCE, BOUGHT BY HUGH MACKENZIE, WATERFORD, IN PURE BRED SIRE CAMPAIGN

Poultry

The poultry clubs that were in existence last year and the year before were met quarterly this year instead of once a month. These meetings were held in Norwich, Pachaug, Stonington and Waterford. At some of the meetings, demonstrations were held. No records were kept by the members attending the meetings. Timely poultry subjects were discussed with the poultry specialists.

A number of farm visits have been made either by the specialist or county agent, on disease or parasite work. A great deal of this has been on intestinal worm trouble from brooding on unclean ground. Many sad tales of the results of such brooding have been told and it is hoped that a few disease control and sanitation demonstrations can be put on next year.

Rural Engineering

Very little of this project has been done this year. The most important items have been the installation of two water systems after the recommendation of Mr. Knipe, extension agricultural engineer. These visits were requested from the county agent.

Service was given on a drainage problem in Lisbon. The man wished to drain a patch of land in the middle of his field which was not available for cultivation. The ditch was surveyed and he was shown how to lay the tile. This was done during the early winter last year. This spring he has not been bothered with water standing in his field.

Farm Management

There have been 41 farm account books placed this past year and from follow up work done, it looks as though a large percentage would be completed. This is a project that is hard to introduce because farmers as a rule dislike to keep records, which is to their own sorrow many times.

One Young Farmers' club was started in North Stonington but there were only eight members originally and they were not over enthusiastic. However,

Farm Bureau Programme For 1925

The program of work this year will be changed somewhat from last year in some respects. However, the major part of the program will be dairy work or agronomy, whichever one chooses to call it, as it will consist of increasing the production of legume hay and the use of more lime.

The pure bred sire work to be done this year will be cleaning up what prospects there now are. This will be a minor project, however. It is planned to spend about two or three days per month on this work. The dairy specialist will also spend that amount of time.

The number of bulls we hope to place is 30.

The lime and clover work probably will be carried on in the form of a campaign similar to the pure bred sire campaign. We already have the mailing list to work with, and can use the organization which put over the bull campaign. What we need now is to know who raises clover and who does not.

A survey card may be sent out like the following:

Number of acres of clover grown in 1924?

Number of acres of clover to be seeded 1925?

Number acres needed each year to feed each cow two tons clover hay per year.

Our goal is to get 15 per cent. of the farmers not raising clover to raise it beginning this year. That is 15 per cent. of the 1050 making milk.

We intend to increase the amount of northern seed brought into the county and the amount of lime used.

We are planning to get at least a car of lime into each town. Some towns of course will be increased considerably more than that.

The demonstration orchards will be continued again and probably two more added.

The goal for nitrate trials will be fifty. We are hoping to work in a fruit area which we did not know existed. The towns of North Stonington, Stonington, Ledyard and Groton according to the 1920 census have more apple orchards than any other section of the county. A great many of these farms are in the need of more diversity to increase their gross sales. For that reason we intend to spend quite a little time in trying to bring these orchards back to bearing good fruit. A simple survey will be taken to find out who owns these orchards and if they are being cared for in an up-to-date way.

Under the poultry project there will be one county meeting, a series of quarterly meetings and four disease-control demonstrations which will consist largely of breeding on clean ground.

An elementary poultry course will be put on in Salem, starting in a few weeks. A great many of the Salem farmers are foreigners and have very small gross receipts for their farms. Poultry seems to be the thing that will meet their conditions best to increase the receipts.

A poultry survey as follows will be taken and summarized so that we will know just where to begin with the work.

1—Number of hens.
2—Number of pullets.
3—Do you feed dry mash?
4—Do you purchase day old chicks?
5—Do you run an incubator?
6—Do you set hens?
7—Do you run brooder?

It is quite evident that we are shooting above a great many of our farmers when we select a county programme, especially when we try to put on a campaign on disease control. Some of these men, especially the foreign farmers, are unfamiliar with the very simplest of poultry practices.

All of this specialized work will bring in considerable farm management in getting the thing over.

Fifty farm account books will be placed this year.

One Young Farmers' Club will be started.

The cooperative buying pools will be maintained.

FARM HOMES OF COUNTY AIDED IN MANY LINES THROUGH PAST YEAR

Under Direction of Miss Gladys Stratton,, Home Demonstration Agent, and Specialists From Storrs Agricultural College—Programmes Carried Out in 35 Communities With 37 Local Leaders—Women Appreciate Service Given.

The helpful work of the home economics department of the New London county farm and home bureau has been carried on in the past year under the general direction of Miss Gladys Stratton, home demonstration agent, with 35 communities in which there were programmes of work and 37 local leaders assisting in organization of groups and in carrying out project work in their communities. What a wide and valuable variety of interests this has covered is shown in the report by Miss Stratton which is in part as follows.

Annual Report

The Home Demonstration agent has planned the program this year with the idea of having six months of the work carried on by local leaders and specialists from the state college, as she planned to take six months away from the county for study; hence the work as carried out represents six months of the agent's time, and the work of specialists from Connecticut Agricultural College.

Following is the chart giving plan and accomplishment in home economic projects for New London County this year:

Clothing

The clothing project continues to be one of the most popular projects and one which takes a large percentage of time. It includes construction, remodeling, finishes, selection of materials, use of machine attachments, fitted patterns, color and design, dress forms and millinery.

The program for the county as planned and as given follows:

	Planned	Given
Clothing Project
Construction Groups	14	15
Remodelling	5	11
Finishes	3	6
Selection of Materials	5	6
Use of Machine Attachments	2	1
Fitted Patterns	1	6
Color and Design	1	2
Dress Forms	4	4
Millinery	19	23
	53	74

Twenty-one more groups were worked with than planned because requests continued to come in, some from organized groups which developed a need, and some from new groups organized.

In 1925 there will be more time put into selection of materials, color and design in clothing, as these two projects were chosen at the annual conference as major projects in clothing for 1925. There is still some requests for dress forms as new groups are organized.

This coming year some of the millinery work on selection, line and color, will be done through the use of slides and talks. Individuals from many of the groups now feel that what they need is more help on how to trim a hat. The specialists thinks trimmers are born not made. Help through giving some of the main points on what to do or not to do in trimming might give the women more confidence when they are making hats at home without the help of the specialist.

The following chart gives some idea of how this project was carried on:

	No. Groups	Attendance	Articles Made
Construction	15	278	314
Remodelling	11	203	397
Selection of Material	6	56	114
Machine Attachments	1	13

Color and Design	2	29
Dress Forms	4	92	74
Millinery	28	353	529
	74	1170	1520

The communities participating in this project are Occum, Franklin, Baltic, Leffingwell, Hanover, Lebanon St., Gales Ferry, Norwich Town, Goshen, Wequetequock, No. Stonington, No. Plains, Jewett City, Hamburg, Pachaug, Cohanzie, Quaker Hill, Ledyard, Poquetanuck, Montville, Gilead, Road Church District (No. Stonington) Chestnut Hill (Lebanon).

The construction work done with groups is not only a means of saving expense but in many instances the women really learn enough to apply their knowledge to other garments later on.

Many people need more help on remodelling than on making new garments. A woman helped on this project recently has many garments given her in which the cloth is good but the things must be remodelled. After working with her one day she had garments in a condition in which she could complete four dresses, two coats and two hats. Three years ago this woman knew very little about making clothing of any kind. Today she makes practically all the clothing worn by herself and three daughters.

Help in remodelling was given in Leffingwell, Lebanon, Gales Ferry, Norwich Town, Goshen, Franklin, No. Stonington and Occum.

Many people know how to sew who cannot put the finishing touch on a garment which makes all the difference between a good looking and a bungled piece of work. Six groups have been helped to make good looking finishes.

Selection of materials has not been given except to six groups. This is a project that will receive more time in the coming year.

A few groups have been met in which "Color and Design in Clothing" was taken up. This subject matter is given endeavoring to show each one in the group the color or colors which she can wear best to bring out her good points. The same with design—the aim is to leave the individual with some definite points on the type of garment, the kind of line she needs to cultivate to make her look her best.

Though the dress form project has been given now over a period of four years, there seems each year to be a few groups who have not worked on this project, hence, it is still given where requested. I have reports of forms made four years ago which have been in constant use.

The requests for millinery groups are always numerous and the classes usually large. It is the intention to try and have each group get the two seasons work, as there are things taught in the spring hats which are not brought out in the fall work and vice versa. After that we repeat in communities when requested and the time of the specialist allows.

Many members of groups are passing on what they have learned to others.

Health

When the program was planned for this project the requests from the six communities in which I arranged for group meetings seemed to indicate a need for knowing how to take care of the usual illnesses which occur through a winter.

About eight days' work were arranged for with programmes in Franklin North Plain, North Stonington, Stonington and Hanover.

The following Junior Clubs will have simple demonstrations in health work this fall: Goshen Hill, Waterman District School, 10th District School and Voluntown.

Because the agent was absent it was difficult for the Health Specialist to reach the groups, yet the following chart shows the groups met. For some reason the program made out was not followed but the following program substituted:

Franklin	Headaches Nerves and Self Control
North Plains	Headaches Overweight
North Stonington	Headaches Overweight
Wequetequock	Hygiene of Middle Life Headaches

No Junior Clubs were met on this subject.

Ten communities were engaged in this project including Gales Ferry, Hanover, Wequetequock, North Franklin, Poquetanuck, Montville, Gilead, Road Church District (No. Stoflington) Chestnut Hill (Lebanon).

The construction work done with groups is not only a means of saving expense but in many instances the women really learn enough to apply their knowledge to other garments later on.

Many people need more help on remodelling than on making new garments. A woman helped on this project recently has many garments given her in which the cloth is good but the things must be remodelled. After working with her one day she had garments in a condition in which she could complete four dresses, two coats and two hats. Three years ago this woman knew very little about making clothing of any kind. Today she makes practically all the clothing worn by herself and three daughters.

Help in remodelling was given in Leffingwell, Lebanon, Gales Ferry, Norwich Town, Goshen, Franklin, No. Stonington and Occum.

Many people know how to sew who cannot put the finishing touch on a garment which makes all the difference between a good looking and a bungled piece of work. Six groups have been helped to make good looking finishes.

Selection of materials has not been given except to six groups. This is a project that will receive more time in the coming year.

A few groups have been met in which "Color and Design in Clothing" was taken up. This subject matter is given endeavoring to show each one in the group the color or colors which she can wear best to bring out her good points. The same with design—the aim is to leave the individual with some definite points on the type of garment, the kind of line she needs to cultivate to make her look her best.

Though the dress form project has been given now over a period of four years, there seems each year to be a few groups who have not worked on this project, hence, it is still given where requested. I have reports of forms made four years ago which have been in constant use.

The requests for millinery groups are always numerous and the classes usually large. It is the intention to try and have each group get the two seasons work, as there are things taught in the spring hats which are not brought out in the fall work and vice versa. After that we repeat in Meat Canning—While most people have learned to can fruits and vegetables, many are not canning meats. There was quite a lot of interest in this in the groups taking it and several who had never canned meat or poultry are doing so now. These demonstrations were given in North Franklin, Occum and North Stonington.

Supper Dishes—The housewife is usually looking for new ideas on dishes which may be prepared for supper, that will be appetizing and nutritious. These demonstrations were to supply that need and the suggestions are being used and passed on to others not fortunate enough to attend. Groups in Gales Ferry, Hanover, Franklin, Goshen, North Stonington and Ledyard had these demonstrations.

Uses for Canned Vegetables and Fruits—Uses for canned vegetables and fruits was another topic in which there was much interest. Variety and attractiveness in preparing these stored foods means that more will be used and the usual winter diet in the country is particularly short of these two foods. Ledyard, North Plains, Goshen and Franklin were the communities having this topic included in their nutrition program.

Milk from Soup to Dessert—You hear women say my children don't like milk. I can't get them to drink it at all. The suggestion given in connection with this project showed many ways of getting milk used without the child's realizing he was taking milk. All of these suggestions were for dishes equally interesting to child or adult.

Short Cuts in Cookery—Any woman who prepares three meals a day, seven days a week the year round, cannot learn too many short cuts. Wequetequock and North Plains groups had the talk given on this subject.

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE VIEW NEW YEAR WITH FEELING OF OPTIMISM

Eastern Connecticut Communities Are To Go Forward To New Achievements In Civic, Social And Economic Lines—Development of Community Spirit Is Bright With Promise for the Future—Business is Expected to be on Upward Trend in 1925.

Recognition that the business experience of the Eastern Connecticut communities in 1924 has not been the equal of one year ago is voiced in the review of the year by Chambers of Commerce and other civic organizations, but confidence for the future is strong. These organizations in Norwich, New London, Putnam, Willimantic and Danielson stress the development among their citizenship of a real community spirit which is bright with promise for the future.

Cooperation for the common welfare along social, political and economic lines is the purpose of these active and energetic civic organizations, whose officers and members aim to bring their communities along to new achievements from year to year. In that progression it is the confident prediction that the year 1925 will play an important part.

Sub-Normal Business Year Was Recorded In Norwich

Norwich, in common with general conditions existing throughout the country, will undoubtedly show a decreased business from the average (as in the figures published in The Norwich Bulletin for 1924. Our manufacturers and our business men have experienced a sub-normal year. What affects them, also affects the community as a whole.

True, some of our manufacturers managed to keep their wheels of industry turning constantly throughout the year. Others found it necessary to curtain operations and a few had to close for a period of time. It is also true that because of the diversity of our industrial life, Norwich did not experience the economic hardships which obtained in some of the larger cities whose industry is not as diversified as that of our community.

ARTHUR E. STORY

Merchants generally experienced a sub-normal year's business. Stocks moved slowly. The buying public purchased goods conservatively. One of the unfortunate phases of local business life is the growing custom of Norwich people of buying their merchandise in other cities. Our local merchants pay local taxes; help support local institutions; employ local people; and support local banks. They must meet competition from other cities and in order to keep abreast of modern methods of mechandising should have all the local support possible.

Norwich is still keeping up its building activities. Everywhere one goes within the confines of Norwich, one can see the large number of new dwellings being erected. This ought to be a positive evidence of the growth of Norwich for it is still a problem to secure adequate housing facilities for those who come to live here. Undoubtedly the records of the building inspector will show an increased number of new dwellings within the city limits. While there is no record of buildings permits issued for the town, the number of new buildings erected during the past year would indicate a large increase of new buildings within the town limits.

It has also been necessary to build a new school on the East Side to accomodate the increasing number of school children. Many public schools of Norwich are overcrowded at present and the need for expansion in school buildings is only too apparent. The parochial schools of Norwich are also reaching an increasing number of pupils, and the Academy found it necessary to increase its facilities for the accomodation of students that come in added numbers each year.

While Norwich has experienced a sub-normal year in a general way the savings banks will undoubtedly show increased deposits and depositors. Our local banks have been called upon to help finance the growing number of new dwellings and buildings. The banking business has been particularly good. This is an evidence of the thriftness of the people of this section. A good deal of the thrift that is being practiced is the result of the efforts of our local banks to inculcate the desire for savings in the minds of the people. Especially is this true of the work done by them in our schools and factories. The savings banks have also been largely instrumental in helping local business in a general way during this holiday season through the establishment of Christmas week savings accounts. The Norwich Building and Loan Association has had more requests for financial assistance in the buying or building of homes than it could accomodate during the year.

The new year, 1925, gives every indication of a strong revival of business. Perhaps the best evidence of the looked for business revival is found in the expression made recently by Judge E. H. Gary, head of the U. S. Steel Corporation who said—"Money is plenty, rates are low, and that indefinable but none the less essential thing called business confidence has now returned. We have definitely turned the corner."

I look for greater business prosperity. "If it does not continue, it will not be for lack of conditions and opportunity. And, the highest and best rewards will come from fair, honest, proper, and unselfish business practice."

The success of our industries is the success of Norwich. Our local manufacturers have proven their business sagacity in the past. We have faith in their ability to continue to secure good business for 1925.

Willimantic Blessed With Strong Community Spirit

The year of 1924 has passed into history. It has been a year of uncertainty —especially in the centers of the textile industry. Willimantic has had to bear its share of the burden caused by the depression in the cotton, silk and velvet industries, and has born it well as evidenced by the fact that there have been no mercantile embarrassments. Conditions are without doubt improving and we are looking forward to a new and prosperous year.

Our city is blessed with a splendid community spirit—the best in the world. Let us all put our shoulder to the wheel and boost—that 1925 may be Willimantic's greatest and biggest year from every view point.

New London Destined For Bigger, Better Future

The business situation of the country has never been better than at present, and the outlook for the coming year is unusually excellent. The outcome of the recent election has filled the business and financial world with renewed and even greater confidence, and timid and cautious investors are coming to life.

All this will, of course, be reflected in our own community and I think to such an extent that the coming year will be the best business year in our experience. It is predicted by those who know, that building and real estate will be particularly active, and those who are interested in these and kindred lines are looking forward to the greatest of all active years.

The real estate market generally is active and I believe building will continue. The builders who deliver a fair, honest job and price their houses fairly are selling readily and there is no material shrinkage in values. Naturally the peak prices caused by the acute shortage of houses a few years ago could not be maintained in the face of the great production.

A slight recession was expected and anticipated but this should not be the ground for pessimism.

While the automobile business, with which we come in contact, has in general been not so good as in 1923, we are certain that it is now on a much sounder basis than it was a year ago. Companies have succeeded in reducing their overstocks. Keenness in competition has put everyone on their toes. Consequently the new models are more attractive as well as new prices.

From what seems evident and also from the concensus of opinions gathered from many sources, it would seem that all signs point to a fairly long period of activity. Such things as the adoption of the Dawes Plan, the rise in agricultural prices, increased orders in the steel and pig-iron industry, and the large movement of freight by the railroads, would indicate very clearly that the trend of conditions is upward. If the confidence that is being expressed in the business world generally does not lead to an inflation of prices which will attract foreign merchandise to our detriment, and does not take into consideration the fact that the purchasing power of the public has been reduced, which is proven by the fact that industrial employment is 13 per cent. lower this October than it was a year ago, we may reasonably expect that this country should enjoy a fair measure of prosperity during the year 1925.

Large sums of money are still being invested in tax-exempt securities but it is almost certain that the secretary of the treasury will advocate the reduction of the surtax to about 15 per cent. Thus many millions of dollars now being hoarded in tax-exempt securities will be released for investment in more productive business enterprises.

The 30,000 people now living in New London are not alone in their belief that Southern New England's chief seaport city is destined to greater growth and a bigger and better future —further evidence of faith is registered on the part of large nationally known commercial interests whose conservative building program is well known throughout thousands of communities now serving as agencies for these large retail commercial enterprises, namely the F. W. Woolworth Company, which is now building in this city, a $250,000 modern, up-to-date store to house their growing business, while the Kresge Company has projected a program calling for the erection of modern new store buildings with a total cost involved approximating $346,000.

Most of our local industries are operating on full time, some overtime, and the industrial future of New London looks bright.

The maritime activities in this busy port show an appreciable increase of incoming and outgoing tonnage for the year 1924 with assured indications of material increase for 1925.

One of the noticeable and enduring elements of community solidarity registered in New London within the past year has been that essential, indefinable, yet highly necessary element called community spirit, which apparently is possessing the spirit of the people of our community in a growing and fruitful measure.

New London is ever eager to offer every measure to helpful cooperation with any Connecticut community for the benefit of the common good of our commonwealth and we take advantage of this opportunity to wish our Norwich neighbors a most happy and prosperous New Year.

Service For Community Is Ideal of Norwich Lions

The Lions Club of Norwich is hardly a year old. Service to others without a thought of benefit for ourselves is the Lion's ideal. In the past year we have assisted in the social welfare of both our state and community. The coming year we are to specialize in service to the handicapped children—the underfed, the cripple, the blind, the child who for any reason has not had a fair chance in life.

CLARENCE E. CARPENTER

We want the cooperation of every citizen and that of all the clubs and organizations of our city. Without regard to race, creed or color, let us aid our fellowmen by sympathy to those in distress, giving our aid and substance to the weak and needy. Regardless of politics, bear in mind our obligation to our city, giving to it our unswerving loyalty in act and deed and freely of our time, labor and means.

We can be justly proud of our beautiful city, but we should not let this pride lead us to lethargy, as our city is far from ideal. We must fight against our own selfishness and the greed of politics and be willing to make sacrifices for the good of our city and our fellows. When our leading citizens show this spirit, we will have a city of which we can truly boast.

With best wishes for the New Year.
Yours for service

Looks For Best In 1925 For Willimantic

To Unity for Service Clubs and to all, a New Year's Greeting:

In looking forward to the new year, we should look for the best it has to give. How shall we direct our efforts to gain happiness for ourselves and others?

It's greatest gift to us is the opportunity it offers to perfect our characters.

We can neither add to or take away the record of the year that has passed but we may, if we are strong, gain wisdom from our failures and turn defeat into victory.

The great crown of life is reserved for those who overcome, who develop the higher and finer attributes of their consciousness and give them full and free expression in their every day life and work. As we succeed or fail in this, the great doors of life open to us or close and shut us into ourselves.

Man, through his creative genius, has extended his sense perceptions, i. e. correspondence between those internal relations in the world of phenomena far beyond the wildest dreams of our forefathers. If we would have life, love and happiness in greater abundance, we must more firmly establish the relationship between our consciousness and that which is akin to, yet greater and more divine than we are; that is something more than the physical world of matter and motion. I believe it to be within our power to so firmly establish this relationship, that faith need no longer be faith, but knowledge.

That this may be the New Years gift to you is my wish.

Willimantic Optimistic At Opening of New Year

The year 1924 is coming to an end and we are approaching a New Year in the history of Willimantic. It is only natural that we should pause and reflect on the happenings of the past twelve months and their effect on our community.

Viewed from an industrial standpoint, business has been far below normal, with the most of the industries operating on short time schedules. Of course, we have a great deal to be thankful for, as conditions might have been a great deal worse when we consider the universal showing of the textile world. Business in the city is naturally affected by industries but this is off-set to some extent in the thrift exercised by our citizens the last few years. The financial institutions have had an exceptionally good year as is reflected in their balance sheets and savings accounts.

Associated with the year of 1924 from a city stand-point, is the retirement of $75,000 water bonds. There is still left $50,000 to be paid off in the the year 1929. During the year our fire losses were exceptionally small which speaks well for the efficiency of the fire department. The two-outstanding losses were the Windham Street school and Dr. Mason's hospital.

We might well point with pride to the unusually large amount of sidewalks laid in the past year, there being almost twice the number of square feet as compared with other years. This, combined with the concrete gutters, reflects progress and manifests civic pride to a high degree.

GEORGE W. HICKEY

The general health of the community has been most satisfactory which is very gratifying, especially to us who fully realize the possibility for epidemics as the result of the extended dry spell. Our water supply was jeopardized to the extent of our having to purchase two bodies of water from private individuals.

One outstanding feature of the past year was the true exemplification of community spirit manifested on two separate occasions; namely, Fourth of July and Christmas. Such spirit and enthusiasm is conducive of great things communitywise.

We face the New Year optimistically but with the realization there is a great deal to be done. The municipal debt which totals $189,000 is to be reduced $100,000 on October next leaving only $89,000 municipal bonded indebtedness. The water supply must be protected and it is therefore imperative we consider seriously the purchasing of a storage reservoir. A new pump is needed by the water department, which if installed will necessitate the laying of an auxiliary water main involving thereby a considerable sum of money. The sewerage system must be materially extended at a large cost and will require considerable thought and deliberation.

Our noted financiers predict big business for 1925 and it is my earnest wish that the prediction come true, for better business conditions create a healthier atmosphere, and act as a healthier atmosphere, and act as a stimulant to expansion and arger development, May I close conveying my best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

GEORGE W. HICKEY

Putnam Having Revival In Manufacturing Interests

At low ebb during 1924, Putnam's manufacturing interests were experiencing a promising revival toward the close of 1924. This city has witnessed the loss of a splendid industry in the passing of the Manhasset Manufacturing company, whose splendid plants and equipment here were sold at auction during 1924, after the concern collapse following the depression in the textile industry in 1920. The concern passed into the hands of receivers its mills sold to the highest bidder and the machinery sold to anyone who would pay the highest dollar. There was tragedy in the passing of the Manhasset company, the city's greatest textile industry during the war period and a corncern that was a source of employment for nearly 900 people.

Its passing, however, seemed to be but one phase of an industrial plague that hit this city and took one concern after another from the list with heavy weekly payrolls. The Nightingale-Morse mills, long established here, passed out forever, with the dissolution of the corporation and the dissipating of the property interests of the big concern, excepting as to water rights, at an auction sale that brought buyers fram many states and resulted in the sale of the mills and their machinery. Here was a heavy blow added to all the others of the year. The silk business was not too good and the woolen industry only passably active.

But there were compensations. The year just closed has been one of important transition. The H. K. H. Silk company has taken over the Powattan mill, by purchase, of the Nightingale-Morse corporation and is refitting it to give Putnam a splendid silk industry. The Strongman and Perkins Co. have started to operate another mill of the Nightingale-Morse group—the old stone mill—and the Adams Manufacturing company, formerly located at North Scituate, R. I., is flourishing in its manufacturing activities in another of the former plants of the Nightingale-Morse company. The Adams company has expended a generous amount of money in the construction of a new weave shed and in other improvements on their newly acquired property and are busily engaged in making the textiles that brought such an amount of business to the concern while it was located in Rhode Island.

Incidentally, two good concerns have started operation in different mills of the Manhasset Manufacturing company's plants. The National Rhea company is operating in what formerly was the No. 5 mill of the Manhasset company, a brand new plant never before used for manufacturing purposes and in another one of the plants on the property the Powdrell and Alexander company, also operating two mills at Danielson, are doing a splendid business.

In the future Putnam people may well look back on turbulent 1924 and view with interest the storms and stresses and recoveries that the period imposed upon the community. Few New England cities have ever experienced so many vicissitudes in such a brief span of time. Few have ever withstood them with greater fortitude and still fewer have made such amazingly rapid recoveries. Putnam need never again give concern to its ability to withstand a commercial, financial or industrial storm. It likely has weathered a greater gale—with remarkable success—than it will be called upon to face in a century.

Two Sides to Picture in Danielson Manufacturing

In a year that was beset by many uncertainties, as to the textile industry, Danielson did not fare so badly. Notwithstanding, it probably was the leanest of all the years in the past decade for many manufacturers and for hundreds of operatives. In the territory about Danielson the cotton manufacturers and their employes caught it the hardest. For a full quarter of the year the great plant of the Quinebaug company was closed, not in one stretch of time, but in alternate weeks. The same was true of the Wauregan company mill at Wauregan. At Elmville the plant of the Whitestone mills, owned by the American Woolen company, has not been in operation since the spring of 1924. The effects of the depression were felt by the Killingly Worsted company at Elmville by the Davis and Brown Woolen company at East Killingly and by the Asceptic Products company at East Killingly. The short time, the closing down and the shrinkage of earnings by operatives were on the whole discouraging. It was reflected in slowed up business in the retail stores, in conservativeness in expenditures in every line and in hoarding against a long drawn out period during which business might remain in a slump. That is the gloomy side of the picture.

On the other hand, as has been said, this territory did not fare so badly. The big five fabric plants operated by the Connecticut Mills company and the Goodyear company were on a full time schedule practically all the year, though the Connecticut Mills was not producing to the capacity of the plant and there were times when operatives in some departments were idle for brief periods. On the whole, however, these big mills did very well.

A big boost for Danielson was the activity of the Paco Manufacturing company, now, within a few years of its establishment here, rating as one of the biggest industrial assets of the town. During the year the Paco company has operated on full time and at full capacity, not only keeping its original mill on Furnace street going but during 1924, taking over, occupying, equipping and putting into operation the Main street plant of the Connecticut Mills Company, which has stood idle for several years. This concern has installed a bleaching and finishing equipment in the Main street mill and is keeping all of the departments there going at full speed. The Paco company will continue to expand during 1925 and now with a payroll comparing favorably with other large concerns of the town has plans that will bring more workers into its employ and will mean even fatter pay envelopes during the new year.

The Assawaga Woolen Company at Dayville is one of the few mills in its line that has remained active and prosperous in southern New England during 1924, and has maintained its splendid record of years for successful operation.

The mills of the Attawaugan company at Attawaugan, at Ballouville and at Pineville have also been a big factor in keeping Killingly industrially alive during 1924., though the year has not been as good with them as has some recent years.

The election of President Coolidge in November seemed to mark the turn of events and now all of Killingly's cotton plants are running on full time, with promise of continuing to do so indefinitely.

NORWICH POST OFFICE BUSINESS APPROXIMATELY EQUALS YEAR AGO

Receipts Were Over $113,000—Great Increase In Number of C. O. D. Parcels Received—Money Order Station With Regular Clerk in Charge Established To Handle This Business—Postal Savings Deposits Amount to $100,009

Receipts at the Norwich post office during the past year will exceed $113,000 and the business as a whole will equal that of 1923, when the receipts were over $115,000. Under the direction of Postmaster Casper K. Bailey and the department heads, the work of the office has been maintained at the high standard of efficiency, which has always characterized the Norwich office in its service to the public.

The number of parcels received as C. O. D. has greatly increased during the year. The increase of work in sending return money orders has necessitated the establishment of a C. O. D. station in the main office, where money orders in payment of C. O. D. parcels only are handled and this is in charge of a regular clerk.

As receipts are now taken for all insured parcels, the work of the claim clerk is greatly expedited, and as claims are now paid from the central accounting office in New Haven, less delay is experienced in making settlements.

The amount on deposit in the postal savings department has decreased during the year, as several depositors have withdrawn their accounts to invest in real estate for homes. Seventy new accounts have been opened, the total on deposit to the credit of depositors being $100,009.

The money order and registry business at the office in the past year was as follows, both departments showing something of a decrease from a year ago:

INDUSTRIAL DECLINE IN 1924 WAS EVIDENT THROUGHOUT THE NATION

Wage Rates Held Fast But Earnings Fell Off Because of Reduction In Hours of Work—Depression Continued Until July When Trend Became Upward—Wage Earner, With Higher Standard of Living, Wage Rates Doubled and Cost of Living Increased Less Than Two-thirds, Is Better Off Than Ten Years Ago.

The year 1924 began with actual weekly earnings for all wage earners practically as high as they had been since 1920; with employment and hours of work lower than they had been throughout 1923, but higher than they had been before then since 1920, and with the cost of living higher than it had been, except during November and December, 1923, since the middle of 1921.

In January and February, 1924, earnings spurted a little and hours of work held their own; then all three dropped until July, when all of them started up again. Cost of living went down with the rest but reached its minimum three months earlier than working hours, which continued to fall with the result that real earnings did not rise until September with a further rise in October.

When earnings spurted in the first two months of the year while hours of work held their own, though employment had begun to drop, many people believed that the downward tendency in 1923 had been checked and that the upward trend, which had prevailed less than a year before, had been resumed. But in March the decline set in again and continued till July, when the trend became upward.

The cause of an industrial decline following so closely on the heels of the severe depression of 1920-1921 is still in dispute. Some hold that overproduction for home consumption in 1920-1921 and the impracticability of exporting to Europe because of its lack of money and credit was the outstanding cause. Others believe that the dominant cyclical trend is still downward and will continue so until deflation is complete.

An anomaly of the depression of 1924 was the general holding fast of wage rates.

"Real" earnings, of course, represent the purchasing power of the actual earnings. The power of a dollar in 1914 in purchasing what are held to be the needs of a family in differing quantities of food, shelter, fuel and light and sundries is taken as the basis and is compared from month to month and year to year with the changing prices. The value of a man's earnings depends on the prices of the things he must buy; no matter how fast his wages increase he will not profit by them if the prices of things he must buy (cost of living) increases faster than his wages.

Unluckily for the entire accuracy of this statement, the cost of living is based on the articles in the proportion that they were purchased in 1914. Today, very different living standards prevail. Deductions from it, therefore, must not be applied too strictly. Roughly speaking the cost of living has probably gone up about 60 per cent. while the monthly costs for 1924 as calculated on the cost of living "budget" ranged from about 61 to 65 per cent. Nevertheless the monthly costs are useful in showing the month to month variation in cost of living, for, even if they are not exictly right, they are undoubtedly relatively right.

During the decade 1914 and 1924 it is safe to conclude that the actual wage rates have been doubled. But wage rates are not earnings; if a man's hours of work are reduced by his employer being compelled by lack of orders to lay him off for two hours a day it does not affect his wage rate but it does affect his earnings. However, the same thing was true ten years ago and with wage rates doubled and cost of living increased less than two-thirds, the wage earner, even with higher standards of living, would seem to be a good deal better off today than he was ten years ago.

Employment in the paper and pulp and the paper products industries in 1924 was not at all similar. Early in the year paper and pulp dropped sharply from high employment level in the last half of 1923, and falling altogether 20 per cent from April, 1923, to July, 1924; but regaining 5/8 per cent. after July. Paper products did exactly the opposite, rising from low levels in 1923 to considerable gains in 1924. Hours of work and hourly and weekly earnings remained remarkably level, indicating that any curtailment that was necessary was accomplished by cutting the working force without tampering with hours of work or wage rates. In paper products wages did fall off in August but recovered in September and October.

The printing trades showed no significant changes during 1924, a slight loss in activity in July and August probably being due to midsummer slackness. Hourly earnings continue their distinct upward trend in 1923 through the first half of 1924.

WHEN PRESIDENT JACKSON PLACED UNCAS MONUMENT FOUNDATION STONE

Hero of New Orleans Visited Norwich in June, 1833, with Retinue of Distinguished Men—Was Escorted Overland From Hartford and Given Public Dinner and Reception by the Citizens of Norwich—Made Departure from City on Steamboat "General Jackson", Then Owned and Commanded by Capt. W. W. Coit, Pioneer in Steamboating on the Thames River.

Three widely separated historical events—the battle of New Orleans, Fulton's invention of the steamboat, and the laying of the foundation stone for the Uncas monument in Norwich converged in this city on June 18, 1833 to make the most notable civic event in more than a generation. For on that date, the hero of New Orleans, General Andrew Jackson, then in the first year of his second term as seventh president of the United States, visited this city, laid the foundation stone of the Uncas monument, was accorded a great public reception and was given parting honors as he was conveyed down the Thames river on a steamboat bearing his own name, the General Jackson, which was in command of Capt. W. W. Coit of Norwich, a pioneer in steam navigation between here and New York and the only man whom Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt ever considered worthy to be called his rival in steamboating.

The reception to President Jackson was given at Kinney's hotel on Main street, of which Newcomb Kinney was proprietor, and which stood at the location long known to the present generation as the Austin block, now occupied by the store of Schwartz Bros., and opposite Porteous & Mitchell's. The narrow street in front of the hotel was filled with a vast assemblage of military companies, school children and citizens who greeted the president with the utmost enthusiasm and the chronicler of the times declares that the gathering of about 12,000 was the greatest ever seen in Norwich. It is related that upon the occasion of the reception, one of the fairest daughters of Norwich, Miss Anna Lanman, the daughter of the mayor, James Lanman, crowed President Jackson with a chaplet of roses, in acknowledgement of which the president arose and with courtly grace and dignity bestowed a kiss upon the forehead of the fair young lady.

CAPT. W. W. COIT
PIONEER IN THAMES RIVER STEAMBOATING

In later years, Miss Lanman become the wife of Hon. Lafayette S. Foster, long an able and prominent United States senator from this state, and at one time during his senatorial term acting president of the United States.

President Jackson was accompanied by a retinue of distinguished men, including Vice President Martin Van Buren, three members of the cabinet, Governor Edwards of Connecticut and others. His reception here was in the hands of the most important men of affairs and when he departed his safe conduct down the river was entrusted to one of the most prominent and influential among the leading men of the city, Capt. W. W. Coit.

Capt. Coit's Career

Besides the boating interests, which filled up so much of Capt. Coit's life, his diversified enterprises in other lines made him one of the outstanding business men of the period in Norwich. Born in New London, Feb. 24, 1798, he was a resident of this city from his 18th year to the time of his death, Feb. 11, 1879, at the age of 81, at his home, Fairview, on Church St. From the age of 18 up to within a few years of his death he was in command of vessels, from packets to steamboats, and it was his boast that he never lost a life or a pound of freight in all his years on the water. From early colonial times the name of Coit was associated with ship building in New London, the first ship builder of note being John Coit, in the 17th century, who may well have been an ancestor of the Capt. Coit of two centuries later. George L. Clark's "History of Connecticut, Its People and Institutions, says of early New London: "The first shipbuilder of importance at New London, the best port of the colony of Connecticut, was John Coit who built barks of from 12 to 20 tons for from 50 to 82 pounds. In 1661 the first merchant vessel built in the place was launched with the name of "New London Tryall," and the cost of it was 200 pounds. The Coit name and example made it entirely natural that Capt. Coit should have turned to ships and shipping in his younger days.

Upon settling in Norwich he was in command of the freight and passenger packet McDonough plying between Norwich and New York, with accommodations for 15 passengers, but he became identified with steamboats in the earliest stages of steamboating and when he gave up the command of the McDonough, he built and commanded the steamboats Exchange, the Huntress and the Maria, and he was identified with a number of others, either as builder, commander or owner.

Pioneer in Steamboating

Miss Caulkins, in her history of Norwich, has the following notice of Captain Coit:

"The regular line of steam communication with New York commenced in 1817; the Connecticut and the Fulton forming the line, and stopping both at New Haven and New London. The packet system from that time lost its patronage and importance. The old days of uncertainty, in which, when a person started for New York, he ran the risk of being a week on the voyage, gave place to three trips per week comparatively certain. One of the last of the better class of packets, fitted to accommodate passengers as well as to carry freight, was the Ann Maria, Capt. W. W. Coit. In 1820, Capt. Coit went into the Sound steamboat line, running at first the General Jackson. Three others steamers on this route, viz., the Norwich, Huntress and Worcester, were built for him, and each in succession was for several years under his command. The early steam navigation of the river was much indebted to the enterprise of Capt. Coit. He has since been interested in the building of several large steamers, to run on different routes. One of these, named the W. W. Coit, built for him at Mystic in 1864, and immediately chartered by government, was the vessel from which Gen. Gilmore landed and took possession of Charleston, Feb. 18, 1865—her ensign being the first Union flag hoisted on Sumpter after the surrender."

Adapted Coal to Steam Vessels

Norwich may justly claim the credit of being the home place of the first person who succeeded in introducing bituminous coal as a fuel for steam vessels in this or any other country. This was none other than Capt. Coit. In 1834, while the captain was in charge of the old steamship "General Jackson", the president of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. proposed to him that he should make the attempt to introduce anthracite coal as a fuel for steam navigation. By the use of a rotary blower to increase the draft, he established the fact that anthracite coal could be successfully applied to all the purposes of steam navigation, bituminous coal and pine wood having been previously used for that purpose. Thus one of the greatest blessings that maritime commerce has ever received was introduced and successfully demonstrated by one of the worthy citizens of Norwich, to which honor she may justly regard herself fully entitled. Capt. Coit could hardly have dreamed when his first experiment developed into a success, that he would live to see the comparatively universal use of his "black stone" as fuel for steam purposes in almost every part of the civilized world. For some time the coal companies supplied him with coal gratuitously for thus opening a market for the large quantities they had stored on their wharves.

Among the Coit possessions is a picture of "Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt at Home" and with it a note given by him to Capt. W. W. Coit, dated New York, 7th Sept. 1842, as follows:

"I hereby agree to take possession of the Worcester Steam Boat, and on demand from Capt. W. W. Coit, with the delivery of the necessary Bills of Sale of the said steamboat, to pay to the said Coit in cash $30,000 (thirty thousand dollars) and to give him satisfactory notes to the amount of thirty-five thousand dollars, payable in twelve months from this date with interest added, at bank State of New York.

In presence of Witness C. VANDERBILT"
David Wenshaw.

The steamboat William W. Coit was named Gilmore's staff boat in Charleston, South Carolina, harbor when Fort Sumpter surrendered in the civil war to the Union forces, and it was the Coit's flag which was then hoisted over the walls and for ten days remained to mark the surrender and the victory. The steamer was built and owned by Capt. W. W. Coit, and by him leased to the United States government. The steamer's flag, which has become historic, is now the property of the captain's grandson, Archa W. Coit of 22 Lincoln avenue this city. His father, Gen. James B. Coit, declined an offer of a hundred dollars for the Fort Sumpter flag.

At the twentieth anniversary of the reraising of the national flag on Fort Sumpter at the Sumpter Club, Gen. Coit loaned the flag for decorating. At the close of the dinner, the old flag was unfurled and it was recalled to the minds of the members that when victory had been proclaimed for the Union, that Pres. Lincoln ordered the national ensign to be again placed over Fort Sumpter.

An extract from a letter from Gen. James B. Coit, son of W. W. Coit, accompanying the flag when it was lent by him to the Sumpter Club is as follows:

"During the night of Feb. 17, 1865, the confederate troops were evacuating the city of Charleston and its defences. On the morning of the 18th the admiral's vessel ran up to the city, immediately followed by the staff boat of Gen. Gilmore, which staff boat was the steamer W. W. Coit. The Coit proceeded to Fort Sumpter, and at 9 o'clock the Stars and Stripes (taken from her masthead and belonging to her) were again floating above Fort Sumpter. The staff which bore the flag was composed of an oar and a boat hook lashed together. When relieved from this special duty, the flag was returned to the boat, W. W. Coit and subsequently brought north and placed on the retired list by its owner, Captain William W. Coit.

Many Civic Activities

Capt. Coit was deeply interested in public improvements in the city of his adoption and for many years the stores and houses on the principal streets were supplied with water from his fountains. When he first came to Norwich the Yantic river flowed unobstructed from the Falls to the Thames. The valuable property known as Central Wharf was projected, begun and principally finished by him. He also laid out what was then known as Fairmount Plain, a section comprising Coit, Ann, Pearl and Fairmount streets, the best residence district in "West Chelsea." He was one of the original subscribers of the Norwich Free Academy and one of the original life members of the New London county agricultural society. He was a member of the Second Congregational church and one of those who formed the Broadway Congregational church, giving more towards its construction than any other member of the society, the amount being $3,000. Many streets were opened by him and he built business blocks and residences in various parts of the city. Aside from his steam boat business, he was extensively engaged in the lumber and coal trade, in flouring, flax and planing mills. A few years before his death he employed more laborers and paid larger taxes than any other citizen of Norwich. A whig and then a republican in his political leanings, he took no active part in politics except when Henry Clay was a candidate for president. So confident was Capt. Coit of the election of Clay that he promised, if Clay were not elected, to buy Dr. Bond's old wooden church, which was then for sale to make way for the erection of a new church. When Clay was defeated the promise was fulfilled and the old church building was removed to Central wharf where it was turned into a planing mill.

During his long and active business life the captain made many long and lasting friendships. One of these was with Mr. Adams, the founder of the "Adams Express Co." It was a suggestion from Capt. Coit that started Mr. Adams in the business. On one of his frequent trips to and from New York, Mr. Adams remarked to Capt. Coit that "he wished he could find something to do." Capt. Coit called his attention to the large number of bundles in his stateroom, that they were increasing on every trip, were greatly in his way while the errands necessarily caused by them consumed more time than he could afford to give. He suggested to Mr. Adams that if he would collect and take charge of such packages for a fair compensation he would soon build up a profitable business. Mr. Adams took the suggestion, the prophecy came true and thus started the "Adams Express Co."

Funeral of Capt. Coit

At the time of Capt. Coit's death, the Norwich Bulletin of Saturday, Feb. 15, 1879, contained the following account of his funeral.

The funeral ceremonies over the remains of the late Capt. William W. Coit were performed in the Broadway church, at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. A large number of friends and relatives attended. The Rev. William S. Palmer of the Second church read the scripture selections, which were followed by the singing of the hymn "I would not live always." The Rev. Mr. L. J. Chamberlain offered prayer and the choir then sang, "Nearer, my God to Thee." The body was encased in a broadcloth covered casket adorned with elegant silver mountings. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful and consisted of wheat anchors and crescents of lovely flowers and wreaths of ivy leaves. The plate on the casket lid bore the full name of the deceased with the date of his birth and death. The bearers were Mayor Hugh H. Osgood, Amos W. Prentice, Archa P. Willoughby, Nathan S. Gilbert. The pall bearers, old time friends and associates in business with the dead man, were Capt. Jerome W. Williams, Capt. Edmund Roath, Henry B. Norton, and Ebenezer F. Parker.

A Hartford Tribute

The Bulletin of the preceding day quoted the following from the Springfield Republican, through its Hartford correspondent, who said:

"A trio of somewhat distinguished Norwich people have died this month, all at advanced ages and all, if I mistake not, in not the most prosperous circumstances. Beyond this there seems to be at first little or nothing in common between Miss Sally Goodell, a school teacher, Mrs. Charles J. Lanman, a society leader, and Capt. W. W. Coit, steamboat captain and owner. And yet they had this in common, that each one of the three filled their various positions in life with a clear conscience, and in a reverent spirit towards God and kindly sense of their duties to man. Miss Goodell, who died at eighty-six, taught school up town in Norwich for seventy years, among her early pupils being one of the parents of the writer, who counts himself no chicken, and numberless other good old folks of Norwich. For seventy years she taught little children A B C, and little exercises in reading, spelling and arithmetic in her old-fashioned way and never spared the rod to spoil the child, but never failed to win the love and respect of her little pupils, who remembered her kindly until the end came the other day, when she had a bad fall and died soon after. Mrs. Charles J. Lanman was a daughter-in-law of James Lanman, once a United States senator from Connecticut, and sister-in-law of another United States senator, Lafayette S. Foster. She belonged to a proud old family who have had some very creditable representatives in the world, and was herself always deeply esteemed and respected. Capt. W. W. Coit was one of the original steamboat men, confreres of Vanderbilt, who are rapidly passing away, who knew every nook and crevice of Long Island Sound as well as your compositors know every box in their cases. Energetic, active, and always honest, he had made two or three fortunes and thousands of friends. Whether he left the former behind him I know not, but he certainly did the latter, and there be few men beyond middle age that sail the Sound who did not know and will not drop a tear to the memory of Capt. William."

Living Relatives

Two daughters-in-law, five grandsons and one granddaughter comprise the nearest living relatives of Capt. Coit, five of whom still are in Norwich, Mrs. Adelaide G. Coit of 42 Broadway, widow of the captain's son John W. L. Coit, and Mrs. Robert G. Coit of Springfield, Mass., widow of another son, are the daughters-in-law. Two of the grandsons, S. Jeffrey Coit and Edwin F. Coit., both machinists in this city, are the sons of Mrs. Adelaide G. Coit. The other grandchildren are the children of Gen. James B. Coit, another son of the captain. These are Mrs. Henry B. Graves of Geneva, N. Y., Archa W. Coit, an insurance and real estate agent of this city, Leeds W. Coit, secretary and treasurer of the Business Men's Insurance Co., of Greensboro, N. C., and Ralph B. Coit, actuary of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., of Greensboro, N. C.

President Jackson's Visit

During a tour of the northern states by President Andrew Jackson in the summer of 1833, it became known in Norwich that he might pass through this city and preparations were immediately made to receive him with suitable ceremony. They took politics bitterly in those days and the newspaper of the time felt it necessary to admonish the people that political animosities should not be allowed to interfere with the celebration of the visit of the president.

Preparations Made

The Norwich Republican of June 5, 1833, William Faulkner, editor and proprietor, thus detailed the preparations made in anticipation of the visit of President Jackson:

A meeting of the citizens took place on Friday evening last at Kinney's hotel, to take into consideration the measures most proper to adopt, in order to receive the president of the United States in a most respectful manner—providing he should pass through this place, while on his visit to New England during the present month. A committee was appointed to confer with the mayor, aldermen, and common council, and request them to make such arrangements as they deem expedient to render his visit pleasant and agreeable.

It is to be hoped that no party animosities will be suffered to exist on this occasion, but that all will unite in extending to the President of the United States that congratulation that is due to a devoted and tried servant of America.

We are assured by the Washington Globe that the health of the president is as good as usual. He has for some time suffered some pain proceeding from the consequences of an old wound. Its violence was considerably increased a few days after a villanious attack on his person by the renegade Randolph, in consequence of giving his side a wrench, while in the act of extricating himself from the awkward position in which he sat between the berths and the table, to defend himself. The pain however (the Globe says) has subsided considerably, and the president was to have set out on his journey northward about the first of June.

The President Arrives

In its issue of June 19, 1833, the Norwich Republican gives a brief account of the visit of President Jackson from the time of his arrival at the Leffingwelltown toll house, with the address of welcome delivered by Hon. James Lanman, mayor of the city, as follows:

The president of the United States accompanied by the vice-president Gov. Cass of the War Department, Gov. Woodbury of the Navy Department, Honorable J. R. Poinsett and Major Donelson, arrived in this city on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. (June 18th). A procession was formed at the toll house, about two miles from the city. The first notice of his approach was given by a report of a cannon on Prospect Hill. Immediately the bells commenced a peal, which was continued until his arrival at Kinney's Hotel. He was conveyed in a barouch drawn by four (white) horses. The procession, consisting of an immense number of horsemen and carriages, moved around by the Falls village. At the different manufacturing establishments, specimens of the work were exhibited, the productions of their own machinery, emblazoned with appropriate mottoes. On arriving at the old Indian Burying Grounds on Sachem street, an address was delivered by Gov. Cass, and the president laid the foundation of the monument to Uncas, the friend of the whites, and the chief warrior of the Mohegans. At this place the females connected with the different manufacturing establishments were exhibited in procession, dressed in white.—We thought they looked a little "too pale" for perfect health. On arriving at the Little Plain, the procession was escorted by military troops to Kinney's hotel, destined for the reception of the president.

Here he was received by the mayor, Hon. James Lanman, and was crowned by a young lady with a wreath of roses. The number of persons assembled was greater than we ever before witnessed in this city. We should think they amounted to about 12,000. After dining at the hotel, he was escorted to the Steamboat General Jackson where he left the wharf amid thundering cheers from the populace.

The following is the substance of the mayor's address to the president:

Sir—It is with unmingled pleasure that I have it in charge from my fellow citizens to bid you welcome to this place of their abode.

They cannot too kindly or cordially feel and acknowledge the gratification they enjoy of seeing one, of whom they have heard so much—whose public services have been so distinguished—and to whom this great republic has twice awarded the highest dignity in its gift.

Here, Sir, in our quiet valley, among our verdant hills, and near our limpid and busy streams—the peaceful retreat of industry, intelligence, and independence—the language of adulation would not become our lips. With our hands on our faithful bosoms, would we say—First and best of citizens, we bid you thrice welcome. We forbear to unfold the scroll of your past services to our common country, in her councils, and in the field, where you have so often held your life and shed your blood in defending her rights and her glory. The volumes of history will one day display these to the world. Posterity will enjoy the rich and transcendant favor of knowing who of the present age have lived for themselves, and who for their country, and why it is that the blessings of a free government and a happy people are conferred upon us. The highest hopes which our nation's honor can inspire, and the best wishes of our heart will ever be, that the future chronicles of the day will do its benefactors justice.

Allow me, Sir, to add to this public service the tender of my personal congratulations, not less sincerely bestowed, than richly merited.

Escorted from Hartford

In coming to Norwich, President Jackson came overland from Hartford crossing a ferry on the Connecticut river and then by the Essex turnpike through Salem and Leffingwell town to this city.

In its issue of June 26th the Republican goes into fuller details of the trip from Hartford and the reception given in Norwich to the presidential party as follows:

On Monday, the 17th inst., a committee appointed by the city authorities, consisting of the following gentlemen, viz.:

John De Witt, first alderman
Gerard C. Lester
William Faulkner
Calvin Goddard
Asa Child
Charles P. Huntington,

proceeded to Hartford, for the purpose of accompanying the president of the United States and suite to this city, according to previous arrangements made with them in New York by a committee appointed by the mayor from whom letters of invitation were forwarded.

At 12 o'clock, we arrived at Ely's Ferry.

The preparations made at this place to convey the president with his suite and the committees to Norwich, convinced us that our city would not be behind her neighbors in giving them a good reception. The President, Vice-President, Gov. Edwards, and Major Donelson were drawn in a splendid barouch by Messrs. Bailey and Whitmore's four beautiful grey horses. Next in procession was another barouch containing Secretary Cass, Secretary Woodbury, Col. Earle, Hon. J. R. Poinsett, drawn by white horses. In the next carriage was Judge Williams, Major Harmon, Lieut. Prentiss, and the committee from New York. Next followed a carriage containing four "old Democrats" who have been unwavering in their support of Jackson and Democracy. Next followed the several committees from Hartford, Philadelphia, Boston and Norwich in carriages, then the citizens generally. On arriving at the toll gate, two miles from the city, the marshals of the day on horseback, with a vast concourse of people in carriages and on horseback, joined the procession which presented a very imposing appearance. On arriving at the summit of the hill near the city, we were struck with amazement on viewing the numberless multitudes which were congregated in the streets, on the houses, at the windows and on the surrounding hills. The bells pealed a merry tune, the guns roared, the people shouted, the ladies handkerchiefs were wafted—it was a most animating spectacle—The procession moved on in regular order across the wharf bridge up Washington street, through the Falls village, where among other things which attracted our attention was a large piece of cotton cloth attached to the Thames Cotton Manufactory and to a building on the opposite side of the road, with the words "Honor to Whom Honor is Due" inscribed thereon in large letters; another with the words "The Federal Union—It Must Be Preserved"; under which the procession passed. On arriving at the beautiful spot west of the Indian Burying Ground on Sachem street in the vicinity of the Falls where were collected all the females employed in the various manufactories formed in a large semi-circle, in the center of which a large pile of cotton bales properly arranged with the words "Heroes of New Orleans" inscribed upon them, the president and his suite alighted and were escorted into the open area passing in front of the semi-circle received the smiles and good wishes of the young and blooming fair who were there collected. On approaching the miniature breastwork Cotton Bales, it was observed to him "Here, General, is that which aided you in the defense of New Orleans!" "And here" said he, casting his keen eye to the fair crescent, "Is what I defended it for."

Monument to Uncas

The citizens of Norwich having long entertained a desire to erect a monument to the memory of Uncas, the Friend of the White People, and the Sachem of the Mohegans, the present opportunity was, therefore, seized as peculiarly favorable for commencing this object, and an invitation was accordingly sent to the president and secretary of war, to be present and lay the foundation stone. The grave of Uncas is in a delightful grove on the premises of Mr. Goddard. The president, surrounded by his suite and a multitude of our fellow citizens, performed the ceremony of placing the stone, being assisted by the Hon. Sec. of War Lewis Cass, who made a very neat and appropriate and interesting address on the occasion.

After the ceremonies of laying the corner stone were concluded, the procession moved down Broadway to the park, (Little Plain) escorted by the military composed of light infantry, Capt. Hinckley, artillery, Capt. Hyde, riflemen, Capt. Jones and a company of riflemen, under the command of Capt. Jillson from Willimantic. In the park there were assembled a great concourse of ladies and children, to behold him of whom they had heard so much, and the evident satisfaction with which they saluted him proved that their hearts were strongly interested on the occasion.

On arriving in Main street the military formed a line on the south side giving the standing salute, by presenting arms and drooping the colors, the band playing a lively march. The president proceeded to Kinney's hotel, where he was received by the mayor, James Lanman, who addressed him by a short and appropriate speech.

After which the president appeared in the portico in front of the hotel, where he bowed gracefully to the dense mass of citizens who were collected and who gave vent to their feelings by repeated cheers. While in the portico, the president was crowned with a beautiful wreath of flowers, placed upon his head by Miss Anna Lanman, daughter of the mayor, who executed the act in a very becoming manner. He then retired to a room prepared for the occasion where the citizens were generally introduced. After which he partook of an excellent collation prepared by Mr. Kinney in his best style. At 5 o'clock the president and his suite with the committee of attendance, and many citizens departed in the Steamboat General Jackson for New London, where we leave him for the present with our best wishes for his future welfare.

Uncas and the Indian Graves

In the History of Norwich by Frances Manwarring Caulkins, third edition 1874, page 585, there is the following reference to President Jackson and the distinguished persons that were with him on his visit to Norwich:

"The ancient Indian cemetery, heavily shadowed with a native growth of trees, is now little more than an inclosure for the Uncas Monument.

"During the summer of 1833, General Jackson, president of the United States with a part of his cabinet, made a tour through a portion of the Eastern states. The citizens of Norwich had long been desirous of erecting some memorial of respect for their "Old Friend," the Mohegan Sachem, and they suddenly decided to celebrate the visit of the president by connecting it with the interesting ceremony of laying the corner stone of an Uncas monument.

"The Presidential party came from Hartford by land, arriving by the Essex turnpike in open coaches, with a brilliant escort of cavalry that had gone forth to meet them. Vice-President Van Buren, Gov. Edwards of Connecticut, Major Donelson, and Messrs. Cass, Woodbury and Poinsett, Secretaries of War, Navy and State, formed the party. They arrived at 3 o'clock p. m., paused a few moments at the Falls, and then advanced to the cemetery, where a great assemblage of the inhabitants, military companies, bands of children with banners and mottoes, and a few scattered Indians from Mohegan, received the visitors with martial salutes and joyful acclamations.

"At the cemetery, where all stood with uncovered heads, N. L. Shipman, Esq., in behalf of the Association, gave a brief sketch of the family of Uncas and the existing condition of the tribe. It was an interesting, suggestive ceremony; a token of respect from the modern warrior to the ancient—from the emigrant race to the aborigines. General Cass, in a short but eloquent address to the multitude, observed that the earth afforded but few more striking spectacles than that of one hero doing homage at the tomb of another.

"The ceremony being concluded, the children sang a hymn, and the presidential party passed away, pausing again at the landing for refreshments, and embarking from thence in a steamer for New London.

"Though the corner-stone was thus auspiciously prepared, no funds had been obtained or plans matured for the erection of the monument. The ladies at length took hold of the work, and brought it to a successful issue, seven years later. Embracing the opportunity of a political mass-meeting, which assembled at Norwich, Oct. 1840, in honor of Harrison and Tyler, they prepared a refreshment fair,—with generous enthusiasm arranged and filled their tables—took their station as saleswomen, and with the profits paid for the monument."

Place of Reception

Kinney's hotel on Main street, where the reception of President Jackson was given, is identified by Sarah Lester Tyler in her volume entitled "Norwich—Early Homes and History." She writes as follows:

"Passing on down Main Street we come to the Austin Block; this was at first Kinney hotel, but was later called The Merchants hotel.

"In the summer of 1833, President Jackson was making a tour of the New England states; the opportunity was seized to celebrate the event by having the president assist in laying the cornerstone of Uncas monument. He stopped at Kinney's hotel and a banquet in his honor was prepared for three hundred guests. The dining room was beautifully decorated with greens, and artificial flowers furnished by the milliners, of whom there were several on the opposite side of the street. Mrs. Lee of Washington street had some cultivated strawberries, the only ones in this vicinity, and they were considered a great luxury. She sent a dish of these to the president, and the old lady, who was ninety years old when she told me of these incidents, said she prepared the berries with sugar and cream and gave them to him; it was all he ate for his dinner. Another interesting event was the crowning of President Jackson with a wreath of flowers by Miss Ann Lanman, one of the daughters of Judge Lanman, as he sat on the porch of the hotel.

"Mrs. Lee also told me her grandfather kept the tavern on the corner of Main Street and Broadway where the Norwich Savings Bank now is.

"General Washington stayed there when he passed through Norwich on his way to take charge of the troops at Cambridge, June 1775. It was called "Cheney's Tavern." In the early days to be licensed to keep a tavern, one would have to be possessed of considerable means, and be of some consequence in the community."

The Monument Completed

The Uncas Monument was finally completed in 1842 and ceremonies to signalize that event were held on the Fourth of July. At that time a pamphlet called the Uncas Monument, with the dates 1492 and 1842 and the unique subtitle "Published Once In Three Hundred and Fifty Years," was issued, of which probably the only number now extant is in the library of Attorney William H. Shields which is a veritable treasure house of historical lore relating to Norwich. The small eight page pamphlet was made up in an interesting way with quotations from the old land records of Norwich, showing covenants made with Uncas and the Mohegan Indians, a sketch of the monument with the inscriptions upon it, and notice that the ceremonies would consist of a parade of the citizens, forming "at the park in front of the Boys' Academy," with an address to be delivered by William L. Stone, Esq., of the city of New York.

The steamboat General Jackson and her commander, Capt. Coit, make the subject for the Bulletin's souvenier calendar this year, adding another to the series of subjects of local historical interest which the Bulletin has issued for a number of years.

It is to Attorney William H. Shields that the Bulletin and the public in general are indebted for the greater part of the information embodied in this sketch of Capt. Coit and the events attending the visit of President Jackson to Norwich. For years Attorney Shields has made the collection of Norwich memorabilia one of his hobbies and his collection of pictures, pamphlets and books upon Norwich history has brought together a mass of material that is original, authentic and of great value.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT SHOWED ITS BIGGEST BUILDING YEAR IN 1924

Total of $4,965,752 Exceeded High Mark of Year Ago—New London County Had $3,585,752 and Windham County $1,380,000—Norwich Recorded Highest Mark In History—New London Close To Record Year—Putnam Erected Business Blocks And Inn—Willimantic Building Fell Behind Figures of a Year Ago.

Building work in Eastern Connecticut for 1924 set a new high record mark when it was shown that the total for New London and Windham counties was $4,965,752, which surpassed the 1923 total of $3,741,847.

In New London county the grand total was $3,585,752 as compared with $3,416,847 in 1923, and in the large total of the past year Norwich contributed a new high record while New London was close to record figures. Outside the cities the building work was at $450,000 as contrasted with $500,000 for the preceding year.

For Windham county the mark was also above that of last year, a total of $1,380,000 as against $1,325,000 in 1923. Putnam's building work was at an estimated figure of $750,000, which bettered the total of $550,000 for 1923, but Willimantic fell off on the showing of $330,000 for 1924 as compared with $600,000 in 1923. In other parts of the county the 1924 building total was $300,000 which was an increase over the 1923 figures of $175,000.

Home Building Year In Norwich Construction

A great home building year in the city and town of Norwich, together with the construction of several large and important buildings for business and institutional uses, boosted building figures to a record mark for 1924, showing a total of $1,830,490 which exceeded the best previous mark which was that of 1923 when the total was $1,263,100.

More building permits for the city than ever before were issued through the office of Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton. The total was 328, which was 45 more than the year before. Included in this big total were 87 new dwellings and 132 new garages, of which several were large new public garages of brick and concrete construction. About as many new frame dwellings were erected in the town limits as in the city limits, bringing the total of new homes to 157 in city and town.

New Schoolhouse

The town has begun the erection of a new $100,000 schoolhouse on the East Side for the Bridge district school, and the city has completed a new fire station of the modern bungalow type on the Joseph Perkins road.

The Merchants National Bank has rebuilt its banking house on Main St., and two important changes have taken place or are in progress in Franklin Square property, the first being the reconstruction by the Mohican Co., of its store building, which replaced old wooden buildings with an attractive brick front structure, and the second being the work now under way by Peter Sellas in tearing down the well known Chapman building at the corner of Rose place and replacing it with a modern three story brick building for stores and offices.

Hospital Buildings

At the Backus hospital the money used in a great popular appeal for this purpose has been used to erect a fine modern nurses' home. The citizens of this and adjoining communities responded to this appeal by contributing approximately $279,000 and the building will be ready for occupancy in March or April. At the Norwich state hospital two new buildings have been erected under appropriations made by the state, one a new ward for women and the other a nurses' home.

The following shows the issue of permits in the city by the fire marshal and a summary of the building work in town and city.

Adding To Buildings At Norwich State Hospital

Appropriations made by the state for new wards and a nurses' home at the Norwich state hospital have been put to use in the past year as a result of which the institution will have a new ward for women and a new nurses' home ready for opening in the spring. The sum of $145,000 was appropriated for the nurses' home, which will provide the facilities long needed in this line, and $255,000 has been used in the erection of a new ward for women of the acute class of patients. The hospital has deferred the erection of a new ward for men because the appropriation made was found insufficient to build both wards, but the hospital has a credit of $175,000 towards the men's ward on which construction will be begun when an additional appropriation has been secured.

At the Seaside

At the Seaside sanatorium at Niantic there is still an appropriation of $100,000 available for a fireproof infirmary to accommodate from 100 to 150 patients, but the construction is deferred until the McCook land can be acquired.

Willimantic Has Wane In Building Industry

With a record set in 1923 for the biggest building boom Willimantic ever experienced in its history the number of building permits fell in 1924 to 123 as compared with 146 in 1923, and the amount of money expended for construction is a shade under the $330,000 mark, a decrease of $270,000 from the conservative estimate of $600,000 given for 1923. The 1922 estimate was given as a low average at $350,000. A glance at the building statistics shows, however, that Willimantic is steadily growing although not at the rapid pace set in 1923. This fact concerning its growth is more readily seen when in comparing the number of permits issued in previous years it is found that the number for 1924 is three times greater than in 1920 and over five times greater than in 1919, and only 24 under the 1923 high water mark. The drop in the monetary outlay represented by the permits is accounted for to a large extent by the fact that during 1923 extensive construction jobs were started representing immense investments which served materially to swell the 1923 estimate. The eight-room addition to the Natchaug Grammar school, the Salvation Army citadel, The Capitol Theater Corporation building were among the larger structures authorized to be built during 1923. The tendency in 1924 has been to build dwelling houses and garages. Forty-nine new houses, mainly of the bungalow type, were constructed during the year allowing an increased housing capacity for sixty five families. This figure does not vary materially from that in 1923 when forty-two houses were built representing sixty tenements. There were 33 garage permits issued, two more than in 1923. Private garages erected represent about 150 stalls to accomodate the ever increasing automobile population. A large three-story public garage built of brick and conducted by the R. C. Remington Inc., now beautifies what was formerly a rocky embankment at the corner of Bridge and Mountain streets.

The most noticeable drop was in the number of permits issued for the building of mercantile houses, there being only three in 1924 as compared with 15 in 1923. Of the three buildings, two are occupied by a total of four stores and the third, a fine three story brick structure on North street is being erected by Dr. Owen O'Neill and will be utilized as an office building when completed. This structure represents the largest individual outlay of money. Probably the most beautiful residence erected during the year is that at the corner of Church and Maple avenue owned by John F. Carr. The many bungalows which have been built are of the attractive designs used in modern building and greatly enhance the beauty of Willimantic's residential sections. The construction of the Capitol theater building on Main street is progressing rapidly when the weather allows and the brick work at this time nearly covers all of the steel framework of the building. The theater proper will compare in size and splendor with any in Eastern Connecticut. At either side of the entrance will be two large stores with two stories above these to be used respectively for offices and a hall.

Building Summary

The summary shows as follows:

New dwelling houses	49
New mercantile buildings	3
New garages	39
Alterations and additions	20

Smaller Real Estate Transactions

Property to the value of $770,000 changed hands in the Town of Windham during 1924 showing a steady decrease in the monetary value of real estate transactions in this town since 1919 when a million dollar mark was set and still remains the record amount in local history. In 1923 the amount was $980,000, or $210,000 more than during the past year. For 1921 it was nearly a million. Of the more recent years 1922 was comparatively low, the estimate being $700,000. To a large extent the transfers were made between local residents but unlike those in 1923 the individual sales were not mainly of wide interest and few represented investments of over $8,000. The most important transactions included the sale of the lumber yards on North and Meadow streets by M. Eugene Lincoln to Patrick H. Gribbon and Patrick J. Twomey, the business being merged into the Willimantic Lumber & Coal Company; the disposal of a brick block on Valley street by M. Eugene Lincoln to John Bruvere, as well as the sale of a brick block on Union street by Samuel Porcaro and Caroline Porcaro to Oliver L. Willard. Another business block which exchanged ownership was the three story brick structure at 744 Main street, occupied on the first floor by the J. F. Carr & Co. clothing store. This building was transferred to John W. Saunders, M. D. of Wyoming, Rhode Island, from Allen L. Cranston and Inez Cranston of Bolivar, New York state. The pretentious residence at the corner of Chestnut and Prospect street was sold by Dr. D Everett Taylor and Kate H. D. Taylor to C. Clinton and Annie E. Heimold. The sale of a fine house and large tract of land in Windham Center to Gladys C. Smith by the Convent of Our Lady of Lourdes Corp., of this city also occasioned considerabe interest.

Building lots for the larger part figured in the transactions. A majority of these were purchased along the outskirts of the present residential sections and manifest the steady creeping of builded sections towards the city's boundary lines.

Business Blocks and Inn Built In Putnam

Two of the finest business blocks erected in Putnam in a generation were completed here in 1924—drab year that it was insofar as this city and its business affairs were concerned.

Both new structures are in the heart of the business section, are now fully occupied by business concerns and by professional men and women and have established that they were needed to meet the needs of a community that does not know the word fail.

Both are two-story brick structures of modern construction and fitting and both are situated in the center of the citys activities. The Stoumbelis block was the first of the pair of new structures, which are adjoining, to be completed. It replaces the Donahue block destroyed by fire on Washington's birthday in 1923. The Sedar black is the other new building, next north on Main street from the Stoubelis block The Seder block replaces wooden structures that had outstayed their usefulness and were occupying sites far too valuable longer to be devoted to their presence.

These new blocks represent a heavy expenditure of money and express a confidence in the future of the city that is characteristic of the progressive people of that community. The buildings were put up in the face of the most discouraging conditions—a nation-wide slump in business and industrial depression that was general at home, all of this to be topped by a bank crash that startled all the east. Yet all of this has only served again to prove that success goes to those with stout hearts and good judgment.

The buildings were not completed are there were more than enough applicants to amply supply them with tenants and they were occupied immediately that they were ready.

These new structures have added to the appearances of Putnam's shopping center and make the business center as a whole more attractive.

The other outstanding building operation of the year in Putnam was the remodeling and enlarging of the Putnam inn by the owner and landlord, Earl C. Rogers, one of the city fathers.

Artisans have been engaged for months on an operation involving a very heavy expenditure, but giving to Putnam a larger and more modern hotel than people resident in this corner of the state ever hoped to see. Landlord Rogers spared no expense in developing a hostelry that is known far and wide in the eastern states. He has built into a four-story structure, with tapestry brick walls and ornate metal trimmings on the front and stucco walls at the side and the rear. The big additions provide additional space for the store of the Byrne Company and a total of 96 guest rooms in the hotel itself. Thousands of dollars have been spent in improving the interior of the hotel, which when the work underway is completed will be equipped with elevator service and, it goes without saying, every other convenience expected in a modern hotel. The Putnam inn is now the outstanding building in the business center of Putnam, towering over all other structures and bulking larger than any other.

Of course, there have been many other building operations in Putnam during 1924, including the construction of dwellings, remodeling of buildings and other such work, but the construction of the Stoumbelis and Seder blocks and the reconstruction of the Putnam inn leave the largest impression as to Putnam's efforts to grow and make a greater place for itself in the world.

Building Improvements In Jewett City In 1924

During the year just passed, the building activity and general improvement plans in Jewett City have been accomplished principally by private citizens. The policies of maintenance by the big manufacturing plants have included but little building during 1924.

Including private residences, garages and general improvement, $60,000 was expended in the borough in the last twelve months. F. H. Gilbert has built just over the southern borough line, two new bungalow residences which can be said to be the last word in modern construction. The cost is fixed at $7,000 apiece. Mr. Gilbert has made provision for a water supply from a never failing spring near Daniel Morgan's several hundred yards to the south.

First an electric plant was installed, and by means of an electrically operated force pump, the water is first raised into a standpipe tank. In this tank an air pressure is maintained at 80 pounds automatically, which insures the finest service at the houses below. The electric plant and water system were installed at a cost of $4,500. Mr. Gilbert has now extended poles to the borough line, and will connect up with the municipal system. The Gilbert plots, unsurpassed for a residence section, contain 29 one-acre lots.

William Fogarty, besides building on his property north of the borough line, contemplates laying out $1,000, on his garage at the corner of Green Avenue and North Main street. The building will be raised and cut back in front 12 feet. The alterations will give opportunity for gas and mechanical service off the street line. Michael Fogarty and his sisters Lizzie and Maria have built a modern residence on Green avenue, at a cost of $5,000. William Fogarty has disposed of his new house to Mr. Berkeshroder.

The Ashland Club has not lost sight of the social value of the club, as a benefit to the mill organization, and in the hands of P. W. Chase, the improvement in its attraction are as steady as they are worthwhile. John LaPavre and Frank Leyden, have both made substantial addition to their property, by the construction of modern residences, costing not far from $8,000. On Brown avenue and in the Polish section of Belvidere, stores and residences have been built by the thrifty Polish owners, amounting to $16,000. Chapman and Tripp have expended $3,500 in new construction, and in the improvement and rearrangement of their lumber yard and building shops. An addition has been built, 50x40, and the original building raised to the height of the new. More commodious storage room for lumber is gained, and there will also be room for contemplated extension in house hardware and paint.

Louis Gill has built two new bungalows on the Plainfield road. Frank Cusick has erected a large garage on his North Main street property and Carmeno Demico has built a two story house on Green avenue. Fred Manard, has raised and improved his store property on the park section of North Main street, expending $3,000.

Besides the new work by local owners, the Connecticut Light & Power Co., has put into operation a new central electric transforming station, at Ashland, and completed new line work and transformer installation, at a cost of $20,000.

New line construction has been done by the borough electric light and power system, with plans in view for extended and improved service, which stand for well considered and necessary expense.

The approximate total for 1924 was $1,305,262 as shown on 446 permits issued through the office of Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linicus as compared with 332 permits in 1923 for $927,225 in value.

Industrial and commercial buildings numbered 56 at a valuation of $625,127 as compared with 49 for $360,100 in 1923, while dwellings numbered 81 for $500,850 which exceeded the 1923 figures of 68 dwellings for $408,150. New garages were added to the number of 185 at a valuation of $78,600, outnumbering the year before when there were 124 garages at an approximate valuation of $89,000. Additions and alterations numbered 124 at a valuation of $100,685 in contrast to 91 permits and a valuation of $69,975 in 1923.

$1,582,974 PUT INTO HIGHWAY WORK IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT IN 1924

Improvements Made in New London, Windham And Tolland Counties Over 41.16 Miles of Roads—Concrete, Native Stone Macadam and Bituminous Macadam Are Types of Roads Constructed—New Bridge Built at Oneco.

A total distance of about 41.16 miles upon which roadwork was done in New London, Windham and Tolland counties in 1924, sent the highway work by the state department to big figures in Eastern Connecticut where the total approximate expenditure was $1,582,974.94. A year ago about 24 miles of road and $558,713.88 represented what was done in this important branch of public improvements.

Approximately two-thirds of the work has been in New London county, where 24.73 miles of road called for an expenditure of $1,086,799.56. Close to half of this is represented by between 6 and 7 miles of concrete road on the Shore line through Waterford, New London, East Lyme and Old Lyme. Another big contract was the cutting down and improvement at Baptist Hill, Mystic, and a third big job of the year was on the section of the so-called old Essex turnpike through the towns of Salem and Montville, where native stone macadam is used.

In Windham county the two largest pieces of work were the completion of the concrete road in Putnam and the beginning of a concrete road in Plainfield, both on the Mohegan Trail between Norwich and Webster, Mass. A new bridge at Oneco in the town of Sterling was in the work of the year. The whole mileage covered was 11.59 miles at an expenditure of $325,909.62.

The Tolland county work, which covered 4.98 miles at an expenditure of $170,265.76 was all in the town of Mansfield in improving the Mansfield Depot and the Storrs College road.

Division Engineer John Smith, with headquarters in Norwich, has had general charge of the work, which has a number of uncompleted projects upon which the winter weather has called a halt, but work will begin again at the earliest possible moment in the spring.

Details of the work are given in the accompanying table:

Odd Fellows To Build Addition At Fairview

Before many months of this year have passed it is expected that work will be started for the erection of a new building at the Odd Fellows' home at Fairview, Groton, which will more than double the present capacity of the home.

The Fairview Odd Fellows' home at present provides a peaceful haven in their old age for 29 brothers and 9 sisters. The projected new building will supply the long felt need of an infirmary and will contain 50 dormitory rooms besides the two infirmary wards. With existing buildings, this will make provision for 114 residents at the home.

During the 32 years that the home has been conducted, 183 brother Odd Fellows have found care at the home, as well as 32 wives of Odd Fellows, a total of 215 persons provided for by this institution of Connecticut Odd Fellows. Over half of the $275,000 estimated to be needed to build the new infirmary and dormitory has been secured by an assessment plan instituted four years ago, calling for $1 from each contributing member. Further contributions are now to be sought and it has been figured out that if each of the 29,000 members in the state would give $5 the remainder of the building fund would be reached and even exceeded. The lodges will endeavor to get a 100 per cent. response from their members, each dollar contributed is supposed to designate one brick in the proposed new structure so that the givers will pay for as many bricks as they give dollars.

Without an infirmary, the Home has been unable to receive any Odd Fellows unless they were enjoying a fair degree of health so that the addition of the new building will greatly increase the scope of the Home in assistance to members of the order.

Working In Interest Of Norwich Sportsmen

An organization that has done an active and energetic work in its field in the past year is the Norwich Fish and Game association which has a strong membership of about 450 men who are interested in the betterment of conditions for followers of field and stream in this section. Under the direction of the executive officers [illegible] William V. [illegible], president and treasurer, the club has liberated 400 pheasants in this vicinity, has distributed 25,000 fingerling trout in brooks in this neighborhood and has planted over a bushel of wild celery seed to provide food and attraction for ducks. The association cooperates with similar clubs, game wardens in detecting and punishing offenders against game laws.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT ATHLETICS HAD GOOD YEAR

BULKELEY HAS OUTSTANDING TEAMS IN HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS IN 1924

Veteran Teams Sweep All Before Them In Quest of State Honors—Chapman Tech Leaders In Interscholastic League Gridiron Warfare—Westerly Wins Crown in Interscholastic Baseball—Windham Has Wonderful Football Team.

Bulkeley High school athletic teams, although not affiliated with the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league, were the outstanding teams in high school sports during the past year. Bulkeley with veteran players on both the baseball and football teams swept everything before them in quest of state high school athletic supremacy. Their quest was well rewarded for they are the uncrowned kings, of high school athletics in Eastern Connecticut sports, even if their titles are disputed in the state.

Windham High was a close second on the gridiron and hung up an enviable record when she came through with only one defeat in two years of playing. This defeat was at the hands of Drury High School of North Adams and being an out of state team gives Windham a clean slate in competition with other teams in the state. However Windham cannot be compared to the powerful Bulkeley machine because of the weakness of the Windham schedule.

Baseball honors in the scholastic league went to Westerly High while Chapman Tech took the interscholastic title in football but not without a hard battle from the Westerly gridsters, runners-up in the fight for honors. Chapman Tech was the outstanding basketball team in the Eastern part of the state winning the interscholastic competition at the Connecticut Agricultural College early in the year. The track honors also went to Chapman although closely pressed by the Stonington track team. The records of the most prominent of the high schools follow:

BULKELEY HIGH

Two records that are convincing in every form, showing that Bulkeley high had the best athletic teams in its football and baseball teams during the past year, leaves their superiority over the other teams in this section of the state not to be doubted.

One of the most successful years ever enjoyed in baseball was Bulkeley's during the 1924 season. A team going through the other teams it encountered like a cyclone sweeps a town, found Bulkeley amassing a string of victories that touched 23 consecutive victories before it was broken by Crosby high. Following this defeat, Bulkeley met with its second defeat of the season and all in the same week. Springfield Technical high, a strong team in Massachusetts bowled over the Orange and Black nine in ten innings of fight. Previous to this defeat, Bulkeley had already found the measure of the Bay state team but errors at critical moments caused the second defeat.

In going over the record, teams which were in the running for the state championship were assaulted literally speaking, and dropped from view after the Bulkeley cyclone hit them. Regardless of the one defeat in this state, Bulkeley bowled over nearly all the strong teams in the state. Baseball nines in this section of the state were hopelessly outclassed as the record below will testify. Plainfield, Windham, Norwich, Stonington were all submerged by the heavy hitting Orange and Black nine.

A number of individual records were established by the Bulkeley nine and with the returning of ten veterans of last seasons team, it looks as though the Bulkeley team will once again dominate the baseball field in the state and out. An attractive schedule which will be announced shortly after the first of the year by Manager Merle Harris. The captain for this year's nine is Tillie Daniels, clever mound artist. William R. Canty who has such wonderful success coaching the football team will hold the coaching reigns of the baseball nine.

Football

Bulkeley recently closed its most successful football campaign ever recorded on the school's books. With William R. Canty assuming the coaching responsibilities, Bulkeley with Captain George Sheflott, cleaned up some of the best teams in the state and out. Only one defeat is charged against the Orange and Black, and that defeat at the hands of New Britain High. Among those teams to be defeated were Springfield Technical high school of Massachusetts, Naugatuck high and Crosby high each fell by the road side as the Bulkeley machine sped on its way towards its coveted goal, the state championship.

Being unscored on and undefeated, Bulkeley found New Britain a stumbling block and lost its only game of the season by a 13 to 0 score. However many sporting critics rank Bulkeley in a class with New Britain because of the overwhelming victories over Crosby and Naugatuck. Other leading teams in the state were held to tie scores, while the contest with Stamford high was called off because of rain, although the Bulkeley team was ready to take the field against the Lock City eleven. The Western A. C. recognized city champions in the professional field, were held to a tie score.

The only contest with teams in this section of the state was with Norwich Free Academy and that traditional rival was submerged under the score of 34 to 0. It is the only game with which the strength of the Bulkeley team can be truly shown in this section of the state. Bulkeley was easily the best team in the state as many of the leading sport writers will attest by their articles on the state championship.

Other Sports

Basketball was abolished during the past season but once again it has been established this year as a major sport. Track activities were also extinct, but as basketball is being adopted as a major sport, so will track be once more established to a firm basis. The first indication of track being revived was the cross country run which was held at Stonington in November with Stonington high. Bukleley was defeated, but a better season is expected to be theirs in time.

WINDHAM HIGH

ENW YEARS SPORT

The fall of 1924 saw Windham mow down opposition on the gridiron and wade through its schedule winning all of the regularly scheduled games in handy manner. The team, dispite the loss of few of the preceeding year's champions displayed the best brand of football ever seen in this section of the state. Winning continously is no small task. The Windham team had its real "off" days and yet proved ahead of its opponents and on other "on" occasions showed a rythme and grace, that could not be denied. A backfield averaging 142 pounds, all of whom possessed real speed, football sense, could pick out opponents in real collegiate manner rode, through a highly successful season, scoring 244 points. The Windham line although averaging about 150, displayed real knowledge of line play and out-weighed in practically all occasions never was outplayed.

Windham wound up its season with a post-season trip up in the Berkshires meeting the strong Drury High School team of North Adams, Mass. Champions of Western Mass.

The Drury team defeated the Windham in their post season game in a veritable sea of mud and a driving rain. The game was anybody's game all the way and no team displayed the type of football it was capable of showing. The final score 6-0 shows Windham the loser, the first time a Windham football team had tasted defeat in the past two years of play and the first defeat in football in the last nineteen games played in the sport.

Under Coach T. A. Callaghan theletics have been on a decided upgrade and besides producing a winner in the various sports, has turned out the type of High School athlete that the townspeople like to follow through in the various fields of activity they enter and watching always for the dropping out of qualities brought out in true competition that are always assets to the person as well as the community. Windham's 1924 Football record follows:

W. H. S.	58—Killingly	0
W. H. S.	39—Weaver	0

W. H. S.	26—Bristol	10
W. H. S.	14—Manchester	0
W. H. S.	0—Drury H. S.	6

Windham in the 1923 football season had the best record of any team in the history of the school. Going through a schedule of eight games, half on foreign fields, Windham hung up an impressive record, being undefeated and held to a tie once. In most cases, teams that had in previous years had little trouble defeating Windham were defeated and quite decisively. The total score 225 against 25 is believed a record for Connecticut schools in 1923. The team produced several star players, but attributed its chief success to real team work, development of interference. The passing game was stressed, proving the real scoring force.

Baseball

Season of 1924 not very successful. Windham won four; lost six of ten games played. The team displayed a good brand of baseball in the field, but failed to hit as consistently as their opponents.

The 1923 season of sport at Windham, the first season under the coaching of Thomas Callaghan, formerly of Colby College, was in many respects the most successful in the annals of the school. The interest in all sports ranked with the best in the state and of the thirty-six athletic contests engaged in, emerged a winner twenty-six times. Some of the best athletes ever to attend the local school came into their own in the various sports and bid fair to make credible records in college athletics in the few years to come, among whom were "Pug" Storrs, "Tom" Meikle, "Dud" Burr, "Sinn" Simonds, "Wat" Burton, "Jack" Nickols, "Red" DiMarchi, "Don" Prater.

In a schedule of 17 games, the Windham High School basketball won thirteen. The four games lost, two to Manchester, one to Killingly, one to Chapman Tech were lost by a combined margin of twelve points, failing to show a marked superiority in any case. The Windham team was picked as an alternate to the Yale Tournament for Class A high schools of Connecticut.

WESTERLY HIGH

Westerly High had one of the best years in baseball under the able tutorage of Joe Sherman, the old Massachusetts State College and big league star. Fourteen games were won and only one lost and that to Chapman Tech. The Rhode Island boys won the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island scholastic championship. Joe Smith, the star twirler, who this fall has been playing end on the Providence College football team, was very conspicuous in the long string of victories. Members of the winning team together with Manager Charles Butler, were awarded gold baseballs. The record:

Track.

Under Coach Mason the Westerly High school track and cross-country teams had a very satisfactory season. At the Rhode Island State College scholastic meet, Westerly won the meet for Class B schools and in the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island interscholastics held at New London they finished a close second to Chapman Tech. The cross-country team finished in second place at the annual meet between the four schools of the league held at Stonington on Armistice Day. The broad-jumping of Harvey Merkle was a feature of the season's work, this star jumping better than the marks made at several college meets during the season.

Football.

Westerly High in football, under the coaching of Dwight Rogers, had a very successful season, finishing a close second in the interscholastic league race. Coach Rogers had one of the largest squads in the history of the school and played a hard schedule which resulted in many injuries to star members of the team. The team was successful in beating the league leaders, Chapman Tech, by a score of 12-0 and gained a 13-0 victory over their ancient rivals at Stonington, in six years of coaching Coach Rogers' teams have won 42, tied 9, and lost 11 games with a school registration much less than most of their rivals. Basketball.

The game has not been played for several years in Westerly High until this year. At the close of the football season a hall was secured and practice started under Coach Snow, a graduate of Colby College, who is an instructor at the school. It is probable that class games will be the principal contests season, although outside games may be secured for the varsity team. It is hoped that basketball will take its place among the school sports so that Westerly may be soon on the map in this popular winter branch of athletics.

The high school girls are also playing basketball having used the outdoor courts during the fall and using the hall this winter.

CHAPMAN TECH

Chapman Tech by its decisive victories in the elimination tourney at Storrs college won the recognized Eastern Connecticut championship in basketball. In fact the 1923-24 basketball campaign was the most successful ever enjoyed by a Red and Black court team. Twenty-seven games were played during the season and of this number, 21 games were won and 6 lost.

The Storrs college annual basketball tourney is one means of distinguishing a team's merits on the basketball court. Outside of the tournament, Chapman Tech met Killingly, Plainfield, Pratt, Fort Wright, Stonington and other teams in this section of the state. Killingly did not enter the Storrs tourney, but in contests outside of this league scored two victories at the expense of the Red and Black. If a real winner in basketball is desired, then Killingly must be given the distinction of being the master of Chapman Tech.

Baseball

The word success was temporarily side-tracked with the taking up of baseball by the Chapman Tech school. The season was poor not a single victory being made that really could be called a victory. With the exception of the game won from Westerly High by the score of 7 to 6, almost every other team on the schedule set back Tech.

Eight games were lost by Chapman Tech, and five won. Of this number, Norwich Free Academy gained a two game victory. Plainfield high two games, while Stonington, Windham sent Chapman Tech down to a one game defeat. The season throughout was a dismal failure, and seems to be the one poor sport of the four major attractions for which Chapman Tech goes in annually.

Football

Chapman Tech's football efforts were equally as successful as the basketball team. Winning the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic title with a standing of five victories and one defeat, Tech's nearest rival was Westerly High. Westerly really lost the title to the Red and Black team, when Norwich Free Academy tied the Rhode Islanders at their home grounds, Chapman Tech lost one game to Westerly and one game to Windham High.

The two defeats, Windham and Westerly inflicted upon the locals were the only set backs of the season, which ended in six victories in high school competition, two defeats in that same class and a defeat at the hands of the Western A. C. It repeated the successes of the Tech football team which were interrupted when Westerly High broke through for a league victory last season. Windham High was the first team to mar Tech's record, scoring a 40 to 0 win over the Whaler's.

RIVERVIEW CLUB HAS PREMIER BALL TEAM IN THE EASTERN PART OF STATE

Plays Strong Schedule and Wins 22 Out of 29 Games During Season—Three Players Answer Call of Organized Baseball Early in Season—One Other Has Tryout But Reports Back to Club—Record Game Played Late in Season.

The Riverview club of the Norwich State Hospital enjoyed a very successful season, winning 22 out of 29 games. This club has supported one of the fastest semi-pro clubs in this state for the past several seasons.

At the opening of the 1924 season, Manager Bill Donovan was without the services of several of his former stars. West, the burly portside hurler had answered the call of organized ball, together with Shortstop Faber and Thirdbaseman Sank. The recent sale of Lefty Groves has left the door of fame wide open to West, who with Jenkins former Georgetown star, are the only two southpaw twirlers on the Oriole staff. Gaber is also with the Orioles and is patiently waiting the departure of Boley to Brooklyn, New York or Joe isn't at all fussy just where. Sank closed the season in the Blue Ridge League with a fine batting average of .310.

Harry Mills also left for Hanover in the Blue Ridge League. He played right field in the opening game against Frederick, clouted out a two base hit, jumped a Pullman and climbed right back into a Riverview uniform and played a sterring brand of ball at third base during the entire season. Jack McCarthy, the pitching sensation of the 1923 team, was engaged to twirl for the Riverview club and after winning his opening game against the St. Stanislau of Meriden, he too got the big league fever and joined the Hanover club of the Blue Ridge League. Mac proved a failure and was batted out of the league, started skidding and the brakes didn't hold until he landed in far off St. Johns, New Brunswick.

Well Bill Donovan decided that the only thing to do was to trot out Zemke the battle scarred hero of many a diamond conflict, and he with Joe Rejoir on the receiving end of the battery did a neat job on the American Thread Co. of Willimantic in the second game of the season.

The infield remained intact during the entire season with Couillard at first, Burns at the second hassock, Moore at short and the veteran Mills at third. Many a neat and flashy play has been pulled by this infield with Burns as the pivot. The outfield was taken care of by Harrell in left, Noel in center and Allard in right. The pitching staff was bolstered up when the opposition warranted and Posnick, Davis and Rey were added to the staff.

The most important and exciting series on the Riverview schedule was with the U. S. Submarine Base of New London. This outfit has defeated Boston college, Georgetown and other fast nines only to be defeated by the Riverview club in four out of five starts. The one game that the gobs have to their credit was always a questionable one, and ended with a close decision over the legality of a squeeze play. But what is a ball game when a sailor meets a friend. The following is the complete schedule with scores:

The baseball games at the local institution are enjoyed each week by several male and female patients, many of whom understand the finer points of the game. They are escorted to and from the athletic field by a trained corps of nurses and attendants. A new grandstand was completed this spring for their accomodation.

Academy Has Mediocre Year In Athletics

The athletics at the Norwich Free Academy showed a marked betterment over the preceding year but were not up to the high standard maintained by the local high school several years ago. The Academy which at one time ranked far above the other high schools in the eastern part of the state has been forced to eat humble pie at the hands of smaller high schools in the vicinity. Neither the baseball record nor the football record were impressive.

Just where the trouble was is not known but there was a decided lack of enthusiasm among the student body although there was a $3,000 incentive at stake offered by an alumnus of the Academy.

Baseball.

The baseball season under Coach Earl Brigham was the best experienced in several years. Although handicapped by a lack of pitching material Coach Brigham rounded out a team that made a fair showing in the Eastern Connecticut Scholastic league, but was not so much when it came to teams outside the league. The local team stood second in the race for the pennant being beaten out at the last minute in an extra inning game by Westerly High. The prospects are bright for the coming year as there is plenty of material in the school which entered with the freshman class.

Football.

Under Coach W. C. Aitken the football team showed marked improvement over the preceeding year but the results of the season were far from impressive. This can be attributed largely to psychological reasons. There was plenty of good material individually but there was a lack of co-ordination. Individually the team was the best in a number of years but for some reason it failed to produce the expected results. Captain Johnny Haskins was rated one of the best centers in the eastern part of the state, while in the line Marty Gilman, Charlie Haggerty, Perry Hollender and Carlin performed well. Jack Hinrichs in the backfield was by far the outstanding star of the season and ranked well with the leading fullbacks of the season. Hinrichs defensive play and his running attack marked him as a star but he was practically alone in the backfield getting little or no assistance from the other three backs. Jimmy Williams at quarterback ran the team in only mediocre style and at times showed a woeful lack of football intelligence. However Williams has been elected captain of the 1925 team and will probably be seen in the quarterback position next season.

There were no track activities in the school during the year and the cinder track at the school has grown up to weeds.

Baseball Had Fairly Good Year In County

Baseball in Eastern Connecticut had what might be termed a fairly prosperous year considering that no teams lost money and a few ended the season with the ledger showing a meager profit. In the city proper the Duwell A. A. was the only organization to attempt semi-professional ball. While this club did not actually lose money on the venture it was found to be a labor of love and was abandoned in midseason.

The Duwell club had a strong team and played exceptionally good baseball on the new diamond which the club built on the East Side. No small amount of labor was put in on this athletic field by the public spirited citizens of the East Side for which great credit should be given them. Jimmy Pedace booked some fast teams and there was every prospect of a wonderful season but as the season progressed the patronage fell off until it was deemed advisable to call off operations before the book showed a loss.

Taftville, under Tracy Clark's management, and the J. B. Martin team, under Manager Erlbeck had successful seasons and the treasuries of both clubs showed a balance at the end of the season.

Moosup, under Henry H. Loughran went deep into the mire at the beginning of the season but toward the latter part of the year patronage picked up and the books showed a good profit at the close of the season which ran into November, the latest of any year. Moosup had a wonderful team but it cannot be given first place in the Eastern Connecticut standing as it was composed practically of the Riverview team that moved to Moosup on Sunday.

Jewett City and Plainfield, in past years strongholds of baseball did little with the national pastime during the year. New London had several semi-pro teams that played intermittently with mediocre success but can not be considered in a choice for baseball supremacy.

Basketball

Basketball in Eastern Connecticut was put on the map by the Army-Navy team of Taftville under the management of Johnny Murphy. This team played a stiff schedule and won consistently both at home and abroad.

Several junior teams in Baltic, Jewett City, Plainfield, Danielson and Putnam had successful seasons. Willimantic usually a thriving basketball town did not do much on the chalked court during the 1923-24 season, due largely to the unsettled conditions. New London had its city and industrial leagues but no real contender for basketball honors.

Bowling Becoming Popular In Eastern Connecticut

Bowling is being more and more taken up as a winter indoor sport and its popularity is steadily increasing, due largely to Chip Dugas, Roy Fillmore and Frankie Barber, the three premier bowlers of the eastern part of the state. Through the efforts of these three bowling enthusiasts an Eastern Connecticut bowling championship tourney was held early in 1924 with the result that Chip Dugas of Taftville took the Eastern Connecticut bowling title from Frankie Barber, who had held it for a number of years.

The interest in this tournament ran high and bowling held the limelight until the end of the season. With the opening of the fall season, alley owners in Eastern Connecticut met and formed the Eastern Connecticut Bowling Association with Fred Dugas, president; James E. Fillmore, vice president, and Myles Standish, secretary and treasurer.

The association set about creating a five-man team league with the result that seven teams were entered. Peerless of New London, Lawrence of New London, Aetna of Norwich, Palace of Norwich, Taftville, Moosup and Willimantic, the latter dropping out after the first round of the schedule. The league is still in progress but will be brought to a close the latter part of January.

After the close of the league the association contemplates a two-man tournament and to wind up the season will hold the annual individual championships.

Tiger Flowers, negro conqueror of the former middleweight champion, Johnny Wilson, will have another test on New Year's afternoon in Brooklyn when he meets Joe Lohman of Toledo in a ten-round contest. Boxing followers regard the negro's draw with Frankie Schoell of Buffalo Friday night in a six-round bout as rather an unimpressive showing for a man who looms as a contender for the title.

Walter Stuart Nuthall, of London, prominent in English tennis circles for years and for a time honorary secretary of the Chiswick Park Club, died recently after an operation for "tennis elbow". His daughter, Betty, is the present girl champion of Great Britain as the result of her father's instruction.

HOOVER SAYS WORLD IS ON MORE SOLID FOUNDATION TO FACE 1925

Real Advance Has Been Made In Social, Political and Economic Stability—Sees Forces In Motion That Bring Great Promise for the Forthcoming Year—Reviews Situation and Outlook In United States and In International Relations.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, Dec. 31—Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce in response to many requests for a statement upon the economic prospects of the new year, stated today:

A forecast of the business future must be simply a weighting of the economic and political forces in motion. The annual survey of the department of commerce shows that the new year begins with the economic structure of the world upon more solid foundations than at any time since the war. With the exception of a few spots of secondary importance there has been during the past year a real advance toward social, economic, and political stability throughout the world. The only exceptions are Russia and China, which even before the war contributed less than 3 1-3 per cent of international commerce and of course a part of this continues. Generally the world is producing more goods there is fuller employment, there are higher standards of living, more assurance of economic stability for the future and more promise of peace than we have seen for many years. The world is by no means free from liability to economic shock, yet the forces today in motion all tend to great promise for the forthcoming year.

Recovery In Agriculture

In our own country the outstanding economic development of the year has been the very large recovery in agriculture after its two year lag behind the recovery of industry. The farmers have a large measure of losses in the last three years yet to recover, but their outlook is encouraging. There are some secondary difficulties still remaining, particularly in the cattle industry and the effect of the subnormal corn crop; but the prices of all farm products are gradually moving toward the general average of commodity prices. This improvement in prices of farm products has been paralleled with some decrease in the prices of many industrial commodities, such as fuel, building materials, metals, etc., so that there has been little change in the average of all price levels, and thus the farmers' purchasing power is being remedied in both directions.

While there has been a good deal of adjustment in prices of single commodities during the year, the average wholesale price of all commodities has varied but 3 per cent as between the ends of the years 1922, 1923 and 1924. It would thus appear that we are tending to the common level in prices of about 50 per cent. over prewar, which seems to represent at least our present economic plane in prices.

Labor's Highest Real Wage

The average wage in industry has been stable during the last year, and remains around 100 per cent above prewar, while the cost of living has maintained almost exactly the same level at the end of each of the last three years, 1922, 1923, and 1924, about 73 per cent over prewar. Our labor, therefore, continues to enjoy the highest real wage in its history. There was some unemployment in the middle of the year but it has now been largely overcome.

While there was some slackening of manufacturing production as a whole in the spring due in part to the uncertainties of election and in part to reduction of accumulated stocks, yet there was but little slackening at any time in consumption of major articles as shown by the continued high levels of car loadings, of sales of wholesale and retail establishments and of construction activities. The end of the year finds us with a recovered industrial production at practically the same levels as a year ago.

Textiles Will Improve

Two industries—textiles and northern soft coal—have lagged in recovery. The textiles are suffering in part from sharp competition of foreign imports, and in part from shift in national habits. An improvement may be looked for in the forthcoming year. The condition of the bituminous coal industry in the northern states is unsatisfactory owing to the unusually large stocks accumulated early in the year as a safeguard against possible strikes; to decrease in industrial consumption during the middle of the year; and to the increased proportional production of the southern states due to lower wage levels. The difficulties in this industry created by strike stocks and mid year dip in industrial activity should soon be overcome.

Building Continues Active

The construction work of the country has maintained high activity. While the shortage, particularly of housing and business buildings, due to the cessation of construction during the war, has been to a large degree overcome, yet continued high real wages and general prosperity create a demand in excess of that due only to increasing population, because of the insistance of a population of rising standards of living, for more elbow room and better housing generally. One striking factor in maintenance of increased construction activities is the effect which the automobile is producing in increasing the demand for road construction and in causing migration of population in many of our towns to new housing in the suburbs. Another effect of these forces is to maintain rents out of line above the general price levels. With our high real wages and little unemployment there is no reason to expect any material change in the course of this industry.

Railroads More Efficient

Our railroads have shown continued increase in efficiency during the year, and have now proved themselves equal to any burden which is likely to be thrown upon them. Motor transportation continues to develop and to enter more and more into the vital economic life of the country—in fact, almost imperceptibly our road improvement programs are taking on the complexion of new transportation systems.

Our foreign trade has shown considerable expansion during the year in exports, and some decrease in imports. The increase in export figures has been due in some degree to the higher prices of agricultural produce, though chiefly to general expansion in our exports; the decrease in imports has been due in large part to lessening activity in production lines at the middle of the year, thus reducing the requirements for imports of raw material. The total of our exports for the year will show about four billion six hundred millions and our imports about three billion six hundred millions. The merchandise balance will be about one billion dollars in our favor. The net gold imports for the year in partial liquidation of this balance amounts to about two hundred eighty millions. Our invisible exchange will show larger balance against us than in 1923 because of the greater volume of tourist travel, increased freight charges paid foreign shipping, and above all the largely increased volume of loans and investments to foreign lands, which will probably amount to as much as one billion as against one-third of that amount for 1923.

International Trade

International trade in the world as a whole shows a larger movement of commodities during the past year than at any time since before the war. But international exchange of goods, measured in quantities, is probably still 10 or 12 per cent below pre-war, although the United States is unique amongst the large combatant nations in having recovered its foreign trade to a point 15 per cent to 20 per cent above pre-war on a quantity basis. One of the by-products hitherto of this lower movement of commodities has been the continued depression of shipping. With the general strengthening of the economic fabric of the world, with the gradual growth in the movement of commodities which is now taking place, together with the fact that there has been but little new ship construction during the last four years, and that the existing shipping is becoming more and more obsolete, it is fair to expect a recovery in the shipping world. The usable surplus tonnage at the present time in the world is probably not in excess of two million tons as against four million tons a year ago.

The year has again been marked by a decrease in federal taxation and by a large discharge of federal debt, which will amount for the year to something in excess of $900,000,000.

Bank Clearings Gain

Time and demand deposits in member banks show an increase of about two billion eight hundred millions, and bank clearings for the year were higher than in 1923. The gold reserves have not increased despite imports because of the larger circulation given to gold certificates. Savings continue at a very high rate, as indicated by the increasing savings deposits, the large absorption of bond issues, and the extraordinary expansion in insurances, thus demonstrating that there has been maintained a high state of efficiency throughout industry and commerce, with little evidence of waste, extravagance and speculation. In fact, the most far reaching movement in our economic life today is the larger understanding of its broad problems, the better appreciation of the factors of stability, and the definite progress in the elimination of waste, through more stable employment, through better administrative methods and through the rapid march of scientific discovery. That we are able to maintain wages at 100 per cent above per war while the cost of living is 72 per cent, and the average wholesale price of commodities about 50 per cent above pre war is the very definite proof of increasing efficiency in production and distribution and of the free flow of competitive action.

In the foreign situation the settlement of the conflict over German reparations through the Dawes plan, with its stabilization of German currency and the German budget and the recuperation of employment and production in Germany, is having and will have a far reaching effect upon the whole of Europe, and it has favorable influences reaching to our shores. Great Britain shows considerable improvement in all phases of its economic life.

Situation Improves Abroad

The commercial and industrial situation in France, Italy, and Belgium shows steady improvement during the year. Some progress is being attained in these countries towards reduction of expenditure and increased taxation, directed towards the better balancing of budgets and more stable currency. Poland has stabilized her currency. Jugoslavia, Finland, Serbia, Esthonia, Lithuania, Sweden, and Norway show manifest stability in economic and trade conditions and steady progress over preceding years. The Netherlands, Denmark and Spain show some temporary depression during the year due to local conditions which are improving. Austria, Roumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Turkey do not show the rate of progress of some of the others. Russia makes no real advance. A large part of Europe, however, continues dangerously overarmed and currencies are not yet upon that foundation of stability which will only be reached when placed upon a gold basis.

The year has been one of steadily increasing prosperity for the whole of Latin America despite three revolutions. Our sales of export goods to this territory show an increase over the previous year of about 12 per cent. We now enjoy the highest trade with them in our history.

The conditions in Egypt, South Africa, Congo and other parts of that continent show steady improvement, with increased productivity and trade. In Asia, the situation in Japan marks the courageous upbuilding from the earthquake disaster. China is much depressed by continued civil war. Conditions in India, in the middle East, have shown a steady economic improvement and subsiding of political and social agitation.

No Fear of Inflation Period.

It has been suggested in some press quarters at home and abroad that the result of these favorable factors may be leading our country towards a period of inflation of the character of 1919-20 with its disaster of 1921. It can be assuredly stated that we are on the march of wholesome recovery from the war and there is no present indication of inflation. We only secure inflation when undue expansion of credit finds its outlet in bidding up prices after the plant and labor capacity of the country is employed to the maximum. We have reached no such stage because there is still a margin of labor capacity for enlarged output in the form, however of more full time employment than people out of work. At a nation our business men, bankers and public officials have gained enormously during the past four years in understanding of the basic factors which create healthy prosperity as distinguished from over expension as well as in understanding of their responsibilities in the matter. Our informational services are now upon such basis as quickly detect dangerous currents. It might be added that a holiday season when anyone might think about safeguards from overexpansion is infinitely more comfortable than one fraught with negative problems of repair of economic depression.

Altogether forces in motion both at home and abroad mark solid progress toward prosperity for the coming year.

Agriculturalists Have Aid Through Farm Bureau

about five books will be completed by them.

A tour was held during the summer for the Young Farmers' club and several young men invited from outside of the cub in North Stonington. There were 17 on the tour altogether.

The marketing has been confined to cooperative buying this year, although some assistance has been given in lining a few members up for the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers' association.

There were three pools in the county. A fertilizer pool, an insecticide pool and a seed pool. The two last mentioned have been spoken of under the fruit and crops project respectively.

The fertilizer pool was organized at a meeting of the exchange officers and managers at the farm bureau office. About 1100 tons of chemicals and mixed goods were ordered. It is certain that many hundreds of dollars were saved by ordering in this way. The men who were in the pool are looking forward to buying for another year. In towns where no exchange operated local order takers were appointed and their order given to the county buyer.

Summary

The extension work in New London county this year has been largely dairy work in the form of a pure bred sire campaign. One hundred and twenty-three bulls have been placed since the work started. Eighty-two were placed between December, 1923, and November 30, 1924.

One week of intensive campaign was done with the help of breed association men.

A list of purchasers is being kept at the farm bureau office for future follow up work.

The crops work has been largely encouraging the growing of more legume hay and using more lime on our dairy farms. This has been done by demonstrations on strains of seed and time, versus no lime, comparisons. The use of certified seed potatoes has been encouraged. There being 13 1-2 car loads of certified seed brought into the county by dealers or exchanges.

The horticulture work has been the increasing use of nitrate of soda by farmers having small apple orchards, there being seventeen of such demonstrations.

Nine orchard demonstrations were carried through this year. These were demonstrations of general orchard management which included pruning, spraying and fertilization.

The vegetable work was largely done by the specialist from Storrs. There were ten demonstrations in this work.

The poultry work consisted of quarterly meetings in four different communities about the county. This took the place of the poultry clubs which were started.

Agricultural economics is a project which should receive more attention but is very hard to get across to the farmers in an interesting way. It has been confined to placing farm account books and organizing buying pools.

Reseating Chairs—Last year's subject report showed 271 chairs reseated by the nine groups which worked on this project. This year's report follows:

Number of groups 9; number chairs in class 258; cost $112.26; value $541.00; number chairs since class 167.

Splint, cane, rush and reed seats are put in to chairs needing seats and the women having once learned the different methods keep on using the knowledge as they have occasion to reseat a chair.

One woman in a group I had two years ago, has been assisting with group this summer and another is teaching the cane seating along with a class she is having in basketry.

North Stonington reports seventy chairs reseated since the class was held there.

Rug Weaving—The groups planned over a year ago for work in rug weaving are still waiting for the use of the loom which has been kept busy in other counties of the state and not available for this county.

—Waterford group made with their two looms 277 rugs, one and one half to two yards long and 30 inches wide. These sold for $2.00 to $2.50 each, making an income of $623.25.

The North Stonington group made 89 rugs, 54 inches long and 27 inches wide. One woman made eighteen rugs which she made into an art-square and another woman made stair carpet about five yards long. Another woman bought a small loom for herself and she had made ten rugs and sold eight of these for $2.50 each.

Kitchen Planning—Nine women are working on this project. In most cases the greatest need is rearrangement of working surfaces that the processes followed in meal preparation may progress logically from storage to dining room, and with the clearing away, from dining room to dish cupboard, without unnecessary criss-crossing or retracing of steps.

Where sinks have been installed, pains has been taken in placing them at a comfortable height for the worker.

Small Equipment and Labor Savers—Reports have been received of the following small equipment in use this year in the county.

1 Hand Washing Machine.
4 Kitchen sinks (1 an old one moved and raised).
3 Power Vacuum Cleaners.
5 Auto Vacuum Ice Cream Freezers.
2 Dilvers.
9 Canners.
33 Fireless Cookers.
7 Stainless Steel Knives.
2 Knife Sharpeners.

The above equipment speaks for itself. There is probably as much more which has not been reported.

The Fireless Cookers are the home-made variety. These were made by groups at and following two demonstrations given. Tubs, boxes and old trunks were used for the outside containers. Excelsior, ground cork, paper, etc., used for packing. Asbestos paper for the well, while regular aluminum kettles made for fireless cookers were purchased for the cooking dish. These were two, four, six and eight quart sizes according to size of family for which the cooker was to be used.

Some of the cookers were equipped with one stone and some with two. I have heard from members of the group since the demonstration and all cookers are working and proving satisfactory.

Reed Work—No plans were made for this project but having groups which had been asking for it for the past two years, who also knew it was being given in other parts of the state, it finally seemed necessary to do something about it here. So work was started with two groups. These groups are large. Communities which never had more than twelve women out at once before are turning out twenty-four to six at each meeting.

One group which met four evenings with an attendance of 102 made 97 articles during that time. The groups are now working together, helping each other. One woman in the group has written out directions for all the baskets made and they are ordering their supplies together to save expense.

Another group after one meeting are taking care of themselves. One of the women in the group had had some basketry but did not feel confident to handle a group. Since it is started she has assumed leadership. They have a treasurer who handles all funds for supplies and sees that materials are kept on hand.

Upholstery—In three communities there were requests for this project and through the specialist's assistance given, nineteen pieces of furniture have been recovered or repaired. In some instances it was a case of repairing springs rather than recovering. This is a minor project, but something that is in many communities though usually as an individual project. If a woman can recover upholstered furniture, she can save a good many dollars on each piece.

Account Books—Five people who had used the household account books previous years obtained them again this year through the county office.

Junior Clubs

The interest in junior work is growing as evidenced by requests for more clubs this fall.

Clubs were continued through this year in Lebanon, Wequetequock, Baltic and Voluntown. Two health clubs and one nutrition clubs did not run through the year.

The Junior Short Course held at the State college for a week each summer is one of the things that most of the club girls look forward to and plan for. The Wequetequock girls earned their money to go through a supper and sale. The Voluntown club which had no members who had been to short course and knew very little about it, were taken up for one day through the efforts of the leader, friends and parents. They had a wonderful day and now many of them are looking forward to going next year.

One girl who went from North Plains, who had not been a club member, came back so interested that through her a club has been formed in her community.

One of the members of the Wequetequock Club has also been influential in organizing a new club in Pawcatuck. And through a girl in Hanover who has been to Short Course two years, a club has been formed in that community.

Miscellaneous

Improvement Home Grounds—The thirty-nine homes which took up this project three years ago are in many cases still carrying out the plans made by Mrs. Ellis, landscape specialist. A few have reported completion of planting as suggested by the plan. Some of these places should afford good pictures in another year. These compared with those taken before any planting was done should prove effective in getting the subject across to other people.

JUNIOR DAIRY GROUP ON JUDGING TRIP THROUGH NEW HAVEN COUNTY

THE LIARS' CLUB OF NORWICH, OF ABOUT 30 YEARS AGO, ON AN OUTING AT MYSTIC ISLAND

WHEN NORWICH LOVERS OF TRACK MET IN INFORMAL SOCIAL ORGANIZATION

The group pictured herewith brings to mind an informal organization of Norwich men of approximately thirty years ago, largely kindred spirits of the turf and track, who styled their impromptu association the Liars' Club and had their picture taken on an outing they took to Mystic Island in the early days of that once well known and popular resort.

Out of the group of twenty well known men of that day, only two are still living, S. Ashbel Crandall, a former mayor and attorney of this city, and A. M. Etheridge, the well known driver and horseman. The former has for a number of years been an inmate at the Masonic home at Wallingford and the latter resides at Massapeag, where his home has been for the last twentythree or four years. The latest of the group to pass away was Oscar O. Palmer, long known as the most expert horseshoer and blacksmith in the county, whose death occurred in this city on Oct. 26, 1924.

John C. Monroe, a blacksmith with a shop at the foot of Falls avenue.

Oscar O. Palmer, whose horseshoing and blacksmith shop was on Chestnut street.

Irving Harvey, who will be remembered as running a bottling works at 178 Franklin street at the corner of Harvey Lane.

The next man has not been definitely identified, although it is thought his name may be either Fox or Hall, as Mr. Etheridge says there was a Henry Hall who belonged to the club and should be in the picture, but he cannot identify him in the group.

Alex McNickle, a well known house and sign painter comes next.

The man tipping his hat is Lou Williams (Louis H. Williams) who was in the insurance business with his father on Shetucket street.

Mr. Etheridge comes next and at his left stands Thomas J. Wattles, a well known Norwich Town resident, who loved a good horse and always owned one.

Russell Lewis, a stone mason of Norwich Town.

Gilbert Pierce, who conducted a carriage painting and blacksmith shop on Sherman street at the falls.

Peter McIntyre, a horse trainer living at East Great Plain, who was known to all horse owners in this part of the state.

S. Ashbell Crandall, mayor of the city from 1888 to 1892, and a practicing attorney for a number of years in this city.

Charles McChesney, whose stable site on Bath street is now owned by the city and occupied by the city barn.

William H. Hovey, foreman of the newspaper composing room of the Bulletin for many years.

George W. Phillips, who was superintendent fo the Norwich Electric Light Co., which has since been purchased by the city.

Dwight S. Tweedy, who for a number of years conducted a livery stable on Bath street, is on the extreme right of the row of men seated in the picture.

The two men squatting in front, left to right, are Daniel Lee and Paul B. Greene, the former a newspaperman, the first editor of the Norwich Record and interested in political affairs, and the latter the well known Greeneville auctioneer, a politician and at one time selectman of the town.

Mr. Etheridge, who has been a familiar figure on the Norwich track for a generation, is living quietly and enjoying life at his pleasant home at Massapeag. He has driven on practically every track in New England, has been over the grand circut, and although he has been "over and through the fence" in a score of spills, he has never broken a bone. It was reserved for three years ago for him to receive the most serious injury of his career and since then he has given up track driving.

While working out a horse on the Norwich fair grounds track he was driving alonside another stepper which had the awkward habit of sidestepping every time he broke. As they were coming down the stretch, Mr. Etheridge pushed his horse up to pass the other and just as they got level the other horse broke and plied right over against his sulky. Mr. Etheridge was catapulted off through space, landing in a heap and injuring his back so that he was paralyzed temporarily and could not get up. Since then he has practically recovered, but his back has never regained its former strength and he has retired from track driving.

During his long career on the track he has seen some of the greatest advances made in the speed classes. When he began driving a 2.30 trotter or pacer was ranked among the top notchers. Now a 2.30 horse isn't worth his oats on the track and unless a trotter or pacer is at least in the 2.10 class he can't pay his expenses on the track.

At one time Mr. Etheridge kept the old Union Square Hotel on Broadway, the location occupied by the former Y. M. C. A. building. He sold out the hotel business to Henry Gray about twenty five years ago, then he purchased the Nate Bingham stable at the Falls. From there he moved to a stable on Bath street and conducted this until he sold out the business.

NORWICH TALKED OF G. & E. DEPT. IN 1924--WHAT WILL BE DONE IN 1925?

Among the activities of the year 1924, in Norwich, nothing is of greater importance to the general public than the proposals made to the city in connection with the Gas and Electrical property. These have all been carefully and fully reported and commented upon by the Norwich Bulletin, but, just at this time, when the voters are apon likely to be called upon to take definite action with relation to a matter of such vital importance, it seems proper to review, as briefly as possible, the entire discussion and to consider the effect upon the people of Norwich of the acceptance of the various proposals.

Any intelligent discussion of this subject must naturally center around the question, "Is Municipal Ownership a Success So Far as Norwich is Concerned," and on this question there is quite a divergence of opinion, in spite of the fact that the entire story of the results of municipal ownership upon both the city and the individual consumer of gas and electricity is available.

If one attempts to go into all the details the story is very much involved, but there are certain outstanding facts that have appeared in the columns of this paper at various times, during the discussions, that offer very conclusive proof that the operations of the municipal property have not been a success. If we compare the results obtained with the rosy promises of what its operation was to accomplish, and if we measure success either by service secured, or pecuniary results, for it is a fact, established beyond contradiction, that so far as the city is concerned it has received not one penny of revenue as a result of the ownership of the Gas and Electrical Department.

It is also true, but on this subject there is more or less difference of opinion, that the rates in Norwich, for gas and electric service, have not been below the average of rates charged by privately owned light and power companies, and that they probably have not been lower than the rates that would have been paid by the customers had the former owners of the property continued in possession and operation of the property.

While, as stated, there is a difference of opinion in regard to this matter, the Bulletin has always contended that rates were higher than they should be, and the detailed report prepared by Martin E. Jensen and made public just after the meeting of the special committee, held on June 9th 1924, disclosed the fact that out of $185,713,973 of additions and betterments to the gas and electric plant, during the 19 years and 10 months of ownership, to April 30th, 1924, only $1,000 was paid for out of capital account; that is, secured through borrowing. The balance of $854,713.97 was paid out of earnings.

In other words, that amount of money (over $850,000) was taken from the gas and electric consumers and practically all of it in excess of what was necessary for them to contribute to cover the operating expenses of the property.

The story of the gross and net earnings for the years 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922 and 1923 (appearing in that same report) the most prosperous years of the department—prosperous partly because of exceptionally good management and partly because of the general improvement in all industries of this character—discloses very clearly the fact that had the property been operated strictly under the terms of the law there could have been, and there should have been, a very marked decrease in the rates charged for service, but no reduction was made in rates until after the agitation resulting from the first of the proposals under consideration.

What have been the earnings of the department? According to Mr. Jensen's statement the total profits for the first fifteen years were $160,343.04. The same report sets a valuation on the plant of $1,286,764, and as a profit of 8 per cent. is the recognized allowed profit sanctioned by the public utilities commission, the allowable earnings at that rate on such a valuation would be $102,839.13 annually. During the last five years the profits have been shown as follows:

	Net Profit	Amount Over 8 pc.
17th year	$ 51,095.98
18th year	$132,080.57	$ 29,241.45
19th year	$152,028.26	$ 49,189.14
20th year	$151,268.88	$ 48,429.26
Totals	$528,858.94	$146,859.85

It is this difference of $146,859.85, along with the profits that have been absorbed in extensions and betterments that has come out of the pockets of the public instead of being applied to a reduction of rates.

It would seem then that the answer to the question "Is Municipal Ownership a Success," if answered by the CITY, would be "No," for up to this time all that the possession of the property has accomplished has been to increase the city debt $953,000, and the only claim that has been made by the most optimistic municipal ownership enthusiast is that the city has lighted its streets for less money than other cities of the same size, but no evidence has been submitted to prove that this statement was true, for while costs of service have been quoted, no comparison of quality or quantity of service rendered was given consideration. A definite loss, which is absolutely undisputed, is the taxes that would have been paid by the former owners during this twenty year period. That loss is not easily determined, but it certainly represents a very substantial amount.

Difficult it may be said, but not impossible to arrive at an approximation of what the city has lost in taxes in the time during which the municipality has owned and operated the gas and electric plant, which is tax free.

The old Norwich Gas & Electric Company had the property in the grand list in 1903 at $300,350. In 1913 the city-owned plant went into the list at $1,250,000. In 1917 it was continued at the same figure but in 1921 it was changed to $1,177,340.

Assuming that the property had continued under private ownership for the 20 year period and had gone into the list at the same figures and at the same times as quoted above, what taxes would have been paid in that time?

Under the valuation of $300,350 for ten years the city taxes would have been as follows, the rate being shown in mills:

Year	Rate	Tax
1904	9	$2,703.15
1905	11½	3,454.03
1906	13	3,904.55
1907	11	3,303.85
1908	10	3,003.50
1909	10	3,003.50
1910	9	2,703.15
1911	11	3,303.85
1912	12	3,604.20
1913	10¾	3,228.76
Total		$32,212.54

Under the valuation of $1,250,000 for eight years the following would have been the taxes:

Year	Rate	Tax
1914	11	$13,750.00
1915	12¾	14,687.50
1916	11½	14,376.00
1917	13	16,250.00
1918	15¾	19,687.50
1919	16½	20,625.00
1920	18¾	23,437.50
1921	23	24,375.00
Total		$147,187.50

Under the valuation of $1,177,340 for two years the taxes would have been as follows:

Year	Rate	Tax
1922	20¾	$24,429.81
1923	25	29,433.50
Total		$53,863.31

The total is $233,263.35 and it is approximately this no inconsiderable amount that has not come into the city treasury because of the municipal ownership of the gas and electric plant.

If this question were to be answered by the CUSTOMERS of the gas and electrical department, their answer should be just as positively "No," for from them has been collected, approximately, $850,000 more than in all human probability would have been collected from them had the property remained a privately owned public utility, for, under the ruling of this state, capital expenditures; that is, betterments and extensions, cannot be set up as a part of operating expense in justification of a rate schedule.

With the offers for the purchase of the property in hand, the CITY AUTHORITIES naturally say "Yes, this municipal ownership has been a success, for this property which cost us only $958,000 we can sell for $1,700,000, $2,500,000 or, even, $3,000,0000," and this cannot be disputed.

Questions and Answers

What produced these offers? Not value of property, for only the lowest offer mentions property value. The offers are made on the strength of earning power.

What effect will the sale have upon the customers who produce earnings?

If the property is retained by the city the reserves and surplus created the customers offer good grounds for a demand for lower rates—

If sold to the low bidder a reduction in rates is promised, and a low capitalization guarantees it—

If sold at a high price the natural result will be a high capitalization, and from the customers must come the revenue that will result in a satisfactory return on investment.

In the consideration of these involved and very important questions Norwich needs the ablest minds at her command, for it is not just a question of the sale of a valuable piece of property, the use of the proceeds to pay our debts and for other needs, and then forget it—

We have got to live with that property and pay its operating expenses, its taxes, and its interest and dividends for all time. But for that, the matter would be very simple.

ACTOR'S INVENTION

The recent death of William Hanlon, the actor, at the age of 87, has a special meaning for the New York Fire Department, says the Scientific American, for it is to this member of the Hanlon brothers (six in number) that we owe the invention of the life net. More than 40 years ago the brothers were doing a "stunt" called "A Leap for Life" when one of the brothers was killed. William Hanlon then devised a rope net to protect himself when he took his brother's place in the act. He showed it to his friend Hugh Bonner, then chief instructor in the New York Fire Department Training School, who at once seized into the idea. The life net in improved form is now carried to every fire in New York as well as in most other places. The old rope net has given way to one of canvas, which remains taut under all conditions and has sufficient slack to act as a harmless break to the fall of the body. The canvas is stretched inside of a steel ring 9 feet in diameter, and is fastened to the ring on 30 steel rods, each connected with a string. This serves to keep the canvas taut and allows the 10 men to jockey the net into position under the falling person.

PRESERVING A TREE

The oldest oak tree in New Jersey if not in the United States, is very expensive to preserve, according to the pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Basking Ridge. In his financial report at the celebration of the 204th anniversary of the founding of the church he said that the tree is 93 feet high and 23 feet in circumference and is 400 years old. It is decaying fast, and during the year three tons of concrete were needed to fill the cavities. Thirty-five cables were required to brace it. The labor, concrete and cables cost $3,893.08.

PORTABLE X-RAY A BOON

Dr. W. D. Coolidge, formerly a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has invented a portable X-Ray machine which will be a boon to rural residents besides being valuable in commercial life. The machine may be carried around like a small hand grip. It will enable plumbers to see pipes hidden in walls, gem buyers to detect fake gems and will enable the country doctor to carry modern curative science into the inland home.

Nearly 25,000 pairs of spectacles were prescribed for London school children last year.

OUR APPRECIATION

To our hundreds of friends who have helped make this the most successful year since our inception, over eighteen years ago, we express our whole-hearted appreciation, recalling with deep gratitude the staunchness of their business friendship.

Back of this appreciation is an institution loyal to your interests, expressing its good-will by earnest co-operation with you. We shall faithfully follow the ideals that have earned your favor in the hope of retaining your future influence.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS LOOKED FOR IN WASHINGTON

Both the War Debt and Claims Situation Are to Receive Attention This Week—Cause of Mysterious Visit of Officials of Bank of England May Be Explained—Allied Finance Ministers Are to Meet in Paris This Week to Deal With Various Phases of the Dawes Plan.

Washington, Jan. 1.—New Year's social amenities today completely sidetracked consideration here of such questions as international debts and war claims collections.

With the arrival of the first work day of the new year and the return of Secretaries Hughes and Mellon to their desks tomorrow, further developments in both the debt and claims situations are probable. At the same time, some light may be given the public as to the mysterious visit to this country of Montague C. Norman, and Allan Garrett Anderson, officials of the Bank of England, concerning whom nothing official has been disclosed despite persistent reports that they came to the United States in connection with the debt and claims matters.

At the British embassy, the state and treasury departments, and other centers where keenest is manifested in such questions, it was reiterated that no information had been received as to Mr. Norman and Sir Allen since their arrival in New York which contained even the slightest intimation as to what their mission might be.

Since the allied finance ministers' meeting in Paris now is but five days away and it is to deal with various phases of international fiscal arrangements under the Dawes plan which are closely related to the claims and debts tangle between the United States, Great Britain and France, it is not supposed that if the British financiers are here because of interest in these matters they will delay longer in calling upon Mr. Hughes and Mr. Mellon.

Two communications, one from the London government in answer to the American note on claims and the other from Ambassador Herrick in Paris reporting further on the French attitude respecting its debut to the United States, should be ready for the attention of Mr. Hughes tomorrow. Press advices from the two capitals said the messages had been dispatched here yesterday. The intervening holiday, under ordinary circumstances, would be sufficient for the transmission of the reports and permit their recoding in time to lay them before Mr. Hughes when he begins the work of the year 1925.

PRESSURE OF LEGISLATION CONFRONTING CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 1.—With just 163 working days before it passes into history, the 68th congress will get back to work tomorrow after its holiday recesses with a great pressure of legislation facing it.

After having laid it aside long enough to pass, within a single day more than 100 bills and resolutions, the senate will get back to its consideration of Muscle Shoals under an unanimous consent agreement. After this long-considered problem is to one side another unanimous consent agreement—that calling for a final vote on the Isle of Pines treaty—will become operative.

While the senate is dealing with these problems the mass of annual appropriation bills passed by the house will continue to pile up. Four of them—the agriculture, interior, naval and treasury-post office—are awaiting senate action, either on the floor or in committee, while house leaders plan to put through another, the army measure, within a short time.

Before taking up the war department bill Saturday, the house will give attention toorrow to a bill on the unanimous consent calendar. Taking leaf out of the senate's book, it is expected to pass a large mass of measures, many of them private claims and bridge bills.

Laying aside the Muscle Shoals question temporarily next Monday, the senate will take up for final action President Coolidge's veto of the postal salary increase bill under an agreement calling for a vote by late Tuesday after sharply limited debate —a rather unusual procedure in the senate.

Meantime, the senate postoffice committee will rush work on administration work for postal rate increases to meet the salary raises in the hope of having its ready before the senate reaches the vote on the executive's veto of the salary measure.

Present plans are to bring in a temporary rate increase measure to fill the gap until a permanent one can be worked out in committee. This plan is expected to meet with pointed reference in debate on the veto. Many senator having already charged that the whole effort is to defeat the salary increases because it will be impossible to put through a rate advance bill before March 4.

House leaders expect to adhere to other plans to rush the appropriation bills through and they expect that after the last of these has been sent to the senate there will be time for the consideration of a fair amount of general legislation. How much of it will get through in the final crush, however is regarded as problematical.

CONNECTICUT SHOWNS GAIN IN MERCHANDISING EXPORTS

Washington, Jan. 1.—Connecticut advanced its standing in the list of states of the Union in merchandising exports for the quarter ended September 30, 1924, when its relative position moved up from 25th to 22nd place, despite the fact that a drop of $667,644 from the figures of the previous quarter took place, according to statistics just released by the department of commerce. In reaching export values of $8,89,147 for the quarter in question, Connecticut superseded the states of North Carolina, Mississippi and Tennessee, which suffered larger declines in this phase of foreign trade.

Ores, metal, and manufactures of, except machinery and vehicles, was the classification that headed the list of shipments abroad, with amounts of $3,297,471. Next in importance came rubber manufactures valued at $1,106,317. GERMANS ARE ANXIOUS FOR EVACUATION OF COLOGNE

Berlin, Jan. 1.—(By the A. P.)—German valedictories to 1924 and the greetings to the incoming year are largely colored by the ill-feeling over the prospective failure of the allies to evacuate the Cologne area on Jan. 10, as forecast from Paris. While the restrospective views expressed concede that the past year has been on of economic and social progress the new year prophets are none too sanguine over the immediate outlook for the continued improvement of the nation's internal affairs and its foreign relations.

"The year just closed has been one of consnicuous and progressive convalescence and internal consolidation for our sorely tried fatherland, in that our currency, our state finances and our economic life have been liberated from the vicious manifestations and effects of the inflation period and given more secure foundations" President Ebert told a delegation of government leaders headed by Chancellor Marx on the occasion of its New Year visit to the executive mansion today.

President Ebert said he believed thanks were due Chancellor Marx and his associates in the cabinet for the progress that had been achieved and he declared Germany owed it to the government's energy and perseverance in the face of heavy odds that a tangible step forward had been made.

ENGLISH BANTAM LASTS BUT SHORT TIME

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 1.—Freddie Vincent of England lasted just one and a fraction rounds with Jackie Johnson, former Canadian amateur bantam champion, of Toronto, in an eight-round bout here this afternoon. A right to the jaw near the end of the first round started Vincent on the way to defeat, and three knockdowns in the first of the second round completed the job. They fought at 120 pounds.

George Fifield had little trouble in winning from Johnny Ward of McKeesport, Pa., in a six-round preliminary.

An era of good feeling among nations unsurpassed in history, was predicted for 1925 in a new year's statement by Secretary Work, of the Interior department.

Six Postal Officials Have Been Suspended

Result of Official Investigations Into Use of Money to Influence Postal Pay Legislation.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Six responsible postal officials in as many cities throughout the country have been suspended from duty, an employee of the senate postoffice committee has been discharged, and the clerk of the house postoffice committee has resigned as a result of an official investigtion into the use of money to influence postal pay legislation.

The officials suspended all are members of the executive committee of the National Association of Postal Supervisors and held some of the most important positions in the postal service. They are:

Peter McGuerty, acting superintendent of mails, New York city, who has been in the service 27 years.

James M. Greig, postal cashier, Boston, in the service 17 years.

Peter Wiggie, acting postmaster, Detroit, in the service 24 years.

Harvey M. Tytle, assistant postmaster, Springfield, Ohio, in the service 25 years.

J. J. Fields, superintendent of mails, Louisville, in the service 33 years.

William Sansom, assistant superintendent of delivery, Chicago, in the service 36 years.

The discharged senate employe was E. H. McDermot, assistant clerk of the senate committee, who is described in a report of postal inspectors as the central figure in an arrangement by which he received $2,600 to work for the interests of the Association of Postal Supervisors.

Frederick C. Riedsel, clerk of the house committee, was declared in the report to have been presented with a "gift" of $1,000 by the supervisors' association, and he announced today that because of "the unhappy notoriety" connected with the investigation he had resigned.

The investigation, results of which were announced in a statement by Postmaster-General New, was undertaken by the postoffice department after Mr. New had conferred with President Coolidge. The postmaster general's statement revealed for the first time the facts in connection with the postal pay legislation changes previously investigated by the department of justice. The justice department inquiry, however, resulted only in the announcement by Attorney General Stone that no law had been violated. Under the law employes of senate and house committees occupying the status of McDermot and Riedsel are not technically included with the definition of "officers of the United States" against whose acceptance of money certain penal statutes are directed.

A joint report made to the postmaster general by Postal Inspectors C. H. Clarahan, stationed at New York and R. M. Bates of Milwaukee, who were brought to Washington to make the investigation, said that early in March, 1924, McDermot requested the detail of four particular postoffice supervisors to assist the congressional committee in preparing a bill providing for increase in salaries of postoffice employes.

Refusal of the department to detail these men without formal request from the committee resulted in Vice Chairman Paige asking that McGuerty, Tytle, Sansom and Fields be assigned to help the committee. Title was then president of the National Association of Postal Supervisors, an organization of supervising officials of the various postoffices.

Shortly after reaching Washington they were approached by McDermot, who was personally acquainted with them, with a proposition that they employ him as the association's paid representative in Washington. They advised him they could not so employ him while he was in the employ of the senate committee but agreed to pay him $125 a month as correspondent of the postal supervisor, a monthly publication of the association. According to a letter from Title to McGuerty this was simply a cloak to justify the payment as McDermot wrote only one article for the publication.

"CROSS-WORD PUZZLE" STOCKINGS LATEST CRAZE

Paris, Jan. 1.—The "cross-word puzzle" stocking is the latest craze to strike the Paris hosiery world.

When the first really cold days of winter came, silk stocking of gossamer gradually were discarded and many women adopted very fine handmade Angora wool stockings.

This is the material of which the "cross-word puzzle" stockings are made. A shopkeeper got the idea from the puzzle design waiting to be served. A few days later he displayed in his windows a stocking of checker board design with the square in black and white, about the same size and distributed haphazard in the manner familiar to cross-word puzzle fans.

The novelty has found good customers among American women but French women say it is hideous. The cross-word epidemic itself has not struck France as yet.

MAYOR'S STATEMENT ABOUT CRIME WAVE IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 1.—Declaring that New Haven's present crime wave is one of the after effects of the war, Mayor FitzGerald today made the following statement:

"New Haven's present crime wave is a very peculiar one and is in keeping with the general condition being experienced all over the country. It is due to the unrest existing from the late war, many persons absolutely refusing to return to normalcy. There is a certain element that has no respect for the rights of others.

"These persons figure that they have certain rights and they intend exercising those rights, even if they have to rob, plunder and murder in doing so. They don't work and do not intend to work, but expect to exist on the same level as those who are honest and industrious.

"A general drive is now under way by the police all over the country and in a short time all this element will be caught and imprisoned. The local police are working hard on the crime wave in this city and will eventually catch the criminals responsible for the unlawful acts now being performed.

"There has never been an unsolved crime committed in this city—time has solved them all. The same thing will be true of the present crimes, but the people of the city must have patience with the police. In addition to having patience, they must co-operate with the police in every way possible, and if such a course is pursued there can only be one outcome, the apprehension of the criminals."

BAPTIST CHURCH BURNED IN GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.

Gloversville, N. Y., Jan. 1.—The First Baptist church of this city, regarded as one of the finest church structures in Fulton county, was destroyed by fire today with a loss estimated by church trustees at nearly $300,000. Firemen fought the blaze for more than five hours in bitter cold weather before the flames were brought under control, and tonight a watch was being maintained over the smoking embers to check the spread of smaller fires which intermittently broke out.

For a time it was feared the stone front and tower would topple into the street, and residents in nearby buildings were warned. It was said the church was built upon a vein of quicksand and firemen feared the heat and destruction of the braces would weaken the masonry.

The fire is believed to have started from an overheated chimney. Five hours later only the blackened walls and tower and twisted iron and smouldering embers remained.

Damage to the structure, which was dedicated in 1891, was estimated at $175,000. A pipe organ, valued at $10,000 and furnishings valued in excess of $75,000 also were destroyed.

A FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR WEST WILLINGTON

Stafford Springs, Jan. 1.—Joseph Hautekie, 38 years old, of Moosup, was almost instantly killed this afternoon when the automobile he was driving skidded on the icy road near West Willington, about five miles south of here, went over an embankment and turned over eight times before it stopped about 60 feet from the highway.

Mrs. Julia Bruver, of Holyoke, Mass., sustained a fracture of the skull and concussion of the brain and was taken to Johnson Memorial hospital here where her condition is considered critical.

Andrew Bruver, husband of Mrs. Bruver, Mrs. Elizabeth Hautekie, wife of the man killed and Alberic Degrieye, of Moosup, the other occupants of the machine, were painfully but not seriously injured.

Hautekie and his wife and Degrisye were visiting last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruver in Holyoke and the Bruvers were returning with them to Moosup to make a return visit.

LETTER BY ANCESTOR SENT TO HIRAM BINGHAM

New Haven, Jan. 1.—An interesting weather note as well as a personal anecdote was found by Governor-elect Hiram Bingham today as he was reading his New Year's mail. A letter had home from a lady in New York state in which she had made reference to a letter she received from Hiram Bingham, grandfather of the present Hiram Bingham, who then kept a school for girls in York square, this city. Under the date of December 25, 1867, Hiram Bingham had written saying: "We are having very cold weather. The thermometer is four degrees below zero."

Here was an accurate account of weather on a Christmas which quoted a figure which rarely has been touched, if ever, on a like holiday since that time, in New Haven.

4,000 PERSONS CALLED AT WHITE HOUSE YESTERDAY

President and Mrs. Coolidge Received All Who Cared to Call—They Stood For Four and a Half Hours in the Blue Room, Shaking Hands With the Visitors—Members of All Races, Bankers, Laborers, Men, Women and Children Were in the Line—Members of the Cabinet, Diplomatic Corps, Congress, Judiciary and Officers of the Army and Navy Were Received First.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Throwing open the doors of the White House to all who cared to call, President and Mrs. Coolidge today received four thousand visitors at their New Year's reception.

The chief executive and his wife for four hours and a half stood in the Blue room, shaking hands with their callers and extending and receiving New Year's greetings. Beginning at 11 o'clock, the reception was scheduled to end at 2.30, but when that hour arrived Mr. Coolidge directed that it be continued until all who desired had opportunity to call.

The number received was no greater than in previous years, but the proportion of the general public to the portion classed as official was larger. Moreover, there was less formality about the affair than in the more recent years, some of the older White House attaches declaring it a reversal to the New Year receptions of the pre-war period when Washington, as a smaller city, looked more on the president and his wife as neighbors and on attendance at the reception much like a call on any of their other friends.

As customary the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, congress, the judiciary, high ranking officers of the army and navy and patriotic organizations were received first, but this portion of the reception took only an hour. Then Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge retired for luncheon and within half an hour began receiving the general public, several hundred whom had been waiting in line for two hours despite a cold damp day.

The public part of the reception was an exact cross-section of American life. It included men, women and children, men and women of four score or more years and babes in arms, members of all races, bankers and laborers and representatives of many other lines of work. Those who had formed in line passed through the Blue room and were received by Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge in less than an hour, and the remainder of the afternoon was given over to the receiving of those who arrived at the White House singly or in two or threes.

Both the president and Mrs. Coolidge often stopped to talk with some of those they knowpersonally, some aged men or women or some child. The president waited for several minutes with one Grand Army of the Republic veteran, R. G. Scott of Linn Creek, Missouri, who was a member of the 34th Iowa infantry attended the New Year's reception in 1864, given by President and Mrs. Lincoln.

The earlier part of the ceremony with the members of the diplomatic corps and the officers of the army, navy and marine corps in their dress uniforms, was more colorful and more formal than when the general public was received. Many of those in the latter group remained half an hour or so after passing through the Blue room to listen to a continuous concert by two sections of the United States Marine band.

Unknown to the president and many of the callers, death appeared at the gates of the White House grounds while the reception was in progress and took Samuel D. Ross, aged employe of the post office department. Ross, as a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, one of the civic organizations received by the president, was standing in line just inside of the grounds, when he became suddenly ill and died from apoplexy before his friends could summon aid.

Members of the diplomatic corps and many other officials were entertained following their call at the White House at a diplomatic breakfast at the Pan-American Union given by Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes. Most of the members of the cabinet and their wives held open house during the afternoon.

All the government departments were closed for the day and both senate and house were in recess.

SALE OF AN INDUSTRIAL STEEL PLANT IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Jan. 1.—The Frasse Steel Works, Inc., said to be the largest and most complete industrial steel plant in the east engaged in the production of all shapes and sizes of cold finished steel, was bought outright by the Union Drawn Steel company, of Beaver Falls, Pa., the largest producers of cold drawn steel in America, with the main plant at Beaver Falls and with a western subsidiary located at Gary, Ind., and a Canadian plant at Hamilton, Ont., at a deal consummated in New York, New Year's eve, but not released until late this afternoon by the executives of the purchasing company here at the Bond hotel.

Negotiations have been under way for more than two months with the Union Drawn Steel company, desiring to establish itself in the eastern production field to balance and distribute its production. The expansion was forced on the company by the elimination of the Pittsburgh-plus cost price on all steels in 1917, according to a company executive tonight.

URBAIN LEDOUX ASSUMES ATTITUDE OF DEFIANCE

New York, Jan. 1.—Urbain Ledoux tonight announced his intentions to "stay to the limit" in reply to published statements that detectives had been detailed to escort him from the city. His announcement followed a conference with his army of unemployed.

"I shall not go away unless I am carried on a stretcher," Ledoux declared. "I've got the manhood to do it. I am no longer the lamb, but the lion. It was the lamb they were clipping but they can't cut the mane of the lion. I'm no longer on the defense, but on the attack."

Ledoux also announced he had turned the "tub," the army's headquarters on St. Mark's place, over to his followers and that he would deliver the deed of the place, formerly known as the "Old Bucks and Lamo Ducks Club," to them tomorrow. During his conference with his men tonight he told them they must abide by the rules of the health department and report to the police if interfered with.

NEW YEAR CAME IN WITH A COLD WAVE

Boston, Jan. 1.—A cold wave sent the mercury tumbling as the new year came to New England. Northern New England reported sub-zero temperatures, the thermometer falling as low as 30 degrees below zero at Woodsville, N. H., while Whitefield reported a temperature eight degrees colder. FARM HOUSE ON NORFOLK-TORRINGTON ROAD BURNED

Torrington, Jan. 1.—A farm house owned by Lyman B. Tibbals, nine miles northwest of Torrington on the Torrington-Norfolk road, was destroyed by fire late this afternoon. Apparatus from Torrington and Norfolk responded to an alarm but the building could not be saved. Practically all of the furniture was taken out of the house. The blaze is believed to have started from a defective flue. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

MUMMERS MADE MERRY IN PARADE IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—Philadelphia's merrymakers marched today in their annual Mummers' parade, flooding Broad street with a riot of color and mirth for several miles. Thousands, shivering on the sidewalks, envied the Mummers' ability to keep warm by dancing to the music of numerous bands, more than 100 spectators collapsed from the cold, a score requiring hospital treatment.

The fancy clubs, which devote their efforts to elaborate displays of flowing embroidered draperies, experienced difficulty in navigating against the 35-mile gale that howled between the skyscrapers in the center of the city. Efforts of bystanders were needed to retrieve one vast cape which broke away from its attendants, while police were required to right a 300-pound marcher, costumed in a huge barrel, who was bowled over.

Captains of the various New Year's clubs vied with one another in the lavish adornment of their capes. One mantle, one hundred and sixty-five feet long, required the services of one hundred and six pages to keep it taut. A costume with 14,000 "pearls" woven in it was worn by one marcher.

Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler, the city's director of public safety, from the window of the mayor's office in city hall, watched the parade. With his permission, the comic division had burlesqued his one-year's administration of the police and fire departments, and no phase escaped the Mummers' presentation. The director's scheme for protection of jewelry stores against holdups by means of a red signal light outside was shown in action, the bandit-chasing squad, mounted on kiddie-cars, making short work of the holdup men. Another float depicted the director engaged in a ring battle with a magistrate with whom he had had several disagreements.

The round-the-world flight, ocean flight of the ZR-3, equine disregard for certain royal highness, and the mysterious relation between the synthetic liquor and coffin industries formed topics for other burlesques.

ITALIAN RUM SHIP WAS CAPTURED BY COAST GUARD

New York, Jan. 1.—An Italian four-masted schooner, believed to be loaded with champagne and liquors, was captured early today by the Red [illegible] flagship of the coast guard rum chasers patrolling the metropolitan waters New Year's eve to prevent the landing of holiday liquor.

Wireless reports received here by Capt. William Jacobs, in command of the coast guard in this district, say that the schooner was towed into Huntington bay and a guard placed on board. It will be brought to the barge office here tomorrow. The cargo is said to be worth more than [illegible] 000.

KAPLAN-KRAMER TITLE BOUT AT GARDEN TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 1.—Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., and Danny Kramer, Philadelphia southpaw, survivors in the featherweight elimination tournament, meet tomorrow night in a 15 round match at Madison Square Garden to determine the wearer of the world's 126-pound crown.

Kaplan worked his way into the final round of the tournament by outpointing Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., and knocking out Jose Lombardo of Panama in the fourth round of a 12-round match, the only knockout of the tournament. Kramer won the decision over Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill., in his first round match and drew a bye in the semi-final bracket.

Both boys are hard hitters and able boxers, Kaplan, one of the ring's most tireless workers, always fights on the aggressive, boring in every minute and making up in punching power what he lacks in boxing science. Kramer, on the other hand, is a polished boxer, able to give and take and carrying a punch with his left hand that will likely worry Kaplan.

The principals have been ordered to weigh in at the offices of the state athletic commission at 2 o'clock tomorrow and both must be under the 126-pound limit.

INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS AGAINST STATE POLICE

Hartford, Jan. 1.—Superintendent Robert T. Hurley and the state police have been enjoined from arresting, or threatening to arrest, the drivers for the Inter-State Busses Corporation just because they do not have new markers on their busses today or for the next few days on the trips from Hartford to Providence. The injunction order, which is signed by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, of the superior court also enjoins the motor vehicle commission from revoking the license to the busses corporation or from refusing to issue a license, and furthermore the temporary injunction resustains the public utilities commission from interfering with the operation of the busses until the batter is fully heard and determined in court.

The motor vehicle commission would not issue new markers. This bus concern like some others, has been in controversy with the public utilities commission over whether or not such a bus is a jitney and requires a jitney license. Some time ago the license and markers were taken away from the bus men for a short time and were then returned.

GOV. SMITH INAUGURATED FOR HIS THIRD TERM

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 1.—The roar of a 17-gun salute, echoing in the snow-clad hills of the Hudson valley, bore word to Albany today that there remained at the seat of the government of New York state for his third term Governor Alfred E. Smith, the first chief executive in a century to attain this distinction.

Faced by a politically hostile legislature, surrounded by six state officials of opposite political faith, the governor, in his brief inaugural address, pledged himself to conduct a non-partisan administration and besought the co-operation of his colleagues in making the ensuing two years "a government for all the people."

"My sole and only wish is to give to the state the best of which I am capable," Governor Smith declared, "and although the incoming state officials are not of the same political party to which I belong, I am satisfied that we are all thinking alike."

Significance given the inauguration ceremony today was heightened by the presence on the inaugural platform of the first woman official elected in the history of New York state—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp of Syracuse, who administered the oath of office to the governor.

Standing in front of the plain wooden single-armed chair which Gov. DeWitt Clinton had used on the historic occasion of his third inauguration 100 years ago, Governor Smith referred at the start of his address to the "heart full of gratitude" with which he approached the distinctive honor.

Three Rockville young men, Joseph Keeney of 56 High street, Elliott Brown of 10 Mountain street and Edward Farr of Thompson street were injured, the first named severely, and a Willys-Knight touring car in which they were riding was totally wrecked, at 10.15 o'clock Wednesday night, when the machine left the highway and crashed into the side of the T. H. Wood Co. silk fish line manufacturing plant, South Coventry. Farr was thrown from the machine and struck against a stone abutment, breaking his arm and his leg and sustaining numerous cuts about the body. Gessay, who was operating the machine was cut on the head by glass from the broken windshield and Brown was badly cut on the right ear. The machine was headed toward this city and in rounding the sharp curve in the highway near the Wood mill the driver was blinded by the strong headlights of another car approaching up the hill from the opposite direction. The Rockville machine swerved off the right shoulder of the road, where it skidded on ice and snow causing Gessay to lose control of the steering of the car. The men were taken to St. Joseph's hospital here by Edward Hawkins, of South Coventry and E. A. Buck, of Westford. Gessay and Brown were given treatment and allowed to return to their respective homes but Farr will be detained at the institution for some time. The accident was investigated by State Policeman Walter Hardisty of the Stafford Springs barracks. There were no arrests made.

The old fashioned horse-drawn chemical wagon in commission at the Montgomery Hose company, No. 3, headquarters on Jackson street, to be drawn tandem style in the rear of one of the city street department trucks, seems figured in an accident, about four o'clock Thursday morning, for the third consecutive time in as many trips made from the building. Thanksgiving eve, one of the chemical wagons was wrecked when it overturned while being drawn around the corner of Main and Railroad streets and two passengers, Raymond Sullivan and John Ryan sustained injuries as a result of the accident. This wagon was stored away and another of similar type was put into use only to meet with like result when being drawn to a fire at the Alexis Caisse home on December 3. The third accident failed to materially damage the wagon and the pole which had broken and caused the accident was replaced with a new one. The wagon had been drawn but a little over one hundred yards New Year's morning in answer to a double alarm from Box 73 when the new pole snapped and the wagon veered to one side and crashed against the curbing but not causing any damage other than another broken pole. The truck drawing the wagon was driven by Paul Welch, volunteer member of the company. The danger incurred by the persistent use of this type of fire fighting apparatus is now brought even more forcibly to the minds of liberal thinking residents. If the old saying three times and out has anything to do with this sort of accident it is proved conclusively that a tandem-drawn wagon is absolutely impractical and dangerous and yet without the use of an extra piece the local department is left to depend on a badly worn Reo chemical wagon and a LaFrance pumper, with a ladder truck. Should something go wrong with either of the two first named vehicles the department would be in sore straits for apparatus and would be most severely handicapped in the event of a big fire. The necessity for another suitable piece of apparatus is obvious and with a series of three accidents, officials of the department are looking forward to timely action in this respect.

The double alarm from Box 73 at the corner of Main and Ann streets proved to be a false one, the work of some ignoramus who stretched a wire in the practical joking line. The full quota of firehose turned out into the freezing cold at four o'clock New Year's morning and hurried to the site, a mile distant from the engine house only to discover that they were the victims of a false trick. The smoke eaters did not strike their ride to Sedom anymore than they have enjoyed other trips to that locality in answer to false alarms in the past. The practice of ringing in alarms for a joke is a dangerous one. A stiff fine and up to five years of imprisonment awaits the person found guilty of such action.

The two main gathering places here for those who wished to see the old year out and the new year in were the Annual Elks' Frolic at the Al-Pierre Tabarin and at the state armory, where a dance and entertainment was given under the auspices of Company C and Prosper Veziard. The Frolic was largely attended by Elks and their guests. Dancing was enjoyed until 3 a. m. with music by a special orchestra and enjoyment was added to the affair by high class vaudeville, luncheon and pretty favors. The committee which displayed such marked ability was composed of Bert F. More, chairman, Gilbert P. Flynn, Michael Longo, J. Z. Mathieu and Donald E. Crane.

At the state armory three hundred and fifty couples whirled about the hall amid showers of toy balloons, colorful streamers, paper hats and whistles. The Peerless orchestra of ten pieces furnished delightful music and novelty vaudeville acts were greatly appreciated.

At a New Year's morning session of the police court Samuel L. Chappell, Lloyd Chappell and John Mansure, all of North Windham, were charged with injury to private property and pleaded guilty. Samuel Chappell and John Mansure gave their respective ages at 18 and 19 and were placed in charge of Probation Officer E. Arnold Peckham. Lloyd Chappell gave his age as 21. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $10 and costs in each case the individual assessments being $25.10 which were paid. The trio, riding in Mansure's Stutz touring car, were returning home from attending a theatre in this city New Year's eve and for want of excitement elected to enter the Willimantic Country club house, just off the North Windham road. Mansure has been a member of the club for the past two years and planned to play a few records on the club phonograph. The doors and windows of the house were locked, so entrance was made by breaking one of the window panes. The young men were doomed to disappointment, however, for they failed to locate any records and left the place, but it was New Year's and an ideal time for a practical joke, so the local police were notified by telephone that the club house had been broken into. Lieutenant Frank McLean and Officer Arthur Hurley chartered an automobile and after a two hour search turned the tables on the jokers, resulting in their appearance later in court. The young men acknowledged their mistake and the case was termed a boyish prank by the officials.

A history of the pecuniary difficulties of the Syzdek family, residents of upper Jackson street near Park Spring was given by Annie Syzdek, complainant, in the non-support case of her husband, Frank Syzdek, who was in the police court Thursday. Mrs. Syzdek started the new year by filing a suit against her spouse to have him offer more substantial support to herself and their five children, ranging in ages from 15 to 6 years. The plaintiff, assisted by Isadore Heller as interpreter, told a long story of trouble over money matters in the home. Syzdek is her second husband and her chief point of argument appeared to be regarding the fact that she bought the house with money left her by her first husband and that, on the other hand, Syzdek had not as much as known her the color of money since they were married, nineteen years ago. She said her husband worked regularly at No 4 mill of the American Thread company. He never gave her any money and about all he ever brought home for food was frankfurts and bread. She furnished eggs, milk and some vegetables from the little farm which she took care of. As the plaintiff did not seem to have any definite aim as to what she wanted her husband to do, the court ordered a continuance of the case of three months and segregated Interpreter Heller as one of the duties of one to talk to the couple and endeavor to cause them to arrive at some agreement.

Breed Theater

Harry Carey is the most human two-gun man on the screen!

If there had been any doubt about it before, he proved it to everyone's complete satisfaction yesterday at the Breed theater, when his new picture, Tiger Thompson opened a three days' engagement.

Tiger Thompson has all the action, drama thrills and spirit of the great outdoors that admirers of the Western screen love but it also has something more—a note of realism, of downright humanness that few pictures of this type possess.

In his betrayal of the reformed bandit, whose efforts to go straight provide temptations that threaten to break down his better resolves, he gives a portrayal that is convincing at all times. An ex-bandit he may be, but the spectator sympathizes with him in his struggles to do right, and cheers him on to the victory which he finally achieves.

Marguerite Clayton, as the beautiful young ranch owner, who is instrumental in Tiger Thompson's complete regeneration, is a heroine worth fighting for and John W. Dillon and Jack Richardson provide a brace of despicable villains.

Tiger Thompson is a Hunt Stromberg production, and is released by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

The sixth chapter or Days of 49, the Pathe news and a Monkey comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Peter Pan Coming

Peter Pan, the boy who wouldn't grow up, has come to take you to the land of make-believe on the screen.

The Herbert Brenon-Paramount production of James M. Barrie's immortal fantasy is one of the cleanest cleverest and most entertaining pictures you're ever been given the opportunity to see.

Betty Bronson, selected by Barrie himself to portray the title role, heads a strong cast of featured players which includes Ernest Torrence, Cyril Chadwick, Virginia Brown Faire and Anna May Wong.

No need to go into the story here. Willis Goldbeck wrote the screen play which tells of a little boy who always wanted to remain young and have fun. He flies through the nursery window of a modern-day home, teaches the three children he finds there how to fly and carries them off to his underground home and the Little Lost Boys in the Never Never Land.

You'll see it at the Broadway theater starting Sunday.

Slater Hall Musical Course.

Georges Enesco, the famous violinist, has long been regarded in Europe as one of the few outstanding figures.

ON THE WEEK'S NEW RECORDS

In Chicago, they say people go to the movies just to hear Jesse Crawford play the organ. We understand why when we listen to four numbers by him this week. "Rose-Marie" is a well-known number and makes a fine piece of organ recording. With it is paired "Dreamer of Dreams."

How faithfully the records now catch the sonority and tone colors of the organ is again displayed on two more of Mr. Crawford's recordings. "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" and Schubert's "Serenade" are the media for two successful interpretations.

Jack Chapman and His Drake Hotel Orchestra spring a surprise in a waltz, "At the End of a Winding Lane." It features deep saxes and strings. "Lazy Waters" by Coon-Sanders Original Night-Hawk Orchestra is a swirling waltz on the other side.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Danielson will share at the birth of a New Year in the honor that has come to President Nathan D. Prince, of the Windham County National bank, in his election as president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, rating the most important banking institution in Connecticut. Mr. Prince, who has been in Hartford banking circles since 1915, succeeds Meighs Whaples, probably the best known banker in the state, for more than 50 years prominent in financial circles in Connecticut as a bank official of Hartford banking institutions and for more than 30 years a bank president in the capital city of the state. Announcement of the advancement of Mr. Prince from a vice presidency to the presidency of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company was made on New Year's day.

Mr. Prince, among the Danielson men of the past generation, has achieved an outstanding and striking success, and today is rated one of the foremost bankers of the eastern states. His banking experience began as a messenger for the Windham County National bank back in 1898, when he was just out of Killingly High school. By successive stages his advancement was steady and rapid and five years after his appointment in the most subordinate position in the local bank he had become its cashier. His board of directors and the officials of the bank were appreciative of his unusual insight into financial affairs and his constantly increasing vision of banking possibilities here and by 1913, he became vice president of the Windham County National bank, which had shown splendid growth during the period of his cashiership.

This advancement was, it has since appeared, but the preliminary to the distinction that was destined to come to him. By 1915 his banking ability was attracting attention in the center of the financial activities of Connecticut—Hartford—and he was offered a vice presidency of the Connecticut Trust and Safe Deposit company, one of the largest banks in Connecticut. Mr. Prince accepted the position, retaining, incidentally, the vice presidency of the Windham County National bank, and entered upon his duties. His capabilities quickly won him a high place in the esteem of the bankers of the state and were highly advantageous to the institution with which he was connected. In 1919 came the consolidation of the Connecticut Trust and Safe Deposit company and the Hartford Trust company, another institution of high standing, the voluntary merger bringing forth the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, in which Mr. Prince was continued as a vice president.

With the new and larger institution, a giant among the banking institutions of the state, Mr. Prince continued to advance his prestige, this on sheer merit, and the dawn of 1925 has brought him his reward in placing him in the presidency of that which has trust funds of 80 million dollars and a banking department in which an additional 25 millions is carried as well as the most important safe deposit department in Connecticut.

Mr. Whaples, whom Mr. Prince succeeds in the presidency, remains as chairman of the board of directors and [illegible] his active connection with the bank, this connection dating [illegible] century.

Mr. Prince has been president of the [illegible] Bankers' Association, has been [illegible] chairmanship of representing [illegible] on the executive committee [illegible] American Bankers Association [illegible] membership of 22,020, and [illegible] present on the multiple relations [illegible] of that organization.

The [illegible] of which he has been [illegible] the head is housed in a brand [illegible] among the most [illegible] in the state. The [illegible] was completed [illegible] at a cost of approximately $1,000,000, and during its construction Mr. Prince was vested [illegible] as to what and what should be done in carrying out the details of the building contract.

Mr. Prince said while here New Year's afternoon that his new position will not affect his connection with Danielson. He will continue to maintain his home here, also his connections with the Windham County National bank, of which he was made president a few months ago, succeeding Timothy E. Hopkins, deceased.

It seems that all have not taken New Year's resolutions to be good. There is proof of it, in fact. Up in the Christian Hill section the Larkin Reed company is building a two-apartment house for families the heads of which are in its employ. The house is closed in and the electricians are wiring the property. A New Year's eve visitation by thieves resulted in the removal of all the switch boxes set in wiring outlets and the theft of tools from the electrician's kit. This may be taken as another evidence that there still exists those who feel that it is cheaper to steal than work—especially if one avoids detection.

Orient lodge, K. of P., No. 37, has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Alton Eldridge, chancellor-commander; Roscoe E. Burton, vice chancellor; Marion Young, prelate; H. W. Burton, master of work; F. J. Trudden, keeper of records and seal; Frank E. Young, master of exchequer; Donald W. Armington, master-at-arms; W. Ray Barnard, trustee. District Deputy Jacob Weshsler of Jewett City is to install the new officers, making his visitation probably on January 12, although the date is not definitely set.

The Danielson Trust company paid its stockholders 8 per cent. in dividends during 1924. This is a correction of a recent statement in this column that the dividend returns were 7 per cent. for the year. At the end of the first six months of 1924 the bank declared its usual semi-annual dividend of six per cent. and an extra dividend of one per cent. The past week the bank declared its second semi-annual dividend of six per cent., and another extra dividend of one per cent., a total for the year of 8 per cent.

Motorists hereabouts did very well New Year's day as to having their new registration plates if they drove their cars. There were a few exceptions, and an occasional car with 1924 numbers was seen flitting about. However, conditions as to obeying the injunctions about new numbers were much better than was the case a few years back and officers were lenient in dealing with those who were interviewed about driving with old plates.

During the year there were 83 deaths in Windham county sufficiently unusual to warrant the investigation of Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson. Of these cases 13 occurred in the town of Killingly, three in Brooklyn and 12 in the town of Plainfield.

The list follows:

Betsy A. Greene, Plainfield, Jan. 1, abdominal tuberculosis; John L. Leons, Killingly, Jan. 17, accidental drowning; Peter Renard, Brooklyn, Jan. 26, Angina pectoris; Lillie M. Bousquet, Plainfield, Jan. 23, acute Bright's disease; Owen Sheedy, Killingly, Jan. 21, burned to death; Peter Lambert, Killingly, Jan. 31, burned to death. Mato Feretitch, Plainfield, Feb. 15, suicide by hanging; Adelard Brouillard, Plainfield, March 5, acute catarrhal bronchitis; Joseph Koskoszka, Killingly, March 6, lobar pneumonia; Exilda Bedard, Plainfield, March 15, heart disease; Julien Benac, Killingly, Oct. 29, fractured skull; Mary A. Adams, Killingly, March 29, cerebral hemorrhage, Mary Doris Pelletier, Brooklyn, April 6, congential malformation of the heart; Clarence Gates, Plainfield, March 20, accidental drowning; Sarah E. Dorrance and Henry Dorrance, Plainfield, March 14, fractured skulls; Alida Marie Seaperance, Killingly, May 18, tuberculosis (pulmonary); Elvira Wade, Killingly, May 19, heart disease; Ele Gileau, Plainfield, June 11, heart disease; George H. Hentschel, Plainfield, July 6, accidental drowning; Louis McFarland, Plainfield, Aug. 4, accidental drowning; Hugh Caffrey, Killingly, Aug. 11, heart trouble; Aug. 24, Elizabeth Farrar, Killingly, suicide by hanging; Helen Szymurski, Brooklyn, Aug. 25, malnutrition; Albert Leon Thibeault, Killingly, Sept. 6, natural cause; Edwin T. White, Pomfret, July 27, gun shot wound; Samuel Tuber, Plainfield, Sept. 23, injuries received when struck by train; Bryant A. Sweet, Killingly, Nov. 21, accidental drowning.

Numbers of the Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks were at Putnam New Year's eve to watch the old year out and the new year in.

Misses Mary Geer and Jennie Williams have been recent visitors in Providence.

The police here had a quiet holiday, with little other than routine duties to demand their attention.

"This year of 1925 is the first one I ever knew that started in August," remarked a New Year's celebrator, who was a bit overheated.

Large numbers enjoyed the dance given at the state armory New Year's night, the first event and the only event of the kind this year in Danielson.

Wednesday afternoon, Miss Susie B. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Smith, and Robert Sumner of Detroit were united in marriage here by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Mr. and Mrs. Sumner are to make their home in Detroit.

Monday will be observed as Historical Night by the members of Killingly grange.

New Year's afternoon at 3 o'clock a reception was held at the Methodist church by members of the Killingly Women's club.

Officers are to be elected at next week's meeting of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce.

Death of Walter J. Keeler, Jr.

In an item in this column Thursday morning it was stated that Walter Joseph Keeler, Jr., four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Keeler, of the West Side, was found dead in bed at his home Wednesday morning. The name should have been Keeler.

WALTER E. SAYLES DIES SUDDENLY IN BOSTON HOTEL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Jan. 1.—Relatives and friends of Walter Ernest Sayles, 61 were surprised and shocked, late New Year's afternoon, when a telephone message from Boston brought the announcement of his sudden and almost instantaneous death, in the writing room of the Hotel Lenox in that city, late New Year's eve. Mr. Sayles, a guest of the house, had paid his bill at the desk an dhad gone to the writing room to give attention to some correspondence when he suddenly became violently ill and died almost within the minute. Another guest who was sitting beside him writing called a representative of the hotel management but in the meantime Mr. Sayles had expired. The body is to be brought to Elmville Friday.

Mr. Sayles left here Wednesday morning to confer in Boston, with the Brockway Truck Co., of which he has been a general representative in New England for several years and to spend the holiday in that city. Tuesday evening, while in Danielson, he appeared to be in his usual and his own active self. There was nothing to indicate that his end was so near. He spent the evening at his club here and left very early for his home. It was stated by a member of his family Thursday afternoon that he had suffered a severe attack of illness in Springfield a few weeks ago, but nothing was known of that here until after his death.

Mr. Sayles was born in Killingly in 1863, and would have reached his 62nd birthday Feb. 23. He was unmarried. He was a son of the late William H. Sayles and Phoebe Cook Sayles, his mother and one brother James, of Elmville, surviving him.

After completing his education, Mr. Sayles was associated with his father, who for many years was engaged in the woolen manufacturing business in Elmville. Later, at Boston, he was engaged as a wool broker in association with his uncle, Roy E. Sayles. Still later he was in business for himself at Haverhill and for the past few years he has been acting as a general agent for motor truck, covering in his activities the greater part of New England.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, tallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

WE DO NOT RECOMMEND Allen's Lung Healer AS A CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

But we do claim and have proven times without number that it will prevent disease in many cases by its remarkable healing and germicidal properties. Its action on the lungs and bronchial tubes fortifies them against attack if used in season. An obstinate lung cough weakens the lungs and opens wide the door for tubercular germs to enter and find lodgment. Allen's Lung Healer cures these obstinate lung coughs, thereby preventing consumption. If your lungs are susceptible to colds, you should take the Lung Healer on the first symptoms of a cold, thereby preventing further trouble.

PUTNAM

Forty Putnam boys, members of the Y. M. C. A., were among the 450 from different parts of the state who spent a day this week in Hartford on a sightseeing tour. They made the trip by automobile, starting from here at 8 a. m., arriving home about the same hour in the evening. At Hartford they visited the state capitol, the armory, the state library, and had an audience with Governor Templeton, who delivered a short address to them. Dinner was served them at noon at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Henry Heddeman of Webster spent Wednesday and Thursday with friends in Putnam.

Luke White, midshipman at the U. S. naval academy, Annapolis, is at his home here on a 15 days' furlough.

Miss Rhoda Gilpatric has been the guest for a few days of Miss Sallie Wells at Southbridge.

O. D. Baker has sold his store at Warrenville to Paul and George Whitehouse and will leave in a few days for California to spend the winter with relatives and possibly to make his home there.

Miss Florence Pray of Ballouville is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Justin S. Greene, of Center street.

Mrs. Alice S. Carpenter spent Wednesday with friends in Webster.

Miss Esther Dow, who died at Willimantic a few days ago, was a former resident of Phoenixville.

Rev. John Walker and Mrs. Walker of Philadelphia are the guests of the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Morrell.

Miss Genevieve Haven of Watertown, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gilpatric, Fremont sereet. Miss Haven is an instructor of the blind at Perkins Institute.

William H. Mansfield, Jr., and Frank J. Appleby are home from a trip to Florida. They stopped in Atlanta on their return.

Chauncey Talbott has bought a house on Mechanics street and will move there from Grove street in a short time.

Sidney Hayward, a student at Dartmouth, and a former resident of Putnam, is spending the holiday vacation with friends here. He is the manager of the college basketball team.

Howard Bullard has been appointed dog warden for the town and city by James M. Whittlesey, state commissioner on domestic animals. He replaces Henry Hurdman, who resigned recently.

The meeting and supper of the Putnam Hi-Y club held this week in the Second Congregational church took the form of a banquet and a reception to former members of the club now college students.

An excellent supper wasa served at 6.30 under the direction of Mrs. W. R. Barber, assisted by Misses Sarah Barber and Judith Sabin. This was followed by club singing, with Kenneth C. Sharpe at the piano.

After the business session Robert Bruce acted very efficiently as toast master.

The first speaker was Sidney Hayward, now a junior at Dartmouth college. He urged every boy who had an ambition to go to college to make that decision. He said that it is possible for anyone to go to college if one has the ambition to do so. Mr. Hayward was a member of the club when it was organized, four years ago.

George (Teddy) Brousseau, a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, spoke on A College Man's Opportunity. He told about the different organizations at M. I. T., where a college man has many opportunities for service. He also spoke of his experiences at college. Mr. Brousseau was also a member of the club four years ago.

Herbert Clark, secretary of the club, told how it had grown in membership. This was followed by a toast by Minot Horne, chairman of the program committee, on What I Would Like to See This Club Accomplish. He urged the co-operation of every member of the club to make it one of the outstanding forces of the community.

Attorney E. C. Morse was heard on The Short Cut to Success. His talk was very inspiring. He likened the person who had no secondary education to a mushroom that grows rapidly but has little foundation, consequently does not last. In contrast with this person he likened the college graduate to an oak, which grows slowly but sends its roots into the earth to get a solid foundation. He closed by saying that if one is not able to go to college he should read helpful literature and cited Senator Walsh of Montana, who never went to college, but studied every night college books, with the result that he is one of the best lawyers in the country.

A LIGHTHOUSE STORY

Bishop's Light rises near the Scilly Islands and gives a grim warning of the danger of the coast. It is one of the most exposed lighthouses in the world and the three tenders have a lonesome time. During a recent storm the beams from Bishop's Rock came near to failing. The light weighs several tons and revolves on supports resting in a circular trough of mercury. It is so delicately balanced that a child may turn it by a touch of the finger. On this night the tower was so shaken by the heavy seas that much of the mercury was spilled out over the concrete floor of the light chamber. The three guards fell on their knees, scooped up the mercury in their hands and poured it back into the trough.

THE AUTO LICENSE JAM.

At the opening of 1924, the same as the opening of the past several years, there has resulted a jam at the main and branch offices of the motor vehicles department which has made it impossible for those desiring to get their registrations for this year to do so in time to affix their markers and use their cars without technically violating the law.

To this there has been and probably always will be, that answer that those who have waited until the last moment before getting their registrations are simply reaping the penalty of their procrastination, and that it cannot be expected that the department clerks can do the impossible when faced with a rush of business that might well have been disposed of days in advance.

Whatever may be the plea of the department it cannot be unmindful of the fact that last minute demands must be expected. Those who are obliged to pay large fees, running up into the hundreds and possibly the thousands, are not disposed to give the state the use of their money for many more days than they have to. Many who pay smaller sums feel much the same.

If the clogged conditions in the main and branch offices are due to inadequate forces, which seems to be the case, and that inadequacy is the result of insufficient funds to provide the necessary service, provision for a change in this situation seems to be called for. If legislative action is necessary it ought not to take very long to start the ball rolling.

As it is now new registrations are obtained at this season of the year at much inconvenience. Those who use the mail get fairly prompt service only if sufficient time is allowed, but those who apply in person must stand for hours and then be turned away, unless they can devote a whole day to it.

The failure to establish sufficient branch offices to take care of the thickly populated centers has resulted in a commercialization of the business of getting registrations and thus placing an additional tax on the automobile owner simply because he cannot get service in any other way, or cannot afford to experience the waits which are required if he attempts to get his license in the regular manner.

Criticism has been steadily increasing because of the inadequate service in this department and it will continue in increasing volume until the proper attention is given to it.

BARRING AMERICAN POTATOES.

Embargoes are established invariably for the purpose of preventing undesirable or dangerous conditions. When legitimately imposed there can be little said because of the handicaps or inconvenience that result. When it comes to preventing the spread of disease drastic measures are warranted.

Though the placing of an embargo on American potatoes by the British ministry of agriculture is attributed to the desire to protect England and Wales from an invasion of the potato bug, known as the Colorado beetle, it is suspected that such is advanced solely for the purpose of keeping the American product out of the British market. Upon such an assumption this government is at least working. The protest by the secretary of state appears to be based upon that feeling.

Potato raisers in this country, and particularly in Aroostook county in Maine, had a great yield the past year. They are more than able to supply the demands of this country. Potatoes are at a low figure and there is a large quantity for export. It is possible to ship this large production abroad to the advantage of the consumer as well as the producer were it not for the fact that this embargo has been established. Stopping such export ends all competition with other countries and with the potato growers of Canada who likewise have had a big crop.

England and Wales probably do not want potato bugs but inasmuch as they have for the past two years insisted upon potatoes being certified against the Colorado beetles and disease it would appear that sufficient safeguards had been established, and the embargo imposed without it being shown that such certification was being disregarded or valueless.

The action by this government should result either in a raising of the bothersome ban or it should result in a clearer and better explanation of the reason for taking such action just at this time.

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

The number of lynchings as reported for 1924 is so small that it causes wonder as to whether all cases have come to the attention of the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute. Certainly the drop to 16 from the 33 of the previous year and the larger numbers in years prior to that indicates a trend in the right direction, and it is to be sincerely hoped that there were no more than 17 in the last twelve months and that that number may be proportionately reduced during the year just opening.

That the lynching spirit has got entirely shot out, or that such is not indicated by the fact that only 17 mob murders were committed, can be seen from the Tuskegee report which refers to 45 instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings.

There have been some excellent examples set by governors and other officials in the past several years for the upholding of the law and the discouragement of mob rule. They have stood steadfastly on numerous occasions for the lawful punishment of those accused of crime, but against the disposition to kill human beings without a trial, or without being convicted of a crime that calls for such a penalty. It is none too soon for such a spirit to be manifested as for public sentiment to insist that state authorities stand up for the provisions of the law, but inasmuch as there has been so much laxness in this respect in certain states it is gratifying to note that better results are being obtained whatever the cause of it may be.

Nothing could be more desirable than the coming of the day when a crime of such deliberateness should be tabooed by those who have been participating in such deplorable demonstration. If the same effort that has been put forth in behalf of lawlessness by those involved in lynchings had been devoted to enforcement of the law, or better enforcement of the law, more salutary results would have been gained for the reduction of those crimes which prompt lynching bees.

PRESIDENT WOOD'S RETIREMENT.

Throughout New England especially much attention has been attracted by the announced withdrawal of William M. Wood as the president of the American Woolen company. This is an industrial concern that is well scattered over New England and in its upbuilding Mr. Wood has had a commanding part. As a strong and optimistic captain of industry he holds a distinguished place. There has been and is full recognition of his ability and foresight, and because of that it is regretted that the condition of his health is such that his retirement from the head of the organization is made necessary. Just what part his close devotion to this great industry has played in bringing about this condition is not revealed, but it too often follows that health is sacrificed through just such a condition.

So closely has he been identified with the large industry that his and its name are always associated. He has directed it through many years of steady and successful development and placed it on a basis where its future in the production of a staple article is no uncertainty. He likewise has established a most favorable relationship with his employes.

There is always a time when just such leaders are obliged to relinquish their tasks to others. Mr. Wood does so at a time when he will still be able to favor the industry with his advice and when he will be able to assist in the continuance of well tried policies under his successor, Andrew G. Pierce Jr., who is thoroughly in touch with the business and the affairs of this big New England concern.

EXTRA SESSION DRIVE.

According to reports from Washington there is foreseen a drive for an extra session of congress to be made early this year. It is not entirely a new warning for there are those who have openly advocated it, but when the effort gets to the point of making a drive, carrying with it the implication that important business may be interrupted for the purpose of forcing an extra session in order to take care of the appropriation measures, it deserves all possible attention and the combined resistance of the opponents.

While this short session of congress may not accomplish all that it might if there was full devotion to duty, there is no good reason why it should not clear up the appropriation bills and provide for the carrying on of the government, regardless of whether there is to be an extra session or not. The business at hand should be attended to. There is plenty of time for it and for dealing with a number of legislative matters in addition. There is no time to be wasted by obstructionists and the closing session of this congress will only be doing its duty if it offers successful resistance to any and all tactics looking to the forcing of a special session through failure to enact the appropriation bills. There are times when delays are warranted but not in the case of necessary department appropriations.

ROUNDABOUT METHODS

"Let me fix your tie, Artemus," said the clever mother, who acted as though she had just happened to be going by the door at that minute.

"All rightie," agreed the smart son who knew perfectly well his tie needed no fixing. She retied it and incidentally mussed it up considerably.

"Going out, aren't you!" she said brightly, sitting on a chair arm. "I suppose you are going over to see Kathryn or Dulcie?"

"Nope," said the smart son, hunting out a fresh tie to put on. "I'm going over to Astoria's and we are going out to dance!"

"Oh, Astoria!" said the clever mother in great surprise, quite as though she did not know he had been seeing Astoria nine evenings out of seven for a long time. "Why, I thought you were so fond of Kathryn! She's just the right height for you and wears such lovely clothes and I've known her mother since—"

"Oh, Kathryn's a peach," the smart son said, getting his neckwear once more as it should be. "Only Astoria is more interesting."

"Now isn't that odd!" the clever mother remarked. "I'd never dream it to look at her—still I only saw her that once and maybe it was the lights that gave her face that sort of vacant look. I think those extremely large eyes always make the rest of a face look sharpened and haggard, don't you? If a girl has large eyes she sort of concentrates on them and their expression and doesn't have another idea in her head. A girl can't help it if she looks dumb and I suppose it isn't fair to judge her just by her looks.

"None," agreed the smart son rubbing a hand over his chin critically. "Darn I missed one or two!"

"I know sometimes a run starts after one leaves home," pursued the clever mother. "I've had it happen myself—but I noticed that evening that Astoria had a real hole in the back of one stocking right above her shoe and I don't see how it was possible for her to overlook it when she was dressing! It is too bad for a girl to be careless about herself, because almost invariably she is just as careless about her home. I've always been so careful about your diet tho'"

"You never know one minute what Astoria is going to say the next," said the smart son affably. "She keeps you on the jump."

"After a man is 30 he doesn't like to jump," said the clever mother conversationally. "He likes repose and comfort. I don't think I ever knew a girl with a more even disposition than Kathryn has! She is so charmingly serene and sweet! It is too bad, isn't it, that Astoria goes to such extremes in color and voice and manner. A man doesn't like to have any of the women in his immediate family attract attention in that fashion, of course. He wants her to be well-bred and to impress even strangers with the fact! Men are so touchy about their wives and sisters—foolish things, aren't they? Several women back of me that night when they caught a glimpse of Astoria in that sterling gown she wore and her lip paste and everything said, 'Who is that girl?' in a horrified sort of way—you know! Since she was with you I was quite embarrassed and had all I could do not to turn around and glare at them—as though you would be going around with a girl who was not perfectly lovely."

"That's right—the family forever!" agreed the smart son cheerily. "There are a lot of old cats who ought to stay home from parties and give the rest of the world a chance! Astoria's got more ideas in ten seconds than their whole family types! And she is some looker!"

"Yes, people do look at her," agreed the clever mother carefully in quite a noncommittal voice. She picked a thread which wasn't there from his coat sleeve. "The next time you go over to Kathryn's," she began casually, "I——"

"Oh you'd better phone if you want anything!" the smart son advised her, shrugging into his coat. "I don't know when I'll be around there. I'm all dated up with Astoria for weeks ahead—she's a great girl. A fellow has to step lively to keep up with her! Bye-bye!"

"Well," said the clever mother several minutes after the front door slammed after her son, "it was certainly lots easier when I could spank him and put him to bed—and more effective!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lynchings in 1924

Mr. Editor: I send you the following concerning lynchings for the past year as compiled by Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research. I find there were 16 persons lynched in 1924. This is the smallest number lynched in any year since records of lynchings have been kept, and is 17 less than the number 33 for the year 1923 and 41 less than the number 57 for the year 1922. Nine of the persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law, 6 from jails and 3 from officers of the law outside of jails.

There were 45 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Two women, one white and one colored, were among those thus saved. Eight of these preventions of lynchings were in northern states and 37 in southern states. In 30 of the cases the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In nine other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. In 4 instances during the year persons charged with being connected with lynching mobs were indicted. Of the 19 persons thus before the courts only 5 were convicted. These were given jail sentences.

Of the 16 persons lynched all were Negroes. Seven or less than one half of those put to death were charged with rape or attempted rape.

The offenses charged were: Murder, 1; rape, 5; attempted rape, 2; killing officer of the law, 2; insulting woman, 2; attacking woman, 1; killing man in altercation, 1; wounding man, 1.

The state in which lynchings occurred, and the number in each state is as follows: Florida, 3; George, 2; Illinois, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana 1; Mississippi, 2; Missouri, 1; South Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 1.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON,
Principal.

Stone Quit the Farm and the Law

Disliking farm life, Warren S. Stone began the study of law, but soon decided that he would rather fire an engine in a railroad.

Born on a large prairie farm owned by his father, near Ainsworth, Iowa, the boy had to help with the work and attend the country school. Corn was low in price and interest was high so there was plenty to do and living was economical.

After attending Washington Academy he decided to follow the law and attended Western College to study it, but several of his brothers were railroad men and the life on the road, the chance to eat at restaurants and the wages lured the nineteen-year-old student. He deserted the pursuit of law and obtained a job as fireman on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad.

At 24 he was made an engineer and was married the same year. Six feet, two inches tall, keen and smiling he made friends quickly. After 19 years at the throttle he became the salaried chairman of the Rock Island division of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Soon afterward Grand Chief Arthur died, and Stone was appointed to fill his position.

Although he had never been east of Chicago and was practically unknown to the delegates, Stone, at 43, was elected grand chief the following year.

Arguing that wages in dollars do not mean anything until they become wages in buying power, he won a long campaign for the establishment of cooperative stores among Brotherhood members, and helped to open 4000 retail places. Called a "Czar" and his economic views attacked, he led his organization into insurance, coal mining, office building, printing and other fields of industry.

In 1920 he persuaded his organization to open a bank in an old saloon building in Cleveland. The plan was popular and today the bank has several branches in several cities, one having been opened in New York this year.

At 64, Stone still is busy as head of the Brotherhood and its organizations at a total salary of $20,000 a year and is one of the most powerful men in the labor-union world.

Tomorrow—Wilhelmina Was Criticized While She Suffered

ONE HUNDRED YEARS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 3—What was the world doing one hundred years ago? A survey of the centenaries to be observed in Europe, in America and elsewhere during the twelve months now begun shows that the year 1825 was a year of peace, prosperity and progress throughout the greater part of the world. The telegraph, telephone, automobile and wireless were unknown, yet it was a period of unprecedented scientific and industrial development. There was no around-the-world aviators in 1825, but an English ship captain made the first steam voyage from England to Australia—and was rewarded by his government with a purse of $50,000.

It was in 1825 that the national election in the United States had to be decided by the House of Representatives, since none of the candidates for president and vice president had received a majority of the electoral vote in the preceding election. The house declared John Quincy Adams president and John C. Calhoun vice president.

For the first time the new congress, under the reapportionment, represented the entire population of the country with New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, in the lead. Clay and Webster were still among the brilliant leaders in the senate.

The visit of the venerable Marquis de Lafayette was being celebrated in the United States with national rejoicings On June 17, he laid the cornerstone for the Bunker Hill monument and Daniel Webster delivered the oration.

The first steam railway for public traffic was opened in England in 1825 by George Stephenson. It is interesting to note that nearly every one prophesied that the "iron horse" would be a failure. On the first trip the train was accompanied by gentlemen galloping on horseback.

In 1825 Faraday discovered that benzine was a constituent of petroleum and John Crowther patented his hydraulic crane. In Germany Dr. von Fucks invented water-glass. Joseph Clement, an English genius, built a planing machine for iron and Sir John Herschel invented the actinometer for measuring the heating power of the solar rays. Steam navigation on the Rhine was commenced and in America the completion of the Erie and Champlain canals was made the occasion for great rejoicings. The construction of the famous tunnel under the Thames was begun by Brunel.

The liquor question was a public issue then as now, as is evidenced by the organization in London of the British and Foreign Temperance Society.

The year 1825 was one of great advancement in the condition of the working classes. Questions of shorter hours, higher wages, and great safety for the working people were brought to the front for the first time. England repealed the combination laws against trades unions.

Newton Theological Institute was established at Newton Centre, Mass., Kenyon College was founded at Gambier, O., and Hobart College at Geneva, N. Y. In Canada, the newly founded McGill College was raised to the rank of a university. The American Unitarian Association and the present American Tract Society were organized. A Protestant Episcopal bishop was seen for the first time west of the Alleghenies.

Anthracite coal was first used in dwellings and factories in the United States. The homeopathic practice of medicine was introduced in America. Centenary College was established by the Methodist Episcopal church in Louisiana. The first Sunday newspaper made its appearance in New York, but did not long survive. Abraham Lincoln, a youth of 16, was working a ferry on the Ohio River for a wage of six dollars a month.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

General Sir George MacMunn, who has been appointed to succeed Sir Herbert Samuel to administer the British mandate for the Holy Land, is a celebrated soldier who has also displayed marked ability as an administrator during his many years of service in India, in South Africa, and elsewhere. He is of Scottish birth and the son of a British army surgeon. His military career began in 1888 when he joined the Royal Artillery. His early years in the service were spent largely in India. In 1902 he was decorated for his services on the Chinese frontier of Upper Burma and his defence of Sadon. In this expedition he was seriously wounded. More honors came to him for his services in the South African war. He saw much active service during the World War and since the close of that conflict he has been stationed in India as quartermaster general. Genera. MacMunn is a writer as well as a soldier.

Stories That Recall Others

It Does Help

Twelve year old Bob has always made a very poor progress in grammar. But last term he had a new teacher and his marks were better.

When he brought his card home his father beamed on his son. "At last you're learning English," he said.

"Well, I don't know so much about that," Bob held his head, "but I am enjoying my new teacher and that's what's helping."

"Fair Enough"

The law is all a mystery to Zip. Arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct he was arraigned before a justice and pleaded not guilty. A continuance was asked and the justice fixed the bond at $500.

"What for?" asked the prisoner.

"Why, that's the law," explained the justice. "You must put up that much money, get some property owner to go on your bond for that amount, or go to jail."

"I never had no $500, but I'll tell you what let's do," said Zip. "You sign my bond or else get somebody to sign it for me; that's fair enough."

At last reports Zip was in jail pondering over the mysteries of the law that would permit a justice to put him in jail and still would not permit him to sign a bond and get him out.

Noise Eliminator

Because the street noises of Paris have become so great, a chemist has perfected a tiny plaster ball that will fit any ear without danger of injury to the drum, says Popular Science Monthly.

It is recommended to "light sleepers, nervous persons or invalids whose recovery depends upon sound sleep, and to intellectual workers." Swimmers, too, are assured that the little balls will keep their ears free of water.

Surgical Feat

A young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wendling of Hingham swallowed an open safety pin and was taken to a Boston hospital for treatment. Specialists, by use of magnets, succeeded in guiding the pin through the sytsme and the child returned home apparently no worse for the experience.

REV. H. A. ROLLASON TELLS OF DRINK ABROAD

Of a former Congregational pastor at Hanover the Middletown Press says:

At a meeting of the brotherhood at the Baptist church last evening Rev. Herbert D. Rollason, pastor of the South Congregational church gave a most entertaining talk on a trip to Europe the past summer. The speaker touched on incidents aboard ship and briefly outlined his impressions of places of interest which he visited in England, France, Switzerland and Belgium. Mr. Rollason was welcomed in his father's parish in England and preached there and elsewhere during his stay. He found the English a church-going people, but there was poverty and unemployment and the working classes were so poorly housed and provided for that he recalled Morley's saying that "England is hell for the poor." There was considerable drinking and on Saturday night the public houses in the London east side were crowded with men and women, while little children awaited their parents outside the entrance. There were no good, moderate-priced restaurants and in such as there were, women were smoking at all hours. There were many crippled and maimed men. There was much begging in uniform.

There is some prohibition sentiment and one of England's problems is the liquor question. The country is overpopulated and there is jealousy of the United States. The labor party is composed of the lower middle class and is dependable and to Mr. Rollason's belief is the coming party. The liberal party will die with Lloyd George.

He saw more drunkenness one Saturday night in Edinburough than he saw during his entire stay in England. His stay, however, in the land of John Knox was a delightful one.

The speaker's experiences in Bologne, Berne, Lucerne, Interlaken, Geneva, Paris, Calais, Brussels, Bruges and other places on the continent were intensely interesting. He praised Geneva and Brussels and said that Belgium has recovered more effectively from the war than any of the countries he visited. He entered the pulpit of John Calvin and sat in his pulpit chair. He attended the Olympic games in France and noted much jealousy from the fact that so many Americans won.

The French and English attributed it to the fact that they had lost more men in the war and said also it was because we had more money to train our athletes. Amusing but lamentable misinformation regarding America prevails. His descriptions of the Jungfrau, the Matterhorn and Mt. Blanc were inspiring.

HEARING AT HARTFORD ON MYSTIC WATER CO. RATES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stonington, Jan. 1.—The Connecticut public utilities commission has issued a notice of a hearing to be held in the capitol at Hartford Monday, Jan. 12, at 10.30 a. m., on the matter of an increase in the water rates as affecting both Stonington and Mystic, and, in fact, all users of the Mystic Valley Water company system. The company has asked for a new schedule of rates, and objection to this has been voiced by many. The warden and burgesses received the notice and there will be many at the hearing. As compared with other systems, local rates, it is pointed out, have been low and the company claims more money is needed to carry on business at a fair profit. On the other hand, users of the system do not want a raise, claiming the cost of living is about at the top notch. Attorneys have been employed by both sides to argue the case.

CHIEF STANTON'S REPORT FIRST IN; NORWICH FIRE LOSS $45,698.75

Chief Howard L. Stanton's annual report of fire losses in Norwich for the past year shows a total of $45,698.75, consisting of $41,445.75 in direct losses and $4,253 in exposure losses.

The Norwich chief again this year maintained the record that has been his for the last 15 years in being the first to get his complete detailed report in at the offices of the national board of fire underwriters at 76 William street, New York. The blank, which is furnished by the national board, reached here by mail Thursday morning. In order to keep up the Norwich record of being the first report to be received at the national offices, Chief Stanton filed out the report at once and it was put in the mail at 12.45 p. m., so that it would be in New York by night.

The report gives the following details:

Total number of alarms in 1923.. 214
Total number of alarms in 1924.. 229
In brick and stone buildings 35
In frame buildings 39
In brick and frame buildings 3
Other than building fires 11

Total 229

Total value of property involved in fires: Buildings, $856,150; contents, $1,136,429.74. Total $1,992,579.74.

Total insurance thereon: Buildings, $733,600; contents, $1,056,605. Total, $1,790,205.

Total insurance loss: Buildings, $22,814.12; contents, $21,675.31. Total, $45,489.43.

Total loss insured and uninsured: Buildings, $24,023.44; contents, $21,675.31. Total, $45,698.75.

Losses on buildings and contents in which fires originated; direct losses $41,445.75

Losses on buildings and contents in which fires did not originate; exposure losses 4,253.00

Total loss 1924 ..... $45,698.75
Total loss 1923 ..... $31,200.00

The Norwich record for the past year is a particularly favorable one. There were 15 more alarms than in 1923, but the total loss was only half of what it was in 1923. The per capita loss rate in the United States in 1923 was $5.50, which is figured on a population of 100,000,000 and a total fire loss of $550,000,000, but the Norwich per capita loss was only $1.50.

The blank supplied by the National Board of Fire Underwriters asks for information about the number of buildings in Norwich, which is given as follows:

Reinforced concrete 20, fireproof (steel frame) 2, brick and stone 925, ironclad 25, frame 5,555, concrete block 14, total 6,541.

BURGLAR BROKE WINDOW AT SHOE SHINE PARLOR

Entrance was gained through a rear window into the City Shoe Shine Parlor, 15 Bath Street, some time Thursday night and a sum of money taken from a slot machine which was broken open. The break was discovered after 11 o'clock by Officer Patrick Shahan. Peter Perosis, proprietor of the parlor, was notified and an investigation was made.

Mr. Perosis found that nothing else had been taken from his store and figured the loss at possibly $3 in nickles from the slot machine.

It is believed the work was that of a boy, for merchandise in the shoe parlor was not disturbed.

PUBLIC SKATING POND OPENING GRAND SUCCESS

Several thousand people attended the formal opening of the new public skating pond at East Great Plain Thursday afternoon. Under the auspices of the West End Community association, which has made the new pond possible, a programme of events was carried out on the ice during the afternoon. It was the biggest skating event held in Norwich for years.

A large bonfire had been built against the hill at the west end of the pond where a band concert programme, starting promptly at 2 o'clock. A grand parade, headed by Miss Royce and Ralph Johnson, was the opening number of the programme. Then followed a series of races on skates, with Samuel Slosberg and William Ricker in charge. The winners were as follows:

Three-quarter mile race for young men—Ray Heebner, pipe, donated by Madden's Cigar store.

100 yard race for the younger boys, by Sam Stockwell, pair skates, donated by Jack's Sport Shop.

100 yard race for girls, Ruth Parker, pair skates, donated by Alling Rubber Co.

The final event of the afternoon was a baseball game on skates. The game was a real novelty and was greatly enjoyed by the large audience. The game met with so much favor that plans are being discussed to organize regular teams for the balance of the skating season. Because of the lateness of the hour only three innings were played. The score at the end of the third inning was the Sneiks, 6; Hard Boiled team, 2. The lineups:

Sheiks—Coughlin, c; Rankin p; Busch, capt. 1b; Fitzgerald, 2b; Hamill, ss; R. Heebner, 3b; J. Chance, lf; Sadinsky, cf; Moore, rf.

Hard Boiled—Hargreaves, c; Russell, p; McKay, 1b; Sargent 2b; Venski, ss; Beebe, capt., 3b; Mahoney, rf; Browning, ss; Walsh, cf; McKnight, lf.

During the evening the pond was illuminated with a string of electric lights for night skating. The committee is planning to erect additional lights so that the entire pond will be illuminated.

The skating pond was sponsored by the West End Community association and has been made possible through the cooperation of the recreation committee of the city, Mayor Milo R. Waters, Chief Howard L. Stanton, Street Commissioner John Donovan, The Connecticut Co., The Lions club, Norwich Savings Society, Charles F. Wells, C. E. Carpenter and John McWilliams.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the opening of the pond comprised John McWilliams, chairman; Frank I. Royce, C. E. Carpenter, Paul A. Brown, Samuel Slosberg and William Ricker.

A contribution of $5 has been received from C. R. Butts to help defray the expense of securing the band. Thursday the ice was a little rough in spots, but on the whole was fairly good. It is planned to flood the surface again so that the skating will be smooth over the entire surface of the pond.

RED TAG NIGHT FOR BROADWAY HILL PARKERS

At least sixteen automobile drivers who did not know that the new traffice regulations which went into effect Thursday included no parking on the westerly side of Broadway Hill from Williow street north, became aware of the fact when they found red tags on their steering wheels Thursday night. All of the offender's attended the show at the Broadway theatre and left their cards parked on the wrong side of the hill.

When they came out of the theatre they found their machines tagged with instructions to report at police headquarters. Several of the drivers were well known Norwich men, but the majority were out of town drivers. They came from Willimantic, Jewett City, New London and Waterford. All of the drivers were warned about the new regulation governing Broadway hill and were provided copies of the new traffic laws.

Morris Bruckner who is employed by a Jewett City garage, left his machine parked on Main street over the prescribed 40 minute period during the early evening. When he returned for his machine a couple of hours later he found it tagged. At the police station it developed that he was using dealers' numbers, he having borrowed them from his employer Thursday. Although he is the owner of the machine he could not produce a registration for it. He was booked and summoned to appear in the city court this (Friday) morning.

The new traffic rules were pretty generally observed throughout the day and the police had but little trouble with violations.

PATTEN'S HOBOES' HOME BURNED AT STAFFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Stafford Springs, Jan. 1.—Frank Patten's Hoboes' home in Stafford, a landmark for many years, was burned to the ground tonight when fire of unknown origin broke out in the ell and for a few hours threatened nearby buildings. The barn in the rear of the two and one-half story building was also destroyed, with the hay and other contents. The fire was gotten under control before other property was damaged, however. The loss is estimated at between $3,000 and $4,000. It is believed that no insurance was carried on the place and it had been considered a firetrap. With the exception of a few personal effects, the entire contents of the house were destroyed.

Patten, well over 80, is the widely known friend of the hoboes and the wanderers and has always regarded his home as open home for them. His hobby was collecting all sorts of junk and his house was filled with it.

HUNDREDS ARE WAITING FOR AUTOMOBILE MARKERS

Although it is understood that State Police officers were out Thursday watching for 1924 markers on automobiles there were no pick-ups in Norwich during the day.

Several local parties who had sent in for the 1925 markers two weeks ago are still without them and there are several hundred who sent for them within the past five days who have not yet received them.

There was a noticeable decrease in the number of cars on the streets of the city Thursday and this will probably continue until the slow coming markers arrive, although a few, acting on what they believe to be good authority are running under the old markers, feeling that they are covered in as much as the money for their registrations is in the hands of the motor vehicle department, either at Hartford or in New London.

COMBAT TRAIN DANCE DRAWS ARMORY CROWD

There was a large attendance at the New Year's dance given by the Combat Train at the state armory Thursday night. Music was furnished by Crowley's Hyperion 10 piece orchestra and the program included several novelty numbers including moonlight waltzes, the hall being flooded for these numbers by lights of many colors.

SPENT $1,185,713.97 IN ADDITIONS AT G. & E.

A typographical error in The Bulletin Thursday morning, made it appear that the sum of $185,713,973 had been expended in additions and betterments for the gas and electric department of the city. The amount should have been $1,185,713.97, of which $351,000 was paid for out of capital account, that is by borrowing, and $834,713.97 out of profits.

Near Year Sweets.

The night force of The Bulletin company, and the girls at the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company were given a New Year's treat of Martha Washington chocolates Thursday, the gift of the Buckingham Shop. The treat was enjoyed and thanks returned to Miss Maud Carew Buckingham for her gift.

NEW YEAR'S MASQUERADE FOR DANCING CLASSES

Mrs. Edward Andrews gave a delightful New Year's masquerade for her Monday and Thursday classes at the Wauregan hotel Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There were about 20 children present and the entrance march was led by Master Arthur Dawley and Mildred Potter. The costumes were varied and beautiful, making a pretty picture as the children gracefully danced the following numbers: Waltz, fox trot, Spanish schottisch, gavotte waltz and minuet waltz, by the advanced class. The beginners' class gave the Song of the Robin from Chalif, also gave ballroom dances arranged for small children by Chalif. These included minuet, Coming Thru the Rye, and polka. A very pretty exhibition of the minuet waltz was given by Master Sandy Abbott and Clementine James, Mary Stewart and Virginia Chase, Janet Carpenter and Louise Evans. Refreshments were served by the Wauregan hotel, consisting of ice cream and cake. An orchestra furnished music for dancing.

DEER KILLING LAW HAS BEEN REVISED

Hunters who had intended to go deer hunting after the first of the new year because of an interpretation they placed on an old law, which prohibited deer killing until January 1, 1925, will be doomed to disappointment.

The last session of the legislature revised the fish and game laws and that section covering deer killing clearly states under what conditions they can be shot. Only animals found destroying property can be killed, and the owner of the land is the only one who can shoot them. The penalty is a $50 fine.

NOTRE DAME VANQUISHED STANFORD IN FAST AND SPECTACULAR GAME

Pasadena Rose Bowl, Cal., Jan. 1 (By the A. P.)—A typhoon of speed swirled out of South Bend, Ind., and landed here today, swamping Stanford university's football team under a 27 to 10 score. Notre Dame had the speed.

The famous "Four Horsemen" were pitted against Ernie Nevers, of Stanford and the gallant cardinal, although he covered himself and his alma mater with glory, could not offset their repeated charges.

At that, the huge red-shirted Stanfords outcharged the squad blue-jerseyed linemen of Notre and it was owing to their work that the Paolo Alto institution was able to register ten points in the face of the fierce galloping of the cavalry of the Indianians.

Notre Dame added to its list of honors that of having scored the first victory for the east in four intersectional games played on the Pacific coast this season.

For the first time in a number of years the Rose bowl was packed to capacity and it was estimated that upwards of 52,000 watched the contest.

At every moment throughout the four periods the Notre Dame men lived up to their reputation for speed in foot and head.

The start was inauspicious for the easterners. Coach Rockne sent in his second string men to open the fight, but Stanford, strong, aggressive and beefy, shoved them steadily down field. Then Rockne called on his stars and the real battle was on. Stanford's errors, which might not have been very costly against other opponents, were fatal when pulled in the face of Notre Dame. When the cardinal foot slipped, the South Bend hand was there to take it.

Stanford started the scoring by a placement kick off Cuddeback's toe in the first period.

In the second period for the only time during the game, Notre Dame was able to gain consistently through the big red line. A prolonged drive ended when Layden bored through left guard three yards to a touchdown.

A few minutes later, Layden came to the front again, pulled Nevers' pass out of the air and sprinted 70 yards for the second South Bend touchdown. Crowley converted it.

In the third period occurred one of Stanford's expensive errors. Solomon fumbled a punt on his own 20-yard line. He stopped to recover when he might have played safely, falling on the ball. Huntsinger swooped down on him, shoved Solomon aside, grabbed the pigskin and ran unopposed to a touchdown. Crowley again converted. Later in the period, Notre Dame, defying rule and fate, boldly attempted a forward pass within its 20-yard line, and Nevers pulled it down. Then followed a series of line bucks, nearly all of them featuring the hefty Nevers, who savagely shoved, heaved and ground his way to Notre Dame's 80-yard line.

The horsemen from the east were set for another buck, but it did not come. Walker passed over the line to Ed Shipkey, and Stanford chalked up a touchdown. Cuddeback kicked goal for extra point. That ended Stanford's scoring.

In the fourth period Stanford had another opportunity. An intercepted forward pass on Notre Dame's 35-yard line put the ball in Baker's hands.

Nevers was called on and in a succession of plunges carried the spheres to Notre Dame's eight inch line. The stands thought it was a touchdown for Stanford, but when Referee George unscrambled the heap of players he found the goal mark had not been crossed.

The last scoring play of the contest gave Layden another chance to show his speed. He intercepted a pass from Nevers' hands and led a chase all the way for 35 yards across the Stanford chalk mark. Crowley's toe did the rest.

The four horsemen cantered, trotted and galloped with all the abandon expected of them. Harry Stuhldreher's play was handicapped when he twisted his left ankle early in the opening period and it slowed up his play during the remainder of the game although at no moment did it appear that any Cardinal back could match any South Bend back field man in point of speed.

Layden and Crowley were the most effective carriers for Notre Dame. Don Miller performed well, but his mark did not quite reach the high mark set by his team mates.

No one of the field today performed more brilliantly than the blonde giant fullback, Nevers, who was subjected to an unmerciful beating. Two broken ankles early in the season prevented Nevers getting into good shape as his teammates, and today saw him play his first full game in more than a year.

Except on the one occasion when he was halted on the eight-inch line, the Notre Dame line was unable to halt the terrific smashes that carried the force of every ounce of his 200 pounds.

Adam Walsh at center and Boland at tackle, were among the leading players on the visitors' line.

Captain Jim Lawson, Stanford right end, was one of the day's individual stars, although the entire Cardinal line performed with much credit.

Rockne made frequent substitutions at guard and tackle, the points at which the Stanford attacks were centered. The statistics of the game nearly all favor the losers. The Stanford gained 164 yards from scrimmage as compared with Notre Dame's 136. The Cardinals registered 17 first downs, ten more than the South Benders. Stanford completed 13 out of 17 attempted forward passes and Notre Dame three out of seven. The horsemen's aerial attack resulted in a gain of 48 yards while the Cardinals gained 146 yards.

Rockne's men were penalized four times for a total of 30 yards while a single 15-yard penalty was inflicted against Stanford. Notre Dame made one fumble, by Harry Stuhldreher on the first play, and it was the only bobble made by Notre Dame players, while three misplays were registered by Pop Warner's charges. Notre Dame intercepted five forward passes and Stanford two.

PENN BLANKED BY FAST CALIFORNIA TEAM

California Stadium, Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 1.—(By The A. P.)—There was a Quaker meeting here this afternoon and the congregation numbering some 60,000 was confirmed in the belief that football is a great sport and that the faith of five years in the impregnability of the University of California was justified once more. The creed was reaffirmed by a 14 to 0 victory over the University of Pennsylvania—otherwise the Quakers.

California outplayed Pennsylvania almost, but not quite, from start to finish, the exception being part of the third period, when the visitors made a desperate but unavailing spurt.

California at the outset started to show its stuff when Young, who replayed buck, traveled 25 yards. A 12-yard pass, Dixon to Young, put the ball in Pennsylvania's territory. The Penn resistance stiffened and the Bears carried out the strategy of grounding a short punt within inches of the opposing goal line. Thus requiring the enemy to line up in front of its cross bars. A little later the same scheme was worked. Both times McGraw punted out, but the home team continued to bring the ball back far into Quakerland. Finally, a fake drop kick, Young got to the four yard line. He then plunged over guard for a touchdown, Carlson kicked the goal.

The Quakers could not gain and started punting on second down. But they made a pretty rally when Kruez emerged from a pile-up and ran 11 yards. The visitors made another first down on the next play, but this was all.

In the second period they continued their kicking game.

After several exchanges, however, they started bucking and Laird dashed around end for a first down. A pass, McGraw to Tahyer gained 25 yards and thrilled the Penn spectators. An attempt at place kick failed.

California had the ball and a toss from Dixon to Imlay netted 36 yards. Imlay continued to gain on reverse plays. Dixon threw one to Young that travelled 27 yards. But the Bears had hard luck and were stopped short on two completed passes and lost. A moment later they regained it on a punt. More passes, one of them from Dixon to Meil for 16 yards, brought them close to the opposing goal. Young started plunging through but the half ended apparently robbing California of a score. The Quakers came back for the second half all pepped up. Fields went through for 13 yards. The ball was advanced steadily. McGraw made 15 yards on a reverse. Leth dashed around end. The ball was taken to the California one yard line, where the Bears held for downs and punted out.

The Bears then kept the ball out of danger. In the fourth quarter there were several fumbles. Captain McGraw of Pennsylvania made what the official announcer said was his first fumble in three years. The reliable Imlay, too, fumbled. In the Quaker backfield Fields, Leth and McGraw began rallying. But Carey of California knocked down a long pass. Later the visitors completed several tosses but they were for such short gains that the ball was lost on downs.

California scored the only touchdown after Imlay had made spectacular runs around end. Giffin plunged straight through the line for the score. Again Carlson kicked the goal and the score was 14 to 0

California's speed and deceptive way of executing delayed bucks and fake reverses were responsible for many gains. The others were made on the short passes, from Dixon to Imlay or Young or Meil. W. Dixon's aim was deadly.

Every time Imlay got into the open he ran like a wild horse and was almost as hard to stop.

It looked several times as if Pennsylvania led by the redoubtable McGraw, would unleash an unstoppable offensive. But California, touted more as an offensive team, showed a line like granite.

On the other hand, Pennsylvania considered to have the best defensive team in the east was by no means impregnable.

McGraw outpunted Dixon, on the whole, but the Bears did not rely on punting.

Notre Dame-Stanford Game in Detail

FIRST PERIOD

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 1.—O'Boyle's kickoff hit the goal post and the ball went into play on the Cardinal 20-yard line. A pass, Nevers to Cuddeback, gained six yards. Nevers ripped four yards through right guard. Nevers made first down on a buck off left tackle.

On an attempted right end run Walker was smothered by three Notre Dame men without any gain. Nevers tried to gain through left tackle, but failed. Notre Dame was penalized five yards for offside.

Cuddeback galloped twelve yards to the South Bend's 49 yard line, and the Stanford rooters went wild. This sent Notre Dame into consultation and time was taken out. The Indiana fullback, Caveny, was taken from the game apparently severely injured. Livergood replaced him. Boland broke through and dropped Walker for a two yard loss. A pass from Nevers to left end Ted Shipkey gained eleven yards in Stanford's favor. The blonde battering ram, Nevers, was used to make it first down for a three yard buck over right guard. Boland stopped Nevers, delayed Buck and heaved him back one yard behind the line. O'Boyle grounded Walker's pass to Captain Jim Lawson and the Indiana section turned loose with a yell. O'Boyle repeated on the next play. On fourth down with twelve yards to go, Cuddeback dropped aft to the 46-yard line for an attempt at a place kick. The ball failed to make good and while the players were lining up, Rockne sent in the famous "Four Horsemen," and their seven corporals to replace the second team.

Notre Dame resumed with the ball in its possession on the Indiana 20-yard line. Stuhldreher, the All-American quarterback, fumbled on the first play, and Johnson recovered for Stanford on Notre Dame's 17-yard line. Two line drives by Nevers advanced the ball to the ten-yard line. Cuddenback dropped back again, this time to the 17-yard line for another attempt at a placement kick. This time he and the ball made good. Score: Stanford 3, Notre Dame 0.

Layden kicked out of bounds on the kick-off for Notre Dame and the teams lined up to do it all over again. At the second attempt Cuddeback received the ball on his goal line and ran it back 23 yards. Notre Dame was penalized for piling on Cuddeback after he had been tackled. Nevers ran the ball out of bounds without gain on the 39-yard line.

The fair-haired giant from Stanford ran the ball out of bounds on a delayed right tackle buck after an eight yard gain. Nevers, for the third time in succession, went into play with a gain of a yard and a half, through right guard. With a half yard to go for first down, Cuddeback punted over the Notre Dame goal line. Layden made two yards through center from the twenty yard line. Then came Crowley and he went far, 60 yards around right and out of bounds. Don Miller grabbed the ball and toted it three yards around left end to the 45-yard line. Back came Crowley this time he slipped through left tackle and went his way for a 15-yard gain. Much Notre Dame cheering at this particular juncture. A pass from Stuhldreher to Don Miller, Notre Dame's first aerial thrust, sent the pigskin to Stanford's 21-yard line. That was far enough and Layden hit left tackle for a yard. On the following play Don Miller rushed the ball to the 9-yard line around left field. Then both teams went into consultation. Stanford taking time out.

Layden shoved ahead through right tackle for three yards. Crowley was forced out of bounds on a right end run. Miller lost five yards on at attempted wide left end gallop. Ted Shipkey hurried Stuhldreher's forward pass and it fell far from any Notre Dame receiver. Stanford once again took time out. A doctor was called to bandage Stuhldrer's ankle. Cardinal boosters noted with satisfaction that Ernie Nevers' ankles were holding out and going strong.

Nevers lost three yards on a run into the line from punt formation, Welbel broke through and nailed the big Stanford plunger. Cuddeback, standing back of his goal line, punted to the 32 yard mark.

A foot was gained through right tackle by Crowley.

The same young man gained 15 yards again through right tackle.

Don Miller added another two yards through left end. Layden tried to puncture center but was stopped by Nevers without making a gain. Layden hit center again, this time carrying the ball to the Stanford 10-yard line. Layden completed his bit of campaigning by making its first down on the seven yard line, with a headlong dive through center.

Score and first period: Stanford 3; Notre Dame 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Referee Ed Thorp forced Captain Jim Lawson of Stanford to remove the steel brace from his knee.

Crowley twisted through right tackle to the Stanford three yard line and Layden scored the touchdown on a dive through left guard.

Crowley's attempted goal kick was blocked by Johnston with his brawny chest.

Score: Notre Dame 6; Stanford 3.

Cuddeback kicked a grass clipper. Stuhldreher nailed it on his 20 yard line and ran it back seven yards. Crowley failed to gain around right end. Three Red Shirts stopped Don Miller after a one-yard gain around left end.

Crowley's long pass to Huntsinger was grounded. Layden put his toe under the ball on his 20-yard line and punted to Stanford's 20-yard line and the ball rolled over the goal line. Fred Solomon's first excussion with the ball took him nine yards through left guard. Nevers added 11 yards through right tackle.

Notre Dame got another penalty, five yards, for offside. Cuddeback went ahead two yards on a criss-cross through left tackle. Nevers made it three more through right tackle. On a reverse around left end, Jim Lawson, even without his steel braces gained 14 yards. Walker was stopped after a one-yard advance around right end. Five yards was Nevers' total plunge off right tackle but he failed to gain for another attempt through left guard. Layden intercepted Nevers' forward pass in his 30-yard line and raced down the sidelines to a touchdown.

Crowley converted it.

Score: Notre Dame 13; Stanford 3.

Layden's spectacular play consisted of a basketball stop of Nevers' pass, a second's juggling in the air, and then the tell-tale run that piled up the score.

Cuddeback kicked off across the goal line. Miller went three yards over right guard. McMullen replaced Bach at left tackle for the Indiana squad.

Miller made another three yards through center. Crowley caught Stuhldreher's pass out of bounds. Much to the disgust of the Notre dame section of the stands. Solomon ran back Stuhldreher's punt 15 yards to the 50 yard line.

Nevers travelled a trio of yards over left guard and Stuhldreher retaliated by intercepting Nevers' pass on his 36 yard line, but the Notre Dame man ran out of bounds.

Notre Dame registered a 30-yard gain by Stuhldreher's pass to Crowley, who romped 20 yards after receiving the ball before he was downed by Johnston. Stuhldreher ran the pigskin out of bounds without any gain Crowley, contrary to his custom, lost a yard around right end. Layden picked up this yard and added five more through right guard. Stuhldreher tried another forward pass but it came to ground and Stanford took the ball on its 20 yard line.

Kelly replaced Walker at Stanford's left half. Then Stanford tried a forward pass, a short one to Kelly for an eight yard gain. Nevers did the tossing. Nevers made it first down through center on the 40-yard line. Cuddeback with a four man interference, drifted five yards off right tackle.

Stanford piled up another 10 yards on a pass from Nevers to Ted Shipkey on an end-around play. Ted went ahead nine yards. Nevers came to the fore and barely made his yardage over left tackle, first down.

Next Solomon took Nevers' pass and made a dash to the 10 yard line before he was brought down by three ruffing Indiananas. Kelly fumbled on the following play and Captain Adam Walsh recovered on his 15 yard line. The period ended. Score: Notre Dame 13; Stanford 3.

THIRD PERIOD

When the period opened, Boland replaced McMullen for Notre Dame at left tackle. Cuddeback kicked out of bound and tried it over. On his second effort he booted the ball into Crowley's hands on the Notre Dame five yard line and Cuddeback brought him down on the 18-yard line. Don Miller gained a yard through left tackle. Ted Shipkey tackled Crowley for no gain. Layden's punt went high and short out of bounds on his own 34 yard line.

Stanford made an end-around play and Ted Shipkey heaved and shoved his way forward for eight yards. Nevers dented center for three yards, but the gain was null and void when Stanford was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Cuddeback passed to Ted Shipkey who travelled to the Notre Dame 23 yard line where he was downed.

Nevers lost two yards on a line plunge. On an end-around effort Lawson advanced three yards. A delayed buck resulted in Shipkey going backward one yard. Cuddeback's third attempt at a placement kick, this time from the 31-yard line, went wide. Layden heaved his way a yard by way of center. Miller put another yard to it, through left tackle.

The going was slow through the Stanford line and eagerness for strategy cost Notre Dame 5 yards for delaying the game. Solomon took Layden's punt on the Stanford 48-yard line and returned the ball seven yards.

Nevers made no gain on a delayed buck through left guard. Nevers passed over the line to Ted Shipkey, who carried the ball to Notre Dame's 36 yard line. Lawson was run out of bounds on an end-around play, and lost four yards. Nevers tried a pass to Solomon, but it was grounded.

Nevers carried the ball three yards over right tackle. Again Cuddleback tried a placement kick, but it fell short and wide. Miller was dropped on the 20-yard line without gain. Laden punted to Solomon, who fumbled on his 20-yard line. Right end Huntzinger shoved Solomon away from the ball, scooped it up and ran across a clear field for a touchdown. Crowley did the feet, converting score Notre Dame 20, Stanford 3.

Walker came back in the game for the Cardinals and relieved Kelly. Cuddeback kicked off over the Notre Dame goal line.

Miller galloped out of bounds after a four yard gain through dead center. Nevers intercepted Stuhldreher's forward pass on the Notre Dame 20-yard line and on the next play traveled four yards off right tackle. Two more yards were credited to Nevers on a [illegible] Lawson toured left end and [illegible] the ball for a gain. Back came Nevers and made first down with a four yard smash through right guard. Stanford called for Nevers again and he hit the same spot for three more yards.

He came again, this time ploughing through center another three yards. Hanouske came from the Notre Dame bench to replace Kiser, right guard. The Indiana guards were standing terrific hammering from the Cardinal backs.

The indefatigable Nevers, head down, whacked two yards through right guard. Here came a climax. Notre Dame was set for another buck, but Stanford crossed the Four Horsemen when Walker tossed a pass to Ted Shipkey over the line, a touchdown. Cuddeback's goal kick barely crawled over the bars.

Score Notre Dame 20; Stanford 10.

Cuddeback kicked over the goal line. Crowley fought his way two yards through right tackle as the period ended. Score Notre Dame twenty; Stanford 10.

FOURTH PERIOD

Don Miller squeezed through left end for a yard and a half. Baker of Stanford intercepted Crowley's pass and returned the ball four yards to the Notre Dame 36 yard line. On another end around play Ted Shipkey gained 3 yards with two of Rockne's leeches clinging to him.

Nevers added six yards through left tackle. Ted Shipkey flashed around right end for five more. The ball was on Notre Dame's 14 yard line. Nevers cut through right guard for another three yards. Cuddeback hit left tackle for a yard. McMullen replaced Boland at left tackle for Notre Dame.

Stanford also made a change, Hunt for Neil at right guard. Nevers made first down, lunging over left guard to the six yard post. Once again Nevers this time through center to the Notre Dame three yard line.

Gleuckert came in for Welbel at left guard for Notre Dame. Walker failed to gain through right tackle. The crowd was tense as Nevers again took the ball and shoved through to the one yard line.

Nevers fought his way to within eight inches of the line and Stanford lost the ball. Layden punted to Solomon who carried the ball to Notre Dame's 36 yard line. Crowley intercepted Walker's pass and stepped out of bounds on his 22 yard line.

Crowley gained three yards off right tackle. Then Miller plunged one yard through right tackle. It was Layden's turn next, two yards through center. Layden sent a high spirited punt to Solomon, who was tackled on Stanford's 27 yard line. The long and Rangy Cuddeback passed to Jim Lawson who bored along for a 15-yard gain. Crowe replaced Collins at left end for Notre Dame.

The pace was telling on both teams A pass, Nevers to Ted Shipkey, gained nine yards, and Nevers added four more through left guard for first down. Another Nevers to Shipkey pass netted two yards. A pass, with Walker throwing the ball, was grounded. Solomon, Stanford's quarterback, was relieved by Mitchell Nevers dropped back to pass, but all his receivers were covered and he did his own running and gained a yard. He went through center for first down on Notre Dame's 35 yard line. Crowley intercepted Nevers' pass on his 10 yard line. Miller bored through left tackle for three yards. He made another three yards via the same hole. Layden fumbled, Stuhldreher recovered and was thrown on his 15 yard line.

Layden punted out of bounds on his 37 yard line. Scarer replaced Stuhldreher at Notre Dame's quarter. Nevers pass over the goal line was grounded. Nevers' next pass was intercepted by Layden, who rambled from his own 35 yard line to a touchdown. Rockne sent in four substitutes and Crowley converted with a drop kick.

Score, Notre Dame 27, Stanford 10

Cuddeback kicked out of bounds and on his next trial sent the ball over the goal line. Edwards, coming into the game afresh, went through center. The pistol cracked and the game was ended.

Final score, Notre Dame 27, Stanford 10.

HOPER OUTPOINTS ROJAS — IN TEN-ROUND BOUT

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 1.—Captain Bob Roper, Roanoke, Va., heavyweight, was given a shade over Quentin Romero Rojas, South American heavyweight, in a ten-round bout here today, by newspapermen. The bout consisted mostly of infighting, at which Roper was superior.

Three rounds were credited to Roper, one to Rojas and the others even.

The first round was even. Both men fought hard, getting in a number of body blows. The second round was much the same.

The third round went to Roper. In this round he let fly a short left hook that caught Rojas over the eye, opening up a severe cut which bothered Rojas during the remainder of the bout. The fourth round was even.

The fifth round went to Rojas. Several times during the round he brought into play a left hook to Roper's body which had plenty of steam. The sixth round was even, as was the seventh.

Roper took the eighth round. Rojas was warned for using the kidney punch. The ninth was even. In the final round Roper stepped out and completely outclassed his opponent.

In the semi-final, Lyle Des Voignes, Kalamazoo, shaded Sailor DeShone of South Bend, Ind. The men are welterweights.

SLATTERY KAYOES EAGAN IN JUST 37 SECONDS

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 1.—Jimmy Slattery, the Buffalo middleweight, took signal revenge this afternoon on Joe Eagan of Boston, who last winter was given a six round verdict over the local champion. Slattery, in splendid form, tore into Eagan from the gong and in a smart bit of hitting forced the Hubite toward a neutral corner. Here a left jolt to the jaw sagged Joe over and a sweeping right to the head knocked him clear across the ring in a heap amidst the hopes. He struggled to his feet at nine but fell back helpless and Referee Nugent waved Slattery to his chair the winner.

The fight went but 37 seconds. It was some minutes before Eagan thoroughly comprehended what had happened. Both men looked fit, with Slattery at 161 1-2 and Eagan at 160 1-2. They boxed before a big holiday crowd.

FUENTE WINS DECISION OVER HOMER SMITH

Mexico City, Jan. 1.—(By The A. P.)—Tony Fuente, the Mexican heavyweight, today won the decision over Homer Smith, an American boxer, on a foul in the fifth round of what was to have been a twelve round bout.

After the referee had rendered his decision some of the spectators tried to assault Smith, claiming he had purposely hit his opponent low.

New York, Jan. 1 (By the A. P.)—California's victory over the Pennsylvania football eleven and Notre Dame's conquest of Stanford today left the Pacific coast on even terms in the intersectional series which started in 1915. The east and middle west have lost as many as they have won. The standing:

Upon his return to St. Louis, after being abroad with the White Sox and Giants, Harold (Muddy) Ruel, catcher for the worlds' champions, was entertained by the Paulian Council of the Knights of Columbus in St. Louis. Muddy brought back from Ireland a shillelagh which he presented to John B. Sheridan, his first boss. Sherry says that he figures it would be justifiable homicide for any one to shoot down a person caught carrying one of the black thorns.

ARMY-NAVY CLUB OUTCLASSED BY FALL RIVER AMERICAN THREAD FIVE

Playing only mediocre basketball until the last few minutes of play the Taftville Army-Navy Five went down to defeat at the hands of the American Thread Five of Fall River, Mass., New Year's afternoon at Parish hall by a score of 30 to 24. The visitors by a brilliant and baffling passwork completely outclassed the home team and rompel home with an easy victory.

The only flash of real form shown by the Army-Navy team came in the last few minutes when with the score 30 to 18 against them they made a desperate rally. In these few minutes of play the local team displayed a brilliant attack with some snappy passwork that netted them 6 points but they were unable to overcome the commanding lead piled up by the visitors. The Army-Navy team was far from top form and the brand of basketball played was the poorest of any yet demonstrated this season.

The score at half time was 16 to 14 in favor of the visitors but when the second half opened the Fall River [illegible] their initial up to 10 and then they relaxed their efforts.

The real game was the preliminary battle between the Army-Navy Seconds and the Celtics in which the Celtics snatched away the Junior crown from the Seconds who have held it for the past two years. The Seconds were loath to let go their hold on the title and it was not until the final minute of play that the Celtics nosed out the titleholders by a score of 21 to 19. Gauthier and Donegan featured for the Seconds.

THE NEED IS FOR BETTER FARMING

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Well, have you got used to writing and calling it "1925," yet? Be honest, and own up that you have to be mighty careful when you date a letter or sign a document that you don't date it "1924!" This getting out of even so small a rut as that isn't as easy as rolling off a log. We're all creatures of habit. We've got into the habit of thinking of it as "1924," and it will be 1924 some time before we all find the new number come trippingly off our tongues or flowing easily off our pens.

In one sense, it doesn't make much difference. I didn't notice there was any visible or tangible mark when we crossed the 1924-25 line. The sunrise of Jan. 1, 1925, was in no way distinguishable from that of Dec. 31, 1924; the chick-a-dee's peeping note suggested no change; the outer cold nipped as frostily and the big "chunk stove" within doors radiated warmth as generously on one day as the other. I didn't notice any change in my appetite or any difference in the flavor of my after-dinner smoke. The world, in fact, seemed just about the same old world and everything in or about it very much of a muchness.

Nevertheless, the kitchen clock and the insurance company's calendar hanging up beside it were not mistaken. They had measured off the drippings from Time's hour-glass with incontestable accuracy. They could not be denied nor their testimony disputed. We had entered on another year.

—By the way, and while this thought is fresh, let me interject a query: How many of us unconsciously make a distinction between "Time" and "Eternity?" How many of us unthinkingly talk about passing out of Time and into Eternity? How many of us seem to look on Eternity as something which is going to begin for us when we have ended with Time?

Ah, no; Time is itself Eternity. And Eternity had no beginning any more than it can have any end. For Eternity is only Endless Time. We shall never merge into it because we are this moment living in it. It is not a something of the future only, but a fact of the infinite past and of the fleeting present. When we talk glibly of measuring Time, we mean only that we are counting chips floating across our vision on the surface of the eternal stream which rose from no springs, however distant, and empties into no ocean, however remote, but flows forever in infinite, unborn and undying volume.

But enough of that. Such thoughts are beyond the irrevent mind and too literally awe-inspiring for the continued contemplation of the reverent. Our clocks and our calendars mark off the hours and days of that passing segment of eternity with which we are most nearly concerned. They tick out season after season from the topless future and drop them into the bottomless past. Moreover, in practical, every-day matters it is only the present with which we can contend and over which we can exercise any sort of rule.

"The past and the time to be are one, And both are now."

This is just as true for us farmers as for bankers watching the maturity of investments or common folks waiting for rent day to come and the tax collector to show up. The only speck of Time— or Eternity,—which we can make practical use of is the instant which we can grasp for a fraction of a second at it flutters by.

For instance, in my particular case, there's the wood-pile out back, sawed into stove lengths but waiting to be split and piled up to season. Yesterday in out of the accounting as regards that wood-pile. Tomorrow hasn't come and can't be caught till it arrives. But today, Jan. 2, 1925, I split and pile till I have accomplished the day's stint. If I didn't do yesterday's stint, it is undone. If I don't do today's it will lie in wait for me tomorrow. Today is mine and, just as soon as I get through pounding this typewriter, I shall tackle that pile.

From one case it is possible to understand many. Your today's job may be something utterly unlike wood-splitting. But, whatever it is, it is waiting for you, and will wait till you do it. It may be mending a broken stable floor; it may be tacking down a loose shingle on the roof; it may be any of ten thousand things, and not two of them the same on farms within a hundred miles of each other. But it's there beckoning to you, and while your neglect may not be a capital offense, it is a blunder, at the very mildest. For putting off an unwelcome task never yet made the ultimate necessity of its doing any easier. It will be just as hard next week as today, and you'll have had, in addition, a week's discomfort in dreading it.

It is customary to sneer at New Year's resolutions. The "funny men" of the press will never cease their jibes at those who make and break such conventional vows. Nor is there, really, much to be said in their behalf. They're too often more gambler's I O U's which the giver knows he can't pay and doesn't really intend to.

Instead of making out mortgages on the future, I suspect some of us would get more profit from reviewing the past. It is by our own mistakes that we are taught wisdom. Nature isn't a kindly school-ma'am telling us beforehand how to solve problems. She's a don't-care-a-dam sort of old girl who pitchforks us into a quagmire and bids us find our own way out. If we choose the wrong way she simply turns her back and ignores us. We can smother or not. Little does she care. She doesn't take interest enough even to grin at our floundering. It's up to us. That's all there is to it.

Very well: such being the state of affairs, those of us who at first chose a wrong way and wiggled ourselves deeper and deeper into the quag, will show wisdom, when we finally crawl out, to make a sort of mental map of that slime-pit, in order to avoid repeating the mistake. My pet definition of the difference between a wise man and a fool is that, while they both make mistakes, the wise man never makes the same mistake twice, while the fool does.

New Year's season may not be in itself any different from other seasons. But it marks a line which, while as imaginary as the well-known equator, nevertheless suggests passage from the known to the unknown. It is a sort of half-way house on the trip where, if we will, we may stop and make a few notes concerning the journey, while waiting for dinner.

If you didn't make any mistakes last year in your farming, you are a miracle and I don't believe in you. For the days of miracles are past. If you didn't make a whole lot of mistakes you're an exception. And I am not going to bother myself about exceptions. Most of us made quite as many mistakes as we did ten-strikes. Now a highly suitable question for New Year's is: Are we going to make as many or any of the same ones, this year?

In the old Greek myth there are two brothers, Prometheus and Epimetheus. Prometheus was forever speculating about the future and trying to peer into it and build bridges to distant rainbows. He ended up chained to a rock on Caucasus with a vulture forever tearing at his liver. Epimetheus, on the other hand, kept always looking backward along the route he travelled and, by noting his past mistakes, managed to miss a good many he would, otherwise, have tumbled into. He avoided the chains and the vultures, anyway.

There's an old saying that hindsight is much better than foresight. Now this, like many other old saws, needs to be taken with judgment. It isn't a good dose to swallow "unsight-unseen" and without any mollifying dilutant. Hindsight is certainly apt to be truer than foresight. So far we can all agree. It's records are undeniable and its teachings much more meaty. At the same time, a man without any foresight is apt to be a stupid sort of oaf.

The fact is that hindsight and foresight are brothers, — twin brothers. Between 'em, they make a pretty good team. When you're plowing you want one to look ahead across the field at the stake you've set for a mark. You need the other to squint backwards and see if the furrow you're actually making is straight or crooked. If you don't look ahead and hold the horses true to the mark, the off-horse is apt to lag a little and imperceptibly turn your furrow into a curve. If you don't occasionally look back you'll be apt to put a le-e-t-l-e- too much cress on one plow-handle or the other, and so make the furrow a series of wabblings.

Naturally, in beginning a New Year, one tends towards plans for its development. This is not only natural but laudable.

The only point I'm trying to make, this morning, is that, before deciding too fixedly on those plans for the future it will be well to review rather carefully the doings of the year past, and take due warning from its mistakes. It would be foolish to go kerplump into the same quagmire we had such a scramble getting out of, last year. We didn't, perhaps, know it was there at the time. But we know, now, from miry experience. Better plan so as to go around it or, better yet, drain it dry and thereby add a bit of valuable land to your acreage.

According to the poet, "Men may rise on stepping-stones of their dead selves to nobler things." Probably. Certainly the farmer can, by learning from his past mistakes, rise to a steadily better farming practice. And that's something to be desired.

For the immediate need in the present emergency is not so much more farming as better farming.

You've all heard of the old farmer who said he could sometimes accomplish more, by sitting half a day on the fence, whittling, than he could by plunging into the field with his hoe.

Perhaps a day "off" about this time, reviewing past mistakes and scheming how to avoid repeating them, might do quite as well.

STATE BOARD DISTRIBUTES SCHOOL HEALTH PROGRAMME

The state board of education has recently distributed among the schools of the state the first of a series of bulletins being prepared by its division of physical education and health on the health education of the child. "The School Health Program," as the new publication is called, is a pamphlet of 100 pages and is being offered to the school administrator and to the school health specialists of the state as a basis for constructive planning in the field of health education. This obligation for the preparation of such a bulletin as well as for the administration of health education was placed upon the state board of education by the general assembly in 1921. The scope of the program as suggested not only endorses all phases of health work now being carried on by the school, such as the health inspection, nutrition work, school nursing, etc., but goes further, and recommends the adoption of stronger measures for preventing the spread of contagious disease, the sanitation of school buildings and a broader program for the care of the children's teeth.

A large part of the material is devoted to the activities of the school physician, dentist, nurse, dental hygienist and nutritionist, for the purpose of assisting those workers in formulating a modern program in their specialties. One section is given to a consideration of the function of the nurse in rural schools where the need for health education has been found to be greater than in the city schools.

Special emphasis is placed upon the opportunity which the school has to instruct all children in the care of the teeth and to assist these children in lessening their teeth decay and well Statistics are given to show the great need for this type of health work. Of especial interest is the report of a survey conducted in Connecticut which found that 31 per cent. of the school children in a group of country towns have one or more decayed teeth. It is also pointed out that according to available figures there are approximately 102 towns in the state without a resident dentist. To offset this a number of suggestions are made to bring the dentists' skill to these children in the small towns.

Appropriate comment is made concerning the need for greater cooperation from the parents and the community before the school can do its full share in the preparation of its pupils for citizenship.

The Chicago civic opera company filed a petition asking that Feodor Chaliapin, noted operatic star, be enjoined from making any public appearances in Washington, D. C., prior to February 10, 1925.

One youngster replied that he "fed the hens but they were not laying now." Mrs. Mabel Jones played the organ accompaniment for the songs. After the distribution of gifts from the tree refreshments were served. The children had oranges and candy. A social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Rathbun played the organ and Harold Hemlech sang.

Mrs. Henry Babcock entertained her son, Arthur Babcock, and daughter-in-law, with the latter's mother, Mrs Burdick, of Westerly, Christmas day Orville Chesebrough and aunt Frances Main, entertained friends from Westerly on that day.

Rev. F. S. Robbins preached in the chapel as usual Sunday morning. Topic, God's Love. The sermon was very impressive. The new singing books, The Pilot, have arrived and contain besides old favorites new gems of gospel songs.

Miss Dorothy Lester has returned to her school here, after spending Christmas at her home in Ledyard.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

THE ELEPHANT'S DREAM

I suppose, little reader, you've been wondering since reading the story before this what the Dream Fairy whispered to Little Jack Rabbit and his kind friend, the Circus Elephant, as they both lay sound asleep in the big tent.

Now, right away I must explain that I don't know for they never told me. But I did hear from pretty Robbie Redvest that all of a sudden the big elephant began to smile in his sleep; then wagged his funny short tail and wiggled his ears, almost brushing away the Dream Fairy as she bent over him.

"Here are two cookies and a lettuce leaf."

The next minute the bunny boy's nose began to twinkle like a little firefly's lantern in the dark, and his pink ears to wiggle jiggle, but not so much as the elephant's, because they were so much smaller, you know.

By and by it grew dark—dark as the inside of a pocket or the corner of a farmhouse cellar. Still the bunny and the big elephant snored on, and only when Mr. Merry Sun poked his golden fingers into the big tent did they wake up.

"Gee Willikins," yawned the Circus Elephant, "I dreamed I was back in India. How sweet the temple bells sounded."

"I dreamed I was in a Clover Patch," laughed the bunny boy. "How sweet the red tops tasted," and jumping up, he put out his paw to help the old elephant to his feet.

"Never mind, but thank you just the same," laughed the bunny boy's big sleepy elephant friend, grasping the tent pole with his trunk to help himself on his four big feet. "Glad you came last night. I'm feeling rosy pink instead of inky blue this morning. Let's have breakfast," and he walked out to a smaller tent nearby.

"Here are two cookies and a lettuce leaf," he said, handing them to the little rabbit. "Now I'll go out and bring in a bale of hay. That's good breakfast food for me. Wish I had Clover Cereal for you. Every boy and girl should eat cereal in the morning.

After a while and a laugh and a smile, for the old elephant felt mighty happy to have his little friend with him, the bunny boy said goodbye and hopped away. As soon as he reached the Old Hollow Stump Telephone Booth, he shouted over the wire:

"Beny, meeny, miny, mo, Bramble Bushes Bungalow."

The next minute, Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother answered:

"Hello, hello, Oh peace and joy,
It is my little rabbit boy."

"Yes, that's who it is,' laughed the happy bunny. "Didn't Robbie Red-Vest tell you that I was to spend the night with the Circus Elephant? I asked him to." (I forgot to mention this in the last story, boys and girls, but you'll pardon me, won't you?)

"Yes, and so I never worried." answered the little lady rabbit, and in the next story I'll tell you what happened after that.

BINDLOSS H. HILLIAR, NEW LONDON, DIES SUDDENLY ON NEW YEAR'S

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 1.—Bindloss H. Hilliar, 76, a well known resident of this city and for many years a master plumber with shops in various parts of the city, died suddenly of heart trouble this morning at his residence, 517 Williams street. He is survived by two sons, Charles H. and Raymond H. Hilliar, both of New London, and by two daughters, Mrs. Louise Bowser of Westerly, and Mrs. Richard Adamson of New London. Mr. Hilliar owned about a score of dwellings in the northerly part of the city. He had been in ill health many months as a result of the heart affection, although it was not until recently that he had been confined to his home. This morning he rose and had been about the house but a short time when he suffered a sinking attack and returned to bed. He lingered but a short time, expiring before a physician could be summoned.

An automobile, owned and operated by Arthur May, of 435 Montauk avenue, and a machine, owned and driven by Mario Molnatt, of Niantic, were in collision last night on Bank street, near Blinman street. Both cars were damaged and each driver placed the responsibility for the accident upon the other, but Molnatt also alleged that May had been guilty of recklessness and lodged a complaint against the latter. May was before Judge Lewis Crandall in the police court this morning, but the case was not tried, being continued to Monday next.

May was operating his automobile southerly, on Bank street, and at the corner of Blinman street encountered Molnatt's car, in which was Reuben Prottas, a Niantic grain dealer. The cars came together with great force, Molnatt and Prottas being injured. They were given medical treatment at Lawrence hospital. Molnatt suffered a lacerated nose, while Prottas received lacerations of the face and head. Both men returned to their homes after their wounds had been dressed.

Mrs. Frances Merritt, of Jay street, a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, was able to return to her home today.

An automobile owned and driven by Henry E. Squires, 24 Spring street, struck an unidentified man on Bank street, near Lane A last night. The man, after regaining his feet, walked away and refused to give his name to Squires.

Yesterday was the happiest day of all the old year, but the morning after the night before brought three of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors into the police court, to answer for too free indulgence in that which intoxicates. There were a couple of sailors who said they were rum chasers, and they might have added that they found what they had been chasing, for they were picked up in a condition of such helplessness as led officers to take them into custody. One soldier who came over from Fort Wright yesterday was found wandering about Bank street unable to take care of himself. He is Willard Gigier, the name being a misnomer, for the man was anything but a gigler. He said he fell in with friends and they were drinking wine. They sought to have him drink, but he declined till the last and then yielded. That settled things for Gigler. He was drunk.

Victor Brusso, a sailor from the coast guard ship Pequot, loaded up and thus was in condition to make his first appearance at the police station. He has been in the service so long that he will be eligible for discharge next month. He said he had had enough now and that he intends to return to his old home in New Bedford as soon as he can.

Millard Teabout, a sailor from the rum-chaser Jouett, was picked up drunk on Bank street. He probably took the duties of the ship when he came ashore, for he found what he was chasing and it floored him. Assistant Judge Crandall was on the bench and he handed the accused man a sort of New Year's present, for he suspended judgment for all, but he gave them some good advice which included warning that when they came again they would get a fine or a jail sentence.

Joseph Gordon, last August was charged with the embezzlement as bailee of a sum of money which he collected for the P. Adel company, fruit dealers. At that time the hearing of the complaint was continued four months and Gordon promised to make good the loss his employers had sustained. Today the case came up on continuance, when the statement was made that Gordon had made good and had gone to New Britain.

New Year's day was more generally observed here today than ever before. Only a small percentage of the stores were open for business, the banks were closed and manufacturing was suspended almost entirely. The streets were deserted as the weather was too cold for comfort out of doors. On ponds where the ice permitted skaters were assembled in considerable number.

The intensely low temperature has put a stop to a great deal of work that was being done out of doors, but on the Barrows building foundation and on the Klinck and Hollandersky buildings the task of construction will be pursued while snow holds off.

Mrs. Annie M. Howard, 80, a former resident of New London and widow of J. Porter Howard, died Tuesday at her home in Morristown, N. J. She is survived by a brother, Frederick W. Hull, a New London contractor, and by a daughter, Miss Harriet Howard of Morristown.

Mrs. Nora Crandall, 62, widow of Nathan J. Crandall, died this morning at her residence, 443 Bank street, death terminating a lingering illness caused by a shock which Mrs. Crandall suffered some time ago. Mrs. Crandall was born in Mystic, but had resided in New London the greater part of her life. She is survived by two sons, Frank Crandall of New York, and James Crandall, of this city and by two daughters, Mrs. G. Thatcher Shepard and Mrs. Mary Coughlin, both of New London.

The funeral of Albert O. Morin, son of Louis Morin, of Palmertown, was held this morning at St. John's church, Montville, and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Conlon, of Hartford. The bearers were Dennis Monville, Henry Bullard, Edward Geary, Louis Monville, Oliver Laboudy, and Henry St. Germain. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Montville.

Patrolman Howard Sloan is confined to his home on Broad street, having suffered a severe attack of stomach trouble.

Supernumerary Patrolman Clarence Martin, who recently received the temporary appointment to patrol duty in place of Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan, who has petitioned the city manager for retirement because of ill health, was assigned to duty tonight, going on patrol with the 7 o'clock shift and was assigned to the beat on the east side of State street.

The fire last night at the residence of Max Fern, 136 Pequot avenue, corner of School street, caused damage even greater than was at first estimated for the loss has now been placed at $15,000 instead of $10,660. The residence was a most substantial one, having been erected by Capt. Thomas A. Scott, of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking Company, Inc., and sold about three years ago to Mr. Fern. The blaze, which originated in the cellar, is believed to have been caused either by an overheated furnace or a defective flue. For immediately following the discovery of the fire, the flames worked their way through the partitions to the roof, causing the entire gutting of the upper part of the structure, besides destroying a major portion of the furnishings of the place.

During the progress of fighting the fire three firemen were injured, two seriously. Foreman Charles Brown of the Niagara Engine company and Clifford Smith and Walter Capwell, hosemen, were on a ladder, which had been made slippery because of water freezing to it. They were thrown to the frozen ground when one of the fire fighters slipped and brought the others down with him. This forenoon it was determined by an X-ray picture that Brown had suffered the fracture of a bone at the back of his foot, while Smith received a fractured hip. Capwell's injury consisted of a laceration of the thumb.

The damage to the Northwest Hose company pumper, which was in collision with a Post Hill line trolley company car on Broad street at the corner of Brainard street, is much greater than supposed and it will require an expenditure of a considerable sum to place the apparatus back in working order. It is probable that the city will be without the services of the apparatus a number of weeks.

The B. P. Learned Mission is now located in its new home, the former Sebastian D. Lawrence residence, corner of Main and Federal streets, which was acquired by the mission from the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital a few weeks ago. This afternoon the North Bank street structure, the home of the mission for many years, was vacated and Christmas exercises were held in the new home, where children received gifts.

Mary E. Barker has sold a house and lot, on Pequot avenue, to George Ratcliffe.

Kate Mahan, Ellen M. Breen and Elizabeth M. Buckley have sold the property, 622 Bank street, to Nathan Traystman.

Mlle. Madeline Zolla, of Paris has returned to Philadelphia, having been entertained by Miss Dorothy Henkle, of Montauk avenue.

Anthony W. Strauss and Miss Fredonia Strauss have concluded a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Macomber, 121 Broad street, and have returned to Boston.

Miss Lena Quandt has returned to her employment in Boston, having visited her mother, Mrs. Julia Quandt, Cape Ann court.

Beginning tomorrow, the state police officers stationed at the Groton barracks, will start rounding up operators of motor vehicles who have neglected obtaining 1925 markers and who are continuing to drive their machines. No effort was made today to apprehend users of 1924 markers, but the drive to do so will start Friday.

Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, of the state police, Groton barracks, spent the holiday at his former home in Bridgeport.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 1.—Harry E. Pierson, about 50 and residing at 53 Colt street, evidently does not think it wrong to beat a woman; neither does he appear to appreciate being given an opportunity to remain out of jail, for this afternoon after beating his wife, he was allowed to remain in his home only to again thrash his spouse. Now he is a prisoner at the police station waiting to be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Pierson went to his home about 4.30 o'clock and after being there a short time he started to beat his wife. Mrs. Pierson, who is much the younger, complained to the police and Patrolman John Courtney and William Babcock visited the Pierson residence. The officers' visit caused the trouble apparently to be ended and left Pierson and his wife supposedly free from further trouble. A short time after the departure of the officers, Pierson attacked and beat his wife again. Mrs. Pierson then telephoned to the police station and while crying related what had occurred. Officers Courtney and Babcock were again sent to the Pierson home and this time they placed Pierson under arrest. At the police station Pierson admitted hitting his wife, but refused to state what his reason was for his acts. He declared that the "more you beat them the better they like you," and you must "knock them down and kick them around" to make them appreciate their husbands. A short time after Pierson was locked up, his sister communicated with the police and declared that Mrs. Pierson was deserving of all the beating that the wife had received. It is hardly probable, however, that this idea will be countenanced or approved by Judge Prince, when Pierson is presented before him in the morning.

LIBERTY HILL

Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke accompanied by Mrs. Estelle Lyman, of Hartford, started Friday morning for Miami, Florida to stay until spring.

Nineteen sat down to a Christmas dinner at Horace Porter' including the new pastor and his wife, seventeen being relatives.

A very interesting Christmas program was carried out at the school, Wednesday afternoon. The features including a tree loaded with gifts. The very excellent way the recitations and singing were rendered showed the painstaking work of the teacher, Miss Flora Bruce.

A finely delivered and able New Year's sermon was given by the new pastor, Rev. L. L. Harris, Sunday morning. The central thought was the recognition of the co-operation of God in all our life work with a spirit of thankfulness. The text was II Chronicals 26.5 the last part and so long as he sought the Lord, God made him to prosper.

Charles E. Goodrich and family were in New London Christmas day and enjoyed a fine turkey dinner with Mrs. Goodrich's parents and relatives.

The Lord's supper will be administered at the Liberty Hill church Sunday morning next after the sermon. Services begin at 11 o'clock.

There was a large gathering at the church Wednesday evening to witness the children's concert and distribution of presents from the tree. Besides the gifts for the children all had an orange and candy. About 90 persons were present. A collection was taken for the Near East sufferers. It was a very enjoyable gathering.

Thursday evening the annual church meeting was held for the election of officers and to hear reports of this year's work and roll call, supper was served before the meeting and consisted of baked beans, ham, rolls, cake, pie and coffee.

BRAIN OF ANATOLE FRANCE

Criticism has been raised in the French press over the fact that, after the body of Anatole France, the great writer, had been embalmed his brain was taken out, chemically treated, photographed and measured. It is pointed out that the last time this operation was performed at Tours it was on the head of a decapitated criminal.

Prof. Guillaume, who examined the brain of Anatole France, states that he has never seen a finer brain. It is remarkable for its convolutions and the depth of the fissures.

WATER JARS IN AFRICA

Water jars of one shape or another made of porous material, are used all through North Africa and in a good many other places of the world. I suspect that all hot countries have them and that there is not a great deal of difference between them. The principle of cooling water by evaporation is extremely ancient; probably as old as porous earthen vessels themselves, and naturally there is a very great similarity in form. I had water jars in Morocco which were of precisely the same shape and material—a baked red clay—as the Mexican ollas; and the Mexican ollas differs in no wise from most of the water jars of various southern Indian tribes. In short, they are all products of a very limited number of simple factors, the chief differences being a slight variation in shape. Most of the Mexican ollas are round-bottomed, with a rim around the top by which they may be hung—although a common manner of use is to set them in a three-pronged tree crotch or a similar, artificial holder.—Adventure Magazine.

WESTERLY

The new banking rooms of the Washington Trust Co. were thronged with visitors to inspect the new banking quarters New Year's day and evening. The fine new quarters appeared attractive not only with the furnishings of an up-to-date bank but there were added many beautiful floral tokens of esteem and appreciation from friends and institutions.

It has been many years since Westerly paid such a silent tribute to the New Year as was paid at midnight Wednesday night. Where in former years every mill and shop whistle and every chruch bell was rung, Wednesday night but three whistles were heard and only two church bells and the town clock.

Even at the Battery E ball at the state armory there was not a large attendance as the old year went out and the new came in. Everybody was dancing a moonlight dance and nobody seemed to care anything about the birth of a new period of 365 days.

The "hobo" dance at the Lorraine Community club was livelier. The new year was welcomed there with shouts. At Calvary Baptist church, which was filled with worshippers, the old year was rung out with prayer and the new year welcomed with singing.

Westerly ice dealers are preparing to start harvesting their crops, as a result of the cold weather of the past weeks.

The Pawcatuck Ice company will start today (Friday) to cut ice on their Wequetequock pond. Workmen are marking the ice, which the manager of the company stated was about ten inches thick.

The Westerly Ice company expects to start cutting Monday. One manager stated that the ice on the Boom Bridge and Liberty street ponds was about nine inches and with continued cold weather should reach about 11 inches by Monday.

James Jolly, owner of the ice pond at Avondale, said his ice there was only about 6 1-2 inches and that he did not plan to start cutting for several days yet.

At the office of the Union Ice company it was stated the ice on their pond on the Shore road was about 8 1-2 inches thick. With the continued cold weather, it is expected that it will go to at least 10 inches next week, when cutting will start.

Superior court for Washington county, with Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner of Providence on the bench, will resume its Westerly trial calendar of the November session in the courthouse on Union street this (Friday) morning at 11 o'clock. The adjournment to Westerly from the Kingston courthouse was taken Wednesday afternoon, after session on New Year's day was omitted. Among cases to be called will probably be the Stott automobile damage case and an actin at law, Lola Matarese, p. a., vs. Amello Matarese.

Judge Michael J. Turano will hold a regular session of the Third district court this (Friday) morning in the district court rooms on Union street. Beside the regular docket of civil cases in the criminal docket, so-called, the Fiore automobile cases will probably be called.

Day Patrolman C. Wilson Brown of Pawcatuck had occasion Thursday, New Year's day, to stop a number of operators of Connecticut registry automobiles who were running under 1924 plates and inform the drivers that they were subject to immediate arrest and prosecution if the law was not cimplied with relative to the placing of 1925 plates on their cars. The Stonington officer notified the owners to have the cars complained of off the streets before the noon hour. It is understood that violators of the Connecticut automobile laws will not be as fortunate if they are stopped by Connecticut state police and that a police court summons will be given them by the state troopers.

Intermittent snow flurries all day New Year's with cold damp air gave promise that weather predictions of a snowfall would be fulfilled soon. The New Haven railroad had a number of its work locomotives equipped with snow scrapers and a regular plow is in readiness near the Providence station to operate on the Shore Line division.

Drs. C. P. and H. S. Atwood were Providence automobile visitors Wednesday.

Mrs. Hiram Barber has been ill at her home on High street.

John Pickering was a business caller in Charleston, R. I., Thursday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. William P. Williams of Stonington were Westerly visitors Tuesday, returning home from the Christmas holidays passed in Philadelphia.

William D. Cross has returned to his home in Westerly after passing the Christmas vacation as the guest of his mother in Chester, Pa.

Westerly friends of Joseph Church of Clark street have received word from him of his safe arrival at Lake Weir, Fla.

WHO OWNS NASH CAR CONTAINING WOMAN'S CLOTHES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Jan. 1.—A Nash touring car, 449-292 Mass., parked on High street in front of the P. H. Ople store, was under surveillance of Wakefield Police Officer Dillman and Westerly Patrolmen Champlin and Madison Wednesday afternoon and night. In the machine was a qunatity of women's apparel, reported to have been stolen from the Silswick Wakefield store Wednesday noon. The alleged theft occurred when the proprietor of the store was engaged in tending to his furnace while the clerks had gone home. Coming up into the store, the proprietor missed some of the window exhibit and knew some of his goods had been taken. A newspaper correspondent got in touch with Deputy Sheriff George Phillips, who was at the court session at Kingston. The Wakefield police officer made a speedy trip to the Westerly authorities, who were notified that the suspected parties were headed toward Westerly. The Massachusetts-registered machine was located and up to 11 o'clock Wednesday morning no one appeared to drive off the automobile. It was taken to the Rhode Island garage and two overcoats and other contents were taken to the Westerly police station. It is known that at least two persons were implicated in the robbery of the Wakefield store. A peculiar development which may have a bearing on the case was the receipt Thursday afternoon by the Westerly police department of a telephone call from an East Greenwich lawyer asking if two men were detained under arrest at the Westerly police station, also what the charges were against them.

IF WE HAD THE TIME

If I had the time to find a place
And sit me down full face to face
With my better self, that cannot show
In my daily life that rushes so—
It might be then I should see my soul
Was stumbling still toward the shining goal;
I might be nerved by the thought sublime—
If I had the time!

If I had the time to let my heart
Speak out and take in my life a part;
To look about and to stretch a hand
To a comrade quartered in No-Luck land;
Ah, God, if I might but just sit still
And hear the note of the whippoorwill,
I think that my wish with God's would rhyme—
If I had the time!

If I had the time to learn from you
How much for comfort my word could do;
And I told you then of my sudden will
To kiss your feet when I did you ill;
If the tears aback of the coldness feigned
Could flow, and the wrong be quite explained.
Brothers, the souls of us all would chime,
If I had the time!

— By RICHARD BURTON.

DAYS OF GRACE FOR 1924 NUMBER PLATES

Norwich automobile owners who sent their money in on time to the state motor vehicle department but have not yet received their 1925 markers are not going to find the local police authorities bearing down very hard on them if they operate their cars for several days yet with 1924 markers. City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins said Thursday night that there would be no prosecutions in the city court of those who have fulfilled the legal requirements by making their applications in time but have not received their 1925 numbers because of the failure of the motor vehicle department to get the number plates into the hands of applicants.

There are some instances in Norwich where people who sent their money two weeks ago to the Hartford headquarters of the motor vehicle department had not received their plates up to Thursday night.

ANALYSIS SHOWS WATER FROM SPRING AT THE FALLS IS UNFIT FOR DRINKING

The water from the spring in the ravine at the Falls, which has been used for years by thousands of people without any bad effects coming to light, has been declared unfit for drinking purposes, and Dr. E. J. Brophy, the city health officer, will have the spring posted. Two large signs, one in English and the other in Polish, have been ordered by Dr. Brophy and will carry the warning, "Water in this spring not safe for drinking purposes."

Investigation of the water of the spring was made at the instance of Charles L. Stewart of 123 Broad street who made a requisition through the county health officer, Hibberd R. Norman, and in response to his request a container was sent here in which samples of the spring water were sent to the state laboratory for analysis.

The analysis report was that the water was unfit for drinking purposes. It is high in bacteria which may have got into the water from animal or pasture land, although the investigation has not gone far enough to determine any source of contamination.

During the present low water in the reservoirs hundreds of people have been taking water from this spring, going to the ravine in automobiles and filling big bottles, jugs and other receptacles with the water. Users of the water have declared it much superior in color and taste to the city water.

There is a spring on Rockwell street from which people are getting water. Samples from this spring have been taken and sent to the state laboratory for analysis but no report has been received yet.

City Health Officer Brophy said Thursday night that people who are using wells and springs in the city should not do so without having the water analyzed. Owners of springs and wells can make requisition through the county health officer for an analysis. The state health department will then send a container for a sample of the water, make the analysis and report

FEAST OF CIRCUMCISION AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Consecrating the New Year by assisting at the offering of the Holy Sacrifice of the mass, three large congregations assembled in St. Patrick's church Thursday morning, in observance of the Feast of the Circumcision of Our Lord; the feast which commemorates the Saviour's submission to the Law, His name day also the octave of the Nativity, i. e., the eighth day after Christmas.

Low mass at 5 o'clock was read by Rev. John J. Reilly, that at 7 by the rector, Rev. M. H. May, and the high mass at 8 was sung by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. The introit read in all the masses celebrated throughout the world was Isaias ix beginning, "A Child is born to us, and a Son is given to us." The epistle was Titus II 11-15, "Dearly beloved, the grace of God our Saviour hath appeared to all men," etc. The gospel, Luke 11:21, summarized the Redeemer's example in teaching from the outset obedience to the Law, also the solemn bestowal of His name —"At that time, after eight days were accomplished that the Child should be circumcised; His name was called Jesus, which was called by the Angel before He was conceived in the womb."

The Christmas decorations of palms, ferns and poinsettias remained on the main and side altars and the representation of the Crib of Bethlehem was also in place. Vestments and altar hangings were in richest white and gold, symbol of purity. The choir, directed by Organist Frank L. Farrell, sang the high mass, Mr. Farrell's interludes including his own beautiful arrangement of "Adeste Fideles," its finale a majestic sweep of melody accentuated by a discriminating employment of the chimes. The solos during this service were beautifully sung by Mrs. Farrell.

Two priests were required to administer holy communion, Father Reilly assisting Father Galvin. The three priests of the parish had been kept busy hearing confessions during Wednesday afternoon and evening, and hundreds of penitents received the Eucharist at each of the three masses for New Year's morning, as a pledge of sorrow for sin, the firm purpose of amendment, and of loyalty and fidelity to their church and its ministers, following the great example of obedience to authority as manifested by Christ in His submission to the Law, as the gospel for the day narrates.

GOES TO JAIL TO SERVE SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Albert LaBarre of 72 Hunters avenue is again in the toils of the law and beginning today, Friday, will spend 30 days in jail, the days of a suspended sentence given him in this city some time ago when brought up on a charge of violating the liquor law.

The arrest was made New Year's eve by County Detective William Lewis of this city and Deputy Sheriff George Hoxie of Lebanon on a warrant charging him with violation of a suspended sentence on the violation of the liquor cash bond for his appearance before law charge. LaBarre put up a $1,000 the authorities today, Friday.

LaBarre, about a month ago, bumped his machine into a silent policeman in Jewett City and when caught by Jewett City authorities had liquor in his car. During the chase he threw many bottles away but enough were left in the car for evidence after he had been overtaken. Presented before Judge John Barry in the Jewett City court he was heavily fined after pleading guilty, but he did not mention that he had been fined in Norwich previously and that a suspended sentence of 30 days was hanging over his head.

Following this City Treasurer Lee Roy Robbins had a warrant made out for LaBarre for violation of the law, but it is alleged that LaBarre skipped the state, going to Vermont. He returned home Wednesday night and the officers were on hand to nail him soon after his arrival.

JUDGE DIRECTS RETURN OF SEIZED RUM TRUCKS

Far-reaching significance is attached to a decision Wednesday of Judge Thomas at Hartford, when, in the U. S. district court, he ordered returned two motor trucks which had been seized while transporting more than 1,500 gallons of grain alcohol from Pawtucket to New York in May, 1924. If the right of the government, resorting to the old internal revenue statute of 1866, is not sustained by the circuit court of appeals, then there is no effective weapon left the government to combat the transportation of liquors.

Section 26 of the Volstead act provides for the seizure of any automobile being used in the transportation of intoxicating liquors. The same section of the same act also provides for the reclamation of the confiscated machines by the conditional vendors or other parties interested in the automobiles.

Loophole Effectively Used.

According to the federal authorities, the bootleggers and rum-runners soon seized upon this reclamation loophole as a means of escape. Controlling interest in the machines being used in the transportation of liquor was generally vested in the manufacturers of the automobile or other interested parties. In this manner the teeth of the Volstead act were drawn and the captured liquor runners were enabled to protect themselves against the loss of the investment in the transporting vehicles.

With no other recourse, the U. S. district attorney's office fell back upon the old internal revenue statute enacted in 1866 and devised against old-fashioned transportation methods of defrauding the government of its rightful tax. Section 3450 of this act, valid until Wednesday and aimed when passed against ox-carts and horse-drawn vehicles, provides the absolute forfeiture of all vehicles engaged in the transportation of intoxicating liquor in which the government could prove an attempt to defraud in tax evasion.

Assumes Right Protested.

Under this 1866 libel for absolute seizure the federal prohibition agents have been confiscating the machines of apprehended liquor runners and in protest of this assumed right the Motor Truck Co., on conditional bill of sale, appeared as claimant in the United States court Wednesday.

Testimony in court developed that two trucks, traveling in convoy from Pawtucket, R. I., to New York city, the first loaded with 149 cartons of grain alcohol and the second with 152 cartons, each carton of the convoy equalling five gallons, were seized by a federal prohibition officer in New London on May 22, 1924. The consignment of alcohol was covered with a coating of chloride of lime and the bill of lading said that a cargo of varnish was being transported to New York.

Liquor Vans Seized.

The officer refused to enter into negotiations and seized the loaded motor vans. The drivers were John Fettie and George Talbot, both of Boston, ostensibly operating for the New York and Boston Dispatch Co. Testimony also disclosed that the Garford Motor Truck Co. was the owner on a conditional bill of sale, the full purchase price of each truck being $6,025, on which but $1,000 had been paid by each of the conditional vendees. Solsby & Kelly of Boston conduct the business of the New York and Boston Dispatch Co., according to Wednesday's testimony.

Judge Thomas held that the government had failed to prove that the alcohol was being transported with an intent to defraud the government of its rightful tax. He requested that the government appeal to the circuit court of appeals to decide whether the old internal revenue statute of 1866 is still in effect on the snooted point of seizure in the case of intended tax defrauding. Under existing conditions, since the passage of the Volstead act, all transportation of liquor without a permit from the government is illegal and the question of seizure for tax remained a question until Wednesday.

Orders Restoration.

Judge Thomas made his decision, ordering the restoration of the two motor trucks to the claimants upon the payment of all storage and handling charges to date, in spite of the fact that no federal revenue stamps or stencils were found on the two seized truckloads of liquor.

The United States district attorney's office is perfecting an appeal of the decision to be made before the next session of the circuit court of appeals. The government had previously maintained the right of seizure, confiscation and sale at public auction of all motor vehicles apprehended in the act of transporting liquor under the old internal revenue act of 1866 until Wednesday. The circuit court of appeals will settle the disputed question.

In the meantime Assistant United States District Attorney John A. Danaher said that approximately 12 motor vehicles now in the hands of the federal prohibition authorities would be affected.

Ralph O Wells appeared for the Garford Motor Truck Co., claimants, and Assistant United States District Attorney Danaher for the government.

SPENT $39,158.28 IN ELECTION OF BINGHAM

The republican state central committee spent $39,158.28 to elect Col. Hiram Bingham to the United States senate, according to a report filed with the secretary of state by Chairman J. Henry Roraback. The report showed that the republican committee had $48,338.11 for use in the campaign, and that it has $9,174.73 left unspent. Of the former figure, $34,569.53 remained from the funds received for the general election in November, and $13,773.59 was obtained in addition for the special election. The republican state ways and means committee, of which Morgan B. Brainard is chairman, raised $3,160 of that amount, the remainder being contributed directly to Chairman Roraback.

Senator-elect Bingham contributed $500 to the state committee, $500 to the republican town committee of New Haven, and $50 to his ward committee, making a total of $1,050. The largest single contribution to the state committee was that of $1,000 from A. K. Macomber. Other large contributors to the republican campaign were:

Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins of Norfolk, $500; John J. McKeon, $200; Charles F. Brooker, Percival I. Hill, Clifford Cheney, James H. Perkins and S. M. Stone, $100 each, reported by Mr. Brainard; Internal Revenue Collector Robert O. Eaton, $100; Senator Wallace R. Pierson, $300; Walter S. Garde and Edward R. Grier, $100 each; John H. Trumbull, $250; Edward Balf, $200, and William H. Blodgett, $150, contributed to Chairman Roraback. The republican senatorial committee in Washington contributed $6,000.

In the two campaigns, the general election in November and the special election in December, the republican state central committee raised $116,141.91 and spent $106,967.18. Getting out the vote is said to have been the chief item of expense, and Carl A. Dixon of New Britain charged $550 for use of the airplanes in the air demonstration for Colonel Bingham.

HAMILTON HOLT SPENT $10,543.48 IN CAMPAIGN

Hamilton Holt as the democratic nominee for United States senator had the benefit of $11,052.28 receipts, and the expenses of his campaign were $10,543.48, according to a statement mailed Thursday by Fred P. Holt, treasurer of the democratic state committee, to Washington. The balance was shown to be $508.81.

There are several reports of members of the state committee included in the treasurer's report, such as $925 given to A. S. Lynch, the committee secretary, who expended $822.70 and had a balance left. Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, vice chairman, also included her report on funds received and spent.

Most of the contributions were in small amounts, all but five being of sums less than $500. There were three contributions of $1,000 each; these being from former Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine of Boston and Bernard M. Baruch, financier of New York city. Hamilton Holt, the candidate, contributed $950, and Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale contributed $561.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION GAINS 6,000 IN CONNECTICUT

With nine town which had a total enumeration of 3,088 last year missing, there is a gain in the school enumeration for the state of about 6,000. The total enumeration in 1923, was 356,388. The missing towns are Avon, Canton, Franklin, Lisbon, Sprague, Bridgewater, Canaan, Clinton and Mansfield. The principal cities in the state have an increase with the exception of Waterbury which shows a falling off from last year's enumeration of 945.

The city of New Britain had the greatest rate of increase, its total for this year being 674 more than that for 1923, or 17,514 for 1924. Hartford with a total of 32,390 has an increase of 558 and New Haven's total of 35,915 shows that the largest city in the state has 448 more children of school age than it had in 1923. Bridgeport follows New Haven with 35,436 or 47 more than were enumerated last year in that city.

HIGH WINDS AND DENSE SNOW ALONG THE ATLANTIC COAST

Ocean Liners Were Delayed in Making Port—Comparatively Little Damage Was Caused by the Storm—In New York 16,000 Men With 417 Motor Driven Snow Plows Kept Street Trafic Open—British Tanker Ulooloo Narrowly Escaped Being Blown Ashore Off Seabright, N. J.—Clyde Liner Mohawk, Afire, Was Beached at Lewis, Del.—Passengers and Crew Taken Off.

New York, Jan. 2.—Winter came to New York in earnest today, arriving on the wings of a hard-driven storm to send the thermometer to 24 above zero and cover the city with eight inches of snow at dusk.

Comparatively little damage was reported ashore and afloat, in spite of the high winds that roared out of the northwest and the density of the snowfall, which blurred vision like a heavy fog. Several liners were delayed getting into port; there were a few minor traffic accidents throughout the city, and trains and ferryboats with their business-bound loads of men and women traveled, in the main, on or near schedule.

Sixteen thousand men, with 417 motor-driven snow plows and sweepers, were at work removing the snow by noon. Forces were out as early at 4 o'clock this morning, less than three hours after the storm started, with the result that the city's main traffic avenues were cleared for the day's business rush. In addition, subway elevated and surface transit roads had snow shoveling crews early on the job, keeping their tracks clear.

Of two ships damaged off the Atlantic coast, the Clyde liner Mohawk owed most of her troubles to a fire which broke out in her after-hold a short time after she had cleared New York for Charleston and Jacksonville.

The Mohawk had to be beached at Lewes, Del., after her passengers had been transferred to the cutter Kickapoo over a raging sea and in the face of a 48-mile-an-hour wind.

The other ship, the British tanker Ulooloo, narrowly averted being blown ashore off Seabright, N. J., when caught in the gale as she was approaching New York in ballast from Norfolk. Blinded by the storm, her captain did not realize how far he had gone off the course until the booming of the surf on the Jersey coast assailed his ears. He immediately sent out a series of S. O. S. calls, but before the U. S. coast guard cutter Gresham could get to him he wirelessed that he had managed to steam to deep water and safety and added that his crippled vessel could make port unaided.

The storm had its bright side. The biting wind that kept most adults indoors couldn't keep the children pent up. It was the season's first opportunity to try their sleds, and every slope in the Greater City was covered with the coasters throughout the day.

Relief was promised before morning, the weather bureau declaring that, although the snow probably would continue most of the night, the wind would die down and the thermometer rise.

STORM RAGED IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

London, Jan. 2.—(By the A. P.)—Reports reaching London tonight from all parts of the United Kingdom, including Ireland, indicate that the present gale has established a record for over thirty years for its fierceness and continuity. The list of material damages is swelling hourly, although few personal casualties have thus far been reported.

Despatches from Glasgow tonight said that a 70 mile an hour gale there was followed by a blizzard. The midlands and Wales report the dislocation of traffic and the destruction of property at many points by floods, hail and tempest.

Shipping, naturally has been chiefly affected and advices from the south coast state ha he channel has been virtually deserted, all vessels having run for shelter. Off Deal numerous steamers signalled for pilots, who were unable to get aboard owing to the mountainous seas. The Spanish steamer Ramon signalled for a doctor. The latter went out in a motorboat and reached the vessel with great difficulty, but was unable to get aboard and was forced to abandon his mission.

The Thames valley is all awash and the historic spots of Runnymede and Magna Charta Island have disappeared from view, only the isolated tops of bungalows being visible above the swirling waters.

The luckless inhabitants have adopted the habits of prehistoric lake dwellers. The end is not yet in sight for according to the weatherman, "equally intense cyclones" are bearing down from the Atlantic upon the battered island this coming week end.

The United States shipping board steamer "Eelbeck" bound from Liverpool for New York, sent a wireless today while 41 miles from Small's light that she was unable to proceed owing to a broken throttle valve, according to a dispatch to Lloyd's from Land's End, on the southern coast of England. The despatch from the vessel said that it might be possible to effect temporary repairs, but that it was advisable to send her assistance immediately.

The French steamer Dahomey, a vessel of 3,530 tons, sent out S. O. S. signals while twenty miles off Penmarch, Department of Finistere, France.

S. O. S. calls from the Rumanian steamer Carcati, which was five miles southwest of Pendeen, Cornwall, also were picked up.

STEAMER MOHAWK WAS BEACHED WHILE AFIRE ALL HANDS TAKEN OFF

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 2. (By the Associated Press)—Safe aboard two special trains speeding north, the other with passengers and crew of the burning liner Mohawk left here tonight, after having been brought ashore at Lewes, Del., from the fire-swept vessel beached near there.

Behind them lay a night of peril at sea, with the fury of the worst of the winter's storms on the Atlantic added to the menace of the flames in the after-hold. As the ship fought its way from 70 miles below Sandy Hook to the Delaware Capes,

Some wrapped in blankets, others with clothing showing plainly the effects of a drenching on the storm-swept decks, 192 passengers for Jacksonville and Charleston were transferred from the special train that brought them here from Lewes, and sent to their destinations by rail.

One hundred and nine others, including members of the crew and officials, went to New York, from which port the Mohawk had sailed on New Year's day. Captain James M. Staples, master of the ship, did not come to Wilmington on the special train.

Among the crew were those who bore scars of the battle they had had waged against the flames as the ship rolled and tossed in the trough of the heavy seas, and as the crew fought, some of the passengers defied the danger surrounding them with songs bravely sung to an accompaniment plucked on a ukelele by the fingers of a young girl.

"The fire was discovered about 10 o'clock Thursday night," said William Turner, an engine-room oiler, who bore a scar on his right cheek from his share in the battle with the blaze. "Chief Engineer Charles Rich, of Brooklyn, found it in the after-hold, as we were off the Jersey coast, and we started to fight it. Using sledge-hammers, we broke down bulkheads and ripped up the deck to get at it. And all the time the ship was rolling and pitching. But the water supply was good and the lights stayed on."

Captain Staples headed for the Delaware Capes, members of the crew said, when it became apparent that the fire was gaining headway. The storm prevented the Mohawk from anchoring until the vicinity of Brandywine Light, about seven miles north of Lewes, was reached, there, with the Merchants and Miners liner Persian, the coast guard cutter Kickapoo, and the tug Mars and Kaleen alongside, the Mohawk came to rest in a heavy fog.

Passengers in life belts lined the decks, and finally were removed by the Kickapoo and landed on the Lewes beach front at 12.40 p. m. Shortly afterwards the crew, fighting to the last, were forced to abandon the ship, which later was towed to a nearby beach, and allowed to settle after the Kingston valves had been opened to flood the hold, checking the flames.

The passengers were fed and cared for at a local hotel while arrangements were completed for the special train to convey them to Wilmington.

According to Arthur Pye, a Clyde line official, 1800 tons of freight and fifty motor cars were lost in the hold of the abandoned ship. The ship's two cats and a dog mascot also perished, but no injuries occurred among the passengers. Injuries to the crew were slight.

The storm had completely isolated Lewes from wire communication with inland points tonight and it could not be learned how badly the Mohawk was damaged. Fear was expressed by Clyde line officials that the vessel, which was built in 1908 at a cost of $1,000,000 would be a total loss. Her cargo was valued at $130,000.

Many of the passengers spoke in terms of praise of the crew's conduct.

"We were awakened about 12 o'clock and told the ship was on fire," said George Scott, of Boston. "The smoke came up a bit, and we assembled in the dining room and waited. Some put on life belts. Frightened? No, but many were seasick, the way the ship was pitching. Going out on deck meant facing the sleet. We were thankful the lights didn't go out."

A considerable number of the passengers were heartened by Miss May Cullen, of New York, who knelt and offered prayer for protection of the passengers and guidance for captain and crew. Others joined with her in singing, the program ranging from hymns to "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No Mo'."

Miss Pearl Koskey, of Worcester, Mass., said that although the smoke at times swept up in great volume from the hold, the flames were not visible to those on deck.

A number of women fainted in the dining saloon as the first group of passengers, suddenly roused from sleep, assembled there on orders from the captain.

A knock on the stateroom door, the hurried command "Get up, the ship's on fire" followed by the shouted call "To the dining saloon, was the passengers' first intimation of the situation, Miss Constance Moskini, of Waterbury, Conn., said.

"When I opened the door after dressing," she added, "I was almost overcome by smoke which filled the hall. However, with my head buried in the extra clothing I carried, I ran to the saloon where many of the others were. They told me to put on a life preserver.

"A few women were braving, but the majority of them were sitting on the floor and chairs whispering. When a report came that the fire was out, we took off our life preservers. A girl who had her ukelele with her began to strum and a young man sang. We were served hot coffee and buns and bread. When the news that the fire had broken out again came, we didn't bother to put on our preservers, we just kept on singing. A large number of the passengers were seasick, though, and that is what made it so hard."

Captain Staples, Miss Moskini said, frequently came to the dining saloon and reassured the voyagers. The transfer from the burning ship to the Kickapoo and the tug boats off the Brandywine shoal was an orderly affair.

"There were some who went down by ladder," Miss Moskini continued. "Others just jumped. I didn't mind the weather much."

Among those taking the train here for Charleston and Jacksonville was John Castro, of Boston.

On the New York train the crew members grinned as they discussed the men who went overboard, the loss of the ship's mascots and details of the fight against the fire.

The names of passengers who had gone overboard and were picked up by the Mars could not be ascertained, although they were known to be on the train, according to officials.

The Mohawk's commander, a Clyde line official said, had never before figured in a mishap at sea. Born at sea, Captain Staples has had thirty-one years' experience in navigation, and is at present vice-comodore and second in seniority of the company's fleet commanders.

CONVICT ESCAPED FOR EASTERN PENITENTIARY

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—A convict created himself beneath a burning load of ashes on a five-ton motor truck and unmolested by guards today rose to freedom through the huge, forbidding gates of the Eastern penitentiary.

He was John Campbell, who at 24 years of age, faced a sentence of 25 to 60 years behind the gray stone walls for robbery. He was still at large tonight, though General Butler, director of public safety, in person, headed the search and scores of bandit-chasing motor cars combed northeastern Philadelphia.

Campbell stifled every moan, though scorched by the hot ashes, until the motor truck emerged through the gate of the penitentiary and was a block away. Then uttering a cry of pain he heaved the ashes from him and leaped upon the running board of an approaching sedan belonging to the prison. Pressing a pistol against the neck of Charles Krout, the prison guard chauffeur, Campbell compelled him to drive away at break-neck speed.

Two firemen who had seen the convict leap into the car, hailed another automobile and started in pursuit. The prison guard-chauffeur, however, impelled by the pressure of the pistol at his side, forced his car to the limit and soon outdistances the firemen. Avoiding collision with other vehicles several times by inches, Campbell continuer his wild ride until the extreme northeastern section of the city was reached. Here he ordered Krout to halt.

As he leaped from the car Krout swung at him with his fist.

The blow did little damage and the convict turning quickly beat Krout into unconsciousness with a hammer, stole his overcoat and a green cloth cap from a passerby and escaped on foot. He was otherwise attired in the regulation blue denim uniform.

How Campbell managed to secret himself in the load of ashes was not known.

RECOVER $79,000,000 IN LIBERTY BONDS STOLEN FROM TRAIN

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 2.—United States postal officials recovered here late today $79,000 in Liberty bonds stolen from a mail train at Rondout, Ill., last June.

The bonds were found in a rural free delivery mail box ten miles west of Little Rock on the Maumelle road after Major James A. Pitcock, chief of the little Rock detective bureau had received an anonymous telephone call telling him the bonds would be found there.

Ira. C. Ross, resident postal inspector accompanied Major Pitcock to the location indicated. The bonds were in perfect order and evidently had been in the mail box only a short time.

Major Pitcock said he attempted to learn the informer's name but that the caller left the telephone abruptly when asked his name. Efforts to trace the source of the, called through the local telephone exchange also failed, the officer said.

Postoffice Bill in The Senate Today

Measure to Be Reported Will Carry $128,036 More Than the Bill Passed by the House.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The treasury-post office appropriation bill was reported by the senate appropriations committee today, carrying a total of $763,309,000, or $128,036, more than was provided as it passed the house. Increases ordered by the senate committee were scattered throughout the financial divisions of both departments, there being no outstanding item in the entire list of changes.

As reported the bill exceeds the present law by $2,000,000 but still is $11,826,000 under the budget estimates for 1926.

SENATE COMMITTEE HAS REVISED POST OFFICE BILL

Washington, Jan. 2. — Sharp revision of the administration bill providing increases in postal rates to meet the cost of the proposed advances in salaries of postal employes was made today by the senate post office committee. At the instance of the committee, Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, formally reported the amended bill to the senate.

The new measure provides for greatly modified rate increases in second class mail as compared with recommendations of the post office department. Minor changes in first and fourth class matter also were made. Senator Moses estimated th ebill would raise about $60,000,000 additional revenue compared with $68,000,000 proposed to be raised under the post office schedules.

The legislation, however, is designed as only temporary, effective from April 15 this year to February 15, 1926, with a special joint committee of the senate and house authorized to conduct hearings on rate increases and report a plan for permanent legislation the first week of the next regular session of congress.

Under the new bill no changes would be made in first clas mail rates except an increase from one to two cents on private mailing cards and souvenir post cards.

All reading portions of publications now subject to second clas rates would be charged 1 1-4 cents a pound, a reduction of one fourth of a cent from the present law and three-fourths of a cent from that recommended by the post office. Religious, educational and reading material in non-profit publications now pay this rate, the differential thus being wiped out.

Rates on advertising portions of publications subject to zone rates are revised with the eight zone reduced to three. A charge of three cents a pound on the present first three zones is provided, six cents a pound on the fourth, fifth and sixth zones, and eight cents a pound on the seventh and eighth zones.

This is an increase over the present law of one cent on first, second and fourth zone matter, a reduction of one cent in the sixth and seventh zones, and twc cents in eighth zone.

Present rates for third class mail are retained but the limit of weight acceptable in this class is reduced from eight to four ounces. Increased rates in this class had been proposed by the post office department.

Likewise, present fourth class mail rates, including those on parcel post, are retained. A service charge of two cents on all parcel post packages is provided, however, and the excess charge on packages weighing over five pounds is increased slightly.

A new provision creates an expedition service for the parcel post at a cost of 25 cents per package. Under this service, packages would receive special routing, dispatching and handling from the point of origin to delivery.

Increases recommended by the post office department and money orders, registered mail, special delivery and insurance and collect-on-delivery services were approved.

Thus, on insurance fees, the minimum is advanced from three to five cents with lesser adjustments in the higher fees.

C. O. D. fees were increased from the present 10 and 25 cents to 12, 15 and 25 cents. Present fees of 3 to 20 cents on money orders are increased from 5 to 22 cents, registered mail is advanced from 10 to 125 cents with a three cent fee for return receipt. Present special delivery rates of 10 cents for all matter up to two pounds is unchanged.

While reduced rates are recommended for second-class mail, as compared with those proposed by the post office department, Senator Moses estimated the two-cent service charge on parcel post will bring in $20,000,000 additional and the new expedition ser-

Progress Made on War Debts Problems

France Has Sent a Communisation Containing Outline of a Plan For Refunding Debt to U. S.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Two distinct advances in what Washington administration officials hope will result in amicable adjustments of the perplexing war debt and claims tangles with France and Great Britain were marked today in official advices emanating from the Parish and London governments.

As regarded by administration leaders here the most important development in the two situations was the report from Ambassador Herrick that he had received a communication from the French finance minister containing elements of a plan worked out by him for refunding of war debts to the United States. The ambassador's report was received by Secretary Hughes and the news given at once to the cabinet meeting in regular session at the White House.

Regarding the question of claims collected by the United States from Germany, now the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the state department, and the London foreign office, it was said the latest note from London on that subject had been received and would be answered before Jan. 6, when the allied finance ministers gather in Paris to discuss the allocation to their governments of proceeds to be paid by Germany under the Dawes plan.

In this connection, it was said, Secretary Hughes believed the claims controversy would be satisfactorily disposed of before the present series of notes between Washington and London terminated.

Another development of the day which gave relief in certain quarters here was the statement issued by the British embassy which at once disposed of widely disseminated reports that Montagu Norman and Sir Allan Anderson, officials of the Bank of England, had come to this country on business connected with international debts and claims matters. The embassy's statement declared the visiting financiers had come to attend to personal affairs of a banking nature and had no intention of extending their trip to Washington.

CONFERENCE OF FINANCE MINISTERS POSTPONED

Paris, Jan. 2—(By the A. P.)—Subcongerence of allied finance ministers, which had been called for next Tuesday to discuss the allotment of German reparation payments, has been postponed until Wednesday because of delay in getting together some of the experts' reports.

It is expected that Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, will begin conversations with finance minister Clementel regarding the debt to Great Britain before the formal conference opens. It is also believed there will be an exchange of views between these two ministers on the general subject of inter-allied obligations before the conference opens on Wednesday.

James A. Logan, Jr., representing the United States, has instructions against participation in any conference discussion on general debt settlement.

The agenda of the conference calls for the cleaning up of back accounts and a division of the Ruhr receipts and other reparations, including a basis for the distribution of the Dawes plan annuities. The French desire for an upward revision of their percentage of German payments will also come up at the meeting.

Fixed allowances for the expenses of the armies of occupation will be considered by the conference in an effort to reduce as far as possible all costs of reparations collections which formerly consumed a large part of everything obtained from Germany.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE NOT IN ACCORD WITH BORAH

Chief Executive Believes an International Economic and Armament Conference Such as Proposed by Senator Borah Would Be Too Broad in Scope to Be Practical—Coolidge Expresses an Opinion That Best Results Would Be Obtained From a Conference Less Broad Than That Proposed by Senator Borah.

Washington, Jan. 2.—An international economic and armament conference with Germany and Russia included, such as has been proposed by Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee is not favored by President Coolidge, who feels that such a meeting would be too broad in scope to obtain practical results.

Mr. Coolidge has not studied any draft of Senator Borah's proposed resolution directing the president to call an economic and armament conference, but on the basis of preliminary descriptions of the resolution is inclined to regard it as too broad in scope to be practical.

The best results from a conference to limit further competitive armaments, the president holds, would arise from a conference of limited scope. The question of economic conditions is too broad in its general application to be successfully considered at an international meeting, the president believes, and therefore any meeting to discuss matters of an economic nature should be made specific as to its purpose.

Mr. Coolidge and Senator Borah have not conferred on the senator's proposal but the president believes that through such a conference it would be possible to frame a resolution acceptable to both.

Declaring his idea of an international conference "is possibly impracticable at this time," Senator Borah in a statement tonight, declared he was of the belief, and had been for three years, that "substantial disarmament, or substantial progress toward permanent peace cannot be had without settling two or three principal economic problems which are disturbing the world."

The Idaho senator said he felt sure these matter would have to be discussed sometime, but added he would "be delighted, if my proposal seems too broad, to have a disarmament conference called including the great naval powers."

"If the president called a conference to make further progress in disarmament without including the settlement of the economic questions," Senator Borah said, "that would be a great gain in itself." He added he would be glad to support that proposition "in view of the situation now existing between the United States and Japan."

Senator Borah predicted that unless there is called some kind of a conference in which disarmament, among other things, would be considered, "we are going to be in a real competitive naval race with Japan."

"Above all things," he said, "we ought to avoid that."

DECISION AGAINST THE INTERSTATE BUSSES CORP.

Hartford, Jan. 2.—An effort of the Interstate Busses corporation to secure a license from the state motor vehicle department resulted in failure today. Although Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel had been restrained by an injunction from refusing to issue a license to the corporation, provided it complied with the procedure required of the general public, the corporation failed to accept a form of license offered to it by the commissioner.

The corporation applied for what is known as a public service car license commonly known as the "O" type because of the fact that the numerals of the markers issued under such a license are prefixed by that letter. The motor vehicle department may issue such licenses entirely at its own discretion provided that type of vehicles sought to be operated comes within the legal classification of public service cars.

But the description of the business carried on by the Interstate Busses corporation, as given in the application for injunction granted earlier in the week by Superior Court Judge Ira E. Waldo Marvin was that of a jitney in the eyes of the Connecticut motor vehicle law. Commissioner Stoeckel informed the representatives of the corporation who applied for the license that the only form of license he could issue to the corporation was the jitney type, commonly called the "J" license.

VANZETTI COMMITTED TO HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE

Bridgewater, Mass., Jan. 2—Bartolemeo Vanzetti, convicted with Nicola Sacco of the murder of a paymaster and his guard in South Braintree, on April 15, 1920, was committed to the Bridgewater hospital for the insane today. He had been adjudged insane by alienists who had him under observance since prison officials reported him acting strangely two weeks ago. The cases of Sacco and Vanzetti had attracted international attention as a result of radical demonstrations in their interest. Both still await sentence on the murder conviction.

Dr. William T. Hanson, director of the hospital, said that Vanzetti would remain at the state hospital for an indefinite period and that when it was demonstrated that Vanzetti had recovered, he would forward a report to the commissioner of correction after which the prisoner would be certified as sane and removed to the state prison.

FINANCIAL PROGRAM FOR THE SOLDIERS' BONUS

Washington, Jan. 2.—The treasury has mapped out its financial program for meeting the requirements of the soldiers' bonus and today made the first deposit—one hundred million dollars—in a special account from which the adjusted service certificates will be paid.

It is the plan to add each year a similar amount under the law to this special account and this sum, with interest compounded annually at four per cent, is calculated to be sufficient to meet all payments on the service certificates when they mature some twenty years hence. Provision is made whereby the fund is equipped from this date to meet such maturing certificates as may be due as a result of deaths of the beneficiaries and the additions to the funds are expected to be able to care for the gradually increasing maturities of the future years.

The first step taken by the treasury was the issue and sale to itself of $50,000 in five year, four per cent. treasury notes and a like amount of special treasury certificates of indebtedness, the latter being redeemable at the option of the treasury so that funds instantly will be available when required. By issuing the special securities for the bonus fund and selling them back to the treasury, all distributing influences of open market operations are eliminated. The securities are handled always at par value of 100 cents on the dollar and the amount of the income therefore never will fluctuate.

WESTERLY OPERA HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE, EARLY SATURDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Jan. 3.—The new opera house, David Novogrod, proprietor, was almost totally destroyed by fire early this (Saturday) morning, the flames sweeping through the auditorium of the house, getting up into the flies above the stage and bursting through the roof, a roaring furnace at 12.45. The damage, it is said, will probably be about $75,000. The fire originated in the basement of the building near the furnace.

An alarm was sounded from Box 52, corner of Main and Union streets, and was soon followed by a second and third alarm. The fire alarm whistle of the Pawcatuck fire department sounded two alarms and the P. S. Barber Hose company responded under Engineer Pierce Morrison.

Westerly Fire Chief George Egger was soon on the scene and directed the first line of hose through the north window of the large wooden frame structure, between the residence of C. B. Bliven and the opera house building. The firemen could not hold their position here as the flames burst through the high shingled roof at the rear. The proprietor, David Novogrod, is in New York city.

Fire apparatus has been called from New London, Stonington and Mystic to assist the local firemen in subduing the blaze. The building was built a number of years ago by Court B. Bliven for a skating rink and was later enlarged for theatre purposes.

During the past summer the theatre was closed and the interior entirely renovated, redecorated and new seats added. The wind at 1 o'clock was out of the northeast and is taking the sparks down Main street toward the parsonage of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church occupied by the pastor, Rev. Clayton A. Burdick.

Wine of Youth will be the most popular picture he has ever made, if comments of fans before the film was released can be taken as an indication, says King Vidor, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director.

While Vidor was making Wine of Youth from Rachel Crothers stage play, Mary the Third, which will show at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, he received more letters from fans on the filming of the picture than any he has ever done.

As soon as it was announced that Eleanor Boardman, Ben Lyon, William Collier, Jr., Babby Agnew, William Haines, Pauline Garon Johnnie Walker, Creighton Hale, Niles Welch, James Morrison and the other members of the cast had been signed to play in the picture, letters from fans everywhere began pouring into Vidor's office.

Evidently, the director says, handsome young juveniles of the screen are more popular than tragic leading men.

Tonics of the Day and a roaring two part comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Harry Carey in Tiger Thompson the sixth chapter of Days of 49, the Pathe news and a Monkey comedy. Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10:30 P. M.

Lyceum Theater, New London

When the Russian Symphonic choir, under the leadership of Basile Kibalchich, gave two concerts in New York City last spring, the critic of the New York Journal singled out for particular mention the Credo by Gretchaninoff as follows: "One of the most thrilling experiences we have had in the concert room this season was the performance of a Credo by Gretchaninoff, the words intoned with a resonant intensity by Miss Ivanova, a young messo of the choir, against a background by the other singers."

The concerts of the Russian Symphonic Choir abound in thrills. The Credo with its religious intensity is one. The "Lord Have Mercy" with its remarkable pianissimo, which becomes a musical whisper, is another thrill. The Volga Boatmen Song with its folk pathos, is a thrill. And so on throughout the entire program, as local music lovers will have an opportunity to hear witness, when this Russian choir makes its appearance at the Lyceum theater New London on Wednesday evening only, January 7.

ITALIAN GOVT SEIZING OPPOSITION NEWSPAPERS

Rome, Jan. 3—(By the A. P.)—The government seizures of copies of opposition newspapers continued today with renewed vigor, almost no journals, except those of decided Fiscist leanings, being allowed to appear.

The Giornale d'Italia, in a leading editorial this afternoon, complains of the seizure of its editions yesterday. This newspaper states that after its first edition was seized, all the editorial matter criticising the government was lifted from the columns of the paper so that the second edition contained only straight news. This edition, however, was also seized.

It was explained in Fascist circles that the news in the Giornale d'Italia's second edition objected to by the authorities was a report that 50,000 black shirts were about to start a second march on Rome.

Aaron Cupp, ninety-four, and the oldest man in Ohio to receive a hunting license, went out before breakfast and shot four rabbits at Lancaster, O. He says that hunting keeps him young.

Broadway Theater

Glad? shouted Ernest Torrence when questioned about his feelings on being selected to portray the role of Capt. Hook in the Paramount picturization of J. M. Barrie's Peter Pan. "It is the greatest thing that has ever happened to me in my life. There is nothing in the entire history of the world's literature that I would rather play. Glad? I'll tell the world I'm glad."

Torrence, who is featured with Betty Bronson, Cyril Chadwick, Virginia Brown Faire, and Anna May Wong in the production which is due Sunday at the Broadway theater, looks the part of Capt. Hook even without make-up and his attitude toward the Barrie fantasy is, therefore, the more amazing. He has studied the play not only with the mind of a student but with the heart of a man who loves it.

"What a marvelous conception the character of Peter Pan is," he said one day while discussing plans for the picture.

"Every man with the heart of a boy is a Peter Pan. In infancy he may not have fallen out of his baby carriage when the nurse was looking the other way, but at some time in his life he has been a blood brother of the band of lost boys, has had his adventures in the forest of the Never Never Land and has cruised upon its desperate seas. It is easy enough for a boy to find the trail to that wonderful land, most of them can't miss it. The feet of youth skip over it nimbly enough, although there are many stones in the path of the feet of age.

"Those were the good old days!"

"Peter Pan," produced by Herbert Brenon was adapted for the screen by Willis Goldbeck. There's a strong cast playing in support of the principals.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Perhaps it isn't just fair to the fish to give this away just at the time when conditions are favorable for fishing through the ice, but up at East Killingly the waters of the reservoirs and ponds are so low that the fish have left the upper bodies of water and made their way down into what is known as Bog Meadow pond, where the depth of water is greater now than in any other of the ponds up there. Old Killingly pond has dwindled until the water is only about seven feet deep at the point of greatest depth. This is an extraordinary condition for this time of year. Only such water as feeds into this pond through natural springs is being received and the outlet leading into the middle reservoir is carrying off little more than a trickle.

On New Year's day the funeral of Walter J. Keller, Jr., was held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Keller, of the West Side, the body being taken from Baltic, where for a time it was at the home of Mrs. Keller's mother, Mrs. Joseph Bassett. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Hunters are bringing in tales of variety of snares that indicate deer are being taken by that method as well as foxes this year in defiance of the law. One hears stories from time to time about men who hunt deer for the market, and it appears that it is a profitable business, if a risky one. Deer are said to bring as high as $40 per carcass in channels where such meat is handled. Snaring is something that is heard about every winter about this time. That this pernicious system of getting game is being applied to the taking of deer will be news to many hereabouts nevertheless. It is an old story as to getting foxes and protected game birds.

Grand opera stars singing from a broadcasting station in New York furnished entertainment for a large number of owners of radio sets in Danielson New Year's night. The reception was very strong and clear here. Advance announcements of the broadcasts had prepared the set owners to listen-in at the appointed hour.

The following are the newly elected officers of Col. Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans: Commander, Nathan W. Cook; senior vice commander, James E. Potter; junior vice commander, DeForest Wells; secretary, William H. Cook; treasurer, George W. Miller; camp counsel, three years, A. F. Wood; two years, George H. Call; one year, Frank T. Stinson, chaplain, J. Elmer Keene; guide, Herbert Lyman; patriotic instructor, E. C. Babson; color bearer, Everett M. Colvin; inside guard, George L. Cook. These officers will be installed Wednesday evening of next week, when the G. A. R. and W. R. C. officers also will be inducted to office.

There will be some changes of interest in the school organization of the town when the winter term opens Monday morning. Principal among these changes will be the placing of an additional teacher in the graded school on School street. The new teacher will be Mrs. Sabin L. Sayles of Dayville, who before her recent marriage was Miss Alma Keech. Mrs. Sayles is an experienced teacher who has formerly served the town. Mrs. Beatrice Beckett, who has been teaching in the Killingly Center school, will teach in the School street school, being succeeded by Miss Thelma Bruce. Mrs. Emma J. Keach, who has been teaching in the fifth grade of the School street school, will be in charge of the fifth and sixth grades. Two rooms on the third floor of the school will be in use during the coming winter term.

Misses Florida and Claudia Bernier of Reynolds street are visiting in Hartford for a few days.

Harold F. Glendining, formerly engaged in the newspaper business in Danielson, now of Boston, was a visitor with friends in town Friday.

Louis E. Kennedy was in Boston Friday to return to Elmville with the body of Walter E. Sayles, who died suddenly in that city New Year's eve.

Ice 10 inches in thickness is ready for harvesting at some of the ponds hereabouts where cutting is done for storage each winter.

An interesting bill of vaudeville added to the usual entertainment at the Orpheum theatre Friday evening.

Members of the Ladies' Reading circle will hold their meeting next Monday with Miss Carrie Fellows.

Some belated registration plates that arrived here Friday allowed car owners to get their machines back into commission after being out of service for a day.

The route being mapped out by state highway engineers indicates that the proposed improved highway to East Killingly will be built from Dayville Four Corners, not from Elmville.

There was a hint of the prosperity that Dayville appears scheduled to enjoy in the brilliantly lighted windows of the big mill of the Assawaga Woolen company late New Year's afternoon, the plant operating on the holiday.

PUTNAM

The town school committee is giving special consideration to regulations concerning the health of the schools. At the last meeting Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent, made a voluminous report with recommendations. As it is a subject that interests all the public schools where physicians, nurses and dentists are part of the taff, and, as he states, work of this kind is still in a formative condition in New England, his report (and recommendations) are given in full:

My recommendations for the activities and duties of the various officials of the health department of the schools is as follows:

During the past two months I have talked with several school nurses and spent some time with the various nurses in charge of the health department of the Webster, Mass., public schools. November 21 I sent the following letter to sixty school nurses in various parts of New England:

I have been directed by the Putnam school committee to draw up a set of regulations concerning the duties and activities of the school physician and school nurse with whom you are working?

The replies to these letters were exceedingly interesting. They showed that the work of school physicians and school nurses is still in the formative stage in New England. In some places the work is well standardized. In other places the replies showed that though the nurses and physicians themselves understood quite well their duties, the school authorities, or health authorities, by whom they are employed have not as yet undertaken to lay down any definite standards. The following quotations illustrate this:

"We have no printed rules and regulations."

"Our state laws define their duties fairly well."

"We have no regular rules except such as are made when occasions arise."

"There are no regulations or time schedules for the nurses. I came here fifteen years ago and was told to develop my job."

Some school committees have laid down definite ideals and standards and some have detailed time schedules. Six nurses sent printed rules.

The general underlying ideals in health work in schools seem to me:

First, the reduction of the increase of contagious diseases.

Second, the lessening of time lost by pupils through exclusion and illness.

Third, the discovery and correction of physical defects.

Fourth, the securing from both parents and teachers of a greater degree of co-operation toward these ends.

I have been impressed by the completeness with which the work that has already been done by our health department and think that it measures up to the highest standards set in other places. I find no important work mentioned in any of the reports received which have not already been achieved in Putnam.

The announcement is made that the Connecticut compa.. will inaugurate, Monday, Jan. 5, a regular motor bus service between Hartford and New Britain. The Connecticut company and the New Haven Railroad company assert that the carrying of passengers by motor bus cuts into their earnings, that it is unfair competition and they seek to enjoin the owners and operators of this new method of transportation. But the obvious answer seems to be just what the Connecticut company purposes to do between Hartford and New Britain. If reliable corporations like the Connecticut company and the New Haven company, whose business it is to transport passengers and freight, will employ motor busses where conditions indicate that they can be used to advantage, it will do away with the so called "unfair competition" and will give these communities the service that they need.

Take for example Putnam and Providence. The distance is about 28 miles. To get from this city to the capital of Rhode Island by rail one has to make a circuitous route up through Massachusetts, change trains at Blackstone with sometimes a long wait between. By bus the trip can be made in from 60 to 75 minutes, every other hour, provided the state utilities commission would permit the operators of the line of busses to take on and discharge passengers in Connecticut. But the New Haven road and the Connecticut company are opposing the granting of a charter that would make this legal, and are seeking to stop the running of motor busses at all.

There may be merit in their contention that they cannot meet this competition, but are they giving any thought to the rights of the public in a territory where motor bus service is needed? A more flagrant instance of apparent disregard for these rights is Woodstock. The town is not touched by steam train or trolley. A regular dependable motor service between Woodstock and Putnam every other hour would be of distinct advantage to the citizens of both towns, and a great economic benefit to both. The New Haven company of the Connecticut company could operate such a line probably more efficiently and more economically than private individuals. Why don't they do it, and, in the doing, see to it that the pioneer in this mode of travel is properly compensated for his investment?

There is local interest in the fact that Nathan D. Prince has been made president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Co., the largest banking house in the state. Mr. Prince is well known here by reason of his long residence in Danielson, an acquaintance that was widened at the time of the formation of The Cargill Trust Co. He is a director of this bank and was influential in its organization.

Dealers have begun cutting ice. It averages ten inches in thickness, is clean and solid.

The first child born in Putnam in 1925 was a girl, of whom Mr. and Mrs. Leon Talbot are the parents. The new arrival has been christened Henrietta.

EAST KILLINGLY WOMAN FREED IN BOROUGH COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Jan. 2.—East Killingly had its place in the sun in the proceedings of the town court Friday morning. That is, it might be considered in the sun, though it was cloudy and cold and inclined to snow outside. Inside it was warm enough and there appeared to be a bit of pepper in the air.

The court convened to hear the case of the state vs. Mrs. Julia Douglas of East Killingly. Mrs. Douglas was charged with refusing to enroll as a person liable to pay a personal tax. The complaint against her was filed at the instance of Alcott D. Sayles, also of East Killingly, one of the town's citizens charged with the duty of making the enrollment. There was an array of witnesses, representative of East Killingly, and possessed of knowledge of the facts and the alleged facts in the case. Also present was Mrs. Douglas, calmly confident. Mr. Sayles also was on hand. An interested observer of all that went on was King George Jacques, he that has made much of East Killingly's latter day fame.

It was charged against Mrs. Douglas that she had refused to give the required information necessary to enrolling her on the list of personal taxpayers. This she flatly denied and in telling her story while on the witness stand charged that Mr. Sayles had accosted her on the street, mumbled something that she did not understand; that on another occasion he had spoken to her on the street relative to enrollment, and that she had told him if he wanted the information he was seeking to come to her home for it, as he was paid to do. Mr. Sayles testified that he had visited the house, but no one came to the door in response to his knock. As to this visitation, Mrs. Douglas stated that Mr. Sayles did come to the house in which she lives, but knocked on the door of another tenant in the building and not on the door of her home. In this Mrs. Douglas was corroborated by Edward Pinkham, who was at Mrs. Douglas' home when the talked of visitation occurred.

During the course of her testimony she mentioned a remark that Mr. Sayles made about her—pretty smile, but this Mr. Sayles denied.

Mrs. Douglas, who was represented by Attorney Harry E. Back, was found not guilty by Judge W. Fenne Woodward. Attorney Back commented with some severity about bringing such petty cases before the court, creating expense for the town and for persons required to defend themselves.

A PARTNER OF SUNLIGHT

Cod-liver oil has aptly been called the partner of sunlight. Both out of Nature's storehouse of energy are of supreme importance to a child with rickets.

Scott's Emulsion

and sunlight have been used for decades to give strength to weak bones. A little of Scott's Emulsion with each feeding does wonders for a malnourished child or adult.

Keep your boy or girl out in the sunlight and give them Scott's Emulsion everyday—regularly!

A MOTORIST'S LOT IS NOT A HAPPY ONE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 2.—Nearly all the automobiles in use in Putnam have the 1925 markers, but there are many car owners who have not yet received theirs. Incidentally there is quite a little criticism of the methods of the state department in the way this matter is handled. Here is an instance:

A local merchant, because of the pressure of business waited until Wednesday intending to drive to New London and get his license personally. Two of his neighbors, learning of this, decided to send for their own by him. He made the trip to New London, neither a short nor pleasant one on a winter day, only to see one man put in an application for 125. Officials at the New London office told all who were waiting in line that it might take all the day before they finished with him. Discouraged at the outlook the Putnam man started home, broke the crankshaft of his car at Taftville and had to complete his journey by trolley. He now has neither license nor car, but Putnam people are getting used to hard luck!

WOMAN DEAD AT 99 HAD SURVIVED 22 CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 2.—Mrs. Eliza Faro, 99, the oldest inmate of the town farm, and the oldest resident of Putnam, died Wednesday evening. She had been a resident of Putnam 68 years. She was the mother of 22 children but outlived them all. Her last surviving child was Mrs. Potvin with whom she made her home until the daughter's death, five years ago.

CHAS. SEDER BUYS RICH BLOCK AT PRICE SAID TO BE $34,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 2.—The Rich block on Main street, a frame structure, but located on one of the most desirable sites in the retail selling section of the city, has been bought by Charles Seder, a leading Putnam business man. The price paid is said to be $34,000. The dry goods store of David Flagg, the drug store of George E. Dresser, and Smith's barber shop are on the ground floor. Maude L. Rich of Worcester and Arthur Rich, of Abington were the owners.

BRADFORD

The work of installing the new gas mains between Westerly and Bradford is completed, the piping being all laid and covered over. The new mains provides the use of Westerly gas in the homes of the employes of the Bradford Dyeing association also the homes of others along the line who desires to connect.

The heavy expense of laying the main is assumed entirely as a private proposition by the B. D. A., who are nevertheless gladly willing to accommodate others who may desire to use the gas.

The new mains are a branch of the main gas lines of the Westerly Light and Power company, which are now installed parallel with the new Bradford-Westerly road the entire distance of four miles between the two places. The pipes are all welded, thus doing away with expansion joints and preventing leakage. They are also installed below the frost line, avoiding all possibility of water collecting and freezing in the pipes.

SICK 3 YEARS WITHOUT RELIEF

Finally Found Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Columbia, S. C.:—"Your medicine has done me so much good that I feel like I owe my life to it. For three years I was sick and was treated by physicians, but they didn't seem to help me any. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got strong enough to do my housework, where before I was hardly able to be up. I have also taken the Vegetable Compound during the Change of Life and it has left me in good health. I recommend it as the best medicine for women in the Change of Life and you can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. S. A. HOLLEY, R. F. D. No. 4, Columbia, South Carolina.

Why suffer for years with backache, nervousness, painful times and other ailments common to women from early life to middle age, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring relief?

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 200,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use.

Vargas brothers are having a large addition built to their ice house on the Mystic road. Last year an addition was made also.

A force of men began this week wrecking the brick and iron building, corner of Pearl and Gold street. It was known in World war days as the compressor house and was in operation when the two ships were set up by he Ship Construction and Trading Co. The building has been in a dilapidated condition for many months and the corner will be improved by its removal.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schmitz entertained friends at a turkey dinner at their home on Bread street Wednesday evening.

Complaint has been made of late by a number of women that they have been chased by a man and molested. Thursday night he was on Elm street. At times he has been in the region of the school house and then in the Bay View district. For three months past reports of the man's actions have come in and thus far efforts to apprehend him have proved futile.

Charles E. Staplin is confined to his home on Water street because of a severe cold.

MYSTIC

A number of Mystic people were in Westerly Thursday afternoon attending the reception held by the Washington Trust Co. when their splendidly equipped and handsomely furnished new building was open for inspection. Motor Car Owners

Effective January 5th, 1925. A charge of 25c will be made for testing and filling batteries, and tightning and cleaning terminals. The Battery Service men of Willimantic agree that service fairly done and charged for is just as truly service as though it was done for nothing. The testing for state of charge-filling, the cleaning of terminals, etc., are a kind of service, which, if honestly performed, should be paid for. In reality these acts constitute battery maintainance as distinguished from the not uncommon word Service, which to some mean doing something for nothing. Therefore, owing to the constantly increasing number of cars requiring battery service and ever increasing cost, the Battery firms listed below agree that they are only fair in asking this nominal charge for honest work.

ELIMINATE CARELESSNESS.

Whenever the day's news is featured by a series of fatalities at railroad crossings there is a demand for greater protection for the users of the highway.

Whenever the weather conditions make the roadbed of the highways treacherous there is invariably a long list of accidents and some fatalities. Accidents and fatalities are occurring daily even with the highways in normal condition.

Whether it is a case of going across a railroad track, fast driving without regard for others or driving on slippery pavements there exists a crying need for the exercise of a greater degree of care.

In the appeals for the elimination of railroad crossings there will be a general chorus of approval, but too often the fact is overlooked that the first and chief cause for too many of the crossing fatalities is that slight respect is paid to the danger of the locality and little or no care is exercised by the highway user for the protection of himself and those with him. Let there be adequate warnings at every crossing, but also let there be more care displayed by those crossing the tracks. Accident prevention is not only possible but deserves much more attention than it gets at such places. Quite the same is true of winter driving when much ice and hidden slippery places must be anticipated.

The crossing collisions and the skidding, speeding and overturning of machines with fatal results have long since been disclosing how short a time it takes to pass into eternity, and how the exercise of a bit of care would have prevented it. The warnings are as impressive and glaring as ought to be expected by ordinary mortals who are really concerned in self protection.

The crossing removal would eliminate crossing accidents. It would not reduce the highway accidents. What needs to be better understood is that with more care there could be a big reduction in all such accidents and fatalities. Eliminate carelessness.

KEEPING STRING ON NATIONALS

Whenever the question of immigration has been discussed, especially concerning the period previous to restrictions, reference has been made to the manner in which other nations worked off their undesirables upon other countries. That was one good reason for putting up the bars.

Whether that claim was based upon surmise, or actual knowledge, it is interesting to note that expert information which has been presented before the house committee on immigration points out that the Italian government is now engaged in helping to arrange the quota of Italians that can come to these shores. It has repeatedly been urged that foreign governments could do much in the way of preventing their subjects from encountering losses and hardships because of their inability to get into this country after the quotas are filled. Now it is revealed that the Italian government is taking an interest in those who want to come to America and it is charged that it is selecting not those who may make the best citizens in years to come for this country, but those who are most likely to send their wages back to Italy and to return there as soon as they have made their pile and are able to live on Easy street.

Italy is of course looking out for itself. If it can keep at home those it wants and can send abroad those who will remain Italians and return home with their capital after it has been amassed, so much the better for Italy.

There are over 40,000 who are entitled to come into this country yearly from Italy. All that is required is that they pass the requirements as to desirability and health. It has been the experience of the past that many have returned in time. Many have stayed and become Americans. This can be expected under any conditions, but should the effort of Italy succeed and other countries adopt it the immigrants would make up a great mass of floating population interested chiefly in the country of their birth and in America for what they can get, send and carry out of it.

NULLIFYING TROUBLEMAKERS.

There is no need of blazoning it before the country that there are those in Japan who are possessed of the jingo spirit quite the same as there are in this country. Perhaps they cannot help their suspicions, but evidently they are not happy unless they are making an outcry against conditions even though they are imaginary. They talk in this country of the yellow peril and they talk in Japan of the designs of America.

For the purpose of offsetting the activities of certain firebrands in this country Secretary Hughes recently acted with unusual promptness in commending the choice by Japan of its new ambassador to this country. It was done for an obvious purpose and to nullify those utterances which had given certain ones in Japan ground stirring up feeling against the United States. Those who are ready to create trouble might well be ignored but for the effect that their activities invariably have upon those who are not in a position to judge them for their real worth, or to understand the source from which they come.

Thus when Premier Kato replies to Secretary Hughes and says, "America has thus given further assurance of the sincerity of her friendship for Japan. We are not misled by the vicious activities of irresponsible groups of individuals in either country. We know that the United States desires peace; we know Japan desires peace. Japan is not contemplating war with any country, nor preparing in secret nor overtly for war," he joins in the endeavor to squelch the trouble makers and to further the efforts of the respective governments in behalf of peaceful and friendly relations.

It doesn't require much foundation to indulge in idle talk, but the harm that can be done by it is limitless. Every government realizes it and the endeavor to crush all such irresponsibility before any real harm is done fully recognized and properly responded to.

BACKING UP THE LAW.

As is thoroughly justified, Uncle Sam is especially interested in our coastwise trade and its protection against invasion by vessels of other countries. This is not a new interest or a new move. Long since has it been restricted to American vessels, and there is no intention that it shall be otherwise.

Last summer a body of Philadelphians chartered a British vessel to carry them to a Boston convention. The trip was made, the delegation visited the Massachusetts capital and in order to get around the law, that foreign vessels cannot carry goods and passengers from one American port to another the vessel continued on to Canadian ports before returning to Philadelphia.

If one vessel could do this it would of course be possible for others to do the same thing. It was impossible to disregard the effort to get around the law and the owners of the vessels were prosecuted and fined in accord with the provisions of the law. It was a stiff fine and one that resulted in an appeal to the secretary of commerce who has just learned upon referring the matter to the attorney general that the coastwise shipping laws were violated and that the penalty was only what was fixed by the law.

It may not have been the case that the British steamship owners were actually preparing to engage in coastwise service, but serious results are possible from small beginnings. The toleration of a small violation could easily encourage many more of the kind and before long there would be such contempt for the coastwise laws that they would be valueless. The prosecution means that this government has no disposition to abet such a thing. The decision strengthens our coastwise shipping laws.

BETTER SWEET CORN.

Burbank has accomplished wonders and like many others who have ploughed into the fields ahead of others there's no telling where he is going to stop. It is fine to have the ambition to outdo Burbank but it is a goal that few even get within sight of.

Recently there has come from California a report to the effect that Luther Burbank has developed a new kind of sweet corn. That doesn't mean the revolutionizing of transportation or the establishment of international peace, but sweet corn makes its appeal to quite a few people. There is such a thing as corn for the table. Some call it simply corn and others place the emphasis upon "sweet" corn as indicating where they draw the line, what their preference is and what they have to say when the product that is served them does not measure up to requirements.

For that reason there is particular interest in the Burbank announcement. He not only has produced a new corn that means an improvement over the best there is today, but he claims to have developed corn which the home gardener can grow and get bigger and sweeter results. When he speaks about sweeter, sweet corn and talks with such confidence as is indicated in his statement, the corn eaters who like it on the cob and like it sweet, without the use of the contents of the sugarbowl, can be relied upon to put his claim to the acid test. Knowing that the proof of the pudding lies in the eating much is expected of Mr. Burbank.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Have you put in requisition for your share of the silver dollars?

The first twelve months are the hardest for the new resolutions.

The precocious youth of today hails from Fall River. He's a bootlegger at 13.

Does it seem as interesting to write it 1925 as you thought it would back in 1900?

Now that some of the Christmas presents are gone and others on the way, the bills are demanding attention.

The man on the corner says: Would you take a chance riding in such a thing as a hochdruckkindensations-dampflokomotive? Same here.

New York's mayor says he is going to stay on the job until he is 60 so he can get a bigger pension. Of course New York will have something to say about it.

The British cannot be blamed for fearing bugs, but there are so many so much worse than the Colorado beetles it is surprising it pays any attention to them.

With the coming of the new year the new traffic regulations are in effect and enforcement can be expected. Those who respect them have nothing to fear.

There's an effort underway to have the Connecticut river deepened above Hartford. From the difficulty experienced in getting anything done in the Thames ten miles from the sound, perhaps the Massachusetts cities will get their wish some time in the next century.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The new year is here, and the main question with all of us is this: What are we going to do with it? You may smile at this statement and say, Are not the events of the years far beyond our control? By no means, for the things that are going to concern us most are the things of our own creation. There are altogether too many people who fall down perfectly flat and cry out weakly: "I wonder what's going to happen to me this year," rather than "How shall I make this year serve my purposes?" Let us not forget the very important fact that, to a certain extent (perhaps to a great extent) we make this year a servant to do our bidding. We can either cave in before its seemingly inexorable demands, or we can hold the mastery ourselves in most cases. Of course the year holds some things absolutely beyond our control, but for the most part the mastery may be ours.

Instead of spending so much time as some do in shouting, "one hundred per cent American," wouldn't it be well, first of all, to wipe out some of our American semi-barbarism? We, as a nation, shall not reach this high degree of perfection until we do a good bit of national housecleaning and some of it needs a liberal use of Dutch Cleanser! No one believes in trying this "one hundred per cent Americanism" more than the writer. No man has any moral claim to citizenship who would lower this high standard. But there is a right way and a wrong way in going at it. It is hardly consistent for a coal-heaver to accuse a blacksmith of having smutty hands! Let us cleanse our Americanism of somethings before we flaunt it in the face of foreigners as the faultless ideal! For instance let us attack the curse of divorce that is doing so much in the line of social assassination!

May we not look upon the new year as a clean page in which you and I are to write words, form sentences, express ideas and communicate impressions? The whole of human life may be expressed as a book, and we are all making one. The title of the book is the statement of our character: and what our character is people will know just as truly as they know whether a writer lives up to his text or not. Human lives like books may have their divisions. Human beings have their babyhood, childhood, youth, early manhood, middle age and old age. Each year in human life may be likened to each chapter in a book, and the days represent the pages. We have already begun a new chapter in life's volume; a series of clean, white pages lie before us. Now the important question that lies before each of us is, just what are we going to write? It is well to remember that the ink we use is always indelible. What sort of a page is it going to be? Remember we can use no eraser here!

The writer well remembers the thrill he received when he first walked across Brooklyn bridge; the great scientific and industrial accomplishment that was begun January 3, 1870. It seems almost incredible now as bridge building has made such strides since then that it was looked upon as a folly. It was called by some, "Roebling's folly," although the builder had already constructed the suspension bridge at Niagara Falls. But the Brooklyn bridge teaches us the penalty that often comes to men who dare to undertake great things. John A. Roebling the designer was killed while the work was under construction. His equally famous son, Washington Roebling contracted what is known as the caisson disease which deprived him of the use of his legs but from his home in Brooklyn, with the use of a spy glass he directed the work to completion. His iron will conquered!

There are some things that loom up bigger the farther one gets away from them. This is true of mountains. When near the little foothills obscure the main peak, but as one gets away at a distance the foothills seem to drop out of sight, and the main peak looms up in its solitary grandeur away from all lesser competitors. On January 1, 1863, President Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation. We are now more than sixty years away from that event, and as the years increase that separate us from then the more important does that great paper seem as we compare it with many lesser papers, that politically were nothing more than foothills when compared with the Emancipation Proclamation. From this we learn any human production that contains merit of real service to the world does not pass away, but seems to gather strength with the years. Such things are veritable mountain peaks.

One of the great human acts for which this country is very justly noted is the work done for the unfortunate. This is particularly in the realm of childhood. The little orphan, the cripple the defective of the abused is not left to suffer as formerly. There is no form of affliction to which childhood is exposed that is not met by some kind of modern philanthropy. Think how much has been done in teaching the deaf and dumb to read, and in many instances to talk. The Hartford asylum and its splendid work is a perpetual monument to the great work of the Gallaudets. This idea is suggested to the writer's mind from the fact that on January 1, 1848 Girard college was opened for students. This college was designed exclusively for boys who had no known fathers. Here they are taught some useful craft. One cannot tabulate the good this institution has done.

A college president once told the student body at the beginning of a new college year that the word "debt" was the meanest word in the English language. At the time being most of those students thought that "prexy" was a bit off his base. When compared with many words in our English speech, the word "debt" seemed to be quite respectable. But this only strengthens the general belief that undergraduates are rather green. For it is certainly true that as the college days grow dim, the wiser does old "prexy" seem to be, not only in this matter but many others. There are few things in this world that cause greater trouble than debt. And if we are wise we will enter the new year without the incubus of debt hanging over us. It is an insult to one's moral consciousness as well as injustice, to the other fellow. If the habit is allowed to grow it will surely end in dire disaster.

Probably no one would put Josh Billings in the same class of philosophers with Plato, Aristotle and Kant, but he said some things so true to life that they ought to live. Here is one of them: "Konsider the postage stamp, my son, its usefulness konsists in its ability tew stick tu wun thing until it gets there." In other words persevere with the subject in hand until you master it. Of course the presumption is that what you are at is worth doing. If it is worthless the sooner it is dropped the better. But if the thing is worth doing keep at it until it is accomplished. The postage stamp endures all sorts of weather and all kinds of handling, but it is very faithful to its mission—"it sticks until it gets there." And that's more than can be said of many individuals who have the reputation for intelligence. Let us stick to good things this year as never before.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF COINS

Americans who visit Europe and encounter such strange new coins as the zloty, the lit and the ostmark will be surprised little more than some who stay at home and meet up with one of the silver dollars the U. S. Treasury is trying to put into active circulation in the east.

A bulletin from the National Geographic Society's Washington, D. C., headquarters points out how much human geography, human history and human interest in general attaches to the circulation of money.

"The easterner of the Middle Atlantic states of today smiles at the early west's refusal to accept 'paper money' but he frowns when he goes to New England and is handed a two-dollar bill—a denomination he is not accustomed to use.

20-Cent Piece Tried

"Unfounded as many money prejudices may be governments must bow to them. Our own country tried vainly for more than thirty years to circulate silver 3-cent pieces, and finally discontinued them. The public made shorter shrift of the 20-cent piece issued in 1875, and it was withdrawn three years later.

"Until the World war began Austrian Maria Theresa dollars of 1780 continued to be minted with that date stamped on them because certain African coast natives would take no other coins. The Spanish dollar persisted in the United States, all through the period of British Colonial rule, and of our independence, even until 1867 when it still was received at American post offices.

"Economists tell learnedly why money makes the commercial world go round but a Parisian opera singer of a decade ago learned the lesson in one classic experience. She was determined to tour the world thoroughly and she stopped over in the Society Islands where her manager contracted to have her sing for one-third the receipts. Her share of 'the box-office' was 3 pigs, 23 turkeys, 44 chickens, 5000 coconuts and an uncomputed quantity of bananas and oranges. She couldn't convert her proceeds, the natives had no money. She fed the fruit to the animals and donated her barnyard to the community when she sailed away.

Every State of Money Progress

"Though the United States emerged when the world war had attained a highly advanced monetary status our own country illustrates virtually every stage of money history. The white man bartered trinkets with the Indians, the Hudson's Bay Company made furs its unit of exchange, cattle in our own west, as in early Rome, constituted money. In Maryland, for a time, one could pay his taxes with corn and a Virginian could pay his debts with tobacco.

"Even today, the country store which takes the farmer's eggs and butter 'in trade' for crepe-de-chine and radio sets exemplifies the barter stage of commerce. So does the newspaper which in its classified columns, affords Mrs. Smith the opportunity to announce 'For Exchange—one handsome baby carriage, practically as good as new, for small refrigerator in good condition.'

"Money measures civilization. Barbarism reigns where all trade is barter. Skins and furs as money represent a hunting or nomadic stage. When cattle enter into exchange a pastoral age is attained. Even metal money exhibits well defined stages. First the quality of the metal figured in transactions. Then a certain quantity of metal of fixed quality became a monetary unit. The Hebrew 'shekel' is the name of a weight as originally were the English 'pound' and the Italian 'lira.'

Shekels and Cattle of Genesis

"The Jews of Genesis illustrate both these stages. It is recorded that Abraham was 'very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold.' And in one of history's earliest real estate records the consideration named when Ephron sold Abraham a cave is '400 shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.'

"Finally metal money was shaped and marked, and thus arrived the coin of invariable weight, quality, shape and design as we know it today.

"The ox was the dollar, the sheep was the dime, in early Roman days. And ten sheep equalled one ox in Roman markets. Naturally the devices on early Roman coins represented animals or parts of animals. At first these were stamped on one side only.

Greenland's Animal Designs

Animals mark the denominations of a Greenelend paper currency issue of this century. The alder duck, saddle-backed seal, reindeer and Polar bear denote different denominations.

"Roman coins illustrate the religion, the architecture, the games and sports, historic events and, in a striking manner, the advent of Christianity. The early Constantine coins disclose the classic heathen gods; after his conversion the coins bear the symbol of the Cross. Were all other sources destroyed the coin collector of 1924 could describe Roman basilicas, aqueducts, columns, tombs, arches and temples.

"The diversity of this coin information was enhanced by the practice of sending the mint master along with Roman armies. Soldiers were paid in the field with money minted in the field, often from locally mined metals. In England's civil war Charles I during his refuge in castles and forts, struck off coins to pay his troops and defray his personal expenses. These are the 'siege-pieces' referred to by collectors of English coins.

Some Monetary Milestones

"Queen Mary was the first English ruler to date her coins. Edward VI first used a value mark when he put Roman numerals on the 12-pence piece. Oliver Cromwell is accredited with introducing inscriptions on the edges of coins to prevent chipping off the silver pieces of his day.

"Since the gold stater of Philip of Macedon found universal acceptance gold has been king in international exchange. But there are places in the world today where primitive currency prevails—ivory tusks, sheep, shells, furs, olive oil and coconuts. If civilized men would do business with many African tribes he must forego money, hence a famous London firm which barters European manufactured goods for palm oil, gold dust, cotton gum and coffee with natives who haven't attained a money status.

"Today, as when the Virginia legislature legalized tobacco money, the United States can point to a patch of its dominion where the 'queerest money in the world' survives. That region is the 'Island of Stone Money' on account of its queer coins. These may weigh a ton. In fiscal nomenclature they might be termed 'securities' rather than a circulating medium. They are fashioned into a wheel shape, with a center hole, and must be a certain variety and quality of limestone to meet monetary standards."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Forgetting the Past

Paul says, "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching to those things which are before."

This is a good motto, not only for this season of the year but for every day. Let us forget the past, wherever its memory hinders present duty. Let us forget the failures of the past, for God does not intend that we should fail eternally. And we ought to be ashamed to be discouraged with such a Saviour pledged to help us.

Let us make a success in spite of the past failures. The man who, like a good general, knows how to win victories out of defeats will be crowned victor at the end of the warfare. Who has not had his failures! The only ignoble thing in this world is discouragement and cowardice on the battlefield of life.

Let us forget past victories and blessings, except as we think of them to give thanks to God. There are greater things ahead; greater battles and greater victories. No matter how great the victories may have been God has greater victory in store for us. We have not exhausted the divine resources. When we started in the race and felt the first glorious power of the divine life we had but found the source of a river whose waters shall ever become more deep and broad. God has more and more for us. If we sit down satisfied with the past we shall stagnate.

The coming year has greater glory and blessing in store for us. Let us look for and expect it.

"Reaching to those things which are before." It is a common fault that we do not make more of future prospects. We ought to think more of the "recompense of the reward," and fix our minds on the coming of the Lord and "seeing Him as He is," the glories of the resurrection life, the joy of heaven, and the reunion with loved ones who await us.

Let us get our eyes more on Heaven and less on the world. The heavenly mansions are just ahead and the contemplation of these "more stately mansions" is in itself a creative act whereby they shall be built.

Let us make much of these coming things. The things to come are better than all the past, no matter how glorious the past may have been.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Advice to Northerners.

Mr. Editor: It is three weeks since I left the cold shores of New England for the "sunny south." The papers have predicted a freeze several times, but it has not arrived yet, though it has been cloudy and raw at times.

Some cut their poinsettias to save them, each stalk blooms but once during the season.

Should like to say to all "northerners," dont come down here unless you bring cash for expenses for a few weeks, beside ticket north. Prices of rooms not heated $4 and up per week, and down state are much higher. "Real estate" seems to be the only live business. The Y. W. C. A. had to furnish a free meal to several girls the past week. "Chamber of Commerce" published a notice in September that "steady residents are to be employed first," which is perfectly right.

Jacksonville has a population of 110,000 and are planning for quarter of million in three more years.

Wilhemina Was Criticized While She Suffered

Compelled by force of circumstances to give up her childhood happiness and become a ruler, Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands, suffered for her people while they criticised her.

Attached by historic and patriotic bonds to the House of Orange, the people of the The Netherlands closely watched her fate from the time of her birth at The Hague, for she was the only heir of King William II and more than once there had been a threatened failure of succession in the House of Orange.

Upon the death of her father when she was ten, she became queen, her mother acting as queen-regent. Then came intensive preparation for her life as ruler. Many subjects had to be studied and her own and other countries had to be toured. Soon her dolls were laid away as unbefitting a queen.

At 18 she was crowned and her people looked to her to guide her country in peace and safety and to provide an heir for the House of Orange.

Married at 21 to Henry, Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, four years her senior, she was commended by her subjects. Soon afterwards she suffered an attack of typhoid fever, then was injured when a team of horses ran away and later was hurt in a fall on a steep stairway. She was compelled to withdraw from public life. Rumors were rife and her people said that she had become proud, exclusive and aristocratic, while in reality she was suffering for them.

She was 28 when her daughter, Princess Juliana, was born and as the child grew into a healthy, normal descendant of the House of Orange, the mother, once more in public life, found her popularity greater than ever.

Then came the world war amongst Holland's neighbors. The Kaiser had told Wilhelmina, "My Potsdam guards stand seven feet high" and she had replied, "Indeed, and when I order my dykes thrown open, the water is ten feet high," and Holland maintained her neutrality throughout the conflict.

Last year all the Netherlands celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of Wilhelmina's coronation as marking a step in the greatest period of the country's history and her people extolled her as their most beloved sovereign.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Richard Henry Dana, who today enters upon his seventy-fifth year, is best known to the public for his activities in connection with the National Civil Service Reform League of the United States, of which organization he was president for many years. Mr. Dana is the son of a famous father whose name he bears. The senior Richard Henry Dana was a lawyer and publicist, as well as the author of a classic, Two Years Before the Mast, and the son entered the same profession and chose the same theory of duty as a citizen. Consequently he has had much to do with the organization and administration of some of the finest charities and educational institutions in his home city of Boston; and, as a Massachusetts lawmaker, he drafted the State's civil service law, and the first Australian ballot statute enacted in the United States. Tax, ballot, municipal government, and civil service reform have commanded his attention and laborious, friendly service for many years.

When a man is unable to choose between two evils he usually hunts up a third.

Man - - The Builder

Civilization is largely the result of man's inherent qualities as a builder.

In every age skilled tradesmen preserved and perpetuated the arts of industry with an ever increasing perfection. It is still the mission of the skilled artisan to render this type of service to humanity.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Always Helping Somebody

November winds are cool and chill,
The leaves are scurrying down the hill,
While up above across the sky
The clouds like ships go sailing by.

Everybody in Rabbit Land was getting ready for winter. The Squirrel Brothers were gathering nuts to store away. Chippy Chipmunk was busy, too, filling his underground storeroom with good things to eat during the cold weather. No one was idle.

"Hello!" shouted the dear old gentleman rabbit.

Busy Beaver was placing a new roof on his house of mud and sticks and Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty mother, was hard at work making apple butter.

Over at Uncle Lucky's little white house in the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Little Miss Mousie, his tiny housekeeper was slicing apples to dry in the sun. Uncle Lucky was fond of apple pie, and Little Miss Mousie took good care that when the store of apples gave out she would have enough dried ones with which to make his favorite dessert.

"Hello," all of a sudden shouted the dear old gentleman rabbit, peeking in through the kitchen door.

"Want a slice?" asked his pretty bobbed haired housekeeper, holding out a slice on the end of the knife.

"Tastes mighty good," laughed dear Uncle Lucky. "One good turn deserves another," and taking a sugar coated almond from his waistcoat pocket, he slipped it into Little Miss Mousie's mouth, at the same time saying with a laugh:

"A candy a day Keeps you merry and gay."

"What were you doing out in the garden?" asked the little mouse with a smile.

"Loafing for a few minutes," apologized the truthful old bunny gentleman. "I was watching a ground hornet dig a winter home for himself. He's made a hole right in the hard earth. My, he's a sayly dressed fellow, —orange-gold body and bottle blue wings. He's a great digger. Down into the tunnel he goes, headfirst, and then backs out with a mouthful of sand."

"Tinkle, tinkle, tinkerty tink,
Clinkerty, clinkerty, clink, clink, clink."

Away hoppe dthe old gentleman bunny to find out who was calling. Oh, it's you," Little Miss Mousie heard him say. And then, "Tell the Old Red Rooster he can have the day off."

"Dear Uncle Lucky," thought Little Miss Mousie. "He's always doing something for somebody, and there seem to be a million somebodies in this world to keep Uncle Lucky busy."

And in the next story I'll relate adventures of the little bunny boy.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Stories That Recall Others

Have You Heard This?

Much to his annoyance they were late to the basketball game, arriving when the game was more than half over.

"What's the score, Fred?" she asked.

"Nothing to nothing," he replied.

"Oh, fine," she said, "We haven't missed a thing."

Echoes of the Past.

Henry received a Christmas greeting from his old friend Ed, reminiful of times of 30 years ago when they were co-workers. It said:

"My dear Henry: Thirty years ago, when eggs were three dozen for 25 cents; butter ten cents a pound; milk five cents a quart; the butcher gave away liver and treated the kids to bologna; the hired girl got $2 a week and did the family washing; women did not powder, paint, smoke, vote, play poker, swear or bob their hair.

"You were making nearly three times as much as I did. Old Mat showed up regularly with his soap and mop; Mike came in a couple of hours late and Jerry 15 minutes later. At Mike's old stand 'red likker' was ten cents and beer five cents; the lunch was free and the barkeeper always bought a drink; men wore whiskers and boots, chewed tobacco, spit on the sidewalk and cussed.

"A kerosene hanging lamp and a stereoscope in the parlor were luxuries. No one was ever operated on for appendicitis, or bought glands. Microbes were unheard of; folks lived to a ripe old age and every year walked miles to wish their friends a merry Christmas.

"Today, you know, everybody rides in automobiles or flies; plays golf, shoots craps, plays the piano with their feet; goes to the movies nightly, smokes cigarettes; drinks bootleg; blames the H. C. of L. on their neighbors; never go to bed the same day they get up and think they are having one grand time.

These are the days of suffragetting, profiteering, rent hogs, excess taxes and prohibition. If you think life worth living I wish you a happy and prosperous New Year."

EXILED R. I. SENATORS ARE TO RETURN HOME TODAY

Providence, R. I., Jan. 2.—Fifteen Rhode Island republican senators, self-exiled in Rutland, Mass., since June in protest against the democratic filibuster in the state senate, will return to their homes in this state tomorrow.

The signal to return was flashed to them from republican headquarters here today when the senate, which has been in continuous theoretic session from day to day since the senators fled, adjourned. Under the law the senate cannot meet again before inauguration day Tuesday at which time the new general assembly will take office. The Rutland exiles, although not all returned to office, will attend the inauguration exercises in a body.

Of the 22 senators who originally fled to Rutland, one has died in the meantime, one has been ill at home and three have been spending more or less time in the state. A sixth is living in Worcester and the seventh, Senator Harry A. Sanderson, of Johnston, has been in Rhode Island to attend the sessions of the senate in order to raise the question of a quorum in the event that the democrats tried to transact business.

The session ending today was the longest in the history of the state. With the exception of a few minor bills, all legislation, including the annual appropriation bill, has been at a standstill since January 1, 1924.

$100,000,000 REQUESTED TO REFUND FEDERAL TAXES

Washington, Jan. 2.—A budget request for another $100,000,000 to be used in refunding federal taxes illegally collected was forwarded today to congress.

Several weeks ago the treasury, through the budget bureau informed the house it would need $50,000,000 for tax refunds in addition to $12,000,000 previously requested.

The treasury bill, sent to the senate this week, contained no provisions for refunds, but the total of $162,000,000 requested probably will be included in a deficiency bill to be reported by the house appropriations committee next week.

A TRIO OF ROBBERS GOT $18,000 PAYROLL IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Three robbers held up the office of the American Railway Express company in the train sheds of the Lasalli street passenger terminal today and fled with an $18,000 payroll.

One alleged member of the robber trio was captured after a battle with station employes as he was about to fellow the others aboard a moving train. The latter two escaped. The suspect was cut and bleeding when turned over to the police.

QUINEBAUG BUILDING

PLAUT-CADDEN CO. BUY BIG BUSINESS BLOCK IN CITY CENTER

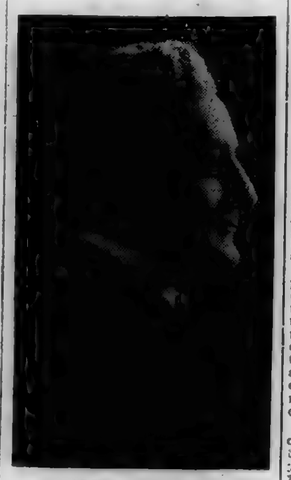
RUTHERFORD C. PLAUT.
President.

JULIUS W. CADDEN.
Secretary and Treasurer.

Negotiations were completed Friday between the Plaut-Cadden Co. and the heirs of the Henry Bill estate, Miss Jane E. Bill and Mrs. Florence Bill Selden, widow of Rev. J. H. Selden, by which the Plaut-Cadden company brought from the Bill estate two of the finest pieces of business property in the center of the city, the Quinebaug building on Main street and the Bill block on Shetucket street at the corner of Water street. The two buildings are on connecting plots of land and together make probably the largest area of business property in the city under individual ownership.

The Quinebaug building is a four story brick block, 125-127-129 141-143 Main street, fronting 65 feet on this street and extending through to Water street with a depth of 120 feet. Adjoining it on the east on Water street is the Bill block, a one story brick building fronting 50 feet on Shetucket street, Nos. 29-31-33-35-37, and running for the same depth along Water street. Between the buildings is a great irregular area, 60 feet deep, which can be built up in connecting the two buildings and there is possibility that in addition, it may be added to the Bill block to bring it up to the same height as the Quinebaug building. Approximately 100,000 square feet in the buildings will be available for the Plaut-Cadden Co., in the plans which they have under consideration towards the development of a truly great store to which many departments will be added. The plans of the company are taking into consideration the future possibilities of Water street for commercial purposes and their frontage here comprises the property numbered 154-156-158.170-172, 174 Water street.

The extensions and enlargements



ADELARD MORIN.
Vice-President and General Manager.

that will be accomplished with the acquirement of this expensive and valuable property are the natural evolution and culmination of the vision of a great modern store for Norwich which has led the individuals of the company on from one progressive step to another in the last fifty-two years, since the late Abraham Plaut conducted a jewelry store at 200 Main street. In 1899, the Plaut-Cadden Co., a consolidation of the firms of A. Plaut and the Cadden Cycle Co., moved into the Main street location now occupied by Utley and Jones, where they put in a new front and made extensive enlargements. The business increased by leaps and bounds and the next step was the erection of the five story building on Main street, opposite the Quinebaug building, to be the home of one of Connecticut's greatest stores. To this was added the Johnson building and some time afterwards the firm moved across the street into the Quinebaug building which they have now acquired by purchase. A complete new front was put into the building which was transformed into one of the most modern business structures in this territory. When the firm took over the Quinebaug building it was thought that the limit of development had been reached, but the people of Norwich an dthis leading center accepted the innovations so well that it was realized by the members of the company that they could develop further along lines not often attempted in a city of the size of Norwich. The result is seen today in the plans which the company is making in the purchase and the development of the Bill property. Their business plans will be carried out in connection with their large New London organization to make the largest commercial center in Eastern Connecticut.

PETITIONS FOR ELECTRIC CHARTERS IN NORWICH

Hartford, Jan. 2.—Two petitions requesting authority to purchase the gas and electric department of Norwich and two asking permission to supply electric power in that city have been filed with the secretary of the state and are to be presented to the incoming session of the general assembly. The A. E. Fitkin company of New York and the Norwich Gas and Electric company are applicants for authority to purchase and the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, and Philip Z. Hankey for the Thames Power company, are applying for permission to furnish power in Norwich.

The A. E. Fitkin company, in which J. J. Desmond and Angus Park are associated with Mr. Fitkin, will ask the general assembly for a charter authorizing them to acquire the Norwich system, taking over all obligations of the city in connection with the power department. The petition states that the company has received the approval of the mayor and common council to the proposal.

The Norwich Gas and Electric company, which owned the city lighting system prior to municipal control about 20 years ago, asks for an amendment to its charter authorizing purchase of the present city department. Alex J. Campbell, president of the company, is the signer of the petition.

Philip Z. Hankey, who is associated with Milton J. Warner and Howard M. Whiting in the proposal, requests a charter for the Thames Power company, on a capitalization of $2,000,000, with the principal office at Norwich. The petition of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company asks for a charter amendment authorizing it to supply service to Norwich, Sprague, Lisbon, Bozrah, Lebanon, Preston, Scotland and Canterbury.

Misunderstanding About Trolley

Evidently there was a misunderstanding about the late car for Taftville following the Combat Train dance Thursday night at the Armory. Those in charge of the dance had called someone at the car barn and believed a car would be provided. For some reason unknown the dispatcher was not notified and the car was not provided.

The Taftville people were taken home, however, as the trolley company courteously supplied a car.

Upon recommendation of the standing committee, Owen S. Smith was re-elected deacon for six years and Clyde M. Beebe was chosen deacon for six years, this being his first term as deacon. Newly appointed members of the Missionary and Finance committee are Miss Mabelle Scott and Miss Louise Hopping. The Welcoming committee comprises Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, Miss Jennie L. Congdon, Miss Lillian Browning, Miss Rose K. Durr, Dwight W. Avery and Henry T. Frazier.

George F. Hyde was chosen the head of the board of ushers, with the privilege of selecting the board.

It was voted to discontinue the communion offering. A cordial letter to the church parish, from a former pastor, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, of Danbury, was read by Rev. Mr. Bailey.

Mention was made of the loss by death during the past year of five members—Miss Hannah Witter, Mrs. Edwin C. Gay, Mrs. Henry Leavens, Mrs. Eliza Saxton and Mrs. William Potter.

Items of special interest include a substantial sum of money as a Christmas gift to the church from Deacon William Randall Lathrop. Mrs. Sarah J. Tibbals of New Haven left in her will a legacy to the First Congregational church of $2,000, unrestricted, and the fund has just become available.

Following are the reports submitted: Horse department of the Sunday school closes the year 1924 with 24 members, a gain of one over last year. Calls have been made and quarterlies distributed as usual. Money for quarterlies amounts to $12.25.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society has held a meeting every Sunday except three during 1924, once when uniting with the Central Baptist church, and again when the society joined with the United Congregational church to hear President Marshall of Connecticut college speak. The society by special invitation, attended the Candle Light service at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalise) December 21st.

Decision Day, the elder people of the church were guests of the society, many speaking helpfully on the subject. Others from outside have spoken from time to time at the C. E. meetings. Six new members have been added during the year.

A play was presented and from the proceeds over $100 was given toward the interior decoration of the church fund; $25 was sent for the work of the field secretary. The flower committee has put flowers in the church every Sunday which have been sent to shut-ins; and at Christmas, Easter and other times, there have been flowers provided. The attendance at the meetings and interest shown is increasing.

The 1924 report of the Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society shows that six meetings were held during the year, with an average attendance of 12.

The society has received from the mite boxes, Lenten offering, Eastern Connecticut Branch—incidentals, thank offering including a sum from an evening programme, church envelopes, etc., a total of $126.03. The Home Missionary society has met eleven times during 1924, sometimes in the chapel and some times in private houses. Two of these meetings were public suppers, given especially to raise money.

With only nine other meetings and a small average attendance the society has not been able to do great things. Nevertheless, the following has been accomplished: A box of new garments, made at the meetings, has been sent to the New York rooms of the Home Missionary society, to be distributed among needy families. A box of personal gifts for Miss Ruth Beebe and the children in Trinity school, Athens, Alabama, reached her in time for their Christmas celebration. A barrel and box of second-hand clothing, books and magazines went last spring to Athens, the proceeds from the sale of these articles being applied to the running expenses of the Department of Domestic Science in Trinity school. A package containing warm garments again went north to be used by the workers in the Grenfell Mission.

This society met its appportionment of $224 for the year just closed, and gave $55 toward the fund for redecorating the church. During the year two valuable members have passed away, Mrs. Edwin C. Gay, and Mrs. Henry Leavens, and there is much need for new ones to take their places.

Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters numbers 21 members. During 1924, fifteen meetings have been held. At Easter time cards were sent to friends who are shut-ins. May baskets were prepared and distributed as in past years. The fair in October was a success. Among gifts $25 was given to the church fund for interior decorations, $5 to the Seaside Sanatorium. Regular services have been planned for the clubhouse.

Following out a custom of years, this circle brought cheer to the family at the almshouse the Sunday preceding Christmas, when a religious service was held, by Rev. Mr. Bailey. The singing of Christmas songs and the distribution of fruit, candy, gifts and money to both men and women, made them happy to the pleasure of the circle members.

In July the annual Cradle Roll party was held on the church lawn when about forty mothers and children attended. The children brought in their mite boxes which had been distributed by the leader in spring. After games and refreshments, the boxes were opened. Ten dollars was sent to the Eastern Connecticut Branch for the work of Foreign Missions.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich Town, Miss Florence M. Bennett was appointed a member of the hospital committee, instead of Miss Theodora Brown, as previously stated.

At this church New Year's eve when a Watch Night service was held several other churches uniting, the sermon was by Rev. Mr. Webb, pastor of Pearah Congregational church not of Fitchville Baptist.

When the annual parish supper of the First Congregational church was held New Year's night, those assisting the supper committee were Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, Mrs. Frank Wilcox, Mrs. Earl Browning and Mrs. William Hough.

An anniversary requiem high mass for John McNamara, was celebrated at the Sacred Heart church Friday morning at 7 o'clock, by Rev. Charles W. Brennan, the pastor. Under direction of the organist, Miss Elizabeth A. Malone, the choir sang Mrs. Morgan Cronin sustaining the solo parts. At the close of the mass she sang Sweet Day. Included in the large attendance were relatives from North Dakota, Minnesota, New York, New Jersey and New London.

Motored From Mystic.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Smith and son, Raymond Smith of Mystic motored to Norwich Town, New Year's day, and attended the different events at the First Congregational church. Mrs. Smith remained in Norwich and is visiting for a week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burke of Lafayette street.

KAPLAN WINS FEATHERWEIGHT CROWN BY BEATING KRAMER TO A STANDSTILL

New York, Jan. 3 (By the A. P.)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., tonight was recognized as featherweight champion of the world by scoring a technical knockout over Danny Kramer of Philadelphia in the ninth round of a fifteen round match in Madison Square Garden, the final in the tournament conducted by the New York state athletic commission to determine a successor to Johnny Dundee, who surrendered the title.

Kaplan used the same tactics he employed in his previous bouts of the tournament, rushing in with a tattooing left and a flashing right that bore down his opponent for seven rounds of the battle.

After the second round there was little doubt about the outcome, for Kramer appeared unable to get his much-touted left into action with the New England "buzzsaw" whirling and whirling and cutting his man to pieces.

Time after time the Philadelphian standing up under a battering such as few men have received in a prize ring, held his hands to his head and backed away. He was helpless. There was a large gash over his left eye and his right was closed. In the eighth, as Kramer staggered about, spectators called upon the referee to stop the battle and, at the end of the round, donned overcoats, for they knew that the next round would finish it.

After one minute and eleven seconds of the ninth, Max Hoff, manager of Kramer, hurled a towel into the ring as a sign of surrender, with his boxer tottering under a succession of lefts and rights to the head and blood pouring from his face.

Kaplan opened the contest by shooting a short right to the head which nettled his opponent, but Kramer retaliated with left and rights to the body. Both aimed for knockouts and the pace was furious. No two fighting men in existence could pound away through fifteen rounds of such milling. Kaplan introduced his trip-hammer left and Kramer seemed worried at the bell. The referee had to send the men to their corners, as they failed to hear or heed the bell, the roar of approval was so terrific.

They closed in and were wary as the second started, Kramer sending a left to the head which jarred his opponent. Kaplan returned a left that opened an old cut over the Philadelphian's eyes. Kaplan's left eye also stopped a Kramer jab and was bleeding. They were still fighting furiously. Kramer dropped to his knees under a right and left but was up before the count started.

After Kramer had pumped lefts and rights to the body at the start of the third the Meriden man took a lead which he retained until the end. For the first time he produced the offensive that had defeated Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., and Jose Lombardo of Panama in the earlier rounds of the tournament. He became rat-like and advanced, dodging. Then he sprang and was all over his adversary with lefts and rights, while the Philadelphian attempted to cover. Kaplan was warned for holding.

Kaplan refused to allow Kramer to lead in the fourth and administered another severe thrashing with that whip-like left, dancing about his victim and beaming confidence. The fifth brought another vicious attack to Kramer's head and it was apparent that the battle could not last long. Kramer's head bobbed with rights and lefts in the sixth and the Philadelphian failed to lift a hand except to defend his face throughout the round. For the next two rounds and until the virtual knockout in the ninth it was all one way, with the New Englander pummeling away, seemingly unable to down his man. Kramer's right eye was swollen and his face smeared with blood as he struggled to retain his footing. He accepted a terrific beating until his manager threw in the towel in the ninth.

After Kramer left the ring it was learned that his nose had been broken and there were several cuts about his head. Kaplan just managed to scale down to the featherweight limit of 126 pounds, while Kramer, a natural featherweight, entered the ring at 125.

Kaplan is a native of Russia. He is 23 years old and has been fighting for the past six years. He ran away from his Russian home at the age of 11 years and came to this country to seek his fortune. Under the name of Benny Miller he fought in New Jersey and in various towns and cities, finally settling in Meriden, Conn., which he now claims as his home. He has fought virtually every leading featherweight in the game and is considered one of the fastest men in the 126-pound division.

ROUND ONE—The fight assumed furious proportions at the start. Both men rushed to meet each other as the opening gong rang. Kaplan bored in while Kramer using his right to guard and punching with his left, cleverly evaded Kaplan's lunges.

There was plenty of infighting with honors even.

Both men landed effective blows to the head at long range.

Kaplan, using a hard right, jarred the southpaw with a series of blows to the jaw just as the round ended.

ROUND TWO — Both were short with leads and a clinch followed. Kramer landed two lefts to Kaplan's jaw.

Kaplan staggered Kramer with a furious right to the jaw. Kramer countered with a right to the jaw. Blood showed on Kramer's forehead at this point.

Kramer went down from the force of Kaplan's furious attack, but was up without a count.

They were in a clinch at the bell.

ROUND THREE—At close range both men landed rights and lefts to the head and body. Kaplan continued to bore in but he was met at every charge of Kramer. The referee warned Kaplan for roughing. A left to the jaw by Kramer staggered Kaplan but he reeled into a clinch and covered up. They exchanged body blows. Kaplan missed a left lead but four rights in rapid succession landed to Kramer's jaw. Just as the bell rang Kramer sank his powerful left to Kaplan's body.

Round Four—Kaplan staggered Kramer with a straight right to the jaw. Kaplan took Kramer's lefts to body without a whimper and countered with several rights and lefts to Kramer's head. Kaplan was warned again for holding. It was a speedy exhibition but both men were weathering the furious storm of blows in good fashion. Kaplan staggered Kramer with a furious attack to the head and brought blood from the southpaw's nose. They were fighting fast at the bell.

ROUND FIVE—Kramer landed his left to Kaplan's ribs to open the round. They clinched. Kaplan was boring in every minute but Kramer was swapping punch for punch. Kramer's head bobbed back when Kaplan landed his right to Kramer's jaw. The referee warned Kaplan for holding again. Both boys were bleeding about the face as the wet gloves began to cut. They were locked tight in the center of the ring at the bell.

ROUND SIX—Kaplan had Kramer groggy from a furious attack in which the Meriden boy hit Kramer with everything from all directions. Kramer was unable to land even a countering blow. With both hands swinging to the head Kaplan put Kramer almost completely on the defensive. Another stormy attack of rights and lefts found Kramer still fighting gamely but outclassed, in the exchange of blows. The bell found Kramer slowly weakening.

ROUND SEVEN—Kaplan continued his buzz-saw tactics and Kramer held on to save himself from punishment. Kaplan landed a right to the head and body but took a left to the stomach. Kaplan landed a right to the head and body but took a left to the stomach in return. Kaplan seemed tireless in the torrid attack he concentrated to Kramer's head. A right to the face closed Kramer's right eye. Another brought fresh blood from his nose but he met Kaplan's every charge. The bell stopped Kaplan in another stormy attack to Kramer's head.

ROUND EIGHT—Kramer landed a left to Kaplan's head but it lacked the steam of Kaplan's countering right. Three times Kaplan landed his left to Kramer's head without a return. Kramer weakening fast, reeled around the ring as Kaplan relentlessly kept up his furious aggressiveness, showering the Philadelphia southpaw with blows from every direction. Kaplan hit Kramer continuously to the face without a return, battering him about the ring until his face dripped with blood. Kramer refused to go down however. Kramer staggered to the corner as the bell stopped his punishment.

ROUND NINE—Following up his advantage Kaplan kept up his powerful attack but still Kramer battled on at the hopeless task of holding back the furious Kaplan. The crowd yelled to the referee to stop the fight as Kramer reeled about the ring, helpless to defend himself and his face dripping with blood. A towl from Kramers corner fluttered into the ring and the referee stopped hostilities.

BILLIARD TOURNEY AT NEW LONDON INTERSECTING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 2.—The first lap of the elimination billiard tournament held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. terminated this evening with the four winners in the matches winning their respective match by a fairly large margin. Only the third match with Edward Henkle and Edward Nocery participating was so close as to make the outcome uncertain. The remaining matches were easy victories only the beginning of each match being close.

There were very few highlights during the entire four matches, and the highest individual run of the evening was a block of five by James Neilson. Neilson in this match just about gave the death blow to any hopes his rival had of defeating him. his play and that consistent clicking of the billiards by Joseph MacInnes furnished some good billiard playing. As the tournament progresses it is expected that the competition will be keener.

In the opening match, Robert Donohue's skill over that exhibition by his opponent Kenneth Shea, extended to a final score of 25 to 11. Donohue piled up an early lead which enabled him to gain an advantage over his rival. Shea in the final innings grew stronger and ran off two and three in the last two innings, but the early lead amassed by Donohue was too much to overcome.

Although James Neilson and James Harkins gave a good exhibition of billiards in the early innings, the superior play of the former asserted itself after the tenth inning and the outcome from that time on was never in doubt. Neilson ran off the highest block of the evening with five, while the other innings he clicked off one or two almost each time he played. In running off his five, Neilson came near running out on his opponent, his requirement to finish was but a single point. The final score in this match was 25 to 13 in Neilson's favor.

Henkle and Nocery in the third match of the evening were evenly matched, and their play was close throughout the entire game. Henkle had the advantage by scoring an early lead which helped him to pull out the winner. The final score of this match was 25 to 19 for Henkle.

The final match saw MacInnes taking Brown into camp by a 25 to 16 score. It was MacInnes game throughout with Brown making a feeble attempt to overcome an early lead. MacInnes had a run of four twice, and his remaining scores were of two and three with a single score interspersed. He will surely be able to remain for the finals if his present play is kept up.

NOTRE DAME WILL NOT PLAY CALIFORNIA TEAM

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2.—Knute Rockne, coach of the Notre Dame football team, late today issued word that killed all chances of a meeting between his eleven and the University of California team here.

Rockne, who had been considering all day the proposal advanced by alumni of both institutions, said his team had received a severe battering in the New Year's day clash with Stanford.

Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback, is in the Pasadena hospital with a broken anklebone in a cast, Joe Bach has a strained vertebrae, and Bill Cerney has two fractured ribs. The latter two players are not in the hospital. These injuries, said the coach, would greatly weaken his team.

Moreover, he added, his men were scheduled to resume their studies at Notre Dame Jan. 8.

Finally, if it were possible to arrange a game with the Golden Bears, he declared, the contest would be played in the Berkeley stadium and not in Los Angeles. The Rockne men leave tomorrow for San Francisco.

PADDOCK AND MURCHISON WILL NOT RUN THIS MONTH

New York, Jan. 2.—Loren Murchison of Newark, N. J., and Charlie Paddock of Los Angeles, Cal., American sprinters, who were scheduled to begin a world tour Jan. 14, have delayed the start of their expedition until the middle of February, Murchison announced today.

The tour, which will take the sprinters to Australia, Japan, Germany, Finland, Sweden, France and England, will start either Feb. 14 or 24. Murchison's decision to postpone the beginning of the trip, it is said, is based on his desire to meet Jackson V. Schols, the only American to win a first place in the 1924 Olympic sprinting events, on the indoor boards during the January meetings.

Boxing Shows Decided Decline In 1924

The year in professional pugilism was marked by a very decided falling off in receipts, public interest and the caliber of contests offered by the promoters. The dawning of 1925 finds many boxing clubs carrying crushing deficits or barely making expenses.

The same clubs a year ago were prosperous and playing to profitable houses.

The huge gate receipts recorded in 1923 were not realized in 1924, due, perhaps, to the general backsliding in the class of attractions offered, but more likely attributable to the fact that the static public has been thoroughly "fed up" on boxing. In many of the weeks during the year now brought to a close there were boxing shows every night—and most of them of a mediocre sort. The matchmaking, for the most part, was second class, to say the least.

In 1923 the champions in the various divisions, from flyweights to heavyweights, were comparatively busy. In 1924 it was almost impossible to drag a titleholder into the ring.

While from competitive, financial and artistic viewpoints the game suffered in 1924 as compared with the banner year of 1923, the administration of the sport as a state institution has undoubtedly improved very considerably. The present N. Y. State Boxing Commission, with George Brower at its head, has made a fine record, accomplishing many needed reforms and bringing order out of the chaos left by the preceding administration.

The closing year finds Jack Dempsey more firmly intrenched than ever as heavyweight champion of the world. He did not find it necessary during 1924 to defend his title. The year witnessed the utter collapse of Luis Angel Firpo as a contender for the title and leaves Harry Wills, the colored giant, as the only figure on the heavyweight horizon capable of giving Dempsey a real contest. Defeats at the hands of Harry Wills and Charley Weinert completely shattered the Firpo boom.

In the light heavyweight division Mike McTigue still reigns as the most careful circumspect of world's champions. Efforts to inveigle Mike into decision bouts involving the title were uniformly fruitless. The only risk he took during the entire year was in a no-decision battle in Newark with Young Stribling. He was rather soundly trounced in this affair, but came off with his title intact.

Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, risked his title twice in decision bouts — once against Ted Moore, the English boxer. On both occasions Greb was returned the winner.

Gene Tunney, regarded as the American light heavyweight, registered a notable performance when he risked that honor in a battle with Georges Carpentier at the Polo Grounds. He stopped the Frenchman in fourteen rounds.

In the welterweight, lightweight and featherweight classes there were no new champions. Mickey Walker, the welterweight king, has been comparatively inactive, and, like some of the other titleholders, has shunned decision fights. Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, didn't raise a glove in defense of his title during the entire year, preferring to confine his activities to the stage and screen.

Johnny Dundee resigned as featherweight champion because he could no longer make the weight, and the Boxing Commission is now in process of naming his successor through the elimination method. During the year Johnny Dundee lost his world's junior lightweight title to Kid Sullivan, of Brooklyn.

The only generally recognized title to change hands during the year was the bantamweight. In this division Abe Goldstein, of Harlem, deposed the veteran Joe Lynch in a fifteen-round battle at Madison Square Garden, and Goldstein in turn was disposed of by Eddie Martin.

Pancho Villa, the flyweight champion, came through the year with his title intact. He was matched to meet his foremost rival, Frankie Genaro, but the affair was called off when Genaro was taken ill.

EAST LEADS IN THE INTERSECTIONAL CONTESTS

New York, Jan. 2 (By the A. P.—The lead which the middle west held in intersectional gridiron play at the end of the regular playing season has been wiped away by post-season developments of the past few weeks, and the east holds the top by a scant margin in the final summary of football conflict.

Based upon 40 intersectional games of the season which came to a spectacular climax New Year's day on the Pacific coast, the standing shows the east leading the middle west by only 6 points, with the far west third and the south last.

Revised statistics of the intersectional play staged exclusively in the far west as a holiday feature shows the east also holds a margin on the games played since 1915. In the past decade the east has won 6 and lost 5 of these post-season classics, the middle west has divided 4, while the far west has captured 7 and lost 8. Three games ended in ties.

The final intesectional standing for the past season:

PLAINFIELD ARMY-NAVY FIVE LOSES FIRST GAME TO SO. MANCHESTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Jan. 2.—The Army-Navy Five of Plainfield suffered its first defeat here this evening at the hands of the South Manchester quintet, 26 to 16. The game was the fastest of any game yet played on the Plainfield floor, both teams exhibiting a brilliant attack, although the locals were fighting an uphill battle most of the way.

South Manchester started off at lightning speed with some pretty teamwork that netted them 13 points in the first half. The Army-Navy club, although on the defensive most of the time, managed to score 3 points. In the second half South Manchester continued to pile up the points until they doubled the score of the first half. The Army-Navy team also scored the same number of points in the second half as they did in the first. The local team had many opportunities for scoring but poor basket shooting held the score down. Prevost was the mainstay of the Plainfield team, scoring 10 of the locals' 16 points. Dutch Leonard was the shining light of the visitors. The summary:

BULKELEY-ALUMNI GAME HAS BEEN CALLED OFF

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 2.—Bulkeley's basketball game with the Alumni which was to take place at the Y. M. C. A. gym on this (Saturday afternoon, has been called off, due to the lack of interest in the practice sessions which were supposed to precede the game necessitated the calling off of the game.

The cancellation of the contest is a disappointment to the Bulkeley followers who expected to see a red hot game mature on Saturday afternoon. There would have been little doubt that the contest would have been well played, for the Alumni had a strong array of players in their lineup. With the returning of Coach William R. Canty from his home in Vermont after spending the holidays at his home, the games on the schedule for the remainde r ofthis month will be diligently pursued. Practice will be held every day in the week, twice at the Y. M. C. A. and three times at the State Armory.

A busy month in basketball will see Bulkeley resuming her relations on the court with honest endeavor. Among the teams which will be met by the Orange and Black combination during this month are as follows: Plainfield High, Deep River, Springfield Commercial High, Hartford High, New Haven High, Rhode Island state college freshmen, Stamford High, and Fordham College freshmen. Most of these games will be played out of town, which will make the task all the harder for the Bulkeley quintet to come out a winner.

GETTING TO WORK ON BIG LEAGUE SCHEDULES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 2.—Three members of the National and American baseball leagues' schedule drafting committee met here today and went to work on the 1925 schedule. B. B. Johnson, president of the American league and a member of the committee, did not attend the initial meeting because of a slight illness. He is expected to reach Pittsburgh tomorrow.

John Heydler, president of the National circuit, Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh club, and Will Harridge, secretary to President Johnson, attended today's meeting.

Members of the committee spoke of the possibility of returning to the old schedule arrangement for closing the season on Oct. 4 instead of late in September. The earlier closing date, it was said, was found unsatisfactory, since it caused the clubs to play more double headers than usual. The opening date, it was said, would remain the same as last year.

The work of drafting the schedules will continue through Saturday and probably Sunday. The complete schedules will be acted upon when the leagues meet in February.

Leaves to Arrange Practice.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Manager William Killifer of the Chicago Cubs left tonight for Catalina Islands to arrange for spring practice. The squad will leave here Feb. 26 for the six weeks' training grind.

BALTIC WANDERERS WIN FROM SO. KINGSTON FIVE

The Baltic Wanderers completely outclassed the South Kingston Gold Bugs Friday evening at the Baltic court when they sent the visitors back on the short end of a 45 to 31 score. The Baltic team played exceptionally fast basketball and shot baskets almost at will. In the preliminary game the Taftville Celtics continued their winning streak and beat the Baltic Bantams, 42 to 14.

SPORTING NOTES

(By the A. P.)

The "touring germ" has spread rapidly among track and field athletes as an outgrowth of the Olympic games, Emerson Norton, former Georgetown and Kansas star, is about to complete a world tour on his way to New York from the Orient, where he appeared with Jackson scholtz, Olympic 200-metre champion, in exhibitions. Going back over the trail this pair have left, Loren Murchison and Charles Paddock, sprint aces, leave soon for the far east, from whence they will go on to Africa and Europe. Paavo Nurmi has invaded this country in an attempt toward indoor laurels to his Olympic glory. A fellow Finn, Jonni Myrra, who won the Olympic javelin throw, also in the United States, now comes word that Harold Abrahams and Eric Liddell, British fliers, may appear at the Pennsylvania relay carnival.

Robert Zuppke, Illinois coach, told one on Gil Dobie, Cornell's "gloomy" football mentor, at the football coaches' dinner in New York that is worthy of mention.

After the Cornell-Pennsylvania game in Philadelphia Thanksgiving Day, Zuppke met Dobie in a hotel lobby and with words of consolation endeavored to soften the sting of the Pennsylvania victory by soothing words to the Cornell coach.

"Can't understand it Gil," said Zup, "your backfield is the fastest thing I have ever seen. It starts quick and gets to the line of scrimmage without any loss of time."

"Yes," replied Dobie, "but that's just the trouble. They get to the tacklers too fast."

John B. Trescott, an Overland, Mo., salesman, filed suit against the Louis American League Baseball club for $10,000 for injuries received when a foul ball struck him in the right eye during a game with Boston July 26, last. Trescott said he was seated in the grandstand and tried to dodge. Injuries to his eye and nose necessitated large expenditures for doctor and hospital bills.

Jimmy Cooney, St. Louis Cardinals shortstop, set a new fielding record last season with a percentage of .969.

Joe Tinker held the old mark, fielding .958 for Cincinnati in 1912. Cooney handled cleanly 564 of his 582 chances in 99 games, making 242 put outs and 322 assists. He participated in 68 double plays.

Discussing the speed on the basis of Hans Lobert, Dave Bancroft, manager of the Boston Braves, at the Chicago baseball meeting, told how Lobert on a barnstorming trip once raced a mustang around the bases, the pony being ridden on the outside, Lobert, by making the turns faster, led when rounding third base, but the pony caught up and at the home plate, the judge of the race called: "The pony wins by a nose." "How can that be, judge, look at mine," Lobert demanded, pointing to that prominent feature for which he also was noted.

Elbert Bloodgood, University of Nebraska quarterback, declared ineligible for another season's play, will take up professional baseball next spring. Bloodgood said he had received offers from the New York Nationals, St. Louis Americans, Seattle Pacific Coast League team, and clubs in the Western League. He is an outfielder and has played two years on the university team.

Although Rutgers is not on the Syracuse University football schedule, "Chick" Meehan, orange coach, considers the New Brunswick, N. J., team the greatest menace of the Orange eleven.

In 1923 "Pete" Macrae, Orange captain, was kept off Walter Camp's All-American team by Homer Hazel, a halfback, who was placed at end by Camp. This year John McBride, the great kicking halfback, was kept off the All-American team by the same Homer Hazel, who was placed at fullback by Camp.

Major John L. Griffith, high commissioner of the Western Conference, advanced a theory at the football coaches' dinner which caused some of the mentors to think deeply. He suggested the appointment of a committee to rule out [illegible] coaches ethics and indulge in tactics of unsportsmanlike character in their mad desire to win games.

Harold (Red) Grange, mighty halfback of Illinois, is well on the road to establishment of a record for appearance on Walter Camp's All-American teams. He has been placed here for two years and has another season at college.

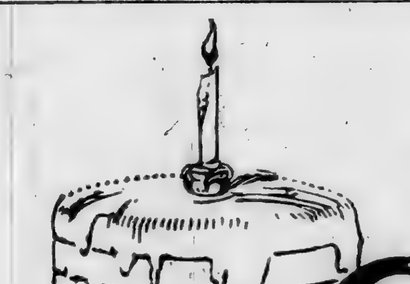
Wichita of the Western League has acquired Ralph Miller, who substituted for Roger Peckinpaugh in the World's Series, Jim Brilliart, pitcher, and Hankins, also a pitcher, from the Senators.

Joe Orr has been signed to pitch for the Boston Braves. That at least is the name Burt Whitman has hung on him. His real name is Ogrodowski. Burt fears the typos will get their fingers crossed, as they are wont to do, when they are spelling it, so the chances are Orr will stick.

New Orleans has purchased Pat Shea, a right-hand pitcher from San Francisco. Shea went to the Seals in deal by which the Giants acquired Jim O'Connell.

Babe Ruth, through with his profitable barnstorming trip, has returned to his farm in Sudbury, Mass. Babe played in 15 cities on the tour, put his name on thousands of baseballs belted 17 home runs, delivered 22 speeches and collected probably $12,000. Not so bad, eh?

Word has reached Mobile that Manuel Cueto, shortshop is the father of another boy. The Cuetos live in Cuba.



A Great Success for Chrysler

One year has elapsed since the Chrysler Six was first introduced to the American public. In the span of that year, the Chrysler has grown from a mere name to a success the like of which has never been known before.

One year ago, Walter P. Chrysler promised a car that would yield new and revolutionary results. Since then, the Chrysler has more than redeemed its pledge.

In compactness and beauty of design in quickness of response and flexibility of performance, in economy and facility of operation, in power and in stamina, it has satisfied the long-cherished wants of a critical motoring public.

$50,000,000 and upwards has been paid by Chrysler-wild American motor car buyers for the privilege of enjoying these revolutionary results. 32,000 cars have been built and shipped in an effort to fill the demand.

It is therefore fitting that Monday, January 5th, the Chrysler's first birthday, should be a day of celebration—for the Chrysler organization because of the unparalleled success attained in one year's time—for owners and admirers because of the Chrysler's revolutionary achievements.

You are cordially invited to attend our birthday party.

The Touring Car, $1395; The Phaeton, $1495; The Roadster, $1625; The Sedan, $1825; The Brougham, $1965; The Imperial, $2065; The Crown-Imperial, $2195; The Royal Coupe, $1895. All prices f. o. b. Detroit subject to current government tax.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Dealers everywhere.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Jan. 2.—The stock market today began the New Year with a remarkable display of strength which extended to practically all groups. Both the rail and industrial averages showed substantial gains on the day, the latter raising to the highest level on record. Total sales slightly exceeded 1,900,000 shares.

Chief speculative interest centered in a few specialties which were whirled upward at the expense of an overcrowded short interest. American Bosch Magneto registered a perpendicular rise of nearly 19 points in the final hour, touching 49 3-8 and then slipping back about a point. Radio Corporation jumped 13 points to a record high of 77 7-8.

Forty-four issues eclipsed their high prices of last year, the list including nine oils, seven rails, five motors, and four equipments. Some of the outstanding strong spots were American Car and Foundry, Electric Storage Battery, Westinghouse, American Bank Note, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies preferred, Butterick Publishing, Cluett-Peabody, Pressed Steel Car, Twin City Rapid Transit and United Fruit, all up from 3 to 7 points.

Oil shares responded favorably to the reported decrease of 23,250 barrels daily in domestic crude output last week, the Barnsdall, Pan-American and Shell Union issues all selling above last year's high prices on net gains ranging from fractions to 2 1-2 points. Good buying was also noted in Atlantic Refining, Pacific, Houston and a few others. The traditional pre-motor show demonstration took place in the automotive issues with a brisk demand for Jordan, Mack Truck, Stewart-Warner and Stromberg as the outstanding features.

Rails were slow in getting started, but they finally swung upward under the leadership of the Southwestern carriers. "Katy" preferred touched 78, the highest price since 1909, and the common sold at 31, the highest price since 1912, both showing net gains of more than two points on the day. Jersey Central jumped 8 points to 298, and gains of a point or more were registered by Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Rock Island common, Great Northern preferred, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific, Reading Frisco common, Southern Railway, Wabash preferred A, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Delaware and Hudson and Lackawanna.

Famous Players made a further response to the recent wiping out of bank loans by touching 99 1-2, the highest price in over two years. Montgomery Ward rallied briskly on reports of high current earnings. General Electric, which scored a sensational gain during the early part of the week, broke 8 points and then recovered half of its loss. Sears Roebuck dropped nearly 5 points to 150 and then rallied to 153 3-4.

Call money opened at 5 per cent., eased to 4 3-4 and thence to 4 as January interest and dividend funds poured back into the banks. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business in moderate volume.

The sharp advance in the pound sterling on London yesterday, while the New York market was closed, was duplicated here today, demand bills being quoted just under $4.75, at the highest level since the removal of the war-time "peg" in 1919. Other European rates showed only nominal changes.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 2.—Bond prices maintained a firm tone as the new year was ushered in with a fresh burst of activity. Some irregularity developed in spots, but the trend of public utility, semi-speculative rail and foreign government bonds were definitely upward.

French obligations staged a moderate rally following the announcement that definite negotiations for the funding of the French debt to the United States had been opened. The government's issues, which had declined scharply as a result of uncertainty over the situation, recovered about a point and many of the French municipal aid railroad liens scored gains of a point or more. Other European issues were firm.

While liquidation of high priced railroad bonds was in evidence, buying of the more speculative issues was renewed on a large scale. Seaboard Air Line obligations led the advance with gain of 1 to 2 3-4 points, while a varied assortment of issues, including "Katy" adjustment 5's, Erie convertible 4's "D", Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5's International-Great Northern adjustment 6's, New Haven convertible 6's and Western Pacific first 5's, moved up 1 to 2 points.

The substantial decrease in crude oil production last week furnished the basis for an upswing in leading oil company bonds, which kept pace with a rise in oil stocks. Pan-American 6's and Skelly 6 1-2's were among the issues which eclipsed their 1924 high records.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 2.—A burst of activity in radio shares, which scored net gains of 1 to 4 points and led most of the other industrial issues into higher ground, featured the opening session of the new year on the New York curb market.

Buoyed up by the spectacular jump of 13 points in Radio Corporation shares of the "big board" and the widespread interest attracted to this class of stock by the latest developments in broadcasting, virtually all the radio issues spurted upward on a large turnover. Radio common mounted 1 3-8 points to a new high at 15 1-4 while the shares of the same company on the stock exchange were establishing a record high at 77 7-8. Thompson Radio moved up 3 7-8. Hazeltine 2 1-4 and DeForest 1-2 while few of the other stocks failed to show improvement over 1925 closing figures.

Aside from the activity in the Radio group, chief trading interest centered in initial dealings in the new Electric Bond & Share stock listed on a "when issued" basis. After selling as high as $115 in "outside" trading last Wednesday.

The shares opened today at 83 7-8, and speculative disappointment was immediately reflected in a break of eight points in General Electric on the stock exchange. The brisk demand for the shares however, lifted the price to 88 1-4 before the close.

Prairie Oil & Gas, mounting 7 1-2 points, led an advance in the oil shares, based on last week's reduction in crude oil output. Vacuum, Imperial of Canada and Standard of Kansas moved up 1 to 3 3-4.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Persistent selling especially on the part of houses with eastern connections, brought about a sharp setback in wheat prices today after an early upturn. The selling was associated somewhat with Argentine shipments aggregating 2,706,000 bushels. Wheat closed weak, 1 1-2 to 2 3-4c net lower, May 176 1-4 to 176 1-2 and July 152 1-4 to 152 3-8, with corn 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 down, oats showing 1 3-8 to 1 5-8c decline, and provisions varying from 17c decline to 7c advance.

At first, the wheat market was apparently influenced by European reports that Argentine wheat was being held at higher prices than wheat from the United States. An upturn in Liverpool quotations tended also to lift Chicago prices at the outset. Word, however, that no big new export business in domestic wheat had developed overnight gave an advantage to the selling side of the market for future deliveries.

Mild weather and liberal receipts of corn had a depressing effect on corn and oats. Besides, the present domestic stock of oats was said to be the largest on record for this time of year.

Delivery of 2,800,000 pounds of lard today on January contracts eased down the provision market, despite higher prices early.

FORMER WILLIMANTIC MAN HAS DISAPPEARED

An East Hampton correspondent writes: Mrs. William Tarbox is in a state of collapse from worry, while a country-wide search may be conducted for her husband from whom she has not heard since October 27, when he left her to go to New York to join a friend who was to accompany him to Detroit, where he expected to get a job with the Dodge Motor company.

Mrs. Tarbox has appealed to the state police for aid. She said her husband wrote from New York and said that he had met his friend and that both would leave for Detroit the next day. Because of his long absence she fears for his safety, especially because he had a large sum of money with him. Just before he resigned from the Bevin Brothers manufacturing company Tarbox showed his wife a card from his friend, Raymond Gray, which had been mailed from New Britain. She found no trace of Gray in that city, but learned that a family named Morse, with whom he was supposed to have stayed, had moved to Willimantic. Further search there failed to develop any clues.

Inquiry at the Dodge Brothers factory in Detroit elicited a reply that no one answering the name of Tarbox's description was employed there.

Tarbox became dissatisfied with conditions here in October, and decided to strike out for Detroit to find a better job. Just before he went he sold his automobile and turned over the money to his wife. He also transferred some land to her. They have been married nine years and had always been happy. Tarbox was tearful when he took his departure and promised he would write often. They had lived here about three years, coming from Willimantic. Mrs. Tarbox said she is confident the police can find her husband if he is alive.

Tarbox is a short, slight man, about five feet tall, has blue eyes and blonde hair and wears glasses.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Work was started on the Laurel Hill tunnel a half century ago this year and plans were to have the work completed in the summer of 1875, the bridge to connect with the tunnel to be finished at the same time.

Interesting bits of history of fifty years ago are taken in part from the Bulletin of 1874-1875 as follows:

Monday, December 28, 1874—One of Sweet & Palmer's new relief valves to be attached to the hydrant end of fire hose has been furnished by the city to the Blackstone hose company. This invention enables the company to put a stop cock in the nozzles of their pipes so that on entering a building in which a fire is burning they can turn on or off the water at pleasure without a moments delay. Niagara hose company are also to receive one of these valves. A great saving of loss by water can be effected by the use of them.

The bells of Park church were heard at points three and four miles down the river Friday night, people claiming that the chimes were very clear.

The side of the dry dock that has so long disfigured the waters of East New London bay, to Mr. McKay of Boston, has been confirmed by the government. The dry dock will probably be removed in the spring.

Tuesday, December 29, 1874 — The engineers who have been surveying the line of the Pomeraunge railroad have finished the survey to the New York & New England railroad and find the distance a mile and a half shorter than was anticipated. They will probably proceed with their survey as far as Stafford Springs.

As an inducement to leave off smoking after January 1st remember that you save $3 a week which is $15,600 in a hundred years.

Deluded bluebirds took the mildness of Monday for spring and a number of them reappeared on the West Side during the day.

Col. I. W. Carpenter met with a painful accident yesterday while at work in his ice houses at Greeneville. While walking on the ice his foot slipped and he fell, striking on his back, sustaining painful injuries.

Henry a Bennett, builder of the Worcester viaduct has received the contract for the Laurel Hill tunnel and work will be started in about 10 days. The bridge which is to constitute the approach to the tunnel is to be built next summer and will cross the stream on a line some rods above the present structure. The present bridge will be converted into a driveway for teams, for the accomodation of parties on the wharf. An opening will be made through to Shetucket street about opposite the American Hotel.

Wednesday, December 30, 1874—Yesterday afternoon as the Thamesville bus was passing Parlins corner a wheel drobped off and the frightened horses started on the run, hurling the driver from the bus. A woman passenger and her small son were unable to get out but when the horses were finally stopped near Steiner's building the occupants were found to be uninjured, although considerably frightened.

The mandamus suit which was to have been brought against the city this week by the anti-annexationists, has been postponed until the term of the court meeting in New London on the third Tuesday of January.

There are six inches of ice in the city reservoir. Ponds down near the landing have not had over three or four inches.

The new wall on School street has been completed and is a beautiful piece of work.

Thursday, December 31, 1874—Another large industry in this city that is thriving in spite of hard times is the Richmond Stove Works. At present they are working under very large orders from California and have enough engagements to keep them running full time all winter. The works employs some skilled workmen and is turning out some handsome ranges, stoves and stove furniture.

No one need congratulate his neighbor upon the present being the warmest December ever known, as upon the last day of December 1869, new grass was three or four inches high in sunny exposures and violets were in full bloom in the open air. There was no frost in the ground and everything seemed like opening spring. Although the weather is springlike in Norwich now, the weather report indicates a very cold wave on its way east, to be here in a few days.

Many Norwich people will go to New London today to see King Kalakua when he passes through that city.

The Potter Press works is to send some supplies of their splendid presses to the Centennial.

Friday, January 1, 1875—Owing to the closing of the Hudson river and the uncertainties of winter navigation on the Thames, the shipping in the employ of the Norwich Elevator has been discharged and further receipts of grain for the city this winter will be by rail. The Elevator has had a busy year and has unloaded many cargoes of grain for Eastern Connecticut points. The establishment is substantially built and is one of the best of its kind in the country. It has a capacity of 150,000 bushels of grain and can let down its big spout into the hold of a ship and take out 6,000 bushels of grain and send the ship away rejoicing in three hours. It has also a car elevator capacity of 1000 bushels an hour. The establishment is of great value to Eastern Connecticut.

Work has started on the Laurel Hill tunnel and forty men will soon be at work. It is planned to complete the work by next summer.

SOCIAL CORNER PAGE POETRY When You're Down and Out

When you're down and you're out and your hopes are thread bare,
When your lips say a curse, while your heart throbs a prayer,
When you lose your grasp, hold and you slip—and you slip—
'Neath the sting and chagrin of adversity's whip,
Oh 'tis then you will know who your friends are, old man,
And the knowing will hurt you as nothing else can.

When your ragged old clothes were filthy and new
You had many friends that you counted true blue.
But now when you meet them they gaze at the sky,
Or stare at the ground until you get by.
And beneath your old hide your heart is the same.
You're the very same man with the very same name
That you had when good luck was coming your way,
When friends were so many and times
were so gay.
O where is the man who will be a true friend
When your luck and your pocketbook comes to an end?

You search for a job till you stagger and reel,
And your shoes and your spirits are down at the heel.
You live on cold water, a hunk of stale bread,
You feel weak in the legs and pain
in the head.
Then you find a cheap room, all cheerless and bare;
You are blind with defeat, you are numbered with despair.
The ground is bar and too hensest to steal,
But still, you are not too inhuman to feel!
And you don't care a rap how soon
you will be under the sod.

When you stand before Peter, he will not take a look
To see if you carry a fat pocketbook.
He'll demand in this question a "yes"
or a "no",
"Have you fair to your fellow man down there below?"

The Day's Inventory

Take the long day's inventory
Just before you go to bed.
When the lights are dim and shaded
And the last good nights been said.
Sitting in your comfy armchair
Just in front the firelight's glow,
Just review your daytime doings
Look them over sure but slow.

Have you lived as you intended
When the day began to glow?
Have you helped some one whose journey
O'er life's path seemed hard to grow?
Put your shoulder down and lifted,
Lifted low and lifted sure,
Till the look you got in answer
Seemed your heart to fill and move?

Have you left some word unspoken
That would ease another's load?
Have you just by word or action
Helped another on the road?
Just a smile, a look a hand clasp,
Just a word it might have been
Which brought forth the inspiration
That has helped someone to win.

Take the long day's inventory
Just before you go to sleep.
Plan to live tomorrow better
Strive to make it more complete.
Then that day will be the best one
And with peace your soul will fill
For you'll have the joy of knowing
You have done the Master's will.

THOUGHTS FOR THE NEW YEAR

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Some few weeks since I have written, but before the year of 1924 shall close, I will forward a brief letter, although the publication will appear after the dawn of 1925. We are apt to look back on the preceding months of these closing days of this year and reflect on some of the important events, that have been of special interest to us. We are apt to count our gains and losses for certainly we have occasion to sum up those conditions which we have learned in the past year. This does not wholly apply to dollars and cents, but quite as important, to true friends and false pretentions. We are all pleased to make new friends, at any time, and always glad to realize that they continue as "true" friends. With much regret we learn of some whom we had respected and leaned up to with confidence of their friendship, only to be deceived by undue treachery. However, we can be grateful, that the true friendship does exceed the false, and if it were not so, our surrounding conditions would be dreadfully unpleasant. We have been hearing a good deal about the Christmas spirit of late, its meaning and significance, and promoting good cheer, among those who really need it most, due to their unfortunate circumstances. Only a card to express a kind remembrance goes a good way to bring a ray of sunshine. At this season of the year just between the Christmas, which we should enjoy, and the opening of a glad new year, we ought to be happy. I am a fond, admirer of the character of Lucy Larcom, her beautiful thoughts expressed in prose and poems. I have read a sketch of her life, which appealed to me with deep interest. "If," is the tiny word that makes great differences, and so to apply it here, "if" human nature had more of the unselfish spirit, and more of true kindness, more purity of heart, the atmosphere of life would be brighter. In closing, I will add a few lines of one of Lucy Larcom's poems, which perhaps may be familiar to some, if not all our sisters and readers. However, the sentiment may be good foundation as a resolution for the new year, to us all.

"If I were a sunbeam, I know what I'd do,
I would seek white lilies, rainy wood-lands through:
I would steal unseen, them,
Softest light I'd shed, until every lily raised its drooping head.
If I were a sunbeam, I know where I'd go
Into the lowliest hovels, dark with want and woe.
Till sad hearts looked upward,
I would shine and shine
Till they'd think of Heaven
Their sweet home and mine.

Best wishes for the success of the Corner and a happy New Year to all.
JENNIE.

GOOD RECIPES.

Dear Corner Sisters: Hope you will like these few recipes:

Good Luck New Year's Cake: Three eggs, one-half cup brown sugar, one cup molasses, one-half cup butter, one half cup milk, one half teaspoon soda and flour enough to make like soft nary dough, add cloves, cinnamon, and all spice, about one teaspoon of each, one half pound seeded raisins, one pound English currants, chopped fine, one half pound chopped walnuts, one and one quarter pound sliced citron (I use dates instead.) Flavor as desired. Cover with white frosting and make ornamental icing any color desired. With the pastry tube make horseshoes on top and sides of the cake, outlining the shape of the horse shoes, making small dots for the nail-heads. Garnish with a sprig of holly in the center of the cake.

Delicious Cookies—Cream one-half cup butter and one cup of sugar, add two well beaten eggs. Flavor with one half teaspoon vanilla and one half teaspoon cinnamon. Add one half teaspoon baking powder and flour enough to roll out. Just before rolling out add 1-2 cup almonds chopped fine. These little cakes should be rolled as thin as possible and baked in a quick oven. If made carefully they are most delicious.

Fruit Puddings: To utilize some of the New Year's cake left over—a very simple and wholesome dessert can be made by peeling and slicing tart apples. Fill a baking dish by putting first a thick layer of apples, then a thin layer of cake. Sprinkle each layer of apple with sugar, butter and nutmeg, using sugar according to the sweetness of the cake. Add two tablespoons of water, cover and bake until done. Serve with cream and cover with sliced bananas.

Another delicious dessert is apple rose, covered with meringue and browned.

Crimson Rambler wrote concerning her cat. We have one we just love. It was a gray kitten. She came to our home on summer's night and we have taken so much comfort with her.

The Coolidge Cake recipe sent last week should contain 1 cup of butter in place of 1 pound of butter.

Mrs. G: Have just tried your lemon pie. It is wonderful. It is so nice you don't mind my telling it to the Corner. do you?

Lemon Pie: Take two slices of bread remove the crust on this, pour one cup of boiling water and the yolks of two eggs, 1 cup sugar—and the juice and rind of one lemon. Bake in a rich crust and pour meringue over the top by beating 2 tablespoons of powdered sugar to the two eggs.

Omelet: In omelets I always add 1-2 teaspoon baking powder in the whites. Two cups boiling milk, 1 slice of bread (with crust removed) 4 eggs beaten separately. Let milk and bread cool somewhat, then stir into the eggs. Butter an earthern dish, pour in and bake 20 minutes. Set on the stove a few minutes before baking in the oven.

AFTERNOON TEA CAKES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank all the sisters who sent me Christmas and birthday cards. I expect you all were remembered by loving friends and hope all had their stockings full and the tree well loaded with lovely things. It is a merry season of the year, make merry for us all—yes, all mankind—by the birth of a little babe many years ago. If it was not for that dear precious little life, this would be a very sad dark world indeed. So we sing in praise and thanks to Him, "Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth Peace, Good Will Toward Men."

As we start in on another year you and I must work for peace with all who we may come in contact and to thank the blessed babe most of all. Am sending a dandy recipe for Afternoon Tea Cakes: Cream well together two heaping tablespoons of butter, one cup of sugar. Drop in one at a time, three unbeaten eggs, beating hard after each. Mix together one half cup each of flour and corn starch, one fourth teaspoon of salt and two level teaspoons of baking powder. Mix, then add one half cup of whole milk, teaspoon of flavor desired, cool and ice.

A happy New Year to all.

SILENT NIGHT

To the Editor and Social Corner Friends: Silent Night, the carol that was sung as the last number in the Traveler's New England Christmas eve concert, has an interesting history that is well worth relating at this season. The history is contained in a scholarly monograph written by Prof. Dr. Carl Weinman, director of the School of Church Music in Ratisbon, Bavaria. Briefly told it is as follows:

On the day before Christmas in the year 1818, the organ in the little village of Obendorf (on the boundary between Austria and Bavaria) was found to be hopelessly out of order. The pastor of the church was at a loss to know what to do, as he was not able to use the instrument for the Christmas services he disrobed the altar curtain the Rev. Joseph Mohr, that he began to reflect how he might offer some compensation to the good village folk.

Inspiration promptly came, and he dashed off a poem of six stanzas, hurried with it to the organist, Franz Gruber, who lived as a school teacher in the neighboring village of Arnsdorf, and requested him to compose a suitable melody for two solos voices and chorus with guitar accompaniment.

Gruber at once set to work and in the course of the afternoon finished the composition. A short rehearsal was held in the evening and then, during the midnight mass the beautiful carol was sung in public for the first time before a devout and deeply appreciative audience. Rev. Joseph Mohr himself sang the solo tenor part and at the same time played the guitar accompaniment, while Gruber sang the solo bass part, the last four measures being repeated as a chorus in four part harmony by the choir.

The joinus parishoners of Obendorf scarcely surmised that they had attended the first public performance of a composition that was to spread all over the world and to live on forever. Only the wife of Franz Gruber seems to have peered into the future with a sort of prophetic gaze and to have realized the significance of the occasion, for, on the way home to Arnsdorf, she is said to have remarked to her husband, "Franz, that hymn will be sung long after we have passed away."

SATURDAY EVE. (Club 4.)

A HINT ABOUT STOCKING DARNING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish you all a happy New Year. First of all I want to thank Tis Biensis, Twice Twenty, Primrose, Mary Gusta, True Blue and all the others for remembering me with Christmas cards.

Moby Dear, you angel child, wasn't that one of E. T. Pauls marchs you played at the Christmas tree?

I wonder if Twice Twenty has these epitaphs in her collection. Thomas son of Aaron and Sally Horton. Died Dec. 12, 1822, Aged 2 years, 4 months. From a thing of hot water that took me from my health. A good soon please to give me ease, and took me home to rest.

Here is another from the same yard: Yet faith may triumph o'er the grave, and trample on the tombs. My Jesus, my redeemer lives, my God my Saviour comes.

These epitaphs were copied from stones on our own town. I wonder how many there are that know of these or even know there is such a cemetery or where it is located. Some of the dates go back to 1733.

Rosalind: I too have a bir dolly to match Caro's and a band box of clothes. I frequently make your brown bread and like it very much.

Sorry I couldn't go to Putnam today but our car doesn't run very conveniently for such a trip. Would have to go very early or else too late.

When darning stockings do any of the sisters instead of putting stitches parallel with the rows put them diagonally? They wear longer as they will give when on the foot without tearing a larger hole. Try it and see how quickly it works.

Birdie: Welcome to our Social Corner nest. Did you take your letter in your hand and run all the way to the editor? I don't think you trusted it to Uncle Sam or it wouldn't have been printed so quickly after Mary 'Gusta's wedding.

Wishing the Corner the best success for the comming year and a happy New Year to all.

NEW YEAR'S WISHES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Happy New Year all. I take this way of wishing you all the happiest year ever and hope God will shower each and every member of the Corner with His choicest blessings.

This is the way I am spending New Year's eve and I hope this will reach the editor in time for Saturday's Bulletin.

Dom Pedro: Next time you come to a meeting I hope you will be better entertained. You didn't know that it was Black Eyed Susie that played the piano the last time you came, did you?

Will once more wish all a thrice happy New Year.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

GREETINGS FOR NEW YEAR

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I thought I must write once more, wishing you all a happy New Year. Do you ever think what an editor we have got to bother with us? I thank Kitty Lou for her card. I don't "think" her. Hope I will find her at out next meeting.

Wish all the sick ones are well and happy. Long live the Corner.

FORGOT TO SEND NAME

Dear Social Corner Members: Would like to become a member of the Corner. I have read many of the letters. I wish you a Happy New Year. My pen name will be LORNA.

(Your name will be added to the Social Corner as soon as your correct names and address are sent in. —S. C. Editor.)

THE ZODIAC SIGN IN JANUARY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Without a birthday cake one feels that the occasion was not suitably remembered, and some very pretty cakes can be selected from your ordinary cakes to help mother, and friends who are anxious to have an appropriate celebration. The main decorations on this cake are the sign of the zodiac and the favorite flower of the celebrant.

Birthday Cake for January: Beat 8 eggs dry; beat yolks thick, add one cup of sugar, grated rind of one lemon and two tablespoons of lemon juice. Fold in half of the whites and one half cup flour, then the rest of the whites—and one half cup of flour. Bake nearly an hour. Cover with confectioners frosting. Decorate the center with that month's flower, which is a single wild rose as nearly as I can ascertain. I have looked through all the books I could find concerning the January flower and the last one read, "Always decorate the January cake with a circle of wild roses, the month's own flower." Put this on with a camel's hair brush and make it of a soft pink icing of varied shades. You should decorate the sides of the cake with the zodiac sign for January which is Aquarius (The Waterman.) You can make this sign in the shape of wavy lines with pink frosting, and when serving surround the main wild rose with small pink tapers, the ends of each wrapped in paraffin paper to prevent its touching the cake proper. Sprinkled asparagus fern is the green used.

The birthday stone for January is the garnet. People whose birthdays come in this month it is said are faithful and constant and these qualities, (So an old superstition has it) are bestowed on its owners.

Salad for January: Buy very select prunes. Steam without water in a double boiler, do not cook as much as when making sauce. Chill and stone them, cut prunes on 4 pieces lengthwise. Blanch English walnuts by pouring boiling water on them, about 1-2 pound of nuts (shelled) to one pound of prunes. Cut 4 walnut meats in about five pieces. Mix prunes and nut meats together, sprinkle with salt and paprika; add two tablespoons of Sherry wine or grape juice, allow 1 1-2 cups of thick cream, solid whipped cream, beat constantly while adding it. Arrange on lettuce hearts (shaped leaves) or individual plates; pile some of the mixture in each and mask with 1-2 cup of cream. Arrange four pieces of prune on the top of each one.

Pimento and Banana Salad: Peel, (scrape with a silver knife) 4 ripe plantain bananas lengthwise in 9 strips. Arrange them on lettuce leaves, and strew over thread like strips of pimento. Garnish with mayonnaise.

GREETINGS FROM ANNA MELL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been some time since I wrote a letter to the Corner, but I have not forgotten any of you just the same, as I have had such nice times at our meetings. I have been a shut in for ten days, but am happy to say I am better.

Diana: Hope you received my letter. I feel very sorry for your misfortune, it is too bad. Hope God will help and aid you. There is so much meanness carried on nowadays, I don't know where or when it will end.

I think every one will be glad when the holidays are all over with, so they can take a long breath. I had 63 post cards in all. I take this way of thanking Social Corner sisters who kindly remembered me.

Olga, Sis Hopkins, Olive, Necia, Whirlwind, Foxglove, Lucille, Amy, Wrinkle, Practical Polly, Scottie, Theodi, Mary France, Remember Me, Alice, Caroline, Tuny Ann, Brave, Mrs. Cook, Chauffeur, Jennie, Eleanor.

I thank you one and all very much both in and outside the Corner. Long may the Corner serve. I now will close by wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year, the editor included.

Crimson Rambler and Uncle Sam's Daughter keep their pens from rusting all right. Good for you.

STILL ANSWERING ROLL CALL

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Please pardon my delay in answering the roll call. If it is not to late will say present. Was sorry not to see any more sisters at Club no. 3's last meeting, the weather being so bad and some were sick. I hope at the next every body will be well and we will have a good crowd. I think we all had a good time Dec. 17. We surely had a good dinner as usual. Of course it is late but I want to thank all those who so kindly remembered me on my birthday, Remember Me, Dorinda, Yankee Girl, Le, and others.

Lo: I wonder if you have eaten up those apples yet.

Nannie Lue: Sorry you could not have been with us Dec. 17. How is your son now? I hope he is getting better.

Student: Try and come up to Club 3 in the good summer time.

Will ring off by wishing you all a happy New Year.

EUGENIA.

CLUB No. 4's MEETING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: If not too late will answer "present" to the roll call.

Have been very busy papering and painting with Social Corner colors, so could not get time to write.

I want to thank the ladies that came to Club No. 4's meeting in Putnam Dec. 31st, and wish them all a happy New Year. I hope they had as pleasant a day as I did in East Killingly in October.

Neighbor Everready: Where were you on December 31? A little bird saw you in Putnam on Monday. Have not had time to look for the books for your father.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

HOW TO SUCCEED

Dear Cornerites: I don't know what to write F. A. L. concerning business. You know a wise man passes every thing through the alembic of his own mind and has some sense of fitness of things. "Business" is applied energy. Success is concentrated energy. The opposite of energy is dissipation. The peril of energy today is the dissipation of energy in pleasure.

Dr. Eugene Croft says, "People are doing many things indifferently, when they should do one thing supremely. It is not volume, but intelligence that wins in business. If you search for success in everything the result will be nothing."

Not long ago I met a man who prided himself on being in seven different lines of business, but in any one of them he was not doing real business enough to keep a monkey in peanuts.

The world crowns the man who knows one thing supremely. Burbank knows plant life. Burroughs knows bird life. Edison knows electricity. Paderewski knows the pianoforte. Caruso knew tenor. Geraldine Farrar knows soprano. Jane Addams knows sociology. Dr. Anna Shaw knew woman suffrage. Koenig knows the submarine paths under the sea. Roosevelt knew national government—Wanamaker knew all about merchandise. Henry Ford knows a utility auto-car. Elihu Root knows international law. Moody and Sankey knew evangelism. McGraw knows baseball. Camp knows football.

Regretly I was talking with a man who could converse fluently in nine languages but had no idea in any of them.

One thing I can say that, "This one thing I do," in the divine mandate of success. Distinct aim is power. The sailor bound for no port is at the mercy of the wind. Specialize your energies and you win. Incessant droppings of water will wear a hole through granite. You can ridge the apex of the winter's sun and set fire to the smartest hickory. If you don't believe it try it.

I remember reading in some book awhile ago about common sense meeting adversity into prosperity. Just never hear women or men with common sense complaining. They are the happiest people in the world. To them, every morning, every night is radiant with opportunities. It is the idler who whines.

In your letter you say "You have no chance." Douglas did not own his own body, was a colored slave boy, yet became a brilliant orator, an able statesman, an educator and organizer of his race. Antonio Maceo was a mulatto who learned the principles of liberty as heotler at Wm. Foster, then for ten years led bands of Cuban soldiers against the iron rule of Spain. To him Cuba owes her freedom. An example of husky western common sense was shown by Armour the founder of the great packing house. In 1864 he saw the close of the war ahead of other business men and sold pork for future delivery for $40 a barrel. Trades smiled at his cupidity. Soon Richmond fell before Grant and pork fell before an open market, and Armour was a million ahead. It is the purposeless, the aimless, the indifferent, the sluggish, who see no brilliances in common sense or applied energy, no chance for advancement, no chance to rise, or opportunity to rise.

Let me tell you my friend, whenever you may be, to win wealth and success put your forehand where your back hand is now. You say you are an aristocrat. Don't be afraid to work. Aristocracy kept over one generation is like an ox kept the same length of time. It will make no difference whether you boil it or fry it, you have the same result. Society is the nervous prostration of ambition. Ask a physician he will tell you so. It is your thinking that counts. Here's your chance. Strip off your coat and jacket, start this hour to dig an irrigating ditch of humor through your life as wide as the Mississippi.

Rhyme Winner: Am pleased to know you received a prize. I received a $50 prize from a Boston paper for letter on using dried peaches and I have received $14 for candy recipes and quite often $5 prizes for other letters.

KITTY LOU.

COLD WEATHER LAUNDRY HINTS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is a long time since I wrote for the Corner and did not even answer the roll call but will now say, present, if it is not too late.

To you who are keeping a complete list of the members I will say you may cross of one of the Baths and Evelyn as formerly being used by me but had to be changed.

A short time ago I was greatly pleased to learn the identity of several friends through the courtesy of Delilah Deal. Eloise was one of the number.

Here are a few cold weather laundry hints that I have learned by experience. Since "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," it is much better to avoid taking cold than to try to cure one after it is contracted so don't rush out to hang clothes on the line when all heated from washing but put on a good warm coat over a sweater or coat will keep out the wind as nothing else will.

A little flour rubbed into the hands dries them quickly and closes the pores.

For keeping the hands warm there is nothing better than an old pair of heavy wool or chamoisette gloves with the tips of the fingers cut off so the clothes may be handled without wetting the fingers. Don't say that your fingers are what is always cold, because if the hand is warmly covered the finger tips will not get cold quickly especially if rinsing water is warmed. Sometime ago when I told K. Y. Z. I might send in these hints she said "Tell them to warm the clothes pins."

For one who has been sick or for any reason taken cold easily it is better to use a large tub so as to have the water more shallow rather than high and deep so that the wrists and back of the hands are not in the water so much of the time. The spring clothes pins are nice for cold weather for any clothes that are not heavy. Put the pin over the line and catch edge of garment between jaws of clothes pin. Then you don't have a frozen corner to pick or pull off from the line.

Best wishes for the New Year.

BAYBERRIES FOR FLATIRON PADS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I extend to you best wishes for the New Year.

Pedestrian: I was very much interested in your letter to the Corner last week. I also have a use for the bayberry. Take two pieces of heavy ticking and sew them together as if you were making a holder, fill with the berries and use as a pad to wax the flat irons when ironing.

Lilac Lady: How are you these days? Do you know who is who yet?

Lonesome: I passed your house a few days ago and your Christmas wreaths did look pretty. Hoping you had a Merry Christmas I also wish you a happy New Year.

Am sending my recipe for

Molasses Ginger Cookies: One-half cup of sugar, one-half cup shortening, one-half cup molasses, one-fourth cup of milk, one egg, two scant teaspoons of soda, salt, flour to make a stiff dough.

AURELIA.

BEST WISHES FROM BON AMI.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: A happy New Year to one and all. Trust all had a merry Christmas. Just a glimpse as to how I spent mine. I was watching beside a bed of suffering. Wishing death would not be so cruel as to take the beloved aunt and mother. She was given a little longer time for us to wait upon her. But when the time came for her departure from this world to a better one beyond we could only fold the hands that had done so much for others and turn our attention to one who still needed our help.

The chair now is empty, her loving face is no more seen and the gentle voice no more gives us welcome. Her suffering is over. But we hope to meet again when it is our turn to pass over.

With best wishes I remain

BON AMI.

SO MANY MEMBERS—SO FEW WRITERS

Dear Sisters of the Corner: In a recent letter to the corner one sister wrote, I am glad no one is worried about the falling of the Social Corner page. We all know a great thing when we see it. I guess we need not worry about a Social Corner page that has held its own the fourteen years, and given so much pleasure and profit and has a list of about 1500 members who have penned letters for the B in preference to E.

After I read the above I thought, "There are 1500 members—and so few writers."

Do you mind if I am a little personal and ask a few questions? Do you really know whereof you speak?

Is each member writing a few helps, or is it left for a certain few members to do it all? You, yourselves, are an experiment station, and your discoveries, the "do's" and the "don'ts" that you have learned, are of practical value to the readers, who have the same task to perform. Our Social Corner editor hopes for ideas on short cuts in housekeeping, housework, labor saving devices. Through the Corner we have quite a few helps, but I know there are not as many as our editor would like to see. Ninety nine per cent of the members of the Corner have some entirely individual way of saving time or steps; of meeting just such a household emergency as is sure to confront some other sister one time or another, of making something of nothing. These are the things which have value. If we would all realize how useful to others are trivial discoveries we have actually made ourselves the Social Corner would be flooded. Capitalize your discoveries. Somebody has devised a quick and convenient way of drying the hair after the shampoo, or has grandmother's formula for bath bags, or something safe, or knows how Aunt Jane of Kentucky made a wonderful cold cream. Then there are novel entertainments, invitations schemes, decorations—not from professional writers but from those who have originated and carried out the ideas—any practical hint about "Putting on buttons, making jellies, hints for sewing room, kitchen, laundry, nursery, sick-room, schoolroom, novel gifts or conveniences, fills the need. Capitalize your experience.

We like also to hear of women personally known to you, who are especially interesting and are "doing things," of any unusual work the sisters are doing in the sewing circle or gourmet club is taking up. Hey interesting Lunar Weeke's letter a few weeks ago! It was absolutely to the good, written without knowing what pleasure it was giving to the reader. If had a card directed to him and couldn't find my paper with his name. Whenever you feel interested in something that has occurred write the Corner. We are all interested, too. It would be, with unalloyed satisfaction that the editor would have received your letters. Some of you lend a helping hand and tell the things you have heard, read or tried out, or in anyway had it passed on to you. There is no objection to every member of the Corner submitting these to the Corner. Capitalize your own ingenuity. I remember some few years ago when I was visiting my sister, my little niece came in with her card from school and showed it to her mother. Her mother looked at her marks which showed 98. Her mother, aunt and grandfather praised her beyond expression. She showed it to her grandmother and to their surprise (not to the girls) she said, "She thought it was anything but good—any girl that could stand 98 could easily stand 100." She did not consider she was on the victory side-at-all. She thought she was a little lazy. The next month she stood 100, and told her grandmother "she knew that it wasn't as high as she could stand and she knew her grandmother would tell her just what she thought." Ever after that she stood 100. In my humble judgment she did right in saying so. Her grandmother thought she would place safeguards against further occurrences of the same kind. In spite of all that had been said to the contrary she believed she hadn't done as well as she could.

A DOUGHNUT RECIPE AND HOW TO ROLL THEM

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I thought I would write you a few lines as it will be my last letter of this year, and I hope our Social Corner page will be full this week.

I received a card from a sister this week with no name signed to it. I wish she would send me her pen name so I could answer her. Then I would know who's birthday it was on December 27.

Anna Z: You say that my potato fudge sounds good. Well it is better than it sounds. We make some of it almost every week, even make some bars with it.

Balsam Fir: I have not heard from you yet. Is it very cold up your way?

Lonesome: Perhaps you would like to know that I had a new fountain pen for Christmas.

Daisy Dean: I am sorry you could not guess. I will tell you more later.

Someone asked for a doughnut recipe Here is a good one that I use right along.

Sour Milk Doughnuts: One cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 spoon of butter, the size of the yolk of the egg, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon nutmeg. All flour enough to roll.

I wonder if the sisters ever tried this way to roll out their doughnuts. Put the dough altogether on the kneading board and cut off a slice with a knife, roll out with your hand, and pinch the two ends together so they will stay. Roll them all out like that and set them on your board for an hour before you fry them. The top will be raised up but the raised sides of the doughnut in the lard first so they will be nice and round. Hope some of the sisters will try this and report. A happy New Year to all the sisters is the wish of

ROSY POSY.

INTERESTED IN RADIO

Dear Members: I will try and write a few lines as I want to help to keep it from the page but for a few weeks it seems. I suppose every one has been busy with Christmas. I have received a nice lot of Christmas presents and cards for which I want to thank all the sisters. I wish the editor and all the sisters a bright and prosperous New Year. May we all try and help someone on their way with a cheery word or smile.

Good bye old year, I love you. I would not ask you so for you have brought me pleasures I had not thought to know.

I can very much interested in radio as I think it is a great thing for country people. Am to have one of my own in a few days which good luck has brought me. They are a wonderful thing when the wintry wind are blowing. Can you imagine anything much better than to sit in your favorite arm chair and listen to an entertainment, education, history, etc., right off the chimney tops as it were. Distance has been wiped out, time has been erased and the loneliest farmer in the remote sections of the country is just one second from Broadway with its pipe organs, its grand opera, its vaudeville, close also at Washington and the agricultural department of the government with the forecast news. One can get any information that he desires on most any subject by merely turning the dials. At answer time the early evenings concerts by the world's most famous musicians can be heard in the dining room night after night and Saturday evening from different places old time melodies to gladden the hearts of old and young. Can you picture anything nicer than a warm fire, while the whitry winds are blowing outside listening to the sweet strains of When You and I Were Young Maggie from a station a thousand miles away or enjoy a sermon from a leading pulpit when the snow is on the ground and you cant get to church? Certainly radio will bring increasing joy and happiness to us all.

Best wishes to the Corner.

A MUCH ENJOYED CHRISTMAS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I hope you all have enjoyed this lovely Christmas day. I have had such a lovely time I thought I must write and tell you about it. My grandson came this (Christmas) morning with his auto and carried Hubby and I to his home and we surely had a fine time. In one end of the dining room was a Christmas tree covered with trimmings, etc. After looking over the nice gifts Santa Claus had brought dinner was ready and it certainly was fit for a king. Plates were laid for 11 and we were a happy thankful group. I truly thank God for my children and grandchildren—they are so good to us. This evening my son-in-law has taken Hubby and 2 of his boys to Providence to see the play The Ten Commandments, so I am alone keeping house and thought it a good time to write you, and I can wish you all a very Happy New year if I am too late for a Merry Christmas. I hope 1925 will be the happiest year ever to you. I know you will call me a slacker for waiting so long before writing you. I read the Corner page every Saturday and think I'll surely do my bit another week but I have so little of interest to write I put it off till another day and to that way I do not write at all. Hope to have something soon worth writing to you for you all write very interestingly and I delight to do my part. Through the kindness of Rural Auntie I attended a Social Corner meeting in Buckingham Memorial and had a fine dinner and social hour with the sisters. I am piecing a bedquilt, have begun to knit a rug and hope to braid one before the winter is over.

Winter is surely with us. The white Christmas pleases the children and the fox hunters, also the cold weather pleases the iceman.

I have some nice thrifty geraniums—two red ones in bloom—also a crab cactus with 18 buds and flowers. I enjoy them every day.

I wonder if any of the sisters try to solve the cross word puzzles in The Bulletin.

I'll send a rule for a cake which is very nice.

Sunshine Cake: Break yolks of 3 eggs in mixing bowl, add 2-4 cup of cold water and beat two minutes. 1 1-4 cups sugar and beat 7 minutes. 1 1-2 cups flour to which has been added 1 teaspoon baking powder and sifted 2 or 3 times together. Beat whites of eggs to stiff froth with pinch of salt and fold in last.

And now I'll close and bid you all goodnight and wish for you every blessing heaven can send all through the year.

GRANDMA GRAY.

GIVE A THOUGHT TO THE UNFORTUNATE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Another year is at hand and it passed on as many others bringing much joy to some and great sorrow to many. The Social Corner family as well as other families have laid away some dear friends during the past twelve months. At such times a dear friend who we can be depended upon for help and sympathy is far better than silver or gold.

While we had some very mild weather for December we must not forget for the cold north winds and snow will surely come, bringing much suffering to poor people who will not have sufficient clothing to keep them warm. Have you given it a thought, Social Corner friends, that there are hanging on the hooks of your clothesroom many articles of clothing that will never be used and will be destroyed by the moths which would make many fathers, mothers and children happy if you will distribute them to the poor families that are within reach of us all?

This is the first of January and it is time to take account of stock see what you have that will help keen the wolf from the door of i here who are shy of clothing to meet the cold of New England's winter which will come even if it is a little late. Just take a little of your spare time today and look over your stock of garments and see what a nice bundle of things you can give to others and make them happy.

Wishing the editor and all the Social Corner family a very happy New Year. From one of the old writers,

MAKING A SCRAP BOOK

Dear Editor and Cornerites: Although I have been a reader of your page for a long time I never really have had the courage to write and ask membership before. For I am, to my way of thinking, a poor composer and I never thought I could write a very interesting letter. Some of the members letters read like story books and its a wonderful gift. Never the less I would like to join but the reason of my writing and wanting to join now is last week's Corner page. I want to say how I enjoy the poems printed each week and I would like to know who the author was that May sent in by Primrose. I have cut it out and I shall paste it in my poem scrap book. I wonder by the way how many members make scrap books for their own use, as well as presents for other people as Mercia spoke of. They are fine to have and when you once get in the habit of cutting out things you would like to keep it will come easy and went seam at all like work. I remember when I was a young girl I made a scrap book. I guess I must have been pasting in that book for several years—short stories, jokes, rhymes, and notices of deaths and marriages of people I knew, and anything and everything. Then I wandered out in the world and the scrap book was forgotten. My parents died our home was broken up quite a few years ago, the things divided among a large family. Last summer I was visiting my brother, who has a daughter twelve years old. One evening she was deeply interested in a book. We were talking and laughing and the smaller children were playing. Still my niece never took her eyes from the book, so I said, "What can you possibly find?"

"Oh, aunty," she said, "I'm reading this dear old book that I found in the attic, its the dearest book and I never like reading it."

I said, "Let me see it?" and there before my eyes was my scrap book, my old scrap book that I hadn't thought of in years. I couldn't speak for a minute. I felt like crying. Oh what memories that book brought back! The last time I saw it was on the farm in my old home years ago. I laid the book back on the table. My niece was speaking, telling me wonders of the book, how she loved it, how she read it over and over. Down in my heart I wanted to take the book and carry it away off where I could be alone and read it and think, but I didn't take the book and I didn't tell my niece how I wanted it. So she has it now, a very treasured treasure.

I was quite interested in Rhoda Wisner's letter, and was also glad to read her winning lines in the first several lines I have read as they don't print the winning one's in the paper, that is I have never seen them. Maybe Rhoda Wisner would be interested to know that I won $5 four days after Thanksgiving from a Boston paper and how I came to write it. Thanksgiving day we had a good sized turkey and so four days after we were still eating that turkey and no need to say we were tired of it, as you all must know, after four long days of turkey, turkey, turkey! So Monday a. m. I had just read the Boston paper about the four line contest. The last of the turkey I had just fixed up for supper, and said to myself how welcome a piece of beef would taste. When it came to me to write a verse about that turkey, so I wrote from the bottom of my heart the following four lines that won the welcome $5.

Turkey for my breakfast, lunch and dinner,
As I keep on eating it I'm surely getting thinner.
Beef or pork would be as welcome as the flowers in May;
I've been eating turkey ever since Thanksgiving day.

I hope my letter is not too long, and if I may join I'll use for my pen name

STANZA.

ENJOYED PUTNAM MEETING.

Social Corner Editor: I attended the Social Corner meeting at Putnam Red Men's hall, Wednesday, as an invited guest of Rosalind and Trixy and I certainly was glad I went. I had a lovely time, enjoyed every minute and the lunch at noon was just fine, especially that delicious mince pie.

I would like so much to become a member of the Social Corner and if I may call myself

GREETINGS FROM BETSY BRAY

Dear Social Corner Sister: At the

STERLING RUNAWAY GIRLS FOUND IN NEW LONDON FRIDAY EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 2.—Amy Parkhurst, aged 14 and Lillian Hall, 16, both of Sterling, and the former the daughter of Postmaster E. Parkhurst, Sterling, were taken into custody in New London this evening as runaways. The girls were taken back home by the father of the Parkhurst girl and her brother.

The two girls left home this afternoon and intended to go to Springfield, Mass. They obtained an automobile ride from Plainfield to Norwich and at the latter city boarded a trolley car for New London. When the disappearance of the girls was discovered plans were made to intercept them and information being received by the local police, Sergeant Frank Howard and Policewoman Jane Cassidy went to the city line in the police car and awaited the arrival of the trolley car due to reach New London at 8.15 o'clock. When the car arrived it was stopped and the girls who were on it were taken to the police station.

The special committee of the city council, Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray, and Lucius E. Whiton appointed to determine the efficiency of the police department continued its hearings tonight in the municipal building, taking the testimony of Street Sergeants Patrick Murphy and Samuel Hick. Murphy was interrogated about half an hour but Sergeant Hick was closeted with the committee about an hour and a half. It is understood that the next hearing will take place next week when some of the patrolmen will be summoned to appear before the committee. The hearing tonight was the first in ten days.

Fidelity Chapter, Eastern Star, held its Christmas tree and festival at the temple Brainard lodge this evening. The weather was stormy, but there was a large attendance. Santa Claus was there and he remembered all, especially the workers. There was no one who did not receive his attention.

Kenemoc Hose company will have its annual banquet at the Hotel Mohican next week Thursday evening. There will be but one speaker. It is understood though informal addresses may be made by others. An entertainment will be provided in an impersonator and there will be a male singer of high reputation. Foreman Pollock and a committee of the company are making arrangements for the event.

There is said to be a scarcity of calendars of a pretentious sort this season, merchants and others who have resorted to that form of advertising evidently having decided that they do not want it at the beginning of the current year, or they have gone into some other method of making publicity for their business. The demand upon those who did provide calendars is greater than ever because of the scarcity of them.

Miss Marjory Cheney, representative-elect to the legislature from South Manchester, addressed a large number of members of the New London League of Women Voters in the hall room of the Mohican hotel this evening. There were also women and men in the audience who are not members of the organization but who are interested in the subject on which Miss Cheney spoke—The Amendment of the Child Labor Law. The speaker was well informed for she is a member of the commission appointed by the governor to codify the child labor laws of the state. The matter is to come before the next session of the assembly and there it is to be discussed with the intelligence that comes from a study of the subject by competent people. The Cheney family have been large employers of labor for many years as they are interested in the big silk mills, so that what Miss Cheney had to say she learned from intimate association with workers.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Youngs, 32 Ocean avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Hilda Mae Young, to Edgar W. Clark, 215 Vauxhall street.

Mrs. Hempstead has returned to her home, Hempstead street, concluding several days' visit with her son, Daniel Hempstead, employed in New York.

Students at Connecticut college began arriving back in New London to resume their studies after the holiday vacation.

After two postponements the trial of Virgilio Battell, 225 Shaw street, is scheduled to come up in the police court next Monday morning, for violation of the liquor law. Battell is now at liberty on bonds of $1000 furnished by Antone Menghi. He has been convicted before of a violation of the law of a similar nature. Battell was arrested by a raiding squad Dec. 22 and at that time a considerable quantity of whiskey and beer was found in the place. Battell was not at home and his wife, who was in charge of the house desired to claim ownership of the liquor, that she might be arrested, for she undoubtedly realized that if her husband was arrested and convicted he would receive a jail sentence owing to its being his second conviction. However, Mrs. Battell was not taken into custody, but when her husband returned home he was arrested.

Thomas F. Dorsey, Jr., has petitioned the probate court that his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Dorsey, trustee of the estate of Peter Dorsey, be ordered to render an accounting, it being the claim of Mr. Dorsey, who is an heir-at-law of the estate, that his mother has never rendered an accounting of her acts as trustee since she was appointed by the court. A hearing of the petition was started this afternoon, but was continued to a later date.

Thomas E. Troland, administrator of the estate of Katie B. Smith, has sold a house and lot on Connecticut avenue, to Francis H. and Katherine Hoagland.

An automobile owned and operated by E. Frank Morgan, 195 Williams street, and a commercial truck owned by the United Baking company, 491 Albany avenue, Hartford, and operated by John J. Connors, of Hartford, were in collision this afternoon on Broad street, corner of Williams street. Both machines were damaged.

Edward McCabe, 34 Morgan street, this afternoon lodged complaint with the police that a sign and several fence posts on property owned by complainant on Henry street, had been damaged.

The condition of Mrs. Henry G. Keeney, who has been ill a fortnight of bronchitis at her home, 117 Blackhall street, is reported today as being considerably improved.

Ezra J. Hempstead, a Waterford farmer, went to the office of the state motor vehicle department, Bank street this morning and after a long wait, obtained his automobile markers for this year. He then proceeded to the post office where he attended to a transaction in the money order department, leaving the markers on a desk. When he returned to where he had deposited the markers Mr. Hempstead discovered that they had been stolen. He lodged complaint with the police. It is believed that the theft was committed by boys as it is highly improbable that adults would steal the markers with any idea of using them as it would be an easy matter detecting them if they are placed on a machine.

The body of Mrs. Annie M. Howard, widow of J. Porter Howard, and a former resident of this city, whose death occurred at her home in Morristown, N. J., several days ago, arrived in New London this afternoon for burial in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church.

The funeral of Wallace W. Philbrick, formerly of New London, who died at his home in Jersey City, N. J., was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of his brother, Walter W. Philbrick, 266 Broad street. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. Johns Episcopal church. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Andrew J. Phillips, 31, son of Mrs. Catherine Lindholm and the late Andrew Phillips, died this morning at the residence of his mother, on Grand street after a lingering illness. He is survived, besides his mother, by his wife and little son, Edward, and by two sisters, Mrs. Frank Savage and Miss Helen Lindholm. Mr. Phillips was employed as health inspector during the term of office of the late Dr. E. C. Chipman, health officer, but resigned to go to Pheonix, Ariz., where it was believed that a change of climatic conditions would benefit his health. He returned to New London some time ago and has gradually failed.

Ruth E., 3, daughter of Louis B. and Katherine Faulkner, died this morning from diphtheria at the residence of her parents, 20 1-2 Stewart street, having been ill only since last Wednesday. The death is the first to occur in New London from the disease in a long time.

Mrs. Elizabeth Warren of Jordan Village, a patient at Lawrence hospital, was able to return to her home this afternoon.

John Brutzman, a young man of 20, was before Judge Prince in the police court this morning, having been arrested last night when he declined to accept good advice given to him by Officer Carl Selisinsky. Brutzman was with companions on State street when they were boisterous. The officer advised the group and Brutzman replied to what was said in vulgar terms. That led to his arrest. Judge Prince "got after" Brutzman in imposing a penalty, and told him that he had got to the end of his rope. "You belong to a 'fesh gang'" said the judge and the policeman would have been warranted in giving you a good beating, if you come here again I will fine you more heavily or will send you to jail. Now your fine is $10." The judgment was a surprise to Brutzman.

Harry E. Pierson, who is 53, was presented for a breach of peace, on complaint of his wife. He pleaded not guilty so that the testimony of Policeman Corcoran was offered to convict him. The officer said that Mrs. Pierson telephoned to the police station and asked that an officer be sent to arrest her husband, who had beaten her. The officer found the pair in the house. A night in the lockup had calmed Pierson so that he was not so much disposed to murder as he was last night. Mrs. Pierson was not in court to assist in the conviction of her husband for the offense for which she had his arrested. Pierson said she was a "terror," and expressed the opinion that she was the most abusive woman that ever lived. He said that no one could live with her. "Why, she has a temper that drives her almost to hysteria," he said, "and she comes at me with anything she can reach. We have been married ten years, but she is worse than ever now. We pay $12 a month rent and lease a room for $4.50 so that the rent is paid from that. She telephoned for me to come and spend New Year's with her, and that is the reception I received." Pierson has been away some three weeks he said and would not have returned but for the invitation. The case seemed to be one that should be investigated, so it was continued till the last day of the month.

It is believed the city is to take action to recover from the Connecticut company for the repair of its Seagraves pumping engine which the Northwest fire company operates and which was in collision with a large trolley car at Broad and Brainard streets Wednesday evening when the Northwest company was responding to an alarm for fire. The damage to the pumper is several hundred dollars for it was put out of commission by the bump with the trolley car. That no one was killed was fortunate, for the crash was one that could easily have taken place if the occupants of the engine not have been injured. Just such an accident has been in the minds of the members of the Northwest company for the apparatus has just escaped it before. The operator of the Seagraves, as soon as the apparatus came out on Broad street, realized that the crash was to come and tried to get the fire apparatus across the tracks ahead of the car, but failed and the crash came. A city ordinance gives the fire apparatus the right of way, but in this case it did not have it.

DEATH TOOK PROMINENT MEN IN THE STATE

A number of persons who had occupied prominent positions in the official and political affairs of the state died during the year 1924. It was in the latter part of January that Thomas M. Waller of New London, who was admiringly known to democrats, and to others, too, nearly a half century since, as "the little giant of the Democracy" passed away just ten days after the death of his close personal friend and fellow democrat, former Supreme Court Justice John M. Thayer of Norwich, says the Hartford Times.

The judiciary lost able members in the death of Judge James H. Webb of the superior court and of Judge Lucien F. Burpee of the supreme court of errors. Judge Burpee had a distinguished military record, was officially mentioned for distinguished military service in the Spanish-American war and, as head of the military emergency board, he did work for the state which contributed materially to the achievements of Connecticut in the World war. The death of former Chief Justice Samuel O. Prentice of Hartford brought to the minds of the people of the state his valuable services in the administration of law as a judge of the superior court and afterwards as justice of the supreme court. Judge Joel H. Reed, a conscientious and painstaking member of the judiciary for years, died a comparatively short time after his retirement from the bench.

In the sad death of United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee on Oct. 14, the state lost its senior representative in the United States senate and the nation a statesman of prominence. Jared Starr of Newington, who represented the town of Wethersfield 55 years ago when Newington was a part of that town, had attained the age of 90 years. But his patriarchal years were exceeded by those of Robert Robbins Wolcott, who died later in 1924 in his 97th year, as Wethersfield, which he represented in 1886. Robert De Forest of Bridgeport, who represented the Fourth congressional district from 1891 to 1895, was at one time one of the most prominent democratic leaders in the state. Costello Lippitt, a former state treasurer, died the latter part of August.

Sheriff Thomas L. Reilly was serving his second term as sheriff when he died. He had represented the Third Congressional district in congress and for several terms was mayor of Meriden.

There was perhaps no one better known in his section of the state than the kindly, courteous Justin B. Holman, who died in Old Saybrook. Mr. Holman represented his town in the general assembly at the session of 1903 and for some years he was a member of the old state board of charities which was succeeded a few sessions since by the department of public welfare. The death of Frank C. Sumner, the president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust Co., was deeply regretted by his large circle of personal and business acquaintances. Mr. Sumner served the state with efficiency and fidelity as a member of the board of state prison directors and as a member of the commission on the boundary line between Connecticut and Massachusetts.

13,000 MORE OPERATORS THAN AUTOMOBILES REGISTERED

There were thirteen thousand more licensed operators than registered motor vehicles in Connecticut in the year ended Wednesday according to figures given out at the state motor vehicle department. In the previous year, the number of licensed operators exceeded the aggregate of registered cars by more than 24,000.

The nearly 50 per cent. reduction in operators without cars of their own is believed to have been largely due to the growing custom under which different members of the same families own their own cars instead of all using a family car. The difference between the number of cars registered in the state and the number of operators licensed has been gradually and steadily reduced in the years following the war, especially since the value of used cars dropped to the lowest level in automobile history. In many instances where a man and his wife were both licensed for the purpose of driving the same car, now each has a car for his or her own use, and in not a few cases, their children have cars of their own.

Working in opposition to this tendency is the increase in the use of motor trucks by large corporations which have more than one driver for each truck operated.

While definite figures for 1924 registrations will not be available for some time, because the department's facilities are being extended to the utmost at this period to accommodate late applicants for registrations. It was estimated at the close of business Wednesday that 224,000 cars had been registered in the department during 1924 and 237,000 operators licensed, as against 189,666 cars registered and 213,690 operators licensed during 1923.

SECOND ATTENDANCE SUNDAY AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

The Central Baptist church is planning for the second of a series of attendance Sundays, to occur on Sunday, January 4th. The first was held on December 7th, with 70 per cent of the resident membership present. The goal for next Sunday is 75 per cent. Mrs. C. E. Smith is arranging for a nursery where the small children will be cared for. The automobile committee which functioned so successfully on Dec. 7th will be in charge again and those desiring transportation are expected to notify the church office. Most of the young people who are home from school and college will be able to participate in this Attendance Sunday. The colleges represented at the Watch Night Service Wednesday evening were Harvard, Hobart, Princeton, Smith, Brown, Posse-Nissen, Peddie, Temple University, Williams, Amherst, and Worcester Tech. The religious life of each of these institutions was described during that service, proving a very illuminating and helpful service.

POETRY

THE BALLAD OF PROSE AND RHYME

When the ways are heavy with mire and rut,
In November fogs, in December snows,
When the north wind howls, and the doors are shut—
There is place and enough for the pains of prose;
But whenever a scent from the white-thorn blows,
And the jasmine stars at the casement climb,
And a Rosalind face at the lattice shows,
Then hey! for the ripple of laughing rhyme!

When the brain gets dry as an empty nut,
When the reason stands on its squarest toes,
When the mind, like a beard, has a "formal cut,"
There is place and enough for the pains of prose;
But whenever the May blood stirs and glows,
And the young year draws to the "golden prime,"
And Sir Romeo sticks in his ear a rose,
Then hey! for the ripple of laughing rhyme!

In a theme where the thoughts have a pedant strut,
In a changing quarrel of "ayes" and "noes,"
In a starched procession of "if" and "but,"
There is place and enough for the pains of prose;
But whenever a soft glance softer grows,
And the light hours dance to the trysting time,
And the secret is told "that no one knows,"
Then hey! for the ripple of laughing rhyme!

ENVOY.

In the work-a-day world, for its needs and woes,
There is place and enough for the pains of prose;
But whenever the May bells clash and chime,
Then hey! for the ripple of laughing rhyme!

—Austin Dobson.

AUNT SAL.

Coppery, snake-bright
Bells of the bear-corn
Tremble their wine-spotted Delicate blooms by her doorsill.

There, in the silences—
Craning her red-kerchief
Head from the halo-spoked
Glimmering arc of her spinning-wheel—

Crinkly she puckers her
Cheek like a dried quince,
Squinting the far-away
Smile of a sun-witnessed sibyl.

—Percy MacKaye, in Yale Review.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

How do you like the 1925 automobiles?

Haven't made up my mind yet; I've only been hit by one or two.—Life.

Dad—Is there anything worse than to be old and bent?

Son—Yes—to be young and broke.—The West Pointer.

Lecturer — What have any of you done to save our timber?

Voice from rear—I shot a woodpecker once.—University of Pennsylvania Punch Bowl.

Katie—Say, auntie, you're an old maid, aren't you?

Aunt (hesitatingly)—Yes; but it isn't nice to ask such questions.

Katie—Now, don't be mad, auntie, I know it isn't your fault.—Exchange.

The tightest man in the world is the Scotchman who shot off a pistol outside his house on Christmas eve and then came in and told the children that Santa Claus had committed suicide.—University of California Pelican.

A little miss visiting Niagara falls recently was much interested in the great quantity of foam at the foot of the giant cataract. Finally she was moved to exclaim, Oh, papa, what an awful lot of soap it must take to make so much suds!—Chicago News.

After an acrimonious debate, the bride said tearfully: But for one thing I'd leave you and go home to mother.

What's that?

Mother is coming here. She's leaving father.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Jimmy, what became of that little pie I made for you yesterday?

I took it to school and gave it to the teacher.

That was very generous of you. Did she eat it?

I guess so. She wasn't at school today.—Capper's Weekly.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Sharks are a minor danger to pearl divers, as they can be easily frightened off.

Many hundreds of women spend their lives in driving and steering the canal boats in southern and middle England.

A new Orleans lawyer who makes the study of American history his hobby has visited the graves of all the Presidents of the United States and now contemplates a similar pilgrimage to the birthplaces of all the nation's chief executives.

A general federal state monopoly on the manufacture of playing cards of all kinds has been established in Russia by a decree. Trade in playing cards which are made in violation of this decree, and also in playing cards, without a customs or excise label, or with a damaged cover or label, is prohibited.

A Norwegian oil concern has recently bought a small island north of Bergen and in the near future will erect a large tank station to be used in connection with the export and distribution of Diesel oil, gas oil and gasoline. A quay large enough to accommodate sea going steamers will be provided for the delivery of oil in casks as well as direct on board the larger vessels.

A bill has been introduced in the Argentine congress authorizing the executive to expend up to 2,090,000 pesos in the distribution of a landing port for airplanes at the northern extremity of the port of Buenos Aires. The funds would be expended over a period of three years and would be included in the budget for 1925, 1926 and 1927 at the rate of 1,000,000 in the first year and 500,000 in each succeeding year.

Though a slow flier, the stork of European housetops is a patient one, and makes long journeys, according to Frederick C. Lincoln, of Washington, who addressed the American Ornithologists' Union recent meeting at Pittsburgh. The normal summer home of the European white stork is in Holland and North Germany; its winter quarters are in South Africa, for the most part although many storks remain in the lower Nile valley as well. Birds bearing northern European identifications bands on their legs have been reported in one or two isolated instances from Central Africa. This has led some bird students to believe that they cross the Sahara desert in a nonstop flight, or rest only in the oases; but Mr. Lincoln is inclined to discount this theory and to hold that these scattered cases represent wanderers from the regular route down the eastern side of the dark continent. Storks, Mr. Lincoln said, average only about thirty-five miles a day, a distance that a blue-winged teal covers in forty minutes.

JUDGE AVERY PRESIDES AT SHORT CALENDAR

A short calendar session term of the civil superior court which comes in here next Tuesday, with Judge C. L. Avery presiding, was held Friday morning at which the following matters were disposed of.

Charles Joseph Debmer, of New London, petition for change of name to Charles Joseph Frick, granted.

Amelio Leandri vs. Mary Leandri, answer in one week ordered or case to go to the uncontested list.

Union Bank & Trust Co., vs. Soltz Co., et al., order granted to cite in Alton T. Miner, trustee of the bankrupt estate of the Soltz Co., as a party defendant, in six different cases.

Washington Trust Co. vs. David W. Doyle, et al., judgment, postponed.

Eli Gledhill vs. Mystic Manufacturing Co., postponement for two weeks on application of receiver for authority to pay the six months interest coupons which matured on Sept. 1, 1924, on the $190,000 first mortgage seven per cent. bonds, and to pay the interest on said bonds from Sept. 1, 1924 to Dec. 1, 1924; also postponement for two weeks on receiver's application on behalf of William N. Kilcullen, a creditor, for extension of time for presentation of claim of said creditor. The receiver's account from Sept. 25, 1924 to Dec. 10, 1924 was approved as presented by William Z. White, receiver. This showed a balance in cash on hand September 1, 1924 of $2,959.20. Receipts since then had been $49,938.16, and disbursements $48,585.42, leaving a balance on hand of $4,311.94.

Receiver White was the only witness to appear before the court and told the court that he thought that better times are expected in the wool, cotton and worsted market conditions for this year. There was a good chance to make the Mystice Manufacturing Co. a paying proposition, if it had new capital and was reorganized into a new firm.

According to his testimony there is movement on foot by about 90 per cent. of the creditors to sell the Mystic Manufacturing company.

The creditors are keeping in close touch with the concern as it is now by having an active committee of five of the creditors look into the business. This committee signified at one of their meetings their intention of paying off part of the mortgage issue.

MAYOR WILL CALL SPECIAL CITY MEETING

Mayor Milo R. Waters said Friday evening that a special city meeting will be called in about two weeks' time to take action on the matters contained in the petition which he received recently from G. Warren Davis and 19 others. The exact date of the meeting has not been definitely decided upon, but will be announced within the near future.

Mr. Davis and those who signed the petition received by the mayor asked for the meeting to act on a proposition to remove the intake pipe at the Trading Cove pumping station further up stream to avoid alleged contamination of the water at the present location. The petition also includes a clause asking action on a proposition directing the city officials to cease all negotiations regarding any contemplated sale of the local municipally-owned gas and electric plant.

Mayor Waters said Friday evening that the law governing the calling of a special city meeting on petition requires 30 signatures instead of 20, which is the number on the petition he has received. When the names of the 20 signers of the petition were checked up one was found to be unqualified, leaving but 19 qualified signatures on the petition. The mayor said that steps are being taken, however, to have a special city meeting called.

New Year's Reception.

The Young Men's Christian Association has issued the invitations for the annual New Year's reception, which is to be held at the association building this (Saturday) evening. Music by Swahn's orchestra and selections by Piedro Mordella of Boston, piano accordion artist, are to be on the programme, which is in charge of the social committee, N. Eugene Smith, Arthur F. Wyman and Charles L. Stewart.

PUMPING STATION KEEPS WATER SUPPLY SECURE

The new pumping station on Trading Cove brook is proving the salvation of the water situation in Norwich. The pump was started in operation on Dec. 22 and has been working from 20 to 23 hours out of every 24 since then, enabling the reservoirs to just about hold their own against the daily draught.

On Dec. 2 Fairview reservoir was 175 inches down from full pond. On Dec. 22 the reservoir was 214 inches down from full pond. That day the pump was started and has been in operation since, with the result that Fairview was down 215 inches on Friday, having lost only an inch since the pump was started. At the present level there are about 85 million gallons in Fairview and 56 million gallons in Stony Brook, a total of 140 million gallons, which is a supply for 35 days. Had it not been for the reinforcement that the pumping station has given, the water situation would have been actually serious by this time.

The flow of Trading Cove brook alone has proved inadequate for the capacity of the two-million gallon pump, and the water from Tadma pond was accordingly turned on Friday. Two samples of the water from the city pipes have been taken since the pumping has been going on. The analysis of the first sample has proved satisfactory, but a report on the second sample has not yet been received from the state laboratory.

Two ortho tolidin tests are applied every day to the city water, these determining whether the right amount of chlorine is being used.

The December rainfall was but 2.73 inches and the rainfall for nine months has been only 26.38 inches, so that there seems to be small prospect that the yearly average of 44 inches will be reached. The twelve months will go down on the records as a dry year.

JOHN TROLAND EXHIBITS SUN DIAL HE MADE

John Troland, who may be called an artificer in sun dials, has had one of his own make on exhibition through the holiday season in the window at the Porteous & Mitchell store on Main street. Mr. Troland is in his 82d year but his hand and eye are steady and true yet and the specimen referred to is about the best he has been showing.

It has a motto, as all dials must, which was given to Mr. Troland by Miss Livia Ione Young of New York, formerly of Norwich, and author of a book of poems entitled "At Evening Time," which was published in 1907. The motto on the dial reads, over her signature: "When all earthly clouds are lifted then the shadows flee away."

The dial shows time and place of its engraving, latitude and longitude of the city, sun time by quarter hours, and symbols of the flight of time, Father Time's face and that of the sun who shines for all.

TWO NEW LONDON WOMEN SEEK DIVORCE

Two new divorce suits were filed on Friday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. James Santacroce of New London is being sued by Mary (Piro) Santacroce, also of New London, for divorce on grounds of desertion. They were married Dec. 28, 1916, and desertion is claimed since July 24, 1920. There is one child, Frank, aged 6 years, and the mother asks that she be granted his custody.

A divorce and change of name are asked by Lucy A. Neff of New London in an action which she has brought against Raymond A. Neff, formerly of New London, now of the Veterans' hospital, No. 44, West Roxbury, Mass. The plaintiff's maiden name was Lucy A. Landphere and she was united in marriage with the defendant June 29, 1910. She claims desertion since April 16, 1921.

DAMAGES ARE SOUGHT IN SUPERIOR COURT

Marcus L. Trail of Groton has brought suit for damages of $2,000 against J. Edmund Norman and Phoebe Norman, the writ being one of several filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. In addition to asking for damages of $2,000 the plaintiff asks that the defendants be required to deliver to him a deed to certain land involved, free of all encumbrances.

It is claimed that in November, 1923, the defendant, J. Edmund Norman, was administrator of the estate of the late George W. Palmer. He told the plaintiff orally at the time of the death of Mr. Palmer, the owner had title to property known as the Gungerwamp Farm located in Ledyard and Groton. The plaintiff claims he bought the land for $600, not knowing at that time that the alleged statements were false and fraudulent. The defendants, the complaint alleges, refuse to either repay the $600 or deliver to him a deed of the land free from encumbrances.

Damages of $1,000 are asked by Earl W. Phillips of Norwich in an action which he has brought against H. E. Marquardt of Groton. Plaintiff claims he was driving his motorcycle March 1, 1924, in Thames street, Groton, and that the plaintiff ran his automobile in the path of the motorcycle. The plaintiff was injured and the motorcycle was damaged to the extent of $150.

William Kaplan of New London is made the defendant in a suit brought by Morris Shakhat Co., Inc., of New York. The action is brought on the common counts and damages of $600 are asked.

The appointment of a receiver for Frank G. Ball & Company of New London is asked by James O'Connor, Thomas Fitch and William Lucy, all of New London, and W. Ellery Allyn of Waterford. The plaintiffs ask that the business be terminated by a court order. The plaintiffs allege that they are the owners of 987 shares out of 8,770 shares of the company's stocks. Mismanagement of the company's business is claimed.

Mary Shasha of New London has brought suit against Tait Bros., Inc., of New London, asking damages of $3,500 for injuries received when she was hit by a truck owned by the defendant concern. The accident happened Sept. 30, 1924, in New London.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS PAID OVER $12,000 FINES

Over $12,000 in fines were collected from violators of the liquor law at various sessions of the city court held here during the year 1924. A majority of those apprehended by the law were dispensing liquor in dwellings, some of the places called pool rooms or fruit or grocery stores and others from the "hip-pocket" saloon. More money was taken in by the court on other charges, but the liquor charges provided the greatest amount of revenue.

Intoxication headed the list of arrests for the year, while violations of the traffic laws placed second; third place being taken by violators of city traffic and parking regulations.

During the year 1924 the department made 1372 arrests, as shown by figures on the police blotter for the 12 months. September was the high months of the year, 153 names being entered during the thirty days of the month. February, the shortest month of the year, was also the lowest month on the blotter, showing but 70 arrests.

A summary of the arrests by months during 1924 is as follows: January, 108; February 70; March, 105; April, 99; May 108; June 108; July, 135; August 150; Sept. 153; Oct. 127; Nov. 132; Dec. 71. Total 1372.

Arrests for the year according to the charges entered were as follows:

Violation of the liquor law, 81;; intoxication, 433; resisting an officer, 8; keeping a house of ill fame, 5; frequenting a house of ill fame, 35; adultery, ; non-support 36; violating city ordinances, 87; violation of motor vehicle laws, 186; theft, 22; breach of the peace, 249, burglary 5.

Other charges listed but not checked included injury to private property, vagrancy, common drunkards, being incorrigible, possession and receiving stolen property, cruelty to animals, reckless driving, rape, evading responsibility, obtaining goods under false pretenses, keeping a gabling house and other minor offenses.

In January the record showed that names were entered for non-payment of personal taxes, while in July there were 33 violations of the traffic laws.

On an average those charged with violation of the liquor laws paid fines of $200 on two counts each, and not a few were sent to jail for their acts.

Another class of violators who have been severely dealt with have been people charged with reckless driving and those charged while driving under the influence of liquor. Stiff fines and suspended licenses have followed many of these charges.

NUMBER FIVE

vice charge at least $3,000,000 annually.

Likewise, the reduction on advertising matter in the upper zones is expected by Mr. Moses to bring a considerable increase in volume of second class mail, by eliminating the use of express and freight by many of the large publishers. The reduction in weight of packages acceptable as third-class, he believes, also will drive much business into other classes requiring higher rates.

While the rate increases were generally agreed to in committee, all members reserved the right to seek specific changes when the bill is taken up on the floor. Senator Oddie, republican, Nevada, indicated he would seek a cut in the proposed increase on first and second zone rates in second-class mail.

Acting in almost record time after the conclusion of hearings on the bill the committee will be able to get the measure before the senate before it votes Tuesday on President Coolidge's veto of the salary increase bill. In fact, Senator Moses indicated he might seek anoption of the new measure on Monday before debate is opened on the veto.

WOMAN SUFFOCATED IN FIRE STARTED ON CHRISTMAS TREE

Eighteen Other Patients Were Removed From a Private Hospital in Boston—A Fireman Fell From the Roof to the Floor Below, Sustaining a Possible Fracture of the Spine—Body of Woman Was Found Near a Window On the Top Floor.

Boston, Jan. 4.—One woman was suffocated and three other persons, a patient, a nurse and a fireman, sustained severe burns or injuries when fire, this afternoon swept through both buildings of the Scoccy hospital, a private institute on Beacon street, near the Brookline town line. Fourteen patients and a nurse were carried down ladders or smoke-filled stairways to the street by firemen. The fire, which necessitated three alarms, was believed to have originated from a short circuit in the cellar of one of the buildings.

Elizabeth Jenking, 24 years old, of Boston, was found dead near a window on the top floor of the main building after the fire had been extinguished. Helen Dwyer, a nurse and Eugene Byington, a patient, were carried from th ebuilding, suffering from body burns. William E. Coughlin, a fireman fell from the roof to the floor below and suffered a possible fracture of the spine.

The blaze, the first serious hospital fire that has visited Boston in years, was only extinguished after the interiors of both buildings had been damaged heavily, leaving only shells of walls standing.

Police seeking to determine the cause of the fire said that while it was believed a short circuit had started the flames this had not been definitely established. The Suffolk county grand jury will tomorrow begin an investigation under the direction of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, it was said.

Miss Jenkins was a clerk in the office of the Boston superintendent of schools. She had been operated upon less than 48 hours before for appendicitis. Two young men were driven back when they attempted to reach her room through the building. One of them almost succeeded in reaching her room from the ledge of a window in the house adjoining when the heat again became more than the man could stand.

There were 24 patients in the hospital at the time. Of the 12 nurses on duty, several were at lunch in the basement when the fire broke out. They assisted in the work of rescue.

According to information gathered by the police the fire was first discovered in loose papers scattered about the foot of a Christmas tree on the first floor. Mrs. Mary E. Thayer, the proprietor of the hospital, and three women visitors had been dismantling the tree and all electrical wiring had been taken down before the fire was found. The women attempted to smother the flames with the hall rug and when that failed sounded the alarm.

Dr. Francis J. Nash was the physician in charge of the hospital. His wife, a daughter of Chief Daniel Sennott of the Boston fire department, was a patient there. Her baby had died at birth a few days ago. Four of the other patients were maternity cases.

The loss was estimated at $100,000. So quickly did the flames spread that within half an hour of the discovery of the flames they had reached their greatest spread and soon after were under control. In that time one of the two houses which had been joined together to form the hospital had been reduced to a shell of walls while the two top floors of the other had been burned out.

POLICEMAN INJURED IN MAKING AN ARREST

Greenwich, Jan. 4.—One police officer was injured and three others were partially overcome by gas in their efforts to arrest a man who had barricaded himself in the Smith building here today. The man, William Rogers, negro, finally was placed under arrest, charged with resisting an officer and breach of the peace.

Officer Robert Fitzroy was called to the office of Dr. Douglas A. Milward on the third floor of the building when Rogers and Charles Bias got into an argument over wages. When Officer Fitzroy suggested that the two men settle the argument at headquarters, it is alleged that Rogers struck him, causing Fitzroy's head to strike a corner of the safe, inflicting a scalp wound.

Fitzroy called headquarters for assistance and three other officers were sent to the office building. They found, however, that Rogers had locked himself in the doctor's office. In an attempt to subdue him, the officers forced a quantity of gas through the keyhole into the room and then broke down the door.

Rogers had retreated to a work room and the gas had little affect on him, but the four patrolmen were almost overcome when they burst into the room.

Returning to the hall, the policemen called upon the fire department for aid and several gasmasks were rushed to the building. With the aid of these, Rogers was finally placed under arrest.

FASCIST DENOMINATIONS MADE THROUGHOUT ITALY

Rome, Jan. 4.—(By The A. P.)—The measures announced by Premier Mussolini in the chamber of deputies yesterday for overcoming the opposition to the Fascist government within forty-eight hours are already being put in force. The Fascist railway militia, to which is due to a great extent the reorganization of the deficit, the suppression of railway robberies and improved order, have prevented the execution of a plan, unearthed by the police, of stirring up disorders in the railroads, as recently evidenced by incendiary fires at stations in Rome, Florence and Parma.

Simultaneously, the prefects throughout the kingdom have been authorized to make searches and dissolve all political clubs of an anti-patriotic character, while various other sections of the Fascist militia have been mobilized in order to strengthen the police.

In various parts of Italy the Fascist militia carried out demonstrations. In Rome the local legion, 1,500 strong, engaged in tactical manoeuvres with machine guns. Later the legion was reviewed by General Gandolfo, the new head of the Fascist militia. The troops then entered Rome and paraded along the Corso to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

BROADCASTING HALTED BECAUSE OF S. O. S. SIGNAL

New York, Jan. 4.—Radio broadcasting was halted here shortly before 8 o'clock tonight when naval communications picked up an S O S signal from an unidentified vessel. The naval station and the Independent Wireless corporation station here caught several repetitions of the distress call but could not get the identity or position of the vessel.

In reply to radio requests for information as to the source of the calls, the American freighter Manatawny professed that she had rammed the British steamer Lexiian in the Delaware river but had not sent out a distress signal and was in no need of assistance.

[illegible] IN HEART OF CHICAGO STOCKYARDS

[illegible]go, Jan. 5.—Fire early this [illegible]g was sweeping the central [illegible]lding of the Chicago Packing company's plant in the heart of the stockyards. Firemen who responded to the first alarm were unable to cope with the blaze and a general and later a special alarm were turned in.

LAND BANKS REFLECT THE IMPROVEMENT IN AGRICULTURE

New York, Jan. 4.—Improvements in agricultural conditions have made it possible for the federal land banks to inaugurate their 1925 financing programme with the smallest public offering of bonds in the last five years. The issue, comprising $30,000,000 of 4 1-2 per cent bonds, will be placed on the market tomorrow by the twelve banks in association with a nation-wide syndicate, headed by Alex. Brown & Sons, of Baltimore.

Two factors have contributed to the reduction in the amount of current new financing, according to a statement by the farm loan board. These are the improvement in farm conditions, resulting in a slightly lessened demand for new loans, and a substantial increase in prepayments. At the same time steady and substantial purchases of farm loan bonds by the Veterans' Bureau for the government's insurance fund are credited with providing a large portion of the funds needed for loaning purposes.

"The federal land banks enter the new year in a very commanding position," says the statement, "with their capital reserve and undivided profits known to $60,000,000 and their total assets just under the billion mark—which they will pass in January."

The new bonds will be priced at 101 1-2 and interest to yield 4 1-2 per cent. thereafter to redemption or maturity in 1955.

REICHSTAG WILL HOLD INAUGURAL SESSION TODAY

Berlin, Jan. 4.—(By the A. P.)—President Ebert's decision to solve the existing crisis by the formation of a non-partisan cabinet is viewed by the newspapers as an emergency measure which is designed to keep national politics in a state of latent unrest.

The newly elected reichstag, which will hold its inaugural session tomorrow is expected to adjourn immediately after perfecting its permanent organization and await the advent of the new ministry which Chancellor Marx is expected to have ready for formal appearance at a plenary session at the end of the week.

While it is generally assumed that the three middl parties—the clericals, the people's party and the democrats—will permit their present delegates, Chancellor Marx, Foreign Stresemann and Minister of Defense Gessler to return to the present officers, it not yet evident that Marx will be to recruit other members of a cabinet from either the nationalist or socialist parties. While the new government may count on a sufficient majority in the reichstag when national issues such as that affecting the allied decision to remain on the Cologne Bridgehead are up for action, a non partisan cabinet is destined to find itself bereft of any necessary support on measures affecting internal affairs where differences between the socialists and some of the bourgeois parties are likely to confront it with heavy opposition.

THREE MEN HELD FOR ASSAULT AND ROBBERY

New York, Jan. 4.—Charged with assault and robbery in connection with three holdups in Brooklyn recently, three men were arrested today. The police are endeavoring to link them with the murder of a jeweler on January 2 and the shooting to death of a lunch room proprietor last November.

The prisoners described themselves as Joseph Finkelstein, 22; Morris Weinberg, 22 and Morris Steinberg, 22, all of this city. All have prison records, according to police.

Sebago, Me., Jan. 4.—Maine's first hunting fatality of 1925 occurred here today when Carlos Johnson, 35, was killed by the accidental discharge of a shot gun in the hands of Edward Hines while the two were in search of rabbits. The trigger of Hines' gun was said to have caught on a twig and was discharged.

Senate to Vote on Postal Bill Tuesday

Action May Be Taken That Will Avert a Ballot on Presidential Veto.

Washington, Jan. 4.—With only two months remaining before sine die adjournment, March 4, congress is expected this week to dispose of several important issues which have been hanging fire since the last session. Among them the postal pay question and the McFadden banking bill. The senate has agreed to vote again on Tuesday on the postal salaries measure, vetoed by President Coolidge, while the house expects to reach a vote by Saturday on the McFadden proposal.

Other legislation, including the Muscle Shoals question which has been before the senate for some weeks, will be laid aside tomorrow for a discussion of the postal pay and rate problem. It is expected that attempts will be made to put through the administration bill providing for increases in both postal rates and salaries and, in the event of its failure, to send the vetoed salaries bill back to committee.

Such developments would come before 4 p. m. Tuesday, the hour set for a vote on the question of sustaining the presidential veto, with the possibility that action might be taken by the senate which would make a vote on the veto necessary.

After the postal question is out of the way, the senate will again be in position to resume consideration of the Muscle Shoals problem and to dispost of the annual supply bills, none of which has been taken up as yet.

In the house, appropriation bills, four of which already have been passed, will be relegated to the back ground tomorrow to permit consideration of a wide range of measures on the unanimous consent calendar. Action on these bills will be made possible by the announced decision by the supporters of the Howell-Berkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board not to call the proposal up tomorrow, when under the rules consideration would be in order.

On Tuesday the house is expected to reach a final vote on the army supply bill and after devoting Wednesday to miscellaneous easures to take up on Friday, an urgent deficiency appropriation bill, which will carry among other items more than 100,000,000 to be sed in refnuding taxes illegally collected.

Leaders plan to dispose of the deficiency bill in one day, paving the way for consideration Friday and Saturday of the McFadden proposal to change the banking laws, particularly with regard to branch banking.

During the week, the house committee investigating the aircraft industry will resume hearings, while the senate subcommittee which has before it the cremation bill to place prohibition enforcement under a separate bureau in the treasury department plans to hear additional testimony in opposition to the proposal.

FAVORS SLIDING SCALE FOR POSTAL WORKERS

Washington, Jan. 4.—Uniform general increases in postal salaries, as proposed in the bill vetoed by President Coolidge, which is on the senate calendar for consideration Tuesday, are opposed as contrary to sound principle in a report ade by the postal service committee of the chamber of commerce of the United States, which is being submitted to a referendum of the 400 organizations comprising the chambers members.

The committee proposes in the report that postal salaries be readjusted to meet the varying living conditions in different cities and sections.

Creation of an emergency fund to be used for salary increases at where employes cannot be had for the prevailing wages also is proposed.

DISPUTE AT PARTY LED TO MURDER IN BRISTOL

Bristol, Jan. 4.—Antonio Tottore, 37 years old, of 59 Meadow street, was shot and instantly killed and Salvatore De Salvatore, of Cherry street and his wife were badly slashed about the face and breast with a razor following a dispute at a party at the De Salvatore home tonight.

Vito Fanelli, of 26 Crown street and Joseph Leo Grando, of 55 Melrose street, are under arrest and the police are searching for Dominick Savini who is believed to have had some connection with the tragedy. According to the police he disappeared soon after the shooting.

The police admitted tonight that they did not know who did the shooting. The party had been in progress during the evening and shortly after 9 o'clock, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. De Salvatore appeared at the home of a neighbor and asked that the police be called.

When the police arrived they found the body of Tottore lying in the street in front of the house.

ERSTWHILE RACE TRACK QUEEN NOW PENNILESS

Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 4.—Once known as "Queen Ag" of the Guttenberg race track, and with a racing stable of her own, Mrs. Aggie Sennett, 75, was brought today to St. Mary's hospital here, penniless and semi-delirious.

In her delirium she talked of the hey-day of racing, of the day 35 years ago when she won $30,000 on a single race, when she owned her own horses and her husband, Jim Senett, was widely known throughout the racing world. All of this passed with the suppression of racing by New Jersey, and she was soon reduced to poverty, she said.

Three Men Rescued From Burning Boat

Backfire From One of Three 450 Horsepower Motors Set Fire to Craft.

New York, Jan. 4.—Three men were rescued from the burning motor boat Warbug in the East River off South Ferry by officers aboard the coast guard cutter Calumet today. When the rescue was effected the burning craft was tied to the Diamond Reef dredge, which usually is equipped with 5,000 pounds of dynamite and nitro glycerine for blasting purposes.

The Warbug, according to the three occupants, who later were towed to Dead Man's station at the Battery, explained to Captain W. T. Murphy in charge of the Calumet that they were proceeding from 125th street down the East River bound for Sheepshead Bay, when, as they arrived off the foot of Whitehall street, a backfire from one of the three 450-horsepower motors set the craft afire. The men immediately steered for the dredges and tied up. The engineer of the dredge as soon as he observed the flaming boat blew a series of blasts warning harbor boats of the fire.

Captain Murphy immediately went to the craft's assistance. As soon as he pulled along side the gasoline tank exploded with a terrible blast. Boatswain Alexander McGregor who was standing in the bow of the boat with a chemical extinguisher in his hand was burned slightly on the arms. He and several members of the crew from the Calumet continued to play chemicals and water on the craft until the flames were extinguished.

The motorboat then was towed to the barge office. Its estimated value was $20,000.

GREAT OVATION GIVEN BARITONE TIBBETT

New York, Jan. 4.—An eager man with courage, a wife and twin sons and only a little money boarded a train for New York at Los Angeles three years ago to strive for an operatic career without European training, reputation or heralding.

The same man, now twenty-eight, made musical history Friday night when a brilliant audience at the Metropolitan Opera House lost its self-control and created a wild demonstration of approval for the latest singing sensation—Lawrence Tibbett, American baritone—who had the role of Ford in Verdi's "Falstaff."

While his wife wept and the ovation grew, Tibbett was in his dressing room freshening his make-up. Suddenly he was summoned by Gatti-Casazza, impresario, and told to take the curtain call alone.

When Tibbett went upon the stage the audience, long accustomed to showering applause upon artists from other shores, acclaimed the native-born with wild tumult. It was an opportunity long awaited by appreciative patrons of the famous opera house.

Tibbett today declared that Antonio Scotti, who played the title role, and Gatti Casazza both urged him to go before the curtain alone; setting at rest rumors that professional jealousy had prevented him from taking the call alone until the audience had made it plain that it would not let the opera continue until he appeared.

Tibbett today received an official letter of congratulation from Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the opera director's board.

WARFARE RESUMED IN NEW YORK'S CHINATOWN

New York, Jan. 4.—Fresh outbreak of the war between the On Leon and Hip Sing Tongs was seen by the police in the murder today of Chin Sing, 35, a seaman, said by the police to be a Hip Sing Tongman, in a chop suey restaurant in Chinatown.

As Hing entered the restaurant, which contained about 35 Chinese diners, four shots were fired and he fell across the table.

M. J. Collins, a federal officer, was standing near the entrance when he heard the four shots and saw eight or ten chiese burst through the door and break for the street. He called upon them to halt but his command was ignored. He drew his gun, waved back the other occupants of the restaurant and held them inside until the arrival of reserves and detectives of the homicide squad. A .35 calibre revolver with four exposed shells in the chambers was found.

ORDERED TO LISTEN FOR AN S O S CALL

New London, Jan. 4.—The Independent Wireless Telegraph company station here received orders at 7.15 o'clock tonight to cut off all traffic work and listen for an S. O. S. call. The operators reported that they heard what they thought was a call for aid from sea but the messages were so indistinct that their origin could not be learned. The station was ordered at 8.20 to resume its regular work.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the operators reported, the station picked up an S. O. S. call from the oil tanker William Rockefeller, of the Standard Oil company, reporting that it was ashore off Jupiter inlet, Florida. Another call at 6.20 reported that coast guard cutters had lines on the William Rockefeller and that the latter boat was in no danger.

FRENCH MEMORANDUM ON WAR DEBT HAS ARRIVED

Document Was Received Last Night at the State Department in Washington—It is Being Decoded For Delivery This Morning to Secretary Hughes—It is Hoped by Administration Officials That the Document Will Contain Important Suggestions.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The French memorandum drafted by M. Clementel, finance minister of the Paris government, regarding payment of the war debt of France to the United States, was received tonight at the state department.

The cable office of the state department immediately began decoding the document for delivery tomorrow morning to Secretary Hughes.

Technically the communication had not been received tonight by Secretary Hughes, and for that reason comment was declined as to both its context and its value for determining future American treatment of the French war debt problem.

It was certain, however, that Secretary Hughes would transmit the memorandum without delay to Secretary Mellon, since, as chairman of the debt funding commission created by congress, he is charged with the conduct of negotiations with foreign governments for payment of their obligations to the United States.

Although the Paris authorities acted informally in presenting the memorandum to Ambassador Herrick, and thereby stripped it of the status of an official document, it is hoped by Washington administration leaders that it will be found to contain suggestions of such importance as will justify them in opening formal discussion with Paris, out of which an agreement for payment of the debt may come.

In this connection, however, it was pointed out that no opinion on this is hoped for development could be expected until Secretary Mellon, acting with the members of the debt commission, of whom Secretary Hughes is one, has had an opportunity carefully to study the Clementel memorandum and determine upon a course of action. A meeting of the commission for this purpost, it was said, probably will be called by Secretary Mellon early in the week.

DRESS MATERIALS OF THE RIVIERA SEASON

Monte Carlo, Jan. 4.—Stain crepe in pink, emerald green, rosewood, silk ottoman and natural colored kasha are the most successful dress materials of the Riviera season. Kasha cloaks trimmed with brown fur are very prominent at sundown on the terrace at Monte Carlo and the Promenade Des Anglais at Nice.

Brown in various shades is also a favorite color at this time of the year and judging from its popularity among the fashionable should last well into the season. Jaunty little walking suits they are with the straight silhouette ever prominent.

Yet by some subtle and clever arrangement, the skirts while seeming very narrow are made comfortably roomy for walking.

Some frocks of natural colored kasha, for instance, have the narrow straight line effect but the skirt has an apron tunic unobstrusively attached at the low waist line and extending nearly to the hem. Beneath this tunic, which is split in the front, the skirt seems narrow, but its width is extended by an inverted box pleat at the laft. Tunic, skirt and pleat all combine to make walking easy and achieve the straight line effect.

DECREASE IN PRODUCTION OF TOBACCO IN U. S.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Production of all types of tobacco grown in the United States was smaller in 1924 than in 1923, the department of agriculture reported today, the total crop being 1,243,000,000 pounds, compared with 1,515,000,000 in 1923. The cigar types showed a drop of 24,000,000 pounds and the types used for chewing smoking, snuff and export were reduced 248,000,000 pounds.

The reduction is attributed by the department to decreased planting in practically all the important growing sections, and to decreased yields in many areas. The largest decrease was in the bright or blue flue-cured tobacco sections of Virginia and the Carolinas where production of wheat are known as the old belt and the belt types was 441,000 pounds or 1,52,000,000 less than the preceding year. Production of burley which is the most important single type of tobacco, was 311,000,000 pounds or 15,773,000 pounds less than a year ago.

SCIENTISTS TO STUDY ECLIPSE OF SUN AT YALE

New Haven, Jan. 4.—Scientists from at least a dozen observatories in various parts of the country will come to New England to study the total eclipse of the sun on Juanary 24, it was announced today by Professor Ernest W. Brown, of the departments of mathematics and astronomy at Yale university.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE AT ART GALLERIES

Washington, Jan. 4.—President and Mrs. Coolidge today paid an unannounced visit to the Corcoran Gallery of Art, viewing a number of paintings recently placed on exhibition there, along with several of the old favorites.

Today was a "Public Day" at the gallery, and the president and his wife passed upwards of an hour mingling with the regular Sunday visitors.

LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY BELOW EXPECTATIONS

Washington, Jan. 4.—The livestock industry during 1924, although showing improvement over 1923 conditions, failed to measure up to expectations, the department of agriculture declared tonight in a review of the situation.

The years afforded ample opportunity for the critic and the pessimist" said the statement, since "practically no kind of livestock showed a definite price trend" and the consequence was "confusion and uncertainty for the stock man."

Higher prices for cattle subsistence, attributed to the relatively short corn crop, had a "slightly stimulating effect" on cattle prices, it was found but caused an unprecedented number of hogs to be marketed and materially reduced the number of cattle on feed.

Beef steer made a good start in April, the department said, selling higher than at any corresponding period since the 1921 break, but toward the end of June a marked decline in prices set in and continued until December 1. A similarly poor season was experienced by range cattlemen, with the prevalent prices from July to October lowed than in 1921.

Stockers and feeders, the statement said, for the first ten months of the year, sold only a few cents higher than in 1921, with the result that only 86 per cent. as many cattle were on feed December 1 as on the corresponding date in 1923. Marketing for the first 11 months showed a one per cent. increase over 1923, while during the same period shipments decreased more than receipts and the ratio of slaughter increase, "apparently indicating a tendency toward real liquidation."

5,000 COAL TEAMSTERS TO WALK OUT IN CHICAGO TODAY

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Five thousand coal teamsters and truckers voted late today to walk out tomorrow as a protest against the refusal of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association to consider the granting of wave increases to the men.

As a result, the employers said tonight, Chicago faces a situation that threatens to cripple the city industrially, close the city schools and cause suffering to many thousands.

The men, members of the Chicago Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Helpers union and the General Teamsters Chauffeurs and Helpers Union, had asked for a flat $2 a day increase, but yesterday lowered their demand to a dollar a day, below which figure they would not go, they asserted.

"A majority of the wholesale houses are not supplied by rail," said Fred G. Hartwell, owner of one of the biggest coal companies, "and have only an average of about 48 hours' supply of coal. They will have to close down, of course, if the supply of coal transported by teams and trucks is cut off. Schools have but a few days' supply. Most of the large factories and the stock yards get their fuel by rail and will not be affected, but thousands of others will be thrown out of work."

Another coal merchant said that the loop district would be hit the hardest by the strike and that wartime rationing might become necessary.

19,459 NEW COMPANIES WERE INCORPORATED IN NEW YORK

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Two hundred fifty-five more companies incorporated in New York during 1924 than in the previous year brought the tota lincorporations for 1924 up to the 19,459 mark, a report of the corporation bureau issued tonight by Secretary of State Florence E. S. Knapp shows.

Incorporation of a greater number of beauty parlors and radio companies than ever before demonstrated to the satisfaction of the secretary of state's office that bobbed hair and wireless entertainment still were holding their own in a rush of other activities.

REGULATIONS OF AMATEUR RADIO STATION OPERATIONS

Washington, Jan. 4.—Under revised regulations governing amateur radio station operations, just issued by the commerce department, amateurs must cease using the wave length band between 15 and 110 meters. This section of ether capacity is being taken up by commercial and government stations. Amateur who operate with a spark set, which the department classified as a source of much interference, are instructed to use only the wave length between 170 and 180 meters until such time as they have installed a transmission system productive of less trouble to other radio communication.

Suggestions on the proposed city charter revision will be accepted from the public in general at an open meeting to be held at the common council chamber of the town building Friday evening, Jan. 9, when Mayor George W. Hickey will preside. It is expected that a body of property owners who would be affected by extension of the city line in the direction of South Windham will be present to give views on the matter. The only objection to ... this extension is that holders of property outside the present boundary line of the city only pay taxes in the town, whereas if the line were extended they would be included in the city, requiring payment of city and town taxes. In return for this extra tax they would be given the various benefits granted city property owners.

Cars owned by Marshal E. Porter of South Windham and Theodore Larrow of 61 Railroad street, Putnam, came together shortly after midnight Sunday morning at the junction of Jackson and Main streets, causing some damage to both machines. The matter was reported to the police but no action was taken as the parties came to a mutual settlement.

A dissatisfaction over improper heat in a flat was brought to the attention of the police court Saturday morning, when Joseph Peck, local realtor, appeared against Abraham and Molly Krug, joint owners of a two-story block on Union street, to complain that the flat which he occupies in the block has not been properly heated as called for in the lease. Krug showed a paper which he said was a copy of the lease. It was signed by Peck and the Krugs and over the former name appeared a clause, "heat included." Krug said that these words were written on by Peck as he signed his name and were not in the original lease. Krug asked for a continuance of the case until he could secure counsel. Judge Frank H. Foss granted him until this (Monday) morning.

The child labor law, something of interest to every public-spirited citizen, is to be discussed from all angles at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to be held Wednesday, Jan. ... The monthly meeting and supper has been changed this month from Tuesday to Wednesday in order to accommodate the speakers. The question is one upon which the Connecticut legislature must vote at this session in order to reject or ratify the 20th amendment to the constitution of the United States. Ratification of this amendment would give congress the power to absolutely prohibit any boy or girl under 18 from doing any kind of work, thereby furthering education and building up the health of the coming generations. This side of the argument will be explained by Capt. Frank P. Fenton, town clerk of Windham, and a speaker of ability. The negative side will be upheld by P. L. Gerety of Derby, secretary of the Naugatuck Valley Industrial league. Mr. Gerety is a forceful speaker and his intensive study of the question enables him to present many arguments against ratification. A special invitation has been extended women voters to come to the chamber hall at 8 o'clock and hear the discussion.

Of interest to those concerned with the unusual and artistic in handiwork is the recent arrival in Hebron of a large box of toys sent from Mexico to the children of the First Congregational chruch by Rev. Howard Champe, a former pastor of the church and acting missionary at Guadalajara, Mexico. The toys are so tiny it seems hardly possible that they could have been turned out by hand. They are diminutive woven market baskets, little candles in glass holders less than an inch high, corresponding jars, colored bowls, and vases that might very suitably have gone in the Queen's doll house, queer shaped whistles, bright, carved wooden earrings, and finger-rings, with stones of yellow and brown and blue.

Apropos of Hebron and ministers and the sale of the Lorenzo Dow house out there some time ago, a story is recalled of that interesting personage. The fiery "pipelot" preacher was extremely popular, especially during the latter part of his life, somewhat to the discomfort of certain of his contemporaries, two of whom, after the manner of inquisitors, were one day trying to confound the old man. "What is heaven like?" said Rev. Mr. Brush to Rev. Mr. Dow. "Describe it," said Rev. Root. "Describe it. Is it not like a long, smooth plane?" "Most certainly," replied Rev. Lorenzo. "A long, level plain, gentlemen, without a root nor a brush on it."

The circumstances of Mr. Dow's second marriage were not of the most happy, as his inscription on the fireboard, "Women Rule Here," would indicate. His second wife, Miss Dolbeare, from Norwich way somewhere, stood up in meeting and married him on sight, as it were, in response to a question he put from the pulpit as to whether any lady there present would be willing to become his wife. Observed one day (a considerable time after) by a friend sitting in the most profound absorption, he was asked what he was thinking about. "How to spell Dolbeare in three letters," replied Rev. Lorenzo, in perhaps not the most Victorian taste, and he added a minute afterward, "It's H-O-G."

MANSFIELD JUSTICE SPEEDY AFTER CAR IS BUMPED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 4.—The Mansfield town court, with Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews on the bench, topped all known records in these parts for administering speedy justice Saturday, when disposition of a case was made 14 minutes after a violation of the automobile laws had been committed. At the home of Justice Andrews Saturday morning the case of Albert LaMarche of Eagleville, charged with theft of an electric battery Oct. 30 last from a wood-sawing machine, the poperty of Mrs. Swanson of Mansfield City, had just been concluded. LaMarche was found guilty of the theft, but as there were some of the links missing from the chain of evidence against the accused, Justice Andrews imposed a suspended jail sentence of 40 days, assessing the costs of the court, $15.20, on LaMarche. LaMarche stated that he had purchased the battery from a New York City concern, although Mrs. Swanson and her son identified it as one which they had owned and purchased from Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago. State Policeman Heinold found the battery in LaMarche's possession.

The trial had just come to a close when a loud crash was heard from the highway, known as the Coventry-Willimantic road. State Policeman Heinold and all others in the house rushed out and found two automobile which had locked horns. One was a Chevrolet coupe, owned by Mrs. Amy Brown of Greystone street, this city, and the other a Ford truck, driven and owned by Frank E. Bebbington, a local man. Mrs. Brown had the right of way and Bebbington acknowledged his guilt, stating that the accident was caused by reason of the icy road surface and [illegible] on the windshield, which impaired his vision. He was charged with failure to give right of way to an approaching vehicle and fined $5 and costs, amounting to $19.85, which he paid.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

"The best of the modern jazz pictures yet. That was the verdict of the audience of the Breed theater last night, at the first showing of Wine of Youth. King Vidor's production for Metro-Goldwyn of Rachel Crother's very popular story, which was known in its stage version as Mary the Third.

Directed with a whimsical touch of humor and played by an ideal cast Wine of Youth, provides an evening of fast and furious entertainment that certainly ought to satisfy the most captious spectator.

The cast includes Eleanor Boardman, Pauline Caron, Ben Lyon, William Haines, William Collier, Jr., and many others. Carey Wilson made the adaptation.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and a roaring two part comedy.

Broadway Theater

The Paramount screen version of J. M. Barrie's stage play, Peter Pan, a Herbert Brenon production for Paramount, is the feature at the Broadway theater up to Wednesday. The picture is an adaption by Willis Goldbeck and features Betty Bronson, Ernest Torrence, Cyril Chadwick, Virginia Brown Faire and Anna May Wong in the leading roles.

Five years ago it might have been said that such a picture couldn't be made. And it would have been true. For Paramount needed every last particle of its long expecience and every trick known to present-day motion picture production to make Peter Pan a possibility. Just such a picture is Peter Pan.

Ernest Torrance as the frightful pirate captain Hook, gives a characterization which overshadows even his role of Jackson in The Covered Wagon. And the same goes for each and every other member of the cast. It is said that six months were spent before a camera was turned on Peter Pan that it might be as near perfection as it was possible to make it. Let us spend six months in preparation on a few more of our productions if this is the result, say we.

In addition to this singular feature there will be four five acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville.

Don't fail to see it, bring the family, you'll enjoy the whole show.

Coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

When Sisters Love the Same Man: Ernest Pascal, the clever novelist of The Dark Swan, certainly got a dramatic situation when he conceived the idea of having two sisters rivals for the love of the same man. One of these girls, Eve, is lovely outside, but inside a corruption of egotism and selfishness. The other, Cornelia, is very unattractive to the eye, but has a fine soul. They both fight for the love of Lewis Dike, who begins by courting Cornelia, then is captivated by the beauty of Eve, and later rues his decision in marrying her.

Warner Bros. have made this into a picture, with a cast headed by Marie Prevost, Helene Chadwick, Monte Blue, and including Arthur Rankin, Lilyan Tashman, Mary McLaren, Carlton Miller, Vera Lewis and John Patrick.

It will play today, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Palace theatre. Millard Webb is the director.

The management of the Palace theatre will present another big Paramount vaudeville bill on the last half of the week. Rin Tin Tin, the wonder dog of movieland, will be seen in The Lighthouse by the Sea. This is a thrilling sea story, and advance reports say that it surpasses anything Rin Tin Tin has done up to date.

Lyceum Theater Now London

There was a time when to hear a concert by a choir, was to spend an entire evening listening to church music, religious chanties and hymns and the classic choral works of Haendel and Bach. While this music is majestic and general in its appeal, still it made the evening somewhat monotonous. Lately, folk-songs became a conspicuous part of such choral programs and thus introduced a note of variety and popular appeal into concerts by choirs. But the Russian Symphonic choir, under Basile Kibalchich, which will make its appearance at the Lyceum theater, New London on Wednesday evening, January 7, will introduce a new kind of choral music never heard before on such programs. In addition to church music and folk-songs, this choir will offer arrangements of popular light classics, originally written for the piano and known to every music lover. These arrangements have been made possible Mr. Kibalchich's original ideas and the choral singing and "fire for the first time a prelude by Chopin or a [illegible] without words by Schumann will find a place on a choral program.

A man may be what he thinks he is without being what he claims to be.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the annual meeting of the Windham County National bank, to be held at an early date, the matter of increasing the institution's capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000 will be considered. The subject is discussed in a letter which has been addressed to the stockholders by President Nathan D. Prince.

The splendid growth of the bank during the past decade and its present size are considerations. The funds of the bank have reached a magnitude such as makes it impossible to profitably invest all its money in loans here and in the immediate territory. In view of the fact that its present maximum loan may not exceed $15,000 to any individual, the bank is handicapped at times by reason of its inability to place larger amounts of money in high grade investments, because of the restrictions placed on its capitalization.

The public has an interest in what the stockholders may vote to do as to increasing the capital stock in view of the fact that the stock of this bank is taxable and with new issue out, Killingly, where the bulk of the stock is owned, would receive about $1,000 a year in taxes.

In making the increase the proposal, as set forth in Mr. Prince's letter, would give the stockholders a 50 per cent stock dividend. It is not likely that any other than the present owners of the stock will have an opportunity to obtain any of the issue if it is authorized, because the stockholders have a right to purchase in advance of all others. The present stock is taxed by the state on a basis of $225 a share.

The public has a special interest in what the stockholders will do about making the increase because a similar effort to increase the capital of this bank was made ten years ago and failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote. That can occur again because about 40 per cent. of the stock is so held that any such proposal as the newstock issue can be defeated by holders of this stock adversely or by failing to vote at all.

President Prince's letter to the stockholders follows:

To the Stockholders of the Windham County National Bank:

Your attention is directed to the call for our annual meeting to be held at our banking rooms January 13th, 1925, at 10 o'clock a. m., (copy of which is attached herewith) and particularly to that section relating to an increase in our capital stock.

During the last ten years your institution has had a most remarkable growth, increasing its resources from $700,000 as of December 31st, 1914, to an excess of $3,000,000 at the present time. Surplus and profits have likewise increased from $50,000 to $125,000.

It must be clearly evident to you that your institution has grown to such an extent that it cannot find profitable and safe employment for all of its funds locally, and therefore must look elsewhere for its investments.

The national bank act places a limit on loans which we may make to any one person or corporation of 10 per cent of our capital and surplus, and this is likewise applicable to an investment in bonds other than United States bonds. We therefore find ourselves handicapped at times because of our low capital.

After careful consideration by your directors, it has been thought best to ask authority from the stockholders to increase the capital to $100,000. If this increase is voted, which will call for an issue of 500 shares, it is the intention of your board of directors to declare a stock dividend of 50 per cent, and issue to each stockholder one new share of stock for each two shares now held, which will call for an issue of 250 shares. The remaining 250 shares, it is the intention of your board of directors to offer to stockholders for cash in the ratio of one new share for each three shares held.

In order to effect this increase in capital stock, it is necessary that stockholders owning at least two-thirds of the present outstanding stock be present, either in person or by proxy, and vote in favor of this increase. A full attendance of our stockholders is desired, but if you find it impossible to be present at this meeting, will you kindly sign and return promptly the enclosed proxy. Necessary revenue stamps will be affixed and cancelled before stock represented by your proxy is voted.

Sunday afternoon at the home of his mother, Mrs. Phoebe Cook Sayles in Elmville, funeral services for Walter E. Sayles were conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson. Relatives and numbers of friends attended the services. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Earl Hopkins and Timothy Hopkins of Worcester, Judge Sabin S. Russell, Louis Sayles, Silas H. Wheelock, Putnam, and Francis E. Storer, Danielson. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. There were beautiful floral pieces.

Announcement was made Sunday that Frank M. Bedard, of the West Side town of Brooklyn, has been appointed an assistant superintendent of the state capital for the legislative session that will bring the legislators-elect together tomorrow (Tuesday) for the first time as a body.

Mr. Bedard has deserved the appointment, which carries compensation of 600 for his earnest and long sustained work in the interest of the republican party in Brooklyn over a period of years.

Mr. Bedard is well known here. He is secretary of B. A. Bailey lodge, N. E. O. P., chaplain of Putnam lodge of Elks, a justice of the town of Brooklyn, tax collector of the Brooklyn fire district, a member of the Sons of Veterans, of the Bohemian club and a member of the senatorial committee of the 29th district.

The strange beast that haunted the Allen Hill section a year ago is believed to be the same creature of uncanny appearance and cunning now roaming about in the territory between the Green Hollow road and the Old Furnace. Not only has the animal been seen in broad daylight in a field east of the Green Hollow road, but its tracks have been found in the snow the past week end, when a score of young men with dogs searched the countryside with the hope of getting it. The tracks of the anmila are like those found where it walked in muddy soil in Brooklyn last year. A woman resident on the Green Hollow road who saw the animals says that it has a waddle similar to that of a bear when it is underway and that its fur is long and shaggy. The animal weighs as much or more than 50 pounds. The great what-is-it is around again!

Cotton mill operatives here received some consolation Sunday for a wage cut they accepted a few weeks since At the time the cut was made in eastern Connecticut many remarked that when they read of reductions in wages in Fall River, New Bedford and other large textile centers in New England, no cut had been made in the big cotton manufacturing cities, but the cut has been ordered, as was the case hereabouts.

Miss Margaret Sullivan of Plainfield was the guest over the week end of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy.

More than a score of baskets of magnificent roses were presented Nathan D. Prince, at his office in the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, at Hartford, Saturday, in recognition of his advancement to the presidency of the institution. The flowers came from intimate friends, heads of banks and other institutions.

Relatives here have learned of the recent death at New Bedford of Narcisse Blanchette, formerly a resident of Danielson.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, a representative from Killingly, will be at Hartford tomorrow (Tuesday) when the members of the incoming legislature assemble.

Mrs. Nathan D. Prince, much improved in health, is at her home on North Main street, after having spent several weeks in Hartford.

Ice fishermen made the most of Sunday's weather to try their luck on various bodies of water in this vicinity.

A delegation of members of the Bohemian club attended the funeral services for Walter E. Sayles at his home in Elmville Sunday afternoon.

Ice harvesting is being done at Wauregan for the Wauregan company, the crop being taken from the Quinebaug river, just above the dam in the village.

A new engine is being installed at the ice cutting plant at the Hygeia reservoir near East Killingly, whence comes much of the ice that is used in Danielson during the course of a year.

Danielson people who give thought to such things returned thanks Sunday over the fact that the northeast storm that buried New York under a heavy blanket of snow left no more than the thinnest covering over this and adjacent territory, and much of this little fall had disappeared by Sunday afternoon.

It is still possible to make the jump from drab little Danielson to brilliant, hectic New York. Arthur W. Eddy has left his newspaper job here to take a place on a New York publication devoted to theatricals, motion pictures, circuses, and other entertainment.

Deposit your valuable papers and other valuables in a safe deposit box in the Windham County National bank's modern and burglar-proof vault. The cost is very normal indeed. adv.

A committee headed by James C. Moran, grand knight, is busy with plans of Rose of Lime council, K. of C., for a three nights' carnival to be given later in the winter.

Live bait for fishermen at Birch's market today.—adv.

Danielson and vicinity received only about an inch of snow out of the northeaster that dwindled out Saturday morning, after carrying a threat during all of Friday.

Sessions in the public schools throughout the town of Killingly will be resumed this (Monday) morning, following the holiday recess.

Historical night will be observed this (Monday) evening at the meeting of Killingly grange.

Additional markers for cars came through to Danielson motorists at the week end, allowing more cars again to be in service.

Thursday evening of this week many members of Putnam lodge of Elks will gather here to discuss plans for an event they are planning. They will have a lunch and smoker.

Tomorrow (Tuesday) will be observed at St. James' church at the feast of the Epiphany. Announcements relative to the services were made at all the masses Sunday.

PUTNAM

Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows of this city has elected the following officers for the next year: Noble grand, Eldon S. Johnson; vice grand, Carl Weeks; recording secretary, Herbert A. Johnson; treasurer, Leon T. Wilson; trustee for three years, William P. Warren.

The ones named and the appointive officers will be installed Tuesday evening by District Deputy Grand Master James H. McCulloch and staff.

Mrs. Alida Farent, with one exception probably the oldest resident of this section, died at the town farm Wednesday afternoon, lacking but four days of having completed 100 years of life. She was born Jan. 4, 1825, and died on the last day of 1924. She had been married twice and had borne 23 children. Both husbands and all of the children had died previous to 1920.

Although suffering from an incurable malady she was actively physically until three weeks ago, when she became unable to leave her bed. She retained full possession of her faculties and her mind was alert until within a few days of the end. Dr. B. F. Murphy, who had been her medical attendant for several years said that she was a remarkable woman, both physically and mentally. She took an interest in affairs around her, also had an intelligent interest in what was going on in the world. She had a retentive memory and was quick to recall what they had talked of on prior visits or to remind him if he failed to do something what he had promised.

She was born in Canada, coming to Putnam when about 30. Her first husband was Cleophus LeClair. After his death she married John Farent, 40 years ago. By her first husband she was the mother of 23 children. Sixteen of them are buried in the cemetery at Putnam Heights, five of them in St. Mary's cemetery, and two elsewhere.

Her last surviving child was Mrs. Hortense Potvin, whose home was on Church street. Mrs. Farent lived with her until the daughter's death, five years ago. A small amount of money was left for her care, but after that was exhausted she went to the town farm to live. Mrs. Hill, the matron, saw to it that she was given the care and attention that her age and condition demanded. There are eight grandchildren living, nearly all of them residents of Putnam.

WESTMINSTER

The more abundant life was the pastor's theme Sunday.

The closing exercises of the schools of town the 19th of December were interesting and varied. In several Santa appeared, accompanied by his wife at Gayhead school, to the delight of the children. Trees were a feature always welcomed.

Dec. 20 at the Wm. E. Davis (Raymond district) home, a merry party welcomed Santa with a good program and friends the number of 75 from New York, Hampton, Elliswauregan and the community; illness preventing many from attendance. All enjoyed the evening and were well remembered.

The oldest inhabitants does not remember of Mrs. Santa Claus ever appeared in the good old days, but thinks it is very appropriate she should frequently accompany her husband since the 18th amendment. She made a second trip Christmas night to visit the Westminster church school doings which were attended by a company of about 60. After a program beginning with very small children interspersed by singing by the audience led by George Inglis, Jr., of Plainfield, and by the children in grooups, quartets and duets. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Clause walked in, the former distributing gifts and the latter candy and both passing out "picture-apples."

Earle MacLeod who has been working in New York for some months is spending the holidays at his parents' home. Since shortly after arriving in New York he has taught a class of 12 small boys in the school of the church he is attending.

It is rumored that the Margitis family have rented their farm to the Bacanan's, who have for some time been seeking a place in this region. Their son Frank is a graduate from Westminster Hill school next year. They came here from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pellett's relatives from Plainfield, including her father, George Inglis, her sister, Miss Inglis and brother William and George, Jr., the last named assisting in the music at the church Christmas night. A severe cold prevented the hoped for solo by Mr. Onglis.

The clerk of the Westminster Ecclesiastical society has called the meeting for today, Jan. 5 at 2 p. m. Two items in the summons are, consideration of further increasing the insurance on the church, and consideration of steps to be taken for the erection of a new parsonage toward which 1,000 feet of lumber and $100 in money are already pledged.

Mrs. Everett Moulton is in the home of Mrs. O. Allen in Hanover since her return from the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. A. Jones hear good reports from their sons Walter and Dick who recently went to New York to learn the trades of ornamental plaster and plumbing respectively.

Mrs. John Sodergbury is somewhat improved in health, but still confined to the house by an obstinate cold and cough.

Mr. Mell of Storrs was a recent caller on the pastor.

The schools of town open this Monday morning.

Local friends of Deacon A. C. Greene, for 60 years a member of Westminster church, and a frequent visitor from Peace Lodge, his Danielson home, welcome the word received from Mrs. Greene, dated Dec 28, that her husband was then quite comfortable. He sleeps a great deal, but when awake is conscious and interested in everything. Deacon Greene has been ill since Dec. 8th.

Topic for Wednesday evening, Jan. 7, in the homes prayer for families, schools, the young and the homes, scripture, Mark 10:17-31 and Romans 10th chapter.

Christmas candles were seen in some of the windows of Westminster following the custom of some countries the other side. They were intended to welcome the Christ-child.

William Williams is working on a garage in Hebron for Carl Jones, having gone last week for a fortnight.

The finding of the brozen body of Fred Bennett in his house Tuesday was a shock to the whole town, the sad earthly end of a life and home ruined by drink. Dr. Adams was notified of tue death and the body was later removed to the undertaker's and the funeral was at the Plains church, with burial in the Bennett cemetery Friday afternoon. Mr. Bennett was a naturally kind-heated man of good ability. He leaves his wife, three daughters, one by his first wife and two sons.

Motor Car Owners

Effective January 5th, 1925. A charge of 25c will be made for testing and filling batteries, and tightning and cleaning terminals. The Battery Service men of Willimantic agree that service fairly done and charged for is just as truly service as though it was done for nothing. The testing for state of charge-filling, the cleaning of terminals, etc., are a kind of service, which, if honestly performed, should be paid for. In reality these acts constitute battery maintainance as distinguished from the not uncommon word Service, which to some mean doing something for nothing. Therefore, owing to the constantly increasing number of cars requiring battery service and ever increasing cost, the Battery firms listed below agree that they are only fair in asking this nominal charge for honest work.

PREVENT WATER WASTAGE.

We have gone through an unusually dry year. The rainfall has been abnormally low and our reservoirs have failed to receive what is ordinarily expected from our watersheds.

Those who understand the conditions have been telling us that we have a dry year ahead, meaning another twelve months when we cannot expect the average precipitation. Time will tell as to that, but being forewarned is to be forearmed. If we anticipate a dry year and govern ourselves accordingly by cutting down all possible waste we shall have no regrets if the predictions miscarry. If, on the other hand, we refuse to give any heed to the present condition, disregarding the warning and resume the wasteful practices we can blame no one but ourselves if the prediction proves true and we are kept worrying about our supply.

Norwich is not the only community where the water supply has been the cause of anxiety. Many other cities have felt the drought and even now there are communities which have been forced to turn to their reserve supplies in order to meet requirements.

Now that Norwich is pumping from outside its reservoirs relief is being obtained, but even that doesn't insure us a supply that warrants a return to the wasteful habits which have characterized the past concerning our city water. We should still bear in mind that waste has played a tremendous part in bringing us to where we are with our low supply of water, and any resumption of the pre-drought waste is going to make the situation just that much worse.

Let every user of city water stop the needless wastes that are within his power and let such other methods be employed for reducing wastes, such as a complete metering of the city, and two of the important provisions for the protection of our water supply and insuring an adequate amount from the existing watersheds will be made. The warning of the past and the prediction for the future should not go unheeded. There never should be a return to the wastage that has characterized the past.

SHOOTING AT FUGITIVES.

Enforcement of the law is not always the easiest thing imaginable. Likewise there are times when law-abiding citizens are in a quandary as to whether they are being commanded to stop by officers of the law or bandits and the resulting situation is one which places the parties on both sides in a position of much uncertainty.

In the fighting of the rum running business officials find it necessary in not a few instances to stop cars which are suspected of being used for such a purpose. Because there have been many cases of holdups by highway robbers there is a disposition on the part of drivers to pay little attention to commands received en route unless they are convinced that it is an official appeal. The disposition is to step on the gas and get away, and it is not improbable that the situation has resulted in autoists getting away from officials of the law.

The disposition of the officer under such circumstances is to halt his man if he can, but when he brings a gun into play and makes the man at the wheel his target he takes grave chances, if we are to judge by the decision which has just been sustained in the supreme court of Ohio awarding a resident of that state $25,000 because he had been shot at and hit by a policeman whose command he had failed to respect when an effort was made to halt him under suspicion of being a rum runner.

It doesn't appear from the decision whether the man was actually a rum runner or not. His reason for speeding away was that he thought he was being held up and did not know he was receiving an order from a policeman. The decision lays emphasis upon the fact that the use of a revolver is justified when it is employed for halting a fugitive known to be a dangerous character, but not when there is simply suspicion of law violation.

This may be a pleasing decision for the rum runners but it means the extension of protection to those users of the highway who are not law breakers but who have no disposition to yield to highway robbers.

TOO AMBITIOUS.

Senator Borah of Idaho is a man with ideas. Sometimes they are such that deserve endorsement and again they do not make the same favorable impression. He is a hard worker and a strong pleader, but frequently an off ox.

His latest plan is for the calling of an international economic and disarmament conference in this country. He wants the nations to get together and adjust their affairs. All that has a rosy hue, but it pays little heed to the known conditions. Instead of making progress in a manner which can be reasonably regarded as having a promising outlook he wants to tackle the whole job and finish it in one fell swoop.

There is certainly nothing the matter with his optimism. Perhaps his magnetism might do what seems impossible to those who differ with him. Perhaps he could circumvent certain experiences of the past and hypnotize an international conference which would not concentrate upon one thing but upon several. Perhaps he could prevent the one branch of such a gathering being used as trading purposes for the other.

In his ambition Senator Borah desires to undertake too much. He would invite debate upon controversial matters which would result in the failure of the entire conference. His zeal leads him to undertake the impossible. That will be one of the reasons why his proposal will encounter stiff opposition in the senate and because of this apparent opposition it is a matter which should be dealt with in such a manner that it will not interfere with the putting through at this session of congress the important appropriation bills.

Senator Borah would be the hare in the race of the hare and the tortoise. He would undertake so much that he would get nowhere instead of sacrificing any bit of speed and making definite progress in one direction when conditions are ripe for it.

POSTAL PAY DISCLOSURES.

The investigation in the postoffice department which resulted in the disclosure that six employes holding high office and with long years of service have been employing congressional clerks to work for legislation concerning the postal pay presents a phase of that matter which necessarily challenges attention. That the postal employes should be suspended pending further developments and the clerks should resign seems only a natural outcome, however much it may be regretted that the circumstances make it necessary.

It is nothing new for organizations to work at Washington in behalf of of legislation which they favor. It has been done for so long that the lobbyists are even termed the third house, and it seems likely to be continued. But in this instance it would appear that the postal men had gone beyond the bounds of lobbying when they paid clerks of congressional committees to use their influence in behalf of desired laws.

Because the postal pay bill received the veto of President Coolidge last year and because new legislation is being attempted now that would result in the increase in postal rates in order to furnish the needed revenue to raise the pay of postal employes, the disclosures which the investigation brings to light cannot fail to have their bearing. Whatever may have been the purpose of the postal men it cannot fail to have an unfortunate effect upon their cause. Even though it is admitted that they are entitled to pay adjustments, the method which they resorted to would throw a shadow over it which has its unfortunate features. It likewise argues against the hurrying through of legislation which it has been contended should await a more thorough inquiry.

DEBT ADJUSTMENT.

Much has been said in connection with the adjustment of the French debt and much may remain to be said, but the forwarding of a proposal by France will serve to put an end to the conjecture as to what France intends to do and stop the claims that it doesn't intend to pay.

No serious attention has been given to the talk about the desire to avoid payment. France has no such reputation. Spokesmen for the government have indicated that France not only intends to pay but will pay, and the proposal will furnish the views of that government as to how soon it can start payments and how long a period it will require to complete them.

Uncle Sam hasn't been hounding France, but the chance to come to an understanding will be made the most of. The debt funding commission has but a short time in which to complete its work and it was hoped that all of the duties that devolve upon such a commission could be adjusted during its lifetime.

In the arrangement of payments by those nations which have not as yet done so, the method of settlement with Great Britain will doubtless serve as the basis for action. That it will be strictly adhered to is likely to be governed by the conditions under which the debtor nation is laboring. The relative financial conditions of France and Great Britain will justify all possible consideration for the former. The importance of the present developments is that definite preliminaries to an adjustment are underway.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Benzine will remove stains on marble.

Dry sponge will remove lint from clothing.

Castor oil will give a fine polish to leather furniture.

For a wholesome cereal omelet use three tablespoonfuls of a mush of rolled oats, wheat or hominy to every egg.

If a slice of lemon is added to the water in which old potatoes are boiled it will prevent their discoloration.

The family will not soon forget the morning on which hot butterscotch sauce is served with the waffles.

An omelet makes a delightful dessert if it is sweetened slightly and spread with jam and chopped nuts.

Badly soiled light colored suede shoes can be easily stained a dark, serviceable color with a commercial shoe dye.

Bedspreads which have grown shabby may give long and valuable service as sounding cloths for the dining table.

Keep a steel crochet hook near the sink to remove any lint that may accumulate around the strainer in the sink.

If the inside of your tin bread box has become rusted give it two coats of white enamel.

When boiling tough meat put into the pot a teaspoon or two of pure cider vinegar.

Put pieces of toasted bread into soups or gravies which are too salty; take them out in a few minutes and it will be found that the bread has absorbed a good portion of the salt.

After filling a rubber water bottle with hot water always press the sides before putting in the stopper. This expels the steam, and there is little danger of the seams coming undone, no matter how hot the water may be.

Perhaps the main secret of cake success lies in the baking and not in the mixing. The oven should be, when the cake is first put in, at that temperature which will raise the cake to its full height in one-quarter the full time of baking. During this period the cake must not brown, but during the second quarter it may brown slightly and complete the browning during the third quarter. The heat should be gradually reduced the last half of the baking period.

On removing a cake from the oven let it stand a few minutes to contract and cool. Or if in a tube pan, invert the pan for the same purpose. Never ice a cake until it is cool. Preferably use a wire cake rack covered with paraffin paper for all icing and fillings, then when chilled, carefully remove with wide spatula to ornamental plate.

WHEN THEY WEAR OUT

Very frequently the tablecloth will wear out in such a manner that doilies may be cut from it bringing a pattern in the center. A simmple edge may be crocheted around the dainty doilies for everyday use will be the result.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Lemon juice makes a very valuable acid for the manicure. It cuts cuticle very quickly.

Most parts of the body can be repaired to some extent, in one way or another. But if the delicate optic nerve is out of commission there is real trouble ahead.

Add a few drops of rose water to the alcohol you use for external application and the odor in the present day preparations will not be objectionable.

Moderation in living feeds the fountain of youth within us. The right kind and amount of food, sleep, exercise, work and play keep the body and mind fit today and for all the tomorrows that are to come. No external beauty aids can take the place of these.

Eye strain arises generally from wrong usage; bad light or overuse; getting light from the wrong direction, with constant glare in the eyes, and from similar causes. This should be a chief source of care. Eye accidents are not easily prevented and are far most frequently caused by dirt particles and sand. Where the particle is ingrained a physician should be consulted.

The ultra-simple and close-fitting felt hat appears for the time being in a peaked or ridged crown. There are countless versions of this style finished with a jaunty brush, a dashing pompom, a feather or two or a pin. Paris is also very fond of Reboux's "shooting hat" with a dented crown and a stiff feather cocarde at one side; then there is the wrapped turban and the graceful beret. In color the hat often matches the costume.

The newest creased crown felt hats have satin facings in black, brown or blond. Coque feathers trim Reboux's Pierrot hat. Youth is imparted to the upturned brim, peaked and dented crown and a saucy little bunch of coque feathers sprouting out the top. Crowns are the whole thing now, either trimmed with some ornament or other or molded in some odd fashion.

Suede hats in bright greens, reds, beige or brown, with the new sectional or mosaic crown, are particularly smart with fur coats.

MUFFS ACQUIRING PRESTIGE

Muffs are acquiring decided prestige as they have appeared conspicuously on Fifth Avenue to indicate a coming vogue. The muff becomes an accessory to the ensemble, matching the trimming of the fur or cloth coat. The melon shape is preferred, and is offered in bronze dyed caracul, black caracul, Hudson seal, beaver, natural squirrel, mink, Australian opossum or mole. On many of the muffs a flower is attached for color, usually a red camelia.

LAUNDRY HINTS

An asbestos sheet such as is used under a sheet cake tin will save the end of the ironing board when the iron is set.

Your bluing will never settle and spot your clothes if you dissolve a lump of soda in a little hot water and add it to the bluing just before you put in the clothes.

Rub the scorched stains on flannel with lemon and leave the pulp on them. Place in the sun for a few hours and then wash in the usual manner. The scorch will disappear.

Wherever water is used in preparing bleaches or disinfectants, soft water should be used. The alkali in hard water offsets all chemicals of a greater or less degree.

White soap and milk are said to clean white kid gloves most successfully. Dampen a soft cloth in milk, then rub it over the soap and then on the gloves. Always rub in one direction.

BABY'S LAUNDRY BAG

Particular mothers are especially careful about the baby's laundry. They know the importance of keeping the small wool, silk and muslin articles of infants' wear separate from the family laundry. These little garments designed to protect the delicate, soft skin of the baby must be carefully washed with mild soap, and thoroughly rinsed in clear water, so that they will not become harsh or filled with substances that are irritating.

The best way to do this, in a systematic manner, so that mother will always know where to find each article of clothing, is to keep a laundry bag separate from the general one, and use it for baby's clothes only. When the child is old enough, three years or about, it can be given early lessons in neatness by letting it pick up its own garments and stow them away in the laundry bag. If the bag is an attractive one, and it can be, as easily as not, this habit will grow to be a pleasant one with the child.

Quite the cunningest, and also the most practical bag, can be made with a small amount of trouble. The top is made of wood, painted in the shape of an adorable head, with lovely curls, dimples in everything. The baby's arms come down to hold the bar open, so there is no vexing draw string to bother. The bag itself is made of pretonne, sateen or unbleached muslin, and is roomy enough to hold hears of clothes.

ADVANCE SPRING CLOTHES

A private showing of spring models introduced several new features. While extreme brevity of skirts prevailed the silhouette achieved diversified forms. Costume suits were of outstanding importance. Coats attained various lengths—hip, three-quarter or full length; capelets fluttered from various backs; sleeves were long or extremely brief, and tunics, if not directly used, were often simulated.

Coats and dresses indulged in pleats, flares and tiered effects. Hipbands were attached to several coats introduced pronounced flare in their skirt section with the upper part cut on basque lines. Inverted box pleats and also godets, were repeatedly used. Closely inverted pin tucking often appeared. The total absence of fur collars was noteworthy as if to accent new collar designs. Coat collars were marked by softness of treatment often in scarf effect.

Dresses followed one or two piece effects. Blouses of either hip or knee length usually contrasted with the dress. Generally straight dresses sometimes released flare from the knee down in the form of box pleats of a single godet. Jabots Mother-of-pearl trimming was sponsored; in dinner dresses lace—Chantilly and Venise—and also chiffon, were given prominence both on straight and bouffant lines. Bead fringes were apparent. A deep decolletage is favored, the V shape often preferred.

REPLACING A KNOB

Should the knob come off the lid of a pan or kettle, a screw should be slipped through the hole with the head to the inside of the lid, and a cork screwed on the protruding end. This will make a knob that will not get hot and that can be removed when it becomes soiled.

PROTECT GALOSHES

To prevent the black lining of your galoshes from soiling your light suede shoes, take a discarded pair of men's socks, (white or light colored,) cut off the tops so that they will not show over the shoes before putting on the galoshes.

CLEANING FURNITURE

The best way to clean upholstered furniture that cannot be treated with a vacuum cleaner or beaten in the open, is to brush the article thoroughly and rub in common kitchen salt over every part. After the salt has been left on for a while it can be removed with a perfectly clean brush.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Black satin is spoken of as a favorite spring material for suits and frocks for afternoon wear.

Raffia in bright colors is used to embroider summer hats and to make ornaments for belts and bags.

Vestees of all materials appear on coats and capes, those of quilted satin or for being most novel.

Velvet border is frequently used to excellent effect on a gown of crepe de chine or chiffon.

Yokes have again made their appearance on coats and dresses, square yokes being particularly popular.

Large and square, almost cube-like in shape, are stunning floor cushions of black and velvet plaided in bright colors.

The purple hat, large or small, is exquisite in velvet, trimmed with ribbon or flowers in shaded lavender tones.

The long tight sleeves, the absence of a waist line and the decided flare of the tunic as well as its length are points proclaiming the lateness of one's frock.

White and flesh colored satin gowns are much the vogue for Southern resorts for general evening wear.

Insets of royal blue velvet border the fronts of a black cloth coat with narrow bands of imitation chinchilla fur.

Satin is said to lead all other fabrics in preference for general wear, and the black satin frock is as much of a uniform as the blue serge used to be.

It is a year when color is used in a most subtle fashion when decorations are never permitted to disturb that perfection of line so essential to true smartness, and when the effect aimed at is one of harmony even to the most insignificant accessory.

THOUGHTFUL CHILD

Even the very little child should be taught by his mother to be careful of its clothing; careful in putting it away at night and in saving it from tears and unnecessary soiling.

Little folk should be taught to hang up their own clothing when it is removed at night and to hang up the towels and wash cloths after using them.

They should also be taught to use a tooth brush and comb when very young. This saves a great deal of effort and trouble in later years.

VARIETY IN USE OF FUR

The vogue for furs at present depends almost entirely on the garment on which they appear. For fur coats the smooth flat furs hold undoubted precedence, but when it comes to fur trimmed topcoats and frocks the shaggy pelts are more effective and more popular.

CONCERINING WOMEN

Three women will sit in the next Nebraska legislature.

California boasts of 89 women real estate dealers, the largest number of any state.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy has a membership of approximately 100,000, divided among 1,125 chapters in 38 states.

Let's Go is the unique name of a monthly magazine issued as the official organ of the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Whether "Ma" Ferguson will have a personal military staff after she takes office as governor is a subject of speculation among the people of Texas these days.

The mannequin timekeeper is a unique profession in which women are employed at the big dress shows in Paris and London. She sits at a big blackboard behind the scenes and her job is to mark down the names of the mannequins, the frocks they wear and the number of minutes they are on the floor. As a sort of stage manager it is up to her to see that the show is kept running according to schedule.

NO LUMPS

If the powdered sugar has been bought in a bag, transfer it to a tightly covered jar when you arrive home and thus prevent its forming into hard lumps.

LIGHTER BATTER

It is well to roll raisins used in puddings or cakes in butter before adding them to the batter. Then they will not sink to the bottom of the mixture.

RECIPES

Apple Sauce Cake: Two cups flour, one cup sugar, two teaspoons soda, two teaspoons spice, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon cornstarch, one-half cup nuts, chopped; one-half cup raisins, one and one-half cups apple sauce, medium thick, unsweetened; three tablespoons chocolate, one-half cup melted shortening.

Mix and sift all dry ingredients. Add nuts, raisins, apple sauce and lastly, melted chocolate and shortening. Bake as a shallow loaf in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for one hour.

Cranberry Jam: Carefully look over the fruit and wash it. Put through the food chopper, and to four pounds of cranberries add eight cupfuls of granulated sugar and two quarts boiling water. Add two teaspoons stick cinnamon, one teaspoon whole cloves and one inch of dried ginger root tied in a bit of cheesecloth. Simmer until the mixture is thick when a little is dropped on a cold plate—218-220 degrees F. Remove the spices, pour into sterilized jars, fill to overflowing and seal at once with sterilized rubbers and caps.

This may be used not only as a relish and "spread" for bread, but also in many other ways.

Guggenheim's Debtor Could Not Pay

After Meyer Guggenheim, the poor immigrant, had built up a lace business there came a period when collections were slow. One customer in particular did not have sufficient money and Guggenheim made a settlement—then his trouble began.

In his native Langnau, Switzerland, Meyer's boyhood had been a struggle. At 19 he was taken by his parents to Philadelphia, where he soon became a street peddler. Inquisitive, he learned to make his own wares and added to his profit. Then he married.

Gradually his sales increased until he had a lace and embroidery importing business under the name of Guggenheim & Pulaski. Later he established a factory in Switzerland to make those commodities. Profits were large, his firm grew into the leading importer of Swiss laces in America, and he was happy in educating and starting his sons in his footsteps. He changed the firm name to M. Guggenheim's Sons. Then came a business depression.

A merchant in Leadville, Colo., did not pay and Bennie Guggenheim was sent to collect. The merchant had no money, but offered his option on the silver mine, "A. Y. & Minnie" for $2,500 and a receipted bill.

Meyer Guggenheim accepted, then found the mine flooded with water. A "tenderfoot," he spent a goodly sum to pump it out and to dig ore, but smelter reports showed that there was no profit for him.

Buying $80,000 worth of stock of the Globe smelter at Leadville he obtained a position for his son, Simon, as timekeeper at $60 a month. Simon soon learned that there was a big profit in smelting and the father and Edward R. Holden formed the Denver Smelting Company. Benny and Simon kept time while the plant was being built in Pueblo, and Meyer asked questions and learned. Before it was completed as the property of the Philadelphia Smelting & Refining Company, Guggenheim had spent $1,250,000, much of it for education in the mining business.

Smelters were established in Mexico and a refinery in Perth Amboy, N. J. Next followed the battle with the American Smelting & Refining Company, controlling all the lead-silver business except that of the Guggenheims, who eventually secured control of the most powerful mining factors in the world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Clyde B. Aitchison, who has been designated to serve as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission during the ensuing year, has been a member of the commission since 1917. Previously he had established a creditable record in Oregon as a member of the state public service commission, where he got his technical equipment for dealing with such issues as come before the Federal arbiters of railway business. After leading Oregon he was stationed for a time in Washington, acting as solicitor for the valuation committee of the National Association of Railway Commission. The ability he displayed in this post naturally came under the notice of the Federal officials and caused the government to seek his services as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WILL CAUCUS TO NAME GENERAL ASSEMBLY OFFICIALS

On Tuesday evening at the state capitol at Hartford both the republican and democratic members of the general assembly will meet to hold their respective party caucuses for the nomination of both house and senate officials. In the republican caucus nomination will be as good as an election, owing to the overwhelming majority of that party in both houses of the assembly. It is expected that the important post of clerk of the senate will again go to J. Frederick Baker of New Haven who was clerk in the last session and that Daniel F. Hickey of Stamford will be clerk of the house of representatives.

Mr. Hickey was assistant clerk at the last session and since then Leo J. Noonan, who has been clerk, has been appointed as compensation commissioner. Mr. Baker managed the campaign for Colonel Hiram Bingham of New Haven which resulted in his nomination as governor and it is understood that he could have had an appointment as executive secretary to the governor or as secretary to Senator-elect Bingham, but that he declined these.

Among those most likely to receive republican nominations for other legislative positions are Senator Edwin Brainard of Branford, for president pro tempore of the senate which will make him virtually acting lieutenant governor owing to the fact that Lieutenant Governor-elect Trumbull is to become governor. Representative Elbert L. Darbie, of Killingly, is a candidate for speaker of the house. Senator-elect Daniel M. Cronin of New London, is in line for the position of senate leader and Representative Benjamin W. Alling of New Britain, for that of house leader though neither of these offices are filled by election.

DRIVEN TO SUICIDE BY PAINFUL MALADY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Jan. 4.—With the prospect of months of suffering from an incurable cancer at the upper end of his stomach, Harry Andrews Johnson, 54, took his life with a 44 bullet from a navy revolver while lying in his bed at his home in Potter Hill near the Pawcatuck river in the town of Hopkinton about 10 o'clock tonight.

Mrs. Johnson, who had retired about 7 o'clock, was urged by her husband to go and get some one as he was suffering intense pain. Going to a neighbor, Dr. John E. Wardon of Ashaway was summoned and Mrs. Johnson returned home. On arriving at the unlighted house about 10:30 she entered through the kitchen to the adjoining bedroom where she found on her husband's shirt and a nightshirt a glowing spark from the powder, which she extinguished with her hand. The revolver had apparently been held in the left hand and the bullet entered the heart squarely on the left side, taking a downward course through the mattress and onto the floor. Picking the bullet up she tossed it to a couch and rushed out to secure aid. Dr. Warden examined the man and pronounced death to have been instaneous. Due to illness Medical Examiner Edwin J. Knerr was unable to attend and Westerly Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and pronounced death due to self-inflicted bullet.

Mr Johnson, who was born in Virginia in May, 1870, was well known in Westerly where he resided on School street for a yard foreman for the H. T. Kenyon Lumber company. Two years ago he sustained a broken leg and was taken to the Rhode Island hospital in Providence. Returning home he worked for a few months and was then employed in Norwich. Beside his wife, Laura, he is survived by one son, Sydney, who is stationed at some naval station in Virginia but was home on a 30 day furlough Thanksgiving, returning to his duties after Christmas. His son at one time served in the navy and his revolver and belt of cartridges which hung near the head of the bed was his property. Mrs. Johnson's father lives in Wakefield.

Mr. Johnson was active in numerous fraternal circles, holding membership in Narragansett lodge, Odd Fellows, was a past district deputy, and a member of Hope council, Junior Order of American Mechanics, and Misquaminut Tribe, Independent Order of Red Men.

STATE LEGION COMMANDER ARMSTRONG WILL RESIGN

American Legion members in this city learned with regret that E. P. Armstrong of Waterbury, state commander, was to tender his resignation at the meeting of the state executive committee, held in New Haven Saturday afternoon.

In a letter written to County Commander William A. Anderson of this city, State Commander Armstrong said that he was notified by the appeal sent out by National Commander James C. Drain, asking that national vice commanders devote their efforts to divisional work in the legion and plan for the membership campaign and drive for $5,000,000 for charities.

E. P. ARMSTRONG,

Commander Armstrong, who is also national vice commander, found that this work will not allow him to give the time needed to state work and that he was forced to resign in favor of Commander Drain's national appeal.

Probable successors to Commander Armstrong are Kneth Cramer of Rau-Locke post Hartford, Roy T. Downes of Norwalk, both state vice commanders, and State Adjutant White of New Haven. Mr. White was a candidate for the state office last August but resigned in favor of Commander Armstrong who was picked to succeed himself.

Soon after his election as state Commander, the appointment as a national vice commander mace to Mr. Armstrong and it was after this nomination that he found his duties involved the national office.

Although his resignation will be regretted by Norwich Legionaires, "Army" as he is popularly known in Norwich, where he formerly resided, will still have the backing of the New London county boys wherever he goes in his service for the legion.

PULLED KNIFE ON DRIVER AFTER COLLISION

As the result of a collision on the Lebanon road, in the town of Lebanon, early Sunday evening, Ignatz Charlie of Franklin received a broken rib and will have to answer to three charges in the Lebanon court. He is accused of failure to grant the right of way, operating his car under a 1924 registration and drawing a knife on the driver of the other machine after the accident. The accident happened near the Franklin town line. Ignatz Charlie was on his way to Franklin and was driving a Ford suburban wagon when he ran head-on into a machine owned by Charles Brown of Yantic.

The front ends of both machines were considerably damaged and were locked together. County Detective William E. Lewis and Sheriff George Hoxie were notified and conducted an investigation into the accident. It developed that Charlie was running his machine on a 1924 registration, and that he failed to grant a right of way to Brown's machine. It also is alleged that after the accident Charlie threatened Brown by drawing a knife on him. He was arrested and all three charges placed against him.

When the officers arrived at local police headquarters with their prisoner Dr. John W. Callahan was called to attend his injury which consists of a broken rib. After being attended at police headquarters by Dr. Callahan, Charlie was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital. He will be presented in the Lebanon town court when he is discharged from the hospital.

ATTENDANCE SUNDAY AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

The Central Baptist church conducted another successful attendance Sunday for church, Sunday school and young people's services Sunday, aiming to secure an attendance of 75 per cent of the resident membership during the day. There was a congregation of 400 at the morning service, 300 in the evening, 425 at Sunday school, and 50 at the young people's services, which came close to reaching the goal.

At the church service in the evening, the pastor, Rev. D. A. Pitt, D. D., baptized two young women and three young men, and the pastor of Union Baptist church in Montville, Rev. Mr. Neal, baptised two young people from his church.

Rev. Dr. Pitt spoke at the evening service upon How to Keep Our New Year Resolutions. The pastor said he believed in making resolutions but he also believed in making plans to keep them. If it were to be all in wishbone and nothing in backbone, you'd better not resolve. The speaker mentioned three points in connection with resolutions. You must make real or concrete the goal for which you are striving. You must commit yourself so that there shall be no going back. You must burn your bridges, in other words. And lastly, you must keep on patiently and persistently trying to fulfill your resolution. You must rise above your environment that would tear down your resolution.

STUMBLING BLOCK APPEARS IN ANTI-POLLUTION BILL

Objection to the inclusion of municipalities in the proposed bill on pollution of streams and tidal waters in Connecticut is proving to be a stumbling block for the state chamber of commerce's committee, which is drafting a bill for presentation to the state legislature. The judiciary committee of the general assembly objected to this feature at the last session.

Two views on the subject are taken by members of the chamber's committee. One is that the bill will never pass if cities and municipalities are included and the other is that any bill applying only to manufacturers obviously would be unfair. On the other hand the state chamber may insist that cities be included.

The view of those interested in the proposed legislation will be presented to the committee on pollution of streams of the Connecticut chamber of commerce at a meeting to be held at Hotel Pond, Hartford, at 2.30 p. m., on January 12, call for which has gone out from the office of former Compensation Commissioner George E. Beers of New Haven, chairman of the committee.

A tentative bill has been sent to the interested parties as a basis for discussion. Among those invited to send representatives are the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut, the Oyster Growers' association, and the mayors of the leading cities.

This chamber of commerce committee has been continued from the 1923 session of the general assembly, at which time it thoroughly considered and substantially indorsed the measure which was prepared by the commission appointed by the legislature of 1921, whose membership was as follows: The attorney-general (ex-officio); Caleb M. Saville, Hartford; Sheppard E. Palmer, Norwich; Charles E. Wheeler, Stratford; George T. Kimball, New Britain; John H. Goss, Waterbury; Robert A. Cairns, Waterbury.

The commission's bill was defeated in the general assembly and a substitute therefor passed. The chief objection to the bill on the part of the judiciary committee of the general assembly was its inclusion of municipalities. A bill was passed which applied only to manufacturers and left out cities and towns. This bill was vetoed by Governor Templeton after the adjournment of the general assembly.

In continuing its committee the state chamber added to its personnel Major John Buckley, house leader of the 1921 and 1923 sessions, and he has given it the benefit of his services and advice. The crux of the situation is still whether municipalities shall be included or omitted.

Two views have prevailed in the committee. On the one hand it has been insisted that no bill which includes cities and towns can pass the general assembly; and furthermore, that their inclusion is not necessary because there is authority under existing statutes for requiring the elimination of pollution from municipal sewerage. The other view is that any bill which applied only to manufacturers would be obviously unfair; and that public corporations, such as cities, ought to be willing to do as much for the health and well-being of the state as private corporations are asked to do. It is further contended that whatever powers may exist for elimination of city pollution under present laws never have been exercised and in all human probability never will be.

It is further urged by those members of the chamber's committee who take the latter view that it is doubtful if any bill leaving out cities and towns would pass a referendum of the membership of the chamber which must be had before the organization backs any measure of this class.

It's easier for some men to make love than it is for them to make a living.

YOST VOICES HIS DISAPPROVAL OF POST-SEASON FOOTBALL ENCOUNTERS

Chicago, Jan. 4.—(By The A. P.)—Fielding H. Yost, for 24 years gridiron coach at the University of Michigan, taking inventory of the national intercollegiate athletic situation, sounded a warning against post-season inter-sectional games, voiced his objection to professionalism, and declared that not more than four football games a season should be scheduled that would require the players to be keyed up to the highest pitch.

Yost sets forth his views in an article on the "Administration of Intercollegiate Games" briefly, he says that sport is good only as sport; that when it interferes with studies, evil results are likely to follow. If intersectional games are to be played at all, they should be scheduled for the regular season.

In all events, the gridiron season should close by Thanksgiving time and there should be not more than eight regular games on any schedule, he avows.

Yost opposes post-season games because he says they establish a bad precedent and any attempt to determine a national championship is wrong because there are too many good teams in the country to consider in such an attempt.

"The tendency toward engaging in post-season games has been considerably curtailed in most quarters by agreement of athletic authorities, but it is still in practice at some institutions" Yost says. "Such games continue the stress of competition over too long a period, and as they usually are contests between the institutions located in a very different part of the country, they take considerable time from the classroom.

"The appeal of a long trip is great to boys and as soon as one team goes across the country to play many others want to follow. Unless checked the tendency would soon lead to a competitive run across the continent."

Yost says all college athletes are based on the principal of "play for play's sake" and the influence of athletics professionalism makes youths dissatisfied to play the game, for its own sake and leads him to regard his athletic prowess as a marketable commodity."

PENN AGAIN TAKES LEAD IN COLLEGE BASKETBALL

New York, Jan. 4.—(By The A. P.)—Pennsylvania, winner of four successive championships in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league, from 1918 to 1922, attained leadership in this year's race by winning the first contest of the schedule from Yale at Philadelphia Saturday night, 29 to 17.

Last year the Quakers and the Elis were last in the final standing, each winning three games and losing seven, while the Cornell five fought through to the title.

During the coming week three more of the league quintets will go into action. With Columbia facing Pennsylvania at Philadelphia Tuesday while Saturday finds Princeton and Columbia meeting in New York and Yale playing Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.

The Navy, which is not a member of the inter-collegiate circuit, will tackle two of the league teams during the week, playing Yale tomorrow night and Penn on Saturday, Annapolis being the scene of both contests. Three recent victories in a tour of the middle west have given the Middies a confidence which should carry them far in their efforts to obtain eastern honors. They conquered Minnesota, 24 to 13; Chicago 29 to 21, and Michigan 31 to 2[illegible].

Pennsylvania sent its veteran combination of Hanson, Lemon, Cleaves, Loeb and Anderson against Ohio State Saturday night and won, 29 to 24.

HARNESS RACING STEWARDS TO MEET AT CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Jan. 4.—Interest in harness horse racing will center here this week with the 53rd annual session of the stewards of the Grand Circuit on Monday and Tuesday and the Ohio shortstrip circuit raving stewards annual meeting on Wednesday. The rules committee held a preliminary meeting today.

In addition to completing and announcing the 1925 schedule, the Grand Circuit stewards may discuss the rule changes favored by the American Trotting Association at its recent Chicago meeting.

Aurora, Illinois, will be a new member of the circuit and Atlanta, Ga., may also enter. Rochester, New York, which has been expected to apply for dates will not enter this year, it is stated and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is said to be doubtful.

CROWLEY SUFFERING FROM SEVERE NERVOUS STRAIN

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—Jim Crowley, one of the "four horsemen" of famous Notre Dame football fame, was in the St. Francis hospital here today recovering from a nervous collapse which he suffered yesterday on the train bringing the Texas team from Pasadena, Calif., where the Louisiana men defeated Stanford, 27 to 10, New Year's day.

Crowley got through the game apparently in good shape he was taken from the train to the hospital where it was said today, that his condition, though improved, probably would not permit him to leave for South Bend with the team tomorrow. His breakdown was attributed to overstrain.

Charlie Stuhldreher, another of the "horsemen," and Walter Camp's all-American quarterback, arrived on crutches, with his leg in a cast, but was able to accompany the squad on the tour of entertainment planned for today. A bone in his ankle was broken early in the game, but spartan-like, he played until the final gun.

Asked about the report that he had been invited to coach for New York University, Stuhldreher admitted that he had been approached on the subject, but said there had been no negotiations yet. He indicated that he would not be adverse to coaching after his graduation in the spring.

Several members of Rockne's team bore marks of the Pasadena fray as they were lionized by alumni and football enthusiasts.

DEEP RIVER WINS EASILY FROM CHAPMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Deep River, Jan. 4.—Chapman Tech's squad of basketball players are finding trouble coming out the winner in their out of town games, and the second reverse was given the Red and Black at the hands of Deep River High by a 43 to 30 count. But even though defeated, the Tech five are nursing a pet aversion for the Deep River gang when they invade the Whaling City later in the year.

One of the closest duels in basketball which the Red and Black five played in was the result in the early minutes of play. But after the opening of the second half, while the Chapman Tech five was held to the same amount of points they scored in the opening half, Deep River flashed an offense which carried the team in the lead to stay. In the latter half, there was more action and some good offense tactics used by both fives while the defense during that half was lax compared to the previous effort of both teams.

The first quarter saw plenty of action with Chapman Tech finishing ahead in the ten minutes of play one point ahead of the home five. The score was 6 to 5 but the lead which Chapman Tech had, of one point failed them and the second quarter found the Deep River team hitting on all five and the tie score which followed justified their place which placed them on even basis with the visitors. The score at half time read 14-14, with O'Brien for Deep River and Hewitt for Chapman Tech the outstanding performers.

But the second half proved to be the unpleasant part of what was to be an enjoyable evening. A cyclone in all its fury unleashed itself upon the eastern Connecticut scholastic champions and the end of their dreams of conquering the Deep River five accompanied this bull-like rush of the locals. O'Brien hung up seven field baskets during this period, and receiving support from his teammates, his team won handily.

O'Brien for the locals was the individual star, corralling ten baskets from the field, while Hewitt for Chapman Tech was a close second, dropping in eight field baskets and two fouls.

SECOND ROUND OF N. L. BILLIARD TOURNEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 4.—The second round of the handicap billiard tournament will be held this evening at the Y. M. C. A., when some of the best billiard players in the city will be seen in action. Four matches will constitute the evening's program, and with the completion of the matches on Monday night every cue artist in the tournament will have played at least once. The four match arrangement will continue throughout the major part of the week.

New plans have met the efforts of the contestants, and the plan is to have every contestant entered in the tournament a chance to play the 13 other players who make up the number in the tourney. At the termination of the arrangement, players will be graded and teamed up with another player to bring about a strong possible combination with neither team too strong for one another in the tourney. It is the intention of the Y. M. C. A. authorities to conduct a billiard tournament which will decide the amateur championship of the city. This will come after the two-team elimination tournament.

The players who will match their skill on Monday night are as follows: George Sheflott vs Major Walter Harkins, Louis Douglass vs. William Brooks, Mr. Moules vs. E. A. Damond and Mr. Bush vs. Joseph Watterson. The matches will get under way at 7:30 with no admission charged.

DUSTY LEAGUE GAMES ON NEW LONDON COURTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 4.—Industrial league basketball was resumed Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. after a lull in activities which extended over the Christmas holidays. When the Socony team put in an appearance with but four men, this game was forfeited to the Palmer Brothers five by a 2 and 0 score, however, an exhibition game was played with the Quilt Makers winning from the makeshift Standard Oil team by a 16 to 15 score. The other game on the program saw the New London Ship and Engine company five, last year's Industrial winner, easily defeat the Connecticut Power by the large score of 45 to 16.

Although the first game between the makeshift Standard Oil team and the Palmer Brothers ended with a close score attending this game, the contest was dull and uninteresting throughout. Little good basketball was shown by either team to lend any incentive for the spectator to remain and witness the contest. The closeness of the score was the only indication that the game was as closely fought as the score would indicate. Only the fierce attitude of the rival players, which in some instances was rough showed that there was no brotherly love for either team. Most of the baskets hung up by either team were possible because the element of luck entered prominently in the affair. Long distance shots were completed on several occasions, giving one team and then the other the lead. Petchark and Myers for Palmer Bros. had four field goals each, while Howard for the Socony had three field and one foul goal.

The score:

In the second game, the New London Ship and Engine was easily the master of the Connecticut Power five. This game in comparison to the opener, was full of good play with the Ship and Engine running wild on the floor scoring baskets almost at will. The Power players had no defense to fall back on, and it was an easy matter for the Industrial champs of last year to brush aside another opponent in its quest for the second Dusty title.

The winning streak of the Ship and Engine team was extended to four games, this team not knowing what it is to taste defeat in the league as yet. Playing a far superior game to that of the other teams in the league, Ship and Engine has not been tested to its utmost. However, if the playing of Craig and Risch continues to be as strong as in past games, the Ship Workers need have little fear of losing any of its games this year.

Craig and Risch were tied for high honors last evening, each accounting for 17 points, or one more than the entire Connecticut Power team scored.

HOCKEY NOW IN FULL SWING IN CANADA

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 4.—Canada's greatest winter sport has struck its annual stride with the coming of the new year.

The Ontario Hockey association has 101 games scheduled for this week in the senior, intermediate and junior series combined.

In addition to the O. H. A. games, there are the northern league and the Northern Ontario association matches as well as many in the Ottawa valley which will be played within the confines of the province during the coming six days. The sport is drawing big crowds to the professional and senior amateur games while the intermediate and junior fixtures are being fairly well patronized, practicularly in the small centers.

U. S. TO SEND SKATING TEAM TO NORWAY

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The United States has been invited to send a team of five ice skaters to Oslo, Norway next month to participate in a world's championship tourney, it was announced yesterday by Julian T. Fitzgerald, a leader in the sport for 25 years. Speed skating events at Olympic distance will be held and figure skating will also have a prominent place in the program. The following American Olympic skaters are being considered for places on the team: Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, N. Y.; Richard Donovan, St. Paul; Valentine, New York city.

SEVERAL STELLAR BOXING BOUTS BOOKED FOR THE COMING MONTH

New York, Jan. 4.—Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Mike McTigue of Ireland, world's light heavyweight champion, will furnish the excitement in the main event of the coming week's pugilistic programme when they meet in a Newark, N. J., ring on Wednesday night in a 12 round no-decision match.

This match will be unique in boxing history as it is the first time that a champion has stepped up two classes to meet another champion. Although Walker will enter the ring lighter than McTigue, there will not be any great difference in their weight, Walker will scale over the 158 mark while McTigue will likely weigh between 160 and 165.

Boxing history reveals that Stanley Ketchel, when he was the terror of the world's middleweights, fought Jack Johnson, when the negro was world's champion, and Joe Wolcott, when he was world's welterweight champion, fought several heavyweights, among them Joe Choynski.

Several other good matches are programmed for the coming week. Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., will meet Frankie Ritchie of New York here on Monday night. In Brooklyn on Monday night three ten rounders will head a programme of matches involving Joey Silvers of New York and Cuddy De Marco of Pittsburgh and George Lavigne of Brooklyn and Paddy Ryan of Pittsburgh.

Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of Brooklyn, who recently ascended to the world's bantamweight throne by outpointing Abe Goldstein, former champion, will risk his title in a six round match in Brooklyn Wednesday night when he meets Augie Pisano, a local tantam.

Lightweights will meet at Madison Square Garden Friday night when Tommy O'Brien of Milwaukee faces Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N. Y., former world's junior lightweight champion, in a ten round match.

The amateurs will take a swing at popular attention this week in the New York State Amateur Championships at Madison Square Garden on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

WESTERLY BATTERY BEATS STEAM ROLLERS, 54 TO 35

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, Jan. 4.—Clean, fast and snappy basketball was the brand with which the more than 500 basketball fans in the Rhode Island state armory on Dixon street, Westerly, were treated with on Saturday night, when the Battery men peppered their hard-rolling antagonists, the Battery team, winning by a score of 54 to 35.

Continuance of games like Saturday night's, which was the first armory basketball game for 1925, means that before the season is over that the armory will be crowded with fans to the number that will exceed last year's record figures. When Referee Mullaney blew his whistle for the game to begin the Battery boys were the defendants of the south wall basket and another whistle blast was not heard until after some six or eight minutes play, showing that the ball was in actual play and in the air for the greater part of the time. Most of the shooting for baskets during the first period was at the north end of the large drill floor, although the Rollers warmed up some in the second period and did a little more basket shooting on their own account. For the Rollers, Right Guard Maxwell and Capt. Pieri maintained a higher head of steam than their companions. For the Battery team Capt. Nigrelli, Morley and Wilbur connected more frequently with the basket. Left Guard Plympton of last year's Battery team went into the game and as a result of his good pass work a basket was caged and in the second period shot an excellent long distance, clean basket.

It is probable that next Saturday's game for the Battery team will be played with the Bristol or Madison Square Garden team. Dancing was enjoyed until the midnight hour to music furnished by Sutcliffe's orchestra.

The score follows:

Battery E. Prov. Steam Roller.

Wilbur ..... Maxwell

Nigrelli (capt.) Pieri (capt.)

Scoring—Providence Steam Roller: Field goals, Pieri 6, Maxwell 8, Cogshell 1, Walkinshaw 2, Wentworth 1; fouls, Butler 1. N. Y. U. OFFICIALS SAY MEEHAN NOT SIGNED YET

New York, Jan. 4.—New York University officials said tonight that nothing further had developed in the admitted effort to obtain the services of Charles F. (Chick) Meehan, Syracuse University coach, as director of football to succeed Tom Thorp.

Henry C. Hathaway, chairman of the N. Y. U. athletic council, announced yesterday that Meehan had been offered the post on the resignation of Thorp, who notified the University authorities immediately after the game with Rutgers last fall that press of other business interests would preclude his acceptance of a new contract.

According to Mr. Hathaway, the new mentor will not be appointed for several days.

MEEHAN RESIGNS AS COACH AT SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Athletic officials at Syracuse University tonight announced that Charles F. ("Chick") Meehan, for 5 years head football coach, had presented his resignation to the football committee and the committee had decided to accept with regret.

The recommendation of the football committee, with indorsement releasing Meehan from his contract with Syracuse University, which expires in 1926, will be submitted to the next meeting of the athletic governing board.

Coach Meehan's release from Syracuse University, his friends asserted tonight, opens the way for his formal acceptances of an offer to coach the football teams at New York University. Meehan, however, refused to discuss his future plans.

A special meeting of the committee was called by graduate Manager George B. Thurston when he learned that Meehan wished to leave the University. The announcement came as somewhat of a surprise to many of the members of the board. Although rumor that the Orange was in consultation with New York has been current for some time.

No successor to Meehan was named at the meeting but it is probable that the board will discuss the names of several eligible candidates at its meeting on Tuesday after it takes the proper caution to allow Meehan's dismissal.

Joe Scwarser, who has been associated with Coach Meehan for some time, as assistant football coach of Syracuse University in all probability will accompany him to New York University, it was said tonight.

WESTERN BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS TODAY

Chicago, Jan. 4.—With eight teams taking the floor this week, the Western Intercollegiate basketball conference will officially open tomorrow with Minnesota meeting the Iowa five at Iowa City. Four days later Iowa will entertain Purdue, and Saturday will see Wisconsin, Northwestern and Indiana meeting Minnesota, Michigan, and Ohio State respectively on Foreign floors.

On the basis of pre-conference games, four teams, Purdue, Ohio State, Michigan and Minnesota loom as the strongest contenders for the title held jointly by Illinois, Chicago and Michigan. Pre-conference games have also showed that a merry scrap for the championship is probably among all teams, for none have thus far revealed serious weaknesses. No one quintet has won all of its early games and three, Michigan, Chicago and Minnesota, have each dropped one game to the Navy.

Intersectional opponents of five big ten teams romped away with four victories out of six game played. In addition to the Navy's three victories, Princeton won by a narrow margin from Ohio State, but Mercer University of Magon, Ga., lost two games to Chicago and Northwestern.

Baltic to Play Rovers

Wednesday night the Baltic Wanderers basketball team will play the Rovers of Manchester composed of college and last year's high school stars, one of Manchester's leading teams. The Bantams for a preliminary game will play the Pmps of the Norwich Y. M. C. A., one of Norwich's leading junior teams.

Two Hockey Players Sold

Calgary, Alberta, Jan. 4.—Bernie Morris, forward, and Bobby Benson, defense man of the Calgary Tigers, have been sold to the New Montreal club, it was announced tonight.

Morris was well up in the goal scoring ranks of the western Canada league last year, while Benson, distinguished himself on the defense.

SPORTING NOTES

Ted Smith has signed to manage the Cambridge team of the Eastern Shore League.

Bill Speas will manage the Cedar Rapids team of the Mississippi valley League again next season. He was dickering with several other clubs when the directors met and made terms with him.

Reading of the International League has chosen Leesburg, Fla., as the site for spring training activities.

Homer Haworth, catcher with the Atlanta Southern Association baseball club, has been purchased by the Des Moines Western League club.

Cincinnati has purchased Outfielder Bill Zitzman from Newark of the International League. Zit hit 356 in 1924.

Clarence (Brick) Owens, American League umpire and Bill Guthrie, who handles an indicator in the Pacific Coast League have opened a [illegible] in the down-town section of Chicago.

The veteran players, Steve O'Neill, Bob Veach and Jack Quinn, each with a record of service with other clubs before joining the Boston Red Sox, are on the auction block. Waivers have been asked on them by President Bob Quinn with a view to using them in trades with National League clubs if the American League owners do not claim them.

Word came out of Boston that Tommy Connolly, dean of American League umpires, has established a new record for umpires. Over a period of three years Connolly has not found it necessary to put a man out of a game. That speaks well for his decisions. Billy Evans, with two full seasons and until August of his third, without giving a player the gate, had the best previous record.

Charles A. Stoneham, of the New York Giants, was held to be a silent partner in the bankrupt firm of E. M. Fuller and Co., by the trial judge in federal court, New York. As a result he must stand trial for bucketeering. Stoneham had contended that he had nothing to do with the business which mulcted thousands from investors.

Joe Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis team of the American Association for 14 years, will act as scout for the Chicago White Sox next season. The signing of Pongo puts at rest reports that he would pilot an A. A. team in 1925.

Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, new member of the Chicago Cubs, will be captain of Killefer's ranks. Boss Bill made this announcement after conferring with the Rabbit in Pittsburg where he is a circulator for a newspaper. The Chicago manager proposes to keep Maranville in line and believes that added responsibility will make him more valuable.

John J. McGraw, veteran manager of the New York Giants, was re-elected vice president at the annual meeting of the directors of the National Exhibition Company, which operates the National League club. The directors also re-elected; Francis X. McQuade as treasurer, James J. Tierney as secretary and assistant treasurer, Charles E. Stoneham, president of the club, was re-elected at the stockholders' meeting in November.

Cozy Dolan, former coach of the New York Giants, banished from baseball for his alleged connection with Jimmy O'Connell in the bribery deal disclosed just prior to the last World Series, was elected one day last week from the Giant's offices by Francis X. McQuade, treasurer of the club. Dolan did not make clear his purpose in visiting the club headquarters, according to McQuade, who intimated that he employed strong tactics when Dolan objected to departing and then told the former coach: "Get out and stay out, as long as this bribery thing is pending. We have no room for you here."

Joe Schepner for five years third baseman with the Louisville American Association club, sold to Birmingham Southern Association, announced that he was doubtful about reporting to the latter team. Schepner said he was not satisfied with the deal.

Frank Shaughnessy, manager of the Syracuse team of the International League has been located by a federal grand jury in Utica for alleged willful refusal to file an income tax return.

The Reading team will train at Leesburg, Fla. Some deals consummated by Spencer Abbot which have been ratified by the directors, include the purchase of Pitcher Joseph Dailey from Omaha of the Western League, and Outfielder Edward L. Matteson from the Beaumont, Texas League club. Abbott also announced the sale of Pitcher Phede Lambke to the St. Joseph Western League team, and Catcher Patrick J. Haley to Lincoln.

The Pirates have given Jeff Pfeffer his unconditional release. The big right hander, who with the St. Louis Cardinals the greater part of the last season, did not impress McKechnie, and in view of the fact that Bill likes the youngsters, it was not great surprise to learn that Jeff had become free to hook up where he might.

The Pittsburgh Club announces the purchase of Louis Koupal from Omaha of the Western League. Koupal is regarded as one of the best young pitchers to come out of the Western's 1924 crop. Just what the terms were is not known, but Barney Burch certainly made the figure an attractive one.

Jack Ryder, veteran Cincinnati writer, has come to the front with the statement that it was he who ignored Rogers Hornsby in the 1924 prize player award. Jack declares that he did not show "malice or bias" in his vote, but that he let his better judgment dictate his action. Likewise, Mr. Ryder declares, he left Roush off his nominating ticket.

Indianapolis has given Glenn Turner, a young catcher, his unconditional release. After the 1924 training trip, Donie Bush sent him to Terre Haute. At the same time Bush took occasion to deny reports that Johnny Hodapp would be sold to the Giants. The Indianapolis team intends to keep the sensational young infielder.

Bill McCarren, former Brooklyn infielder, has been granted the privilege by Oakland to arrange a deal for his services with an international league club.

Frank A. Scott, president of the Cotton States League, will retire from office on January 12, and will not be a candidate for re-election. He said that it would be impossible for him to serve another year. Just who his successor will be is not known, but many favor J. H. O'Neill of Meridian. O'Neill has long been connected with the Cotton States League, knows baseball thoroughly and is known as being absolutely honest and fearless.

Contrary to general belief, Joe Bush, New York pitcher, sent to the St. Louis Browns in the trade by which New York gets Urban Shocker was a greater nemesis to the Browns than Shocker was to the Yankees. Records reveal that Bush conquered the Browns in 17 consecutive games he pitched against them over a period of three years. He beat them seven straight in 1922, six times in 1923 and four more in a row last season before the Browns finally broke the streak. Shocker, on the other hand, lost his jinx hold on the Yankees last season, losing five games to them while winning only two.

The New York Giants have released Joe Bradshaw, the big right-handed pitcher, who was bought last spring from Toledo, to Louisville on option. Bradshaw, after a brief trial with the Giants, was sent to Toledo on option, where he pitched last season. He is a promising lad and needs lots of work.

Varied shifts of ball players are illustrated in the cases of McNally and Shanks, who figured in the latest Boston-New York swap, and Ruel, who now becomes a teammate of McNally at Washington. McNally went to New York in the trade that made Ruel a Red Sox. Then Ruel went to Washington in the trade that sent Shanks to Boston. Next Shanks goes to New York for McNally, who a day later is sent to Washington to become Ruel's teammate.

Hank O'Day, veteran National League umpire, recently stated that the game of baseball has changed entirely in the last 30 years. O'Day has particular reference to the types of players. "The old-timer played harder because he loved the game more and less of how much he was going to get for his efforts. In the old days the players fought the umpires, but after the game all the fussing was forgotten. The next day was a new game. The modern player can remember a close decision you gave against him for three years back. Whenever you happen to give him the wrong end of a debatable play. Love of base hits, a great love of money, and too many alibis hurt the standard of present play," says O'Day.

Robert (Red) Thomas, outfielder of the Augusta Sally League team, has been sold to Asheville of the same league.

The Cincinnati Reds have purchased Mike Collins, a pitcher from the San Antonio Club of the Texas League.

"I wish Eddie Collins all of the luck in the world," was the comment Johnny Evers made when told that the great second baseman had succeeded him as manager of the Chicago White Sox. It showed Johnny a good sport, for he had no inkling that he was to be relieved.

Nick Altrock and Al Schact are sideline entertainers with Ed Holly's touring all-star basketball team. They find that they can do a lot of tricks with a basketball.

Walter Schmidt, for several years star catcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates when informed that he had been released unconditionally, said that he was surprised that Barney Dreyfuss president of the Pirates, had taken such action, and could not account for it, unless, he said, the club was cutting off the high-salaried players, already having disposed of Maranville, Cooper and Grimm.

Guy Morton, former Cleveland American League pitcher, has been purchased by the Memphis Club of the Southern League, from Indianapolis. Morton had been with the Cleveland Club for ten years, prior to being released to Kansas City early last season. He remained with Kansas City until the fag end of the American Association season when Indianapolis, being in the thick of the pennant fight, purchased him.

Butch Krueger, for three years utility man with Oklahoma City, is attempting to obtain his release in order that he might accept the managership of a Western Association team. It is said he has three offers in the W. A. Springfield being one of them.

E. C. (Duke) Landgraf, who runs things in a baseball way at Allentown, Pa., has again been invited to enter a club in the New York-Pennsylvania League, but declares he cannot consider it with the present make-up of the circuit. The mileage would be too great to make his entry profitable, he says.

At a meeting of the directors of the Kingston, N. C., Baseball Association, the invitation of the Virginia League to become a member of that organization, was accepted. Kingston will take the franchise of Petersburg, Va.

That Last Five Minutes!

After thirty-five minutes of gruelling play at top speed, when it's anybody's game, when the fans are yelling crazy and the boys are fighting demons for the deciding basket—that's the time a light weight shoe is appreciated. "Extra ounces" become pounds which sap energies and slow up play just when the final punch is most needed.

Weight counts! And practically every championship team and individual star in the country picks Converse Basketball footwear season after season. They know from actual comparison that Converse builds the lightest shoes that still provide the other essentials—glove fit, perfect traction, comfort and maximum service.

Converse "Varsity" Inner Sock with its double-thick heel and toe prevents callouses and blisters.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

All Things Beautiful

All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and wonderful,
The Lord God made them all.

Each little flower that opens,
Each little bird that sings,
He made their glowing colors,
He made their tiny wings.

The purple-headed mountain,
The river running by,
The morning, and the sunset
That lighteth up the sky.

The tall trees in the greenwood,
The pleasant summer sun,
The ripe fruits in the garden,
He made them every one.

He gave us eyes to see them,
And lips that we might tell,
How great is God Almighty,
Who hath made all things well.
—Cecil Frances Alexander.

Mad Dog

They went for him with stones and sticks
And threatened him with vicious kicks.
Because it was such fun
To frighten him, and see him quail—
Between his legs he dropping tail;
They liked to see him run.

They tried to "scare him up a bit;"
Oh, no, they never meant to hit
The gentle beast that went
So unoffending on his way—
They only threatened him in play,
Not thinking he'd resent

Their game of make-believe; but he
Was but a dog, and could not see
The purpose of their game,
And when in self-defense he turned,
His teeth were very sharp, they learned:
Yet they were not to blame!

The dog was "vicious," so all said,
And must be shot. Off with his head,
Find out if he was mad!
Poor gentle beast, so loving, true!
A perfect lamb! What could he do
When he was used so bad?

And in one home made desolate,
In childish hearts was fostered hate
At such injustice shown;
Refusing to be comforted
Because the dear old dog was dead,
The children wept alone.
—Louella C. Poole in Our Dumb Animals.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Now that winter is fairly upon us and the skating season is in full blast boys and girls should be very careful of treacherous ice. Thin ice and air holes snuff out a number of young lives in the New England states every winter. Too much care cannot be exercised in venturing on ice, especially deep rivers and large lakes.

We all know that a small shallow body of water freezes to a greater depth than a rapidly moving stream of water like a large river. Where a shallow body of water may show ice a foot thick such may not be the case with ice in a deep river. River ice may look as if it were perfectly safe. It generally is around the shores, if the weather has been real cold, but very often it is quite thin in the middle, sometimes barely an inch or two.

Boys and girls, not realizing the danger they are running into, will skate far out in the middle of the river. If the ice is thin there is liable to be a sad accident when it gives way throwing some unfortunate boy or girl into the icy cold water.

So when you want to go skating choose a small shallow pond rather than a river. And remember this—before you venture on the ice find out if it is thick enough to hold your weight. Ask someone older than yourself, your parents, big sisters or big brothers and be guided by their advice.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Emma Roode, Voluntown—I received the prize book you sent me entitled Livingston Stories. I have read two chapters of it and I find it is very interesting. I wish to thank you very much for it.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Dear Uncle Jed: Harry was a boy of the age of thirteen and it was because of his being the tallest, the strongest and a natural leader, led a group of boys called the Willing Workers. This band was organized by a young man of their neighborhood who had died but a few months since. The boys had worshiped him and because they had no leader Harry was chosen. These boys helped if anyone was in trouble and because once Harry was seen by a gang of rowdies assisting an an old lady across the icy street he was called a sissy.

His group angered because the rowdies had called their leader names soon put the much larger band to flight in spite of Harry's rebukes. The Willing Workers met three times a week and separated into pairs and went around the city doing whatever good they could. They helped old feeble people across the streets and if they saw older groups of boys tormenting children punished them severely. Harry's followers loved their young leader and would endanger their lives for him. Harry had them meet once a week in his house and gave them a short talk. He told them that in all cases they must tell the truth and live up to their motto. The boys listened to Harry thoughtfully and I am sure they lived up to their motto. I hope that such an organization might be formed in every community.

Working One's Way Through College

Dear Uncle Jed: For the boy who comes from the poorer class of people it is necessary for him to work his way through college, if he expects to take such a course, and the boy who goes to college and works his way through will have developed a better responsibility than the ones that have had someone to pave the road that will take him through college, instead of paving it himself.

Nine people out of ten who have a large business have built the business themselves and have not had someone to pave the way for them.

In starting out to pay your way through college most boys work the year round at little jobs after school and during vacations. This is a good beginning and the boy will very likely earn about three hundred dollars before he is eighteen.

On the average all boys want a car if its only a small one and the boy will soon find out that if he buys a small car he can earn more money. If the boy has bought a car from the money he has earned his first thought is a traveling salesman. Thats a good one and he will very likely pick out being a traveling salesman. This is not a hard job and the boy will like it and keep this job and if he has played the game right he will come out of college a better business man than the one who does not work his way through college.

Sliding

Dear Uncle Jed: In Voluntown there are many hills. We are going to tell you a little story about some of the good times we had on these hills. One bright moonlight night a crowd of about twelve went up to Briggs hills. We had a double ripper and every one sat on. When we reached the middle of the hill we struck a hump in the road and the double ripper broke and we rolled down the hill. We went back to the house and fixed the sled. A girl started to steer us down the hill near the barn which is on the hill. We ran into a pole and broke it. No one was hurt so we considered ourselves lucky.

Last winter some of us children were sliding down Money's Hill. We slid until we couldn't see the road. We went home and brought down a lantern. After we were sliding for about an hour the lantern caught fire and exploded. This experience frightened us so much that we did not care to slide any more.

Finally we did not but we got our courage back again and borrowed a lantern from a house nearby and continued our good time.

The boy who was steering our sled got caught in a rut and the sled slowed down. We went off the sled head first right into a snow drift.

One of the boys stood on a wall, took hold of our hands and pulled us out. We thought we had pleasure enough for one night so we started home.

We would like to tell you more about these pleasure trips but we have told you about the most important ones. And our story is already very long.

Rules for Success

Dear Uncle Jed: To gain success there are many rules which we must obey. Many men fail because of not obeying certain rules. I will mention a few of the rules.

Attend carefully to business; be prompt in all things; dare to do right, fear to do wrong; endure trials patiently; fight life's battle bravely and manfully; injure no other's reputation or business; join hands only with the trustworthy; keep your mind from evil thoughts; lie not for any consideration; observe good "manners; pay your debts promptly; sacrifice money rather than principle; touch not, taste not, handle not intoxicating drinks; use your leisure time for improvements; yield not to discouragement.

If all business men followed my few rules, they would in time be certain of success.

Christmas in Denmark

Dear Uncle Jed: At the Christmas time I enjoy thinking about children of other lands and how they observe Christmas day. In northern Europe is a small country called Denmark. The people are called Danes and are much like the Swedish and Norwegian people. There are no better people anywhere in the world.

One thing about Christmas in Denmark would seem strange to us. The climate of Denmark, because of the gulf stream, is not colder than that of Pennsylvania, yet it is so far north that Christmas day is only about six hours long.

Danish people have many pretty Christmas customs. They have one that is entirely their own. This is called Blowing in the Yule. At sunrise, and while the town people are yet at breakfast, the town band climbs the many steep ladders to the top of the church tower; and from these plays four old hymns, one in each direction of the compass, so that no one is forgotten. They always begin with Luther's hymn, A Mighty Fortress is Our God. The people in their homes always join in the songs as soon as they hear the first note. As the last notes of the band die away after playing the fourth hymn, the church bells peal forth the glad tidings of Christmas and Yuletide is fairly under way. Is this not a beautiful custom Uncle Jed?

About My Rabbits

Dear Uncle Jed: As I have not written to the Wide Awakes for a month or two, I am going to write and tell you about my rabbits. I have four rabbits. Two are brown and two are black and white. My rabbits are five months old this January. I feed my rabbits cabbage, carrots, apples, and others vegetables. I like my rabbits very much. When my rabbits get big enough I am going to sell them and the money I get I am going to add to my bank book.

West Skating

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would tell you about when I went skating. It was a cold day and my mother told me I could go skating on my way. I stopped and asked another boy if he could go. He said yes. So we went on the ice. We put on our skates and began skating. We were not skating long when our feet were cold. We banked them against the ice to keep ourselves warm. It was about noon when we left. We said we had a good time, so my mother said I could go some other time.

My Trip to Ocean Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story and hope I will succeed. Last summer I went to Ocean Beach. I did not go in swimming because I did not have my bathing suit with me. But I walked along the shores, and found it very interesting. I watched the waves come in. I found lots of shells, and I put them in a bag and was going to take them home. But I left them somewhere, and could not find them. But soon it was getting dark, and I had to go home. But I hope I will go again.

Cotton

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little ball of cotton growing in the warm countries. I am of great use to people both near and far. We are picked by people and loaded into wagons or trucks. We are then brought to large mills. Then we are put into a machine called the cotton gin. This was invented by Eli Whitney. This machine separates the seed from the cotton. We are made into cotton cloth, cotton thread and other things. After this process is over we are put in ships or trains and we are carried over all parts of the world. Now you may see how useful I am.

A Boy and a Pail of Milk

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I am going to tell you a story.

When Johnny was about six years old, he was sent, early one morning to Miss Pearson's store on an errand. Miss Pearson and her sick sister lived alone together and they had no one to help them.

They often asked Johnny to do an errand for them; and he was always happy to do it, for he liked to be kind and useful. Miss Pearson always thanked Johnny, and often gave him some candy.

On this morning Miss Pearson asked Johnny to take a little tin pail to her neighbor, Mrs. Peck and get a pint of milk. Johnny took the pail and went whistling off. He was just learning to whistle. He was a very bashful boy, and always afraid he should make some mistakes.

When he got to the house he saw nothing of the small boy; so he walked up to the door, and knocked.

A tall woman opened the door. Johnny hesitated a little.

"Well, little boy, what do you want?" said she.

"Miss Pearson wants to know," said he, "if Mrs. Pint will let her have a peck of—"

He saw the woman smile a little, and, growing very red in the face, he began again.

"Miss Pearson sent you her pail for a peck—"

Mrs. Peck laughed. "She wants a pint of milk doesn't she?" said she.

"Yes, ma'am," said Johnny, redder than before, but greatly relieved.

He carried the milk to Miss Pearson, and then ran home with a stick of candy, to tell his mother what he tried to say, and what a piece of work he made saying it.

How I Learned to Swim

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been very interested in the letters of the Wide Awake Circle. Think I can write one too although I have never tried before. I have always been very fond of bathing and wanted to learn to swim. I made up my mind that I would swim, too. Last summer while in the country I had the chance.

The first time we went swimming I tried it on a rubber tube. I used it a few times, then was made to go out into deep water and swim back to shore. To my surprise I could really swim. After that I was never afraid again.

Saved His Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: I am here writing to you about one of the many adventures I have had. This is about a miraculous escape.

One bright summer morning I decided to take a walk in some woods about a mile away. Not wishing to take my dog Prince, with me I shut him into his dog house. I put on my coat and started in the direction of the woods.

As I was a nature lover I began to study all kinds of plants, flowers and leaves. I sauntered along not noticing where I was going. By and by I came to the edge of a large rock about a half mile long and twenty-five feet high. I looked down. At the bottom of the ledge I saw some small red flowers. I was very anxious to study them.

About four feet from the ledge was a tree. I gave a leap for the tree and was just climbing down when I heard a bark. On the rock I saw my dog, Prince, running as fast as his legs could carry him. At his heels was a wildcat. Not knowing of the ledge, Prince came straight towards me. It was too late to stop. Over the ledge fell Prince, and would certainly have been killed but I stretched out my arm and caught him in the nick of time. Neither my dog nor myself was injured, and after this great adventure we went home happily together.

Only a Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: After school hour one evening Clara and I were walking home from school, where we ran into a crowd of masked men. With much fright, we started to run and the men after us. We came to the top of the hill where there were people living under pine trees. We told them our troubles so Clara and I started to run and they followed. It seems as though the hill was about five miles long. We stumbled and fell quite a few times, but got up and would run all the faster. Finally we came to a stop at the bottom of the hill, where we met a woman and she asked us to go in and rest. Just as we got in the hand of masked men went by in a big machine, but they did not see us. After we got rested, we went on our journey, and coming to a large white house we went in and found all the masked men to be friends of our's I was glad it was only a dream.

A Christmas Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to the Wide Awake circle for a long time. So I am going to tell you about our Christmas entertainment. We had a Christmas entertainment at our school. It was at two o'clock in the afternoon.

We all said our pieces and had a dialogue. Then we had our presents passed to us. My presents were a book, paper dolls, and handkerchiefs. We made little baskets in school and we received them full of candy.

We enjoyed ourselves very much.

History of the Flag

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you the history of the United States flag.

On June 14, 1777, the United States congress passed a resolution declaring "that the flag of the thirteen United States be stripes alternate red and white, that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing the new constellation." In 1794, congress decreed that after May 1, 1795, the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be fifteen stars, white in a blue field. "This change was made to mark the admission of each new state. It was realized, that the addition of a stripe for each new state would soon render the flag too large, so the stripes were reduced to thirteen—representing the original union and making the stars twenty in number. The flag now contains forty-eight stars. The first flag was made my Mrs. Betsy Ross of Philadelphia.

Our Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: Some people moved in back of our house. They had a dog; her name was Lassie. They brought her from New York. But when they went back they did not want to take her with them so they gave her to us. One day she was coming across the road when an auto came across and hit her. The doctor said that he could not tell if she was going to live or not. But later she was much better. She likes to stay in the house these cold spells. Sometimes she will draw me on my sled but not up hill. I will close now wishing you and the Wide Awakes a happy New Year.

BEATRICE COFFEY, Age 12.

Food

Dear Uncle Jed: Three good wholesome meals is the right daily program. You should not eat between meals. Be punctual at meal hours and take time to eat properly. Finish chewing food before you swallow it. This can not be done in a hurry. Chewing causes the mouth juices to flow and these help the stomach to do its work. Growing children need various kinds of food. There must be the body building or repairing foods of which meats, fish, eggs, beans, nuts and cheese top the list. Milk is an ideal food and beverage. On the other hand, more food will be required when energy has been taken from the body by work or exercise. That is why your appetite is good after swimming or skating. Growing boys and girls need plenty of food for body building but this is not an excuse for eating too often or too much.

The Skunk

Dear Uncle Jed: This is a true story about a skunk. One night my mother was going out in the woodshed with a light in hand. She saw a skunk in the cook room eating chicken bones the cat had left. My mother called all of the family to come and see the skunk. There were nine of us in a row watching the skunk. Another night when Vera was coming in the house with a lantern, she saw the skunk too. The skunk eats many other things also. We finally kept the woodshed door shut.

Farms

Dear Uncle Jed: A small piece of land where things such as vegetables grow, is called a garden. A large garden is a farm. There are different kinds of farms; dairy farms, animal farms, agricultural farms, etc.

On dairy farms cheese and butter are made. Animals are raised on other farms. Cows are kept for milk and meat, sheep for wool and meat and pigs for meat also. Fruit, vegetables, wheat, etc., are raised on some farms. The wheat is cut by machines, tied into bundles and left in the field to dry. Then the wheat is threshed, put into sacks and carried to the mill to be ground into flour.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Laffydills and Winky Pills
Cure all the little bunnies' ills.

"Dear me," thought the little rabbit as he gazed into the window of the corner drug store in Rabbitville, "wish I didn't feel so well. But I always do 'cause Mother makes me eat every morning my Clover Cereal and Carrot Cakes."

Just then who should come along but Dr. Quack, the famous duck doctor. Under his left wing was a little black bag and on his head a brown soft hat. All the bunny boys and rabbit girls liked him. And why not? His Winky Pinky Candy Pills cured all the little rabbit's ills. That what they did. Oh, yes, indeedy.

"Hello, little bunny," quacked the famous duck doctor stopping before the drug store, "Anybody got the measles up your way?"

"Not that I know of," answered the little rabbit with a hop, skip and jump: "But, come to think of it, Susie Cottontail almost had the Hopping Cough. She couldn't stay quiet a minute."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Dr. Quack, "every little rabbit has that. I should worry if he didn't. Yes, I certainly would worry. It isn't a really, truly cough, you know. It makes one breathe hard to hop too long, that's all," and into the drug store waddled the old doctor and across the street hopped the bunny boy—hopped so fast that he almost bumped into Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy, with a bundle of papers under his wing all tied 'round with a cotton string.

"Extra! Extra!" he shouted, with a shrill cock-a-doodle do. "All about the Old Scare Crow."

Quickly taking from his pocket two Carrot Cents, the little rabbit bought a paper. Right in the upper lefthand column was a big headline:

"Sam Scare Crow Has Left the Old Corn Field to Take a Job at the Railroad Crossing in Lettucemere."

"Dear, Oh, dear," exclaimed the little rabbit folding up the paper and slipping it into his coat pocket, "I must hop down to see him." And away went the bunny boy, clipperty clip, lipperty lip up Turnip Street until he reached the Shady Forest Trail that wound in and out around the rocks and the bushes under the tall trees.

"Where are you going, Hipperty Hop, You're hopping so fast you may never stop."

shouted Squirrel Nutcracker from his little bungalow in the Big Chestnut Tree.

"Oh, yes, I will" answered the little rabbit. "I'll stop at the railroad crossing. Sam Scare Crow will wave his big red flag if a train is coming by. He has a new job," and away went the bunny boy faster than ever.

Well, there isn't much for a Scare Crow to do in a cornfield at this time of the year," admitted the old squirrel, scrambling down the tree for a nut that Billy Breeze had blown off. And in the next story—

EX-PUGILISTS DISTURB PEACE IN NEW LONDON SUNDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 4.—B. Whitey, who claims to be a resident of Fall River Mass., and a former pugilist, and who is understood to be employed now on the United States Lighthouse Tender Hawthorne, that puts up at this port frequently, got full of strong drink in Shaw street, early this evening and became troublesome, with the result that after leaving the place where he had obtained his liquor he created a disturbance. When in the vicinity of Shaw and Woodbridge streets, White, who claims to be known as Kid White, became involved in a quarrel with pedestrians and so boisterous was his conduct that a crowd collected. While the row was in progress Patrolman Henry Hick appeared and scenting trouble he communicated with police headquarters and the speed automobile with Patrolman Dennis Murphy and John Sullivan was dispatched to the site of the trouble. When the officers arrived there, Whitey was encircled by a crowd of about 200, who had been attracted there by his behavior. When the officers started to take Whitey into custody he displayed some of his rings knowledge, but he also brought into play tricks that are barred by fistiana, that of kicking and biting. Whitey attempted to bite Patrolman Sullivan and he had no more started to do so than Sullivan sent a well-directed punch to Whitey's jaw, laying the fighter prone in the street and then twisters were applied to him. At the police station Whitey made many threats as to what he would do when he was at liberty again, one of these being the sending of a bullet into the brain of the arresting officers.

New London's representatives in the wine ring of a few years ago evidently tried a comeback tonight; for besides B. White, who calls himself "Kid" Whitey and who was taken into custody for breach of the peace on Shaw street, George Sheehan, an elongated youth familiarly known as "Cowboy" Sheehan, when he attempted fame as a ring performer, was arrested by Patrolman Braxton Hill and Frank Philopena, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. Sheehan was on Bank street, near the corner of Pearl street, where he attracted the attention of pedestrians by his conduct. When advised to go home or get off the street, he became abusive and entertained the idea that he could combat the officers. The idea was a sorry one for George, however, for he received a mauling that he has not experienced since his days as a pugilist. He was landed in a cell at the police station to await being interviewed by Judge Victor Prince in the court tomorrow morning.

Capt. James Buddington, with a record as a whaleman that is not surpassed, has been at Groton for some time, coming from the Snug Harbor for medical treatment. He is so far advanced in years that his physician and surgeon advises against an operation the only thing that would bring permanent relief. Capt. Buddington is close to 90. He is to return to Snug Harbor Monday night.

The city has in contemplation the purchase of more metal fencing that has been sold in New London in many months—3600 feet of it. The fencing is to be placed at the old town mill pond, the city property on Walbach street at Lake Konomoc and at Memorial park where there has been trespassing upon adjoining property. The fencing will be bought as soon as bids have been received to supply it.

As soon as the weather permits a sewer will be laid on lower boulevard that will cost some $1150. The property benefitted will pay the entire cost.

The frame, steel of the Hollander- ay building on Bank street, near Pearl is being put in position and discloses a structure that will be three stories in height. The building is in a little cluster of modern-built structures and will be architecturally an ornament to the street.

The probe into the efficiency of the ne police department was continued Saturday night by the special committee of the city council, Councilor Edward L. Streeter Jr., John F. Murray, and Lucius E. Wilkon, who, at the municipal building heard the testimony of Sergeant John Cavanaugh. The session was of short duration, not lasting more than three-quarters of an hour. It is understood that Tuesday or Wednesday night one or two patrolmen will be interrogated.

The trial of Arthur May, 435 Mon- tauk avenue, charged with reckless driving, is scheduled to occupy the attention of the police court tomorrow morning. May was operating his automobile southerly on Bank street, New Shaw street, New Year's eve, when an automobile owned and driven by Marion Montall, Niantic in emerging from Shaw street, is alleged to have cut in front of the May auto to go to Truman street. In doing so, May's car crashed into the side of Montall's car. Montall suffered lacerations and received medical attention at Lawrence hospital. Following the accident Montall appeared at the police station and lodged a complaint against May.

Mrs. Jessie Green, of Groton, returned to her home Saturday after having been a patient at Home Memorial hospital several days.

Following a complaint to the state police at Groton, the residence of Laura Coleman, 1 Warren street, Groton, was raided late Saturday night, the Coleman woman being arrested charged with maintaining a house of immorality. The occupants found there, six in number, were charged with being frequenters. Three of the frequenters are sailors stationed at the submarine base. The entire gang was brought to the police station here following the raid. The Coleman woman and her brother, Benjamin, the latter living at 1 Water street, this city, and Charles Park, of Poquonoc Bridge, a chauffeur, were released this morning when a friend appeared and deposited $150 as a bond of $50 for the appearance of each of the accused in the Groton town court tomorrow morning. The frequenters who failed to obtain a surety on their bonds, are Mrs. Catherine Brown, of New London and 2 Liberty street, Westerly, Martin Lewis, Thomas Dodd and Luther Perry, sailors.

The raid was conducted by Sergt. Clifford Gorgas and Officers Fred Caron and Bernard Kenerson. With the arrival of the raiding forces at the house entrance was easily obtained. When the group of men and women was placed under arrest, they declared the action of the police an outrage, as a party had been arranged and that it was being enjoyed when the raid was staged.

An automobile, a roadster, owned by Otto Flynn, 108 Howard street, and operated by John Shea, 16 Summer street, caused considerable damage late Saturday night, the car crashing against a machine owned and driven by John Garvey, of Gales Ferry, on Bank street and plunged across the sidewalk and struck the fruit stand of John Gentilella, 91 Bank street. Shea fled from the machine after the accident, but was arrested at his home by Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Edward Daniels, charged with reckless driving. His mother, Mrs. Ellen Shea, became surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning.

The machine, with Shea driving and Flynn as a passenger, was being operated on Bank street, near Golden street, shortly after 11 o'clock, when it encountered the automobile driven by Garvey. According to Shea, Flynn's car started skidding on the slippery pavements and he was unable to get it under control, with the result that it struck Garvey's car and then continued to the sidewalk, crashed through a stand laden with fruit and vegetables in front of Gentilella's store and came to a stop when it went through the big show window. Following the crash Shea jumped from the machine and disappeared. The car and Flynn were taken to the police station and held until Shea was located at his home and arrested.

Every once in a while Nathan Hochman, 117 North Bank street, lodges complaint with the police that his bakery shop has been entered by thieves, but as is usually the case when an investigation of the complaint is made there are no grounds for reason to believe that a break has occurred. About 6.30 o'clock this forenoon Hochman complained to Patrolman George Laboue that the baker shop had been entered. The officer reported the complaint at police headquarters and Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to make an investigation. The officer visited the place, but decided that no break had occurred and had entrance to the place been made the only plunder that could have been obtained was a small quantity of pastry.

John Angarian, 195 Main street, reported to the police Saturday night that his bicycle, which he had left in front of his home, had been stolen.

The bearers were John Stanners, John White, Edward Green, Patrick Malone, James White and Dennis Shea. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Red Wing, one of the fleet of the navy's dry boats, stationed at the state pier, became involved in a fight in the vicinity of State and Main streets, early this morning and were taken into custody by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan.

The Perry Ice company will begin cutting ice on its ponds in this city Monday. There is seven-inch ice to be harvested and the company does not want the opportunity to get this into the houses to slip by. The opinion used to prevail that when ice was not obtained before the first of January the chance of getting it was slim. That may not be the case this year, but the Perry company has it in mind and will take no chances.

The garage that is being erected on Howard street is making rapid progress toward construction so that another week will see the building shut in. It is to be but one story in height, but the length of it is about 100 feet and the width about half that. The sidewalls are of hollow tile, and the interior of mill construction.

Some of the small stores in this city attribute a goodly share of their business to the recently-established slot machines. JEWETT CITY

Some years ago there used to be a considerable number of amateur astronomers in Jewett City, and there are many today who can name the stars. There is no little interest here about the coming total eclipse of the sun which is to take place during the forenoon of Saturday, Jan. 24. Jewett City enjoys the distinction of being one of the localities in Connecticut that will be almost plumb within the center of the path of totality. No man in this section ever saw a total solar eclipse before and those who observe the magnificent celestial performance on the 24th will never see it again in the same theatre. For Jewett City the sun will be well up over Ashland pond when the moon's shadow begins to cross before its face, at 4 minutes past 8. At 12 minutes past 9, for Griswold's observation, the sun's light will be entirely shut off for two minutes. Perhaps the wonderful corona will be seen by the many local observers who plan to be on the watch with smoked glasses and telescopes. Anyway, if it is cloudy here, some stars may be seen, chickens will go to roost again, and business that depends upon daylight will cease. The street lights will be needed and mills and stores will require artificial illumination the same as at midnight. For Jewett City the eclipse will end and normal light be resumed at 10.36 a. m.

Shea Bros. will begin ice cutting this (Monday) morning. There is about nine inches, fine and clear, on the big Dorrfield fields. The two-inch covering of light snow which fell Friday night will not interfere with the harvest or damage the quality of the ice. One of the big houses has not been opened and contains 600 tons of last year's crop. Eighteen hundred tons will now be rushed in, in record time. Many will be interested in the work, which will require several days, for there will be opportunity to see the new power circular saw plow in operation. All the unsanitary conditions that used to attend ice cutting, when horses drew the plows, have been eliminated. Shea Bros. also instruct their cutting gang with the fact that there must be every effort made to have the houses filled with a crop as clear as it was before the harvest began.

The annual meeting of the Congre- gational church was held Saturday evening in the vestry. Andrew McNicol was appointed chairman of the meeting. Reports of the clerk, Alex McNicol, and the treasurer, F. E. Buckingham was elected deacon for three years; Walter Marshall was elected deacon to fill the unexpired tem of the late George A. Haskell. Mrs. E. H. Hiscox was re-elected deaconess for one year. F. E. Robinson was re-elected trustee for three years and Andrew McNicol was the choice to fill the unexpired term of G. A. Haskell. Mr. Robinson was re-elected treasurer, and Alex McNicol, clerk. F. L. Whalley was elected assistant treasurer; L. G. Buckingham, auditor; Andrew McNicol, auditor of offerings; and Mrs. Buckingham, Mrs. E. A. Faust and Mrs. F. E. Robinson, members from the church of the standing committee. It was voted to extend a call to Rev. George Keene Gray of Newcastle, Ky., to become the pastor of the church. Mr. Gray is a friend of the last pastor, Rev. H. S. Stephenson, who recommended him highly. Also letters have been received from Dr. Vernon Stauffer, a pofessor in the College of the Bible where Mr. Gray received his M. A. degree, and from the chairman of the official board of the church where he has served for the last four years. Both speak of Mr. Gray as a man who brings to the ministry capabilities of unusual quality, and who has had great success in the profession. Mr. Gray is married and has two young children.

STONINGTON

In Stonington harbor New Year's eve, about 7 o'clock, a government rum chaser, which has been on the station here of late gave chase to three boats. Two of the craft were owned here. The firing of three shots by the chaser caused them to scamper away while the efforts of the officials were bent on catching another boat which failed to surrender when signalled to do so. The men on the chaser let go the three shots and the crew of the rum boat threw the cargo overboard. No doubt some of the goods will wash up on Sandy Point and the Naps as the wind was out of the northeast at the time. Examination of the boat taken showed her clear of an illegal cargo. The chaser is to remain in this locality as the crew has reason to believe that goods are still landed here in small quantities by local men.

There was a large gathering of members and friends of the Second Congregational church Thursday evening in the ladies' parlor for the annual roll call, supper and meeting of the church. A social hour was followed by the roll call. Sixty-three answered or sent responses. Reports were made by the clerk, August O. Muller, who read the minutes of the last annual meeting, which were approved. Harry W. Babcock, the church treasurer, gave his report covering the receipts and expenditures and showing a balance of $85.82.

Deacon Theodore W. Hyde read the report of the benevolence fund and after disbursements a balance of $90.62 remained in the treasury. Reports were made of all work done during the year. The election of officers resulted as follows: Clerk, August O. Muller; deacon, Henry A. Muller; trustee, George A. Hyde to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Harry H. Doty; treasurer, Harry W. Babcock; collector, George A. Hyde; treasurer benevolence funds, Theo. W. Hyde; auditor, Victor S. Johnson; standing committees, Mrs. Henry R. Palmer, Mrs. Henry B. Subscriptions to memberships to the Stonington ambulance corps will be received during January. Canvassers will not be sent out this year, but sevedal places will be designated where subscriptions may be left. Treasurer Jerome S. Anderson, Jr., will accept fees at any time also.

This is a service which merits the liberal support of all families in this community and as the fee is low there should not be a family without the protection which the corps garantees.

This is a most humane and helpful institution which did splendid service during the past ten months and the best way to show appreciation is to send in a yearly subscription of $2.50. Two hundred and eighty families subscribed last year and it is honed there will not be less than 500 this year.

Saturday was a hard day for drivers of automobiles. In the morning the roads were slippery and windshields became frosted over as fast as cleaned off and made it difficult for drivers to see the road. In the afternoon and evening the rise in temperature and a drizzling rain produced a mistiness which again clouded windshields and the roads were if any thing more slippery than in the morning hours.

There are several cases of scarlet fever in the village, both sides of the river being visited with the disease, but the cases seem to be quite light so far and it is honed that the epidemic of last year will not be repeated.

WESTERLY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Trotman were the hosts to a masquerade party, Saturday evening, at the Girl Scout hall on High street, in honor of their son, Stanley, who is attending school in Providence. The first prize for costume for the boys was awarded Harry Clapham, while the girl's went to Miss Briggs. Games, refreshments and dancing provided pleasure.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Sunday morn- ing fire alarm No. 41 was sounded on the bell of the Westerly Fire department, from the box at the corner of Main and School streets. Combination No. 1 and the truck of the Alert Hook and Ladder company responded, under Fire Chief George E. Egger, to find the alarm a false one. The box was found open and it is supposed to have been pulled for a blaze in the ruins of the Opera House by some person who then made off for parts unknown.

A meeting of the S. D. B. society of the Pawcatuck Seventh-Day Baptist church was held Sunday evening at the home of Miss Sylvia Lanphear, in Pawcatuck.

Edwin L. Sawyer was elected presi- dent of the Westerly Central Labor Union at a largely attended meeting Friday night. Other officers elected were: C. L. Murphy, vice president; W. J. Lord, secretary; John Ahern, field secretary and treasurer. The legislative committee election was postponed to some future meeting.

Several committee reports were acted upon favorably. Jurisdiction disputes of several locals were settled satisfactorily to those concerned. The following resolutions were acted upon: Child labor amendment favorably; proposed state constabulary, opposed; reduction of wages and increasing of hours in mills and factories, opposed. Favorable reports were made on the organization of a machinists' union in the near future, New England organizer, P. J. McCarthy of the A. F. of L., will be in Westerly at an early date when it is expected that a large delegation of organized workers in this vicinity will turn out to hear his address.

At the session of the superior court for Washington county Friday afternoon in the case of Lola Matarese, p. a., vs. Amello Matarese, an action of trespass on the case for negligence, tried before Judge Arthur P. Sumner, Judge Sumner directed a verdict for the defendant.

On the opening of court Friday afternoon the following jury was impanelled in the case of Lola Matarese vs. Amello Matarese: Charles E. Taylor, Lester S. Reels, and Charles N. Seymour, South Kingstown; Herbert Pascoe, James Rae, John Stenhouse and James Dowd, Westerly; John M. Maxson, Hopkinton; Everett O. Kenyon, Richmond; Henry H. Holloway and Albert L. Sisson, Charlestown and William M. Gates, Narragansett. Charles N. Seymour was appointed foreman.

Lola Matarese was called and testified to riding on the running board of her father's automobile on the day in question. She said that she fell off the running board and was run over. Her left leg was broken above the knee and after being attended by Dr. M. H. Scanlon she was sent to a hospital where she remained for more than three months.

Dr. M. H. Scanlon testified as to attending the girl and calling the late Dr. John L. May into the case. Dr. Scanlon said the child was suffering terribly when he arrived and an examination showed that the bone and muscles of the leg had been badly crushed. The girl was given ether, he said, and after the injured limb had been given attention, the parents were advised to send the girl to Providence for treatment by Dr. Peckham, a bone specialist. He said the girl was there about three months and a half and that after she returned he treated her for some time as there was still a discharge. He considered the injuries permanent.

Henry Potter and Thomas Patton, auditors; Albertus Shippee, flag bearer; George Pendleton, William Barr and Clifton Smith, members of memorial committee for three, two and one year, respectively; Harry McCarroll, state delegate; Herbert Hoardly, alternate; J. Henry Potter, Edward Farrell, and Joseph MacFarland, investigating committee.

After the election the annual supper was served. The members were entertained for the remainder of the evening by the Crandall-Sutcliffe orchestra.

At the Majestic hall, Pawcatuck, Saturday night, the Submarine Base team defeated the basketball quintet of the Westerly Cycle club, 66 to 16.

There were many visitors Saturday and Sunday from Westerly and the surrounding towns to view the ruins of the Westerly Opera House, formerly the Bliven Opera House, which was burned in the early hours of Saturday morning.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Jan. 4.—The two most outstanding developments in the financial markets this week were the unexpected rally in stock prices, which carried the general industrial average to the highest level in history, and the steady appreciation in the dollar value of the pound sterling, which is now within 12 cents of parity and at the highest level since the removal of the war-time "peg" in March, 1919.

Violent fluctuations in shares affiliated with the radio and electrical industries furnished the most spectacular developments in the stock market. General Electric scored an extreme gain of 24 points on Wednesday; American Bosch Magneto registered an almost perpendicular advance of 19 points on Friday and radio corporation common was pushed up 13 points the same day, the last named stock showing an extreme appreciation in quoted value of over 30 per cent in the last two months.

Standard Rails and industrials also participated extensively in the advance. U. S. Steel common crossed 123 to the highest price since 1917; American Can sold above 168 to the highest level on record; New York Central touched 120 3-4, its maximum quotation since 1912, and Southern Railway crossed 31 to a new peak price for all time.

Reactionary tendencies developed in the commodity markets after the turn of the year. Wheat prices broke sharply on realizing while cotton futures lost ground on bear selling.

The scouts prepared their own papers and presided at meetings, the scout executives and scout masters acting as advisers. Among the speakers were: Frederick L. Fay, director of education, New Britain; G. W. Washburn of Middletown; Fred Curty and Dr. E. F. Fawes of Wesleyan; F. A. Benton of Norwich and Major L. P. Baker of Portland, who spent twelve years in India capturing and taming elephants for the British army.

The following scouts presided or read papers from Norwich council:

Philip Reguin, No. 4; Billy Tirrell, No. 12; Bill Stanton, No. 33; Irving Manning, No. 20; Thos. Baldwin, Jr., No. 13; Edward Preston, No. 3; subject, "How to Develop and Maintain Patrol Spirit."

NORWICH LEADING IN INCREASE OF SALE OF THE CHRISTMAS SEALS

While it is still doubtful whether the Connecticut 1924 sale of Christmas seals will ultimately yield more than the $96,841, high water mark of 1923, reports which have been received by the state tuberculosis commission from fifty of the seventy local units show that about $90,000 is assured, enabling the anti-tuberculosis campaign organized 15 years ago in the state by the commission to go on, including the 25 clinics, the nursing, sanatoria and other features whose existence maintain a steady attack against the disease.

Everywhere a remarkable high total has been returned by cities and towns as their seal sale record and, while there has been a slight falling off in several places, a wholesome increase has been noted in others. Units showing the largest increase yet reported are Norwich, which has risen from $2295, to about $3800, Winsted from $250 to $800 and Fairfield from $1200 to $1500. Little change from the 1923 seal sale totals is shown by the largest cities of the state. Hartford, which led Connecticut last year, has indicated a slight falling off from the $14,000 raised last year, while New Haven and Bridgeport are confident of slightly increasing their 1923 totals of $11,119 and $8541 respectively.

Returns will continue to be received in all cities and towns from the seal sale mailed letters for several weeks but both Bridgeport and New Haven are now ahead of their January first total of a year ago.

Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the commission, said Sunday that the seal sale money, 85 per cent of which remains in the towns where it is raised, affords one of the strongest weapons available in the public health movement.

CONTESTING ELECTION OF LINCOLN IN ASHFORD

Proceedings to contest the election of Allen B. Lincoln, republican, as a representative from the town of Ashford in the state legislature, have been instituted with the secretary of state by Chairman Edward M. Yeomans of the democratic state central committee on behalf of Norman D. Baker, democratic candidate against Lincoln at the November elections. Lincoln was elected by a margin of two votes after an all-night wrangle over the count.

Baker's claim as presented by Mr. Yeomans, is that many republicans who split their tickets to vote for his democratic running mate, Edwin A. Buck, failed to put a cross mark opposite the name of any other candidate for representative than Mr. Buck, and that in such cases, the ballot was counted for Buck and Lincoln. Lincoln, in the republican column, was running opposite Baker in the democratic column, and, Baker's contentions is that these ballots could not legally be counted for any candidate other than Buck, if the law was complied with. Shorn of these votes, Baker claims, Lincoln's majority of two votes would be wiped out and he (Baker) would have a clear majority. Buck was elected and the town is entitled to two representatives.

The contest will be referred to a committee of the house of representatives which convenes next Wednesday, and this committee after hearing the evidence can, if it so chooses, order the ballot boxes to be reopened and a recount made, and shall then recommend to the house which candidate should be seated.

PAYS IN COURT FOR PARKING LAW VIOLATION

In the city court Saturday morning Angelo Del Grosse had his case nolled on payment of $5, charged with violation of the new city motor vehicle ordinance. Del Grosse claimed that he had parked his car in front of his residence since last year, and in fact, has parked his car there for the past six months. He also stated that he was afraid to move his car as he did not have 1925 markers.

One case of breach of the peace was continued for six months and a man charged with intoxication paid $5 and costs.

The case against Edward L. McAvoy, manager of the Palace Theatre was continued until this (Monday) morning. He is charged with allowing children under age to attend the theatre not accompanied by parents or guardians.

Another case continued to Monday morning was that of Boleslaw Dwoyakowski of 30 Convent avenue, who was arrested Friday night on suspicion of being implicated in a burglary in the store of Samuel Kliecolt on North Main St.

COMMUNITY HOUSE AT MONTVILLE IS OPENED

Montville Community House which is located on the Norwich and New London road opposite The Uncasville-Shelton company's office was turned over to the public Monday night, Dec. 29. The building has been refurnished, redecorated, lighted and heated by The Uncasville-Shelton company free of charge to the community for the use of the community. It is governed by a board of governors consisting of 14 members selected as equally as possible from the towns of Oakdale, Palmertown and Uncasville. The sole object of this Community House is to create a better community spirit and provide a place for anyone to gather in.

On the opening night an excellent turkey supper was provided at a nominal charge, and receipts are to be, used for a worthy and necessary cause. Approximately 200 people sat down and enjoyed a most excellent supper and after supper a short meeting was held, presided over by Victor P. Thewlis, the president of the board, and in a short talk he turned over the keys of the building to Rev. James A. O'Meara and Rev. Charles Smith on behalf of the company.

A telegram of regret was read from the president of the company, G. H. Elswald, reading as follows:

"Unexpected and important business prevents my being present at the opening of the Community House tonight. Please extend greetings to our fellow townespeople and the hope that the Community House may prove a source of friendship and pleasant recollections."

Rev. James A. O'Meara was then called on to give a short talk on Community Life and an excellent talk was listened to by the audience. Rev. Charles Smith followed with a talk on Community Work and gave a most interesting and instructive talk. After this the president called for a vote of thanks to be given to all ladies who had worked so hard to make the supper a success and it was given by a rising vote which was unanimous. Then Rev. Charles Smith called for a vote of thanks for The Uncasville-Shelton company and to its president, G. H. Elswald for providing the Community House and it was given by a rising vote unanimously.

Then the building was open for general use and everybody made themselves at home.

Rooms have been provided and furnished so that men can smoke and play cards, another room has been fitted up for use of ladies and a third larger room has been fitted up for general use and a loud speaking radio has been installed so that people who gather in this building can listen in on world news, talks, classical music and dance music when this is broadcasted and this room is large enough to accommodate quite a crowd who want to dance when dance music is being broadcasted.

The general feeling is that the providing of this Community House will create a better community spirit and if the impression of the opening night gives any impression of what is to follow it certainly will.

Practically all the provisions for the supper were donated by various persons and the committee as a whole is expressing its thanks to everybody for what they gave or did towards making the opening night a success.

7,200 WILL BE UNABLE TO HAVE DRIVING LICENSE

There are about 7,200 people in Connecticut who will be refused licenses to operate motor vehicles on the highways of this state if they apply for that privilege at the expiration of the current license year, which comes at midnight, February 28th. A checkup of the files of the state motor vehicle department in anticipation of the rush for new licenses shows that number under suspension for periods extending beyond the opening of the new license year. Many will be unable to get licenses for more than a year and some have proven themselves to be such dangerous drivers that the department may feel warranted, in the interest of public safety, in withholding licenses from them indefinitely. All of the suspensions are due to various infractions of the motor vehicle laws.

The driving record of every one of the 237,000 licensed operators in Connecticut is being examined and the proper notations made for the benefit of the department's issuing clerks. A card is kept in the files for each operator and if analysis of any accidents in which a driver has been involved, or investigation of breaches of the motor vehicle regulations shows deliberate disregard for the safety and property of others, he is put on the suspension list. During the year closed at midnight Wednesday, 7,758 operators' licenses were suspended, an increase of 2,522 over the number of such suspensions ordered in the previous calendar year.

WETHERSFIELD MAN, 90, OLDEST MOTOR OPERATOR

Examination of the cards in the state motor vehicle department indicates that Elisur S. Goodrich, 90 years old, of Wethersfield, is the oldest licensed operator in Connecticut, but an older operator may be found by perusal of cards which remain to be checked prior to the issuance of the 1925 licenses. There are several licensed operators over 80 years old. On the average more people between 21 and 30 years old are licensed operators than of any other classification of ages, and there are more than six times as many male as female operators of that age classification.

ST. PATRICK'S RECEIPTS GO OVER $44,000 IN 1924

In accordance with the requirements of the Rt. Rev. Bishop and following the yearly custom, Rev. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's parish, read his annual financial report at the three masses Sunday. Indicating the most prosperous year in the history of the parish, during twelve months of no extraordinary or emergency demands, it showed total receipts above $44,000.

Modestly referring to himself merely as the steward of his people, his obligation to disburse as wisely as might be the moneys which they contributed for parish upkeep, Father May at the outset expressed appreciation of the aid of his parishioners, their hearty co-operation, liberal support and loving sympathy. He emphasized the value of the help which he had received from his two faithful and able assistants, Rev. Fathers Myles P. Galvin and John J. Reilly, also made reference to the loyalty and important work of the various helpers in the church services, ushers, collectors and others. His statement gave in detail every penny expended or received during 1924, as passing through his hands. Of the amounts so reported, the principal ones are given below.

The parish began the year with a balance of $12,370.01. The revenues included: From pew rent, $1270.80; seat money (regular Sunday receipts), $7,833.65; offertory, $7,913.51, making a total of $17,067.16.

The annual parish collection brought in $6,743.69. The annual entertainment netted $2,497.62. The sum of $346.50 was contributed toward the Society for the Propagation of the Faith; the Easter offering was $1,000; various votive and other offerings were liberal as usual. The total receipts amounted to $44,068.51.

In the list of disbursements, the principal items were: Salaries of three priests, $2,200; salaries of teaching Sisters and one lay teacher in parish school, $4,023. Organist, $900; expenses for music, etc., for volunteer choir, $145.14; for fuel, $1,769.16; for orphans and poor, $897.89; repairs—on church $3,077.63; on convent $1,200.55; convent improvements $2,203.47; cemetery vault, $4,560.

The total expenditures reached $42,241.57, leaving to begin 1925 a balance of good size. A number of years ago the parish property was solemnly consecrated to God, entirely free from debt.

Sunday was the Feast of the Holy Name of Jesus. Before rendering his financial statement to his people, Father May read the epistle, Acts iv, 8-12, and the gospel, Luke 11.21, the former ending, "For there is no other name under Heaven given to men, whereby we must be saved." He invoked the blessing of God upon his people throughout the year just begun, abundantly, both spiritually and materially, reminding them that whatever they might sacrifice for religion would never go unrewarded, since God never lets Himself be outdone in generosity by His people. He placed them under the protection of the Immaculate Mother of the Redeemer, who, he expressed, confidence, would watch over them as she watched over the Infant Saviour.

Following the services, Father May was congratulated by many of the parishioners on the report, as such a convincing proof of his ability as financial head of this parish of over 4,000 souls.

WILL PAY TRIBUTES TO DECEASED SENATORS

Both democrats and republicans will be among those senators who on Jan. 19 will pay verbal tribute to the name and fame of Henry Cabot Lodge, as senior senator from Massachusetts. Under a special agreement the senate will pause from its regular business at three o'clock on the afternoon of that day, and hear eulogies of the three republican senators who have passed into the Great Beyond since the adjournment of congress last June, Lodge, Brandegee and Colt, all three, as it happens, spokesmen for New England states in the upper chamber of congress.

Senator David I. Walsh will deliver the principal address in eulogy of the career of his former colleague from Massachusetts. Others who have been selected to join with Senator Walsh in honoring the life and career of Henry Cabot Lodge are Senators Underwood, Robinson, Smoot, Wadsworth, Moses and Butler, making seven speeches in all. Underwood has been selected as the man, who, for so many sessions was the democratic floor leader. For the same reason Robinson has been designated, as the democratic leader in the senate. These two will give the point of view of the senators whose seats were on the opposite side of the center aisle.

Senator Smoot will speak as one of the veterans of the senate. His service in that body goes back to March 4, 1903, and is exceeded only by that of Warren and Simmons. He will speak as one of Mr. Lodge's senatorial associates of the longest standing, in committee room and on the floor. Senator Moses will speak as a colleague from a neighboring New England state, and Senator Wadsworth as one of the leaders of "the younger generation" of senators. Senator Butler of Massachusetts will address the senate as the man who has succeeded to the seat so long held. The other addresses will be somewhat shorter in length than that which the principal speaker, Senator Walsh is planning to make.

HOUSE ON FIRE WHILE OWNERS ATTEND THEATRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Jan. 4.—The fire alarm on the big whistle was sounded Saturday evening at 6.45 for No. 41, the North Main street section. The smokeeaters arrived to find the upper rooms of the house owned and occupied by Albert Paquette, in a lively blaze. The fire was handled without difficulty, and in short order. The pipe lines had to cross North Main street, making it necessary for Officer Valgarde and the fire police to detour traffic to East Main via Palmer and Brown streets.

Mr. Paquette and his wife were attending the movies at the Broadway theatre, Norwich. A telephone message to the management of the theatre caused the play to be held up while Mr. Paquette was located and notified that his home was burning. He came up in his automobile in record time.

The grandmother, Mrs. Pariseau and the three children were alone in the house at the time of the fire. In one of the rooms on the upper floor an oil heater had been lighted to take the chill from the children's sleeping apartments. Something went wrong with the heater, for, one of the children on going upstairs, found the room ablaze. Mr. Paquette's loss, not definitely estimated Sunday evening, is covered by insurance

"YOUR SORROW SHALL BE TURNED INTO JOY."
John 16: 20; Luke 5: 31; 2 Corinthians 13: 9.

They cannot know the joy of quiet rest
Whose lives are peaceful, ne'er by toil distressed;
They cannot fathom the physician's skill
Whose frame knows naught of pain, who ne'er are ill.

They cannot learn the comfort of the Lord
Whose hearts have never felt the cutting sword;
Nor hear the music of His soothing voice
Whose happy lives with laughter gay rejoice.

They cannot see the beauty of His face
Whose circle is complete—no vacant space;
Nor taste the sweetness of His wondrous love
Till other sweets have fled, or worthless prove.

'Twas in the furnace that the Lord's own hands
Relieved the faithful three of all their bands;
And in the lions' den that Daniel proved
The power and keeping of the God he loved.

Thy God would show thee something yet undreamt
Of thy dear Lord, and thou would'st be exempt
From deepest bliss if thou could'st have thy choice;
So trust His love; rejoice, Belov'd rejoice!

Fear not the cup, though jagged to thy lip;
Nor shirk the draught though bitter seem the sip;
Drink deep, drink deep, the wine is nobly spiced,
The cup may fright thee, but the draught is Christ.
—Henry K. Bentley, in Sunday School Times.

THE NORTHERN STAR.

The Northern Star
Sailed over the bar
Bound to the Baltic Sea;
In the morning gray
She stretched away;—
'Twas a weary day to me!

For many an hour
In sleet and shower
By the lighthouse rock I stray;
And watch till dark
For the winged bark
Of him that is far away.

The castle's bound
I wander round,
Amidst the grassy waves;
But all I hear
Is the north wind drear,
And all I see are the waves.

The Northern Star
Is set afar!
Set in the Baltic Sea;
And the waves have spread
The sandy bed
That holds my Love from me.

SENATE MUST VOTE TODAY ON VETO OF POSTAL PAY BILL

Administration Leaders Failed in Effort to Have the Measure Recommitted to Postoffice Committee—Vote Against Recommitment, 52 to 30, Indicates That Friends of the Bill Lack Three Votes of the Two-thirds Majority Necessary to Override the President's Veto.

Washington, Jan. 5.—President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay increase bill will be sustained in the senate tomorrow if administration leaders can hold the strength they were able to develop tonight on the first test vote. They are confident they can do so.

The test came on a motion by Chairman Sterling of the postoffice committee to recommit the pay measure which received executive disapproval in June. That motion was voted down, 30 to 52, but the 30 votes cast for recommittal is two more than the one-third necessary to prevent the measure becoming a law without presidential sanction.

If the president is sustained, the house will not be called upon to act the pay raise measure having originated in the senate. In its place will be advanced the administration's combination pay and postal rate increase bill introduced last week by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, who failed in an effort today to place it before the senate prior to consideration of the veto.

Under the unanimous consent agreement which became operative today, the senate must vote on the veto not later than 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Under the parliamentary situation now existing, the pay and rate advance measure cannot be brought up immediately, and there were free predictions today by senators speaking for the overriding of the veto that the bill would not be passed at this session.

One democrat—Dial, South Carolina—joined with 29 republicans in voting to send the pay measure to the postoffice committee, while 18 republicans, among them Jones of Washington party whip, and Reed of Pennsylvania and Wadsworth of New York, joined with 33 democrats and one farmer-labor, Shipstead, in defeating the motion. The roll, call follows:

For recommitting:

Republicans—Ball, Borah, Burnsum, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Cummins, Curtis, Ernst, Fess, Greene, Hale, Harreld, Keyes, McCormick, McKinley, Metcalf, Moses, Norbeck, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Shortridge, Smoot, Sterling, Warren, Watson, Weller and Willis—29.

Democrats—Dial. Total 30.

Against recommitting:

Republicans — Brookhart, Couzens, Dale, Edge, Fernald, Frazier, Gooding, Howell, Johnson, Calif., Jones, Washington, Ladd, LaFollette, McLean, McNary, Norris, Reed, Pennsylvania, Stanfield and Wadsworth—18.

Democrats — Ashurst, Bayard, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Copeland, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, Jones, New Mexico, Kedrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ralston, Ransdell, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Stanley, Swanson, Trammell, Underwood and Walsh of Massachusetts—33.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total 52.

During the four hours of debate that preceded the vote, there was frequent and, at times, pointed reference to the pressure exerted by the president on senators of his party to prevent an overriding of the veto.

Declaring the executive was inconsistent in inviting new increases in pay which he disapproved last June, Senator George, democrat, Georgia, said there was "nothing involved but the delicate sensibilities of the man in the White House, from whom I entertain the most profound respect."

Referring to the recent White House breakfasts at which groups of republican senators were guests, Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, said he was unable to see why "any senator, just because he had sausages and buckwheat cakes at the presidential breakfast table, should change his vote."

Senators were urged by Senator Johnson, republican, California, to vote their "independent judgment, veto or no veto."

OPPOSED TO BILL TO SETTLE LABOR DISPUTES

Chicago, Jan. 5. — Compromise which would accept the basic plan and principle of the Berkley bill for a settlement and mediation of labor disputes was condemned tonight in a letter to Representative Everett Canders of Indiana by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States railroad labor board

Representative Sanders led the fight last year on the Berkley bill. Some time ago, after negotiations between administration and insurgent leaders for formulating a compromise measure Representative Sanders asked Mr. Hooper views.

"The system" replied Mr. Hooper, "is more admirably adapted to keeping the public in the dark than that of mediation. The operations of mediation and conflation must necessarily be secret to be successful.

"The arbitration provided for in the Howell-Berkley bill is the same sys system that broke down under the Newlands law. Arbitration could not be had except by the consent of both parties. In its practical application it was an entirely one-sided system. Demands of the employes were arbitrated and demands of the carriers were refused arbitration."

EFFORTS TO STABILIZE PRODUCTION OF COTTON

Washington, Jan. 5.—There is no immediate danger that this country will lose its position of dominance in the world cotton markets, but the situation demands more aggressive efforts to stabilize production, the chamber of commerce of the United States declared today in a report on conditions suggesting increased yield per acre as a remedy.

Steady decline in production and rise in the price of cotton in the United States, the report said, have caused increasing activity abroad to develop other cotton areas, while demand for finished mill products is lessening.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ENDORSED BY COOLIDGE

Washington, Jan. 5.—An address by President Coolidge endorsing the co-operative marketing system and a criticism of Henry Ford by R. W. Bingham of Louisville, Ky., for alleged antagonism to farmers' co-operative organizations marked the opening here today of the third annual convention of the national council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing association.

Addresses by former Governor Frank B. Lowden of Illinois, Carl Williams of Oklahoma City, Okla., and A. J. McPhail, president of the Canadian Wheat Producers, Ltd., were other features of the meeting.

Mr. Coolidge, in an address to the association's members at the White House, described co-operative marketing as the best means of stabilizing the country's agricultural organization, but warned that the system possesses no magical attributes and must start from the soil and be developed upward, with the farmers contributing the major aid

CHICAGO COAL TRUCK DRIVERS TO ARBITRATE

Chicago, Jan. 5.—An agreement to arbitrate reached here today ended a strike of coal truck drivers which began this morning. State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe accepted an invitation to act as umpire in the dispute.

Mr. Crowe attached the provision to his acceptance that the men return to work at once and agree to accept his decision as final. He announced that the first hearing in the controversy would be held Friday and that if any wage increase was awarded the men it would be retroactive from today.

Minor disturbances marked the short-lived strike, police reserves being called out several times when strikers attempted to interfere with the delivery of coal by small independent dealers.

Trumbull upon his accession to the governorship to fill the vacancy to be caused by the resignation of Col. Hiram Bingham. Colonel Trumbull and Governor Holcomb have been warm personal friends over a long period of years and recently have been associated in the political contests of the Fifth senatorial district, in which both live. At the inaugural ceremonies Wednesday Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, an appointee of Governor Holcomb, will administer the oath of office of governor to Colonel Bingham.

SCHEDULE OF FLIGHTS FOR AIR LINER LOS ANGELES

Washington, Jan. 5.—The air liner Los Angeles is scheduled to make flights to Bermuda, San Juan, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, and either Honolulu or Europe during the spring.

A schedule made public today at the navy department fixes the time of the Bermuda flight between Feb. 16 and 26, the San Juan flight marga 1 to 17; Canal Zone, April 18 to May 10, and the flight either to Honolul or Europe between May 20 and June 20.

The airship Shenandoah will not be operated until March 22, when she will sail for southern waters to operate in Maneuvers with the ships there. Both the Los Angeles and the Shenandoah will be moored at the mast of the tender Patoka during their flights from Lakehurst to the south.

The Patoka is to be based in Chesapeake Bay, (Baltimore) during the the early part of February, where the Los Angeles will experiment with its ship mooring device. Later the Patoka will go to Bermuda, San Juan and the Canal Zone to act as a mooring base for the Los Angeles during these flights and still later will join the scouting fleet in Guacanayabo bay, Cuba, to be used as a base by the Shenandoah during joint maneuvers until May 19, when the tender will return to Chesapeake bay.

The schedule for the Los Angeles calls for three weeks of experimental flights from Lakehurst this month and during that time she will be moored at intervals to the Patoka in the vicinity of Baltimore. From January 23 to 27, the German built ship will carry a group of scientific observers over the New England states to observe the sun eclipse.

GASTON B. MEANS FAILED TO APPEAR IN COURT FOR TRIAL

New York, Jan. 5.—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, failed to appear in court today to stand trial on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice, and Federal Judge Lindley ordered the issuance of a bench warrant for his arrest. He held in abeyance the forfeiture of a $10,000 bail bond pending investigation of claim that Means was compelled by sickness to remain at Concord, N. C.

Thomas B. Felder and Elmer W. Jarneke, co-defendants with Means, were present. Jarneke, former secretary to Means, changed his plea to guilty. It was understood that he would be a witness for the government.

Means, Felder, his attorney, and Jarneke, were jointly indicted by the United States grand jury for alleged bribery on accusations made by members of the defunct Altoona Glass Casket company that the trio accepted $65,000 to bribe former Attorney General Dougherty, United States Attorney William Hayward and other government officials in connection with the fraudulent sale of stock of the company for which 40 defendants were tried.

The bench warrant for Means was issued on application of Special Assistant Attorney General Hiram C. Todd after he had produced a telegram from Dr. Joe L. Hartsell of Concord, N. C., stating that Means was ill and that an operation might be necessary. Mr. Todd said that government operatives had reported last Thursday that Means was in good health and that the case had already been postponed too often.

Adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning. Mr. Todd stated that a department of justice agent from Charlotte, N. C., was en route to investigate Means' condition. A representative of the bonding company also left today for Concord.

NEW YORK SPEEDING UP TRIALS OF CRIMINALS

New York, Jan. 5.—The calendar of indictments for Greater New York, which a year ago held 2,807 names, started 1925 with only 702 names, Judge Rosalsky reported in general sessions today.

"Soon we judges will be waiting for indictments, instead of being swamped with them, as appeared our impending fate a year ago," he said.

Despite the shortened list of criminal actions awaiting trial, Judge Rosalsky declared that New York still was "a lawless community, where real desperadoes and bandits thrive," and that the metropolis was "the dumping ground of the United States."

Allied Ambassadors' Note to Germany

Give Reasons For the Postponement of the Cologne Evacuation.

London, Jan. 5 (By the A. P.)—An unofficial translation of the allied ambassadors' note to Germany on the postponement of the Cologne evacuation is as follows:

"Article 429 of the Treaty of Versailles of June 28, 1919, stipulates that German territory situated to the west of the Rhine, altogether with the bridgeheads, shall be occupied by troops of the allied and associated powers during a period of 15 years, to run from the entry into force of the treaty, as a guarantee for the execution of said treaty by Germany.

"By the terms of Article 429, if the conditions imposed by said treaty have been faithfully carried out by Germany the occupation foreseen in Article 428 shall successively be restricted at the expiration of the first five and then of the first ten years.

"The allied governments already are in position to inform the German government, without awaiting January 10, 1925, that they have obtained proof showing that Germany has not yet fulfilled, and cannot possibly have fulfilled by that date, the conditions laid down in Article 429 so as to enable her to benefit by the clause relating to a partial evacuation.

"Thus, by merely referring to Part Five of the treaty, sufficient ground for the decision of the allied governments is to be found in information collected by the inter-allied military commission of control, in spite of some obstruction in regard to the extent to which the military clauses have been carried out.

"For example, to mention only some essential points among facts already known, the following facts have been ascertained:

"In violation of Article 160, the great general staff of the (German) army has been reconstituted in another form in violation of Article 174; short service volunteers have been recruited and trained; contrary to Article 168, the transformation of factories for the manufacture of war materials is far from being complete; contrary to Articles 164 and 169, a surplus of every kind has been found to exist beyond the amounts of military material allowed, and considerable illicit stocks of war materials have been discovered; contrary to Article 162 and to the decision taken by the Boulogne conference of June 6, 1920, the reorganization of the state police has not begun; contrary to Article 211, the German government is far from having taken all the legislative and administrative measures demanded by the allied governments in the note of Sept. 29, 1922.

"The allied governments, moreover, expect to receive a report of the inter-allied commission of control giving the full results of the present general inspection. This report will enable them to determine what still remains to be done by Germany to carry out her obligations in military matters in the terms of Article 429.

"A further communication will be addressed to the German government on this subject."

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS

New Haven, Jan. 5.—Improved business conditions throughout Connecticut are indicated by the decrease in the number of bankruptcy petitions filed in the U. S. district court here. There has been a gradual decrease since 1922 when the number of cases reached the peak.

From January 1, 1924, to December 31, 1924, the number of new bankruptcy petitions filed here by individuals and firms totalled 484. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, the number of bankruptcy cases handled was 480. This represented the number of cases completed and discharged and in many instances included failures of two or three years previous. The total for the year ending June 23, 1923, was 55; and for the year ending June 30, 1922, the total was 597 and for the year ending June 30, 1921, it was 340.

CRITICISM OF INVESTMENTS MADE BY RETIRING STATE TREASURER M'COOK

Waterbury, Jan. 5.—"Any exchange of bond for bond, such as took place in 1919, should be prohibited by law," says the retiring state treasurer, Anson T. McCook, in his annual report filed with Governor Charles A. Templeton today. The reference is to the exchange of $2,595,500 par value municipal bonds for $2,643,200 par value Liberty loan bonds, effected with R. M. Grant and company in June, 1919.

The special auditors' report commented upon this and according to it the bonds delivered by the state had a then market value of at least $40,000 more than that of the Liberty bonds received in exchange, Secretary McCook's report states, but adds that R. M. Grant and company dispute these figures. Although that firm has thrown its books open to the treasurer's inspection, only part of the original documents on which this transaction was based has been found. The report declares that the price at which each item is sold or bought ought always to appear of record, but such was not the case here.

The report states that a number of the investments of the sinking fund and teachers' annuity and pension funds, while not unsafe are "second grade." Criticism is made of a lack of diversification, 80 per cent or the city and state bonds having been concentrated in California, Illinois, Michigan and Texas. These bonds have been pnurchased through a few brokers and in large blocks, the report states. It recommends that some of the largest blocks of bonds be sold at a later date, especially a portion of the sinking fund $6,855,000 Liberty loan bonds, "since if these should be paid off by the government in 1933 the state would face the difficult problem of investing this sum advantageously for the short period of three years up to the maturity of the sinking fund in 1936."

"The legal limit for deposits (30 per cent. of the capital, surplus and undivided profits of the depository bank) had been exceeded in the case of the First National bank, of Putnam," the report states. "A few other balances were close to the legal limit. In the interests of safety and of fairer distribution it imposed a tentative limit upon inactive balances of 20 per cent. of capital and surplus. There are now seven active and 34 inactive accounts exclusive of savings bank accounts which represent trust funds.

"A uniform rate of 3 per cent. upon inactive deposits was put into effect on October 15. Previously 2 1-2 per cent had been the ruling rate. In the case of active accounts, which rener expensive service to the state, there was established a rate of 2 1-2 per cent up to a fixed point with 3 per cent. on average daily balances in excess. In the basis of the state's daily balances for the last 12 months, this readjustment of interest rates should yield the state an added revenue of over $20,000 annually.

The report states that the state's claim for $125,000 on deposit with the First National mank of Putnam was filed with the receiver. The state's claim was at first disallowed to the extent of $20,000 this item representing a check which the receiver contended never reached the bank from the then state treasurer who was also cashier of the bank. The controller of the currency, however, granted a reconsideration and allowed the claim in full. If the depositors of the bank are paid in full, there will be no loss to the state and if any loss should result, the report states, reimbursement might properly be required under the treasurer's bond. Peliminary notice has already been given to this effect.

H. F. Stone Succeeds Justice McKenna

The Attorney General Was Appointed by President Coolidge Yesterday.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Harlan F. Stone, attorney general, was appointed by President Coolidge today to succeed Joseph McKenna, on the United States supreme court.

The nomination of Attorney General Stone to succeed Justice McKenna, whose resignation had been announced earlier in the day, was sent to the senate just before that body adjourned.

Mr. Stone is expected to take up his new duties as soon as the nomination is confirmed and a successor has been named for him as head of the department of justice.

Mr. McKenna's resignation had been a foregone conclusion and the president acted in naming a successor within a few hours of its announcement, and after having called Mr. Stone into conference at the White House.

The nomination of Mr. Stone was referred by the senate to the judiciary committee

TO NOMINATE DARBIE OF KILLINGLY FOR SPEAKER

Hartford, Jan. 5.—Representative Elbert L. Darbie, of Killingly is expected to be nominated for speaker at a caucus of republican members of the incoming house of representatives to be held tomorrow night at the capitol. Indications are that he will be unopposed for the nomination. Senator-elect J. Edwin Brainard of Branford probably will be nominated for president pro tem of the senate at a caucus of republican senators-elect to be held simultaneously. Owing to the advancement of Lieutenant-Governor-elect John H. Trumbull, to the governorship on Thursday, the president of the senate will become the acting lieutenant-governor and, in the absence of Governor Trumbull from the state, acting governor. Colonel Trumbull spends at least a month of every year hunting big game.

Representative-elect Joseph P. Bransfield, of Portland, will be nominated for speaker at a caucus of democratic members-elect of the house. As only 22 of the 262 members of the house are democrats, the republican nomination is equivalent to election. There are only two democratic senators out of the total senate membership of 35, and no democratic senatorial caucus will be held.

TO DIVERT TRAFFIC FROM THE BOSTON POST ROAD

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Because the automobile traffic on the Boston Post road is so congested that it is a menace to the traveling public and a detriment to business, according to Supervisor George A. Casey of New Rochelle, the Westchester county board of supervisors took the first step today toward construction of a new county boulevard line from Portchester to the New York city line.

According to plans which County Attorney Charles McDonald will prepare, the new boulevard will parallel the Boston Post road and will be at least 100 feet wide.

Supervisor Casey said the hundreds of motor trucks from the New England states are causing much of the congestion. He asserted that according to a tally system kept in Mamaroneck, 50,000 motor vehicles passed daily along the Boston Post road.

It was said the state of Connecticut will also construct a new highway from Bridgeport to Portchester to connect with the new boulevard on the eastern section of Westchester county.

FRENCH DEBT MEMORANDUM ASKS 10-YEAR MORATORIUM

Secretary Mellon Also Confirms Report That France Suggests That She Be Allowed Eighty Years in Which to Pay the $4,000,000,000 Debt—Memorandum is Regarded as a Hopeful Sign, Although it Contains No Concrete Proposal Regarding Refunding of the Debt.

Washington, Jan. 5.—With the next of M. Clementel's "personal and unofficial" communication to Ambassador Herrick, on the French debt question filed for information with the debt funding commission, official Washington turned attention today principally to the more definite developments expected with relation to the status of American war claims against Germany when that subject comes up this week before the conference of allied finance ministers in Paris.

Examination of M. Clementel's memorandum did not lessen the feeling in administration circles that it was a hopeful sign, although it contained no concrete proposal as to ways and means of refunding the French debt. The dispatch from Ambassador Herrick transmitting the document was sent by Secretary Hughes to Secretary Mellon as the chairman of the funding commission. It was said definitely at the state department, however, that it did not warrant the calling of a special meeting of the commission, since it was specifically confined, as Paris press advices had indicated, to expression of the minister's own ideas on the question.

Secretary Mellon's study of the memorandum failed to provide him with any information on the French views in addition to what he was said to have obtained already from his conversations with Ambassador Jusserand. In some quarters, it was expected he might send an informal request to M. Clementel for specific details on the suggestions already made. This, however, will not be definitely decided upon so long as there is hope that further word may come from Ambassador Herrick throwing new light on the subject.

The French minister's course in submitting his ideas in the form of the memorandum was regarded as the treasury as being a departure from the usual method in such matters, but no explanation of the procedure was advanced in any quarter.

The memorandum was not made public. It was regarded with interest in administration circles, however, because it appeared to set at rest any suggestion that France might be thinking of ignoring her war debts to the United States and also because it disclosed that French financial officers were at least giving serious thought to the subject of methods of refunding the debt.

Secretary Mellon said late today that the memorandum confirmed press dispatches concerning a suggestion from France that she be allowed 80 years and a ten-year moratorium in which to pay the $4,000,000,000 debt.

When the first press comment came from Paris intimations that a formal proposal had been presented to Ambassador Herrick by the French government involving cancellation of interest to date and a ten year moratorium and an 80-year period of one per cent., thereafter with an amortization rate of one-half of one per cent, official Washington obviously expected something of a much more definite character than was received. It was not until the text of the memorandum was at hand today, in fact, that it was realized that the Paris government had not seen its way to initiating a refunding agreement by making a definite proposal.

There can be no question, however, that Secretary Hughes and Secretary Mellon feel that important results may flow from the conversations in Paris, possibly in the reasonably near future. It is hoped strongly that the side discussions they have precipitated in both countries has helped to open the way for a definite move toward clearing up the situation.

In the meantime, Secretary Hughes has taken up the most recent British note contending that the full amount of American war claims against Germany should not be chargeable against annuities to be paid by Germany under the Dawes plan. In his answer, dispatched yesterday to the London foreign office, and for their information, to Ambassadors Herrick and Kellogg and James A. Logan, American representatives at the coming Paris conference, the secretary reaffirmed the attitude of the Washington government that the American claims were entitled to equal treatment with those of the allied governments in the allocation of German payments by the conference.

At the same time, the American communication, which was not made public, is understood to have reiterated a desire not to press unduly the question of the time of these payments and to have directed the attention of the British government to the previous expression of willingness to arrive at a compromise with regard to the period over which the payments for both American army of occupation costs and American war claims might be stretched.

The Washington government does not see that there is anything about the claims it is presenting which requires reference to arbitration, as suggested in London. It has not filed any demands for reparations on its own account. The claims consisting of those made by American nationals and approved by the American-German commission set up for the purpose.

FINANCE MINISTER TO MEET IN PARIS TOMORROW

Paris, Jan. 5.—(By The A. P.)—The famous cloak room in the French foreign office, where Woodrow Wilson, Georges Clemenceau and their fellow peacemakers prepared the treaty of Versailles, will assume the aspect of the treaty-making days on Wednesday of this week when the allied and American diplomats and ministers meet there to settle some of the conflicts of the peace. And it is the general opinion that the discussions at issue are likely to furnish a few sessions that may surpass in warmth some of the liveliest meetings of the big five.

The demand of the American government for a share in the proceeds of the Dawes plan as a means of covering the American reparation claims and cost of the occupation of the Coblenz bridgehead will come up early in the proceedings.

In view of the large attendance of allied finance ministers and experts, together with the representatives of the Washington government, it is expected that the conference will decide to refer most of the questions on its agenda to committees, holding full sessions only when the details of the problems have been threshed out in committees.

LLOYD GEORGE'S VIEWS OF CONDITIONS IN ITALY

London, Jan. 5.—David Lloyd George told an audience here tonight that liberalism was the sole hope of Italian democracy. Freedom in that country, he said, has been completely suppressed.

Repression, arson, confiscation and murder, he continued, have become the instruments of government and "there has been nothing like it in Italy since the atrocious rule of King Bomba."

"If the struggle against this histrionic despotism were left to the socialists alone," asserted Mr. Lloyd George, "the Italian people would be confronted by a tragic choice between the violence and tyranny of fascism on one hand and the chaos and ruin of socialism on the other. But the liberal party of Italy, broken to the contract and the whirlpool of the war, is now recovering its strength and is giving a hopeful lead to those desiring to see the Italian nation once more a free people.

"The great liberal leaders Giolotti, Orlando, Salandra and Nitti are moving toward a new struggle for Italian freedom."

SENATE MUST VOTE TODAY ON VETO OF POSTAL PAY BILL

Administration Leaders Failed in Effort to Have the Measure Recommitted to Postoffice Committee—Vote Against Recommitment, 52 to 30, Indicates That Friends of the Bill Lack Three Votes of the Two-thirds Majority Necessary to Override the President's Veto.

Washington, Jan. 5.—President Coolidge's veto of the postal pay increase bill will be sustained in the senate tomorrow if administration leaders can hold the strength they were able to develop tonight on the first test vote. They are confident they can do so.

The test came on a motion by Chairman Sterling of the postoffice committee to recommit the pay measure which received executive disapproval last June. That motion was voted down, 30 to 52, but the 30 votes cast for recommittal is two more than the one-third necessary to prevent the measure becoming a law without presidential sanction.

If the president is sustained, the house will not be called upon to act the pay raise measure having originated in the senate. In its place will be advanced the administration's combination pay and postal rate increase bill introduced last week by Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, who failed in an effort today to place it before the senate prior to consideration of the veto.

Under the unanimous consent agreement which became operative today, the senate must vote on the veto not later than 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Under the parliamentary situation now existing, the pay and rate advance measure cannot be brought up immediately, and there were free predictions today by senators speaking for the overriding of the veto that the bill would not be passed at this session.

One democrat—Dial, South Carolina—joined with 29 republicans in voting to send the pay measure to the postoffice committee, while 18 republicans, among them Jones of Washington party whip, and Reed of Pennsylvania and Wadsworth of New York, joined with 33 democrats and one farmer-labor, Shipstead, in defeating the motion. The roll call follows:

For recommitting:

Republicans—Ball, Borah, Burnsum, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Cummins, Curtis, Ernst, Fess, Greene, Hale, Harreld, Keyes, McCormick, McKinley, Metcalf, Moses, Norbeck, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Shortridge, Smoot, Sterling, Warren, Watson, Weller and Willis—29.

Democrats—Dial. Total 30.

Against recommitting:

Republicans — Brookhart, Couzens, Dale, Edge, Fernald, Frazier, Gooding, Howell, Johnson, Calif., Jones, Washington, Ladd, LaFollette, McLean, McNary, Norris, Reed, Pennsylvania, Stanfield and Wadsworth—18.

Democrats — Ashurst, Bayard, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Copeland, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, George, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Heflin, Jones, New Mexico, Kedrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ralston, Ransdell, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Stanley, Swanson, Trammell, Underwood and Walsh of Massachusetts—33.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total 52.

During the four hours of debate that preceded the vote, there was frequent and, at times, pointed reference to the pressure exerted by the president on senators of his party to prevent an overriding of the veto.

Declaring the executive was inconsistent in inviting now increases in pay which he disapproved last June, Senator George, democrat, Georgia, said there was "nothing involved but the delicate sensibilities of the man in the White House, from whom I entertain the most profound respect."

Referring to the recent White House breakfasts at which groups of republican senators were guests, Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, said he was unable to see why "any senator, just because he had sausages and buckwheat cakes at the presidential breakfast table, should change his vote."

Senators were urged by Senator Johnson, republican, California, to vote their "independent judgment, veto or no veto."

OPPOSED TO BILL TO SETTLE LABOR DISPUTES

Chicago, Jan. 5. — Compromise which would accept the basic plan and principle of the Berkley bill for a settlement and mediation of labor disputes was condemned tonight in a letter to Representative Everett Canders of Indiana by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States railroad labor board.

Representative Sanders led the fight last year on the Berkley bill. Some time ago, after negotiations between administration and insurgent leaders for formulating a compromise measure Representative Sanders asked Mr. Hooper views.

"No system" replied Mr. Hooper, "is more admirably adapted to keeping the public in the dark than that of mediation. The operations of mediation and conflation must necessarily be secret to be successful.

"The arbitration provided for in the Howell-Berkley bill is the same as system that broke down under the Newlands law. Arbitration could not be had except by the consent of both parties. In its practical application it was an entirely one-sided system. Demands of the employes were arbitrated and demands of the carriers were refused arbitration."

EFFORTS TO STABILIZE PRODUCTION OF COTTON

Washington, Jan. 5.—There is no immediate danger that this country will lose its position of dominance in the world cotton markets, but the situation demands more aggressive efforts to stabilize production, the chamber of commerce of the United States declared today in a report on conditions suggesting increased yield per acre as a remedy.

Steady decline in production and rise in the price of cotton in the United States, the report said, have caused increasing activity abroad to develop other cotton areas, while demand for finished mill products is lessening.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ENDORSED BY COOLIDGE

Washington, Jan. 5.—An address by President Coolidge endorsing the co-operative marketing system and a criticism of Henry Ford by H. W. Bingham of Louisville, Ky., for alleged antagonism to farmers' co-operative organizations marked the opening here today of the third annual convention of the national council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing association.

Mr. Coolidge, in an address to the association's members at the White House, described co-operative marketing as the best means of stabilizing the country's agricultural organization, but warned that the system possesses no magical attributes and must start from the soil and be developed upward, with the farmers contributing the major aid

SCHEDULE OF FLIGHTS FOR AIR LINER LOS ANGELES

Washington, Jan. 5.—The air liner Los Angeles is scheduled to make flights to Bermuda, San Juan, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, and either Honolulu or Europe during the spring.

A schedule made public today at the navy department fixes the time of the Bermuda flight between Feb. 16 and 26, the San Juan flight marga 1 to 17; Canal Zone, April 18 to May 10, and the flight either to Honolul or Europe between May 20 and June 30.

The airship Shenandoah will not be operated until March 22, when she will sail for southern waters to operate in Maneuvers with the ships there. Both the Los Angeles and the Shenandoah will be moored at the mast of the tender Patoka during their flights from Lakehurst to the south.

The Patoka is to be based in Chesapeake Bay, (Baltimore) during the the early part of February, where the Los Angeles will experiment with its ship mooring device. Later the Patoka will go to Bermuda, San Juan and the Canal Zone to act as a mooring base for the Los Angeles during these flights and still later will join the scouting fleet in Guacanayabo bay, Cuba, to be used as a base by the Shenandoah during joint maneuvers until May 19, when the tender will return to Chesapeake bay.

The schedule for the Los Angeles calls for three weeks of experimental flights from Lakehurst this month and during that time she will be moored at intervals to the Patoka in the vicinity of Baltimore. From January 22 to 25, the German built ship will carry a group of scientific observers over the New England states to observe the sun eclipse.

GASTON B. MEANS FAILED TO APPEAR IN COURT FOR TRIAL

New York, Jan. 5.—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, failed to appear in court today to stand trial on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice, and Federal Judge Lindley ordered the issuance of a bench warrant for his arrest. He held in abeyance the forfeiture of a $10,000 bail bond pending investigation of claim that Means was compelled by sickness to remain at Concord, N. C.

Thomas B. Felder and Elmer W. Jarneke, co-defendants with Means, were present. Jarneke, former secretary to Means, changed his plea to guilty. It was understood that he would be a witness for the government.

Means, Felder, his attorney, and Jarneke, were jointly indicted by the United States grand jury for alleged bribery on accusations made by members of the defunct Altoona Glass Casket company that the trio accepted $65,000 to bribe former Attorney General Dougherty, United States Attorney William Hayward and other government officials in connection with the fraudulent sale of stock of the company for which 40 defendants were tried.

The bench warrant for Means was issued on application of Special Assistant Attorney General Hiram C. Todd after he had produced a telegram from Dr. Joe A. Hartsell of Concord, N. C. stating that Means was ill and that an operation might be necessary. Mr. Todd said that government operatives had reported last Thursday that Means was in good health and that the case had already been postponed too often.

Adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning. Mr. Todd stated that a department of justice agent from Charlotte, N. C., was en route to investigate Means' condition. A representative of the bonding company also left today for Concord.

NEW YORK SPEEDING UP TRIALS OF CRIMINALS

New York, Jan. 5.—The calendar of indictments for Greater New York, which a year ago held 2,807 names, started 1925 with only 702 names, Judge Rosalsky reported in general sessions today

"Soon we judges will be waiting for indictments, instead of being swamped with them, as appeared our impending fate a year ago," he said.

Despite the shortened list of criminal actions awaiting trial, Judge Rosalsky declared that New York still was "a lawless community, where real desperadoes and bandits thrive" and that the metropolis was "the dumping ground of the United States."

Allied Ambassadors' Note to Germany

Give Reasons For the Postponement of the Cologne Evacuation.

London, Jan. 5 (By the A. P.)—An unofficial translation of the allied ambassadors' note to Germany on the postponement of the Cologne evacuation is as follows:

"Article 429 of the Treaty of Versailles of June 28, 1919, stipulates that German territory situated to the west of the Rhine, altogether with the bridgeheads, shall be occupied by troops of the allied and associated powers during a period of 15 years, to run from the entry into force of the treaty, as a guarantee for the execution of said treaty by Germany.

"By the terms of Article 429, if the conditions imposed by said treaty have been faithfully carried out by Germany the occupation foreseen in Article 428 shall successively be restricted at the expiration of the first five and then of the first ten years.

"The allied governments already are in position to inform the German government, without awaiting January 10, 1925, that they have obtained proof showing that Germany has not yet fulfilled, and cannot possibly have fulfilled by that date, the conditions laid down in Article 429 so as to enable her to benefit by the clause relating to a partial evacuation.

"Thus, by merely referring to Part Five of the treaty, sufficient ground for the decision of the allied governments is to be found in information collected by the inter-allied military commission of control, in spite of some obstruction in regard to the extent to which the military clauses have been carried out.

"For example, to mention only some essential points among facts already known, the following facts have been ascertained:

"In violation of Article 160, the great general staff of the (German) army has been reconstituted in another form in violation of Article 174; short service volunteers have been recruited and trained; contrary to Article 168, the transformation of factories for the manufacture of war materials is far from being complete; contrary to Articles 164 and 169, a surplus of every kind has been found to exist beyond the amounts of military material allowed, and considerable illicit stocks of war materials have been discovered; contrary to Article 162 and to the decision taken by the Boulogne conference of June 6, 1920, the reorganization of the state police has not begun; contrary to Article 211, the German government is far from having taken all the legislative and administrative measures demanded by the allied governments in the note of Sept. 20, 1922.

"The allied governments, moreover, expect to receive a report of the inter-allied commission of control giving the full results of the present general inspection. This report will enable them to determine what still remains to be done by Germany to carry out her obligations in military matters in the terms of Article 429.

"A further communication will be addressed to the German government on this subject."

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS

New Haven, Jan. 5.—Improved business conditions throughout Connecticut are indicated by the decrease in the number of bankruptcy petitions filed in the U. S. district court here. There has been a gradual decrease since 1922 when the number of cases reached the peak.

From January 1, 1924, to December 31, 1924, the number of new bankruptcy petitions filed here by individuals and firms totalled 484. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, the number of bankruptcy cases handled was 480. This represented the number of cases completed and discharged and in many instances included failures of two or three years previous. The total for the year ending June 33, 1923, was 55; and for the year ending June 30, 1922, the total was 597 and for the year ending June 30, 1921, it was 340.

H. F. Stone Succeeds Justice McKenna

The Attorney General Was Appointed by President Coolidge Yesterday.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Harlan F. Stone, attorney general, was appointed by President Coolidge today to succeed Joseph McKenna, on the United States supreme court.

The nomination of Attorney General Stone to succeed Justice McKenna, whose resignation had been announced earlier in the day, was sent to the senate just before that body adjourned.

Mr. Stone is expected to take up his new duties as soon as the nomination is confirmed and a successor has been named for him as head of the department of justice.

Mr. McKenna's resignation had been a foregone conclusion and the president acted in naming a successor within a few hours of its announcement, and after having called Mr. Stone into conference at the White House.

The nomination of Mr. Stone was referred by the senate to the judiciary committee

TO NOMINATE DARBIE OF KILLINGLY FOR SPEAKER

Hartford, Jan. 5.—Representative Elbert L. Darbie, of Killingly is expected to be nominated for speaker at a caucus of republican members of the incoming house of representatives to be held tomorrow night at the capitol. Indications are that he will be unopposed for the nomination. Senator-elect J. Edwin Brainard of Branford probably will be nominated for president pro tem of the senate at a caucus of republican senators-elect to be held simultaneously. Owing to the advancement of Lieutenant-Governor-elect John H. Trumbull, to the governorship on Thursday, the president of the senate will become the acting lieutenant-governor and, in the absence of Governor Trumbull from the state, acting governor. Colonel Trumbull spends at least a month of every year hunting big game.

Representative-elect Joseph P. Bransfield, of Portland, will be nominated for speaker at a caucus of democratic members-elect of the house. As only 22 of the 262 members of the house are democrats, the republican nomination is equivalent to election. There are only two democratic senators out of the total senate membership of 35, and no democratic senatorial caucus will be held.

TO DIVERT TRAFFIC FROM THE BOSTON POST ROAD

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Because the automobile traffic on the Boston Post road is so congested that it is a menace to the traveling public and a detriment to business, according to Supervisor George A. Casey of New Rochelle, the Westchester county board of supervisors took the first step today toward construction of a new county boulevard line from Portchester to the New York city line.

According to plans which County Attorney Charles McDonald will prepare, the new boulevard will parallel the Boston Post road and will be at least 100 feet wide.

Supervisor Casey said the hundreds of motor trucks from the New England states are causing much of the congestion. He asserted that according to a tally system kept in Mamaroneck, 50,000 motor vehicles passed daily along the Boston Post road.

It was said the state of Connecticut will also construct a new highway from Bridgeport to Portchester to connect with the new boulevard on the eastern section of Westchester county.

CRITICISM OF INVESTMENTS MADE BY RETIRING STATE TREASURER M'COOK

Waterbury, Jan. 5.—"Any exchange of bond for bond, such as took place in 1919, should be prohibited by law," says the retiring state treasurer, Anson T. McCook, in his annual report filed with Governor Charles A. Templeton today. The reference is to the exchange of $2,595,500 par value municipal bonds for $2,643,200 par value Liberty loan bonds, effected with R. M. Grant and company in June, 1919.

The special auditors' report commented upon this and according to it the bonds delivered by the state had a then market value of at least $40,000 more than that of the Liberty bonds received in exchange, Secretary McCook's report states, but adds that R. M. Grant and company dispute these figures. Although that firm has thrown its books open to the treasurer's inspection, only part of the original documents on which this transaction was based has been found. The report declares that the price at which each item is sold or bought ought always to appear of record, but such was not the case here.

The report states that a number of the investments of the sinking fund and teachers' annuity and pension funds, while not unsafe are "second grade." Criticism is made of a lack of diversification, 80 per cent or the city and state bonds having been concentrated in California, Illinois, Michigan and Texas. These bonds have been pnurchased through a few brokers and in large blocks, the report states. It recommends that some of the largest blocks of bonds be sold at a later date, especially a portion of the sinking fund $6,355,000 Liberty loan bonds, "since if these should be paid off by the government in 1933 the state would face the difficult problem of investing this sum advantageously for the short period of three years up to the maturity of the sinking fund in 1936."

"The legal limit for deposits (20 per cent. of the capital, surplus and undivided profits of the depository bank) had been exceeded in the case of the First National bank, of Putnam," the report states. "A few other balances were close to the legal limit. In the interests of safety and of fairer distribution it imposed a tentative limit upon inactive balances of 20 per cent. of capital and surplus. There are now seven active and 44 inactive accounts exclusive of savings bank accounts which represent trust funds.

"A uniform rate of 3 per cent. upon inactive deposits was put into effect on October 15. Previously 2 1-2 per cent had been the ruling rate. In the case of active accounts, which rener expensive service to the state, there was established a rate of 2 1-2 per cent up to a fixed point with 3 per cent. on average daily balances in excess. In the basis of the state's daily balances for the last 12 months, this readjustment of interest rates should yield the state an added revenue of over $20,000 annually.

The report states that the state's claim for $125,000 on deposit with the First National bank of Putnam was filed with the receiver. The state's claim was at first disallowed to the extent of $20,000 this item representing a check which the receiver contended never reached the bank from the then state treasurer who was also cashier of the bank. The controller of the currency, however, granted a reconsideration and allowed the claim in full. If the depositors of the bank are paid in full, there will be no loss to the state and if any loss should result, the report states, reimbursement might properly be required under the treasurer's bond. Preliminary notice has already been given to this effect.

FRENCH DEBT MEMORANDUM ASKS 10-YEAR MORATORIUM

Secretary Mellon Also Confirms Report That France Suggests That She Be Allowed Eighty Years in Which to Pay the $4,000,000,000 Debt—Memorandum is Regarded as a Hopeful Sign, Although it Contains No Concrete Proposal Regarding Refunding of the Debt.

Washington, Jan. 5.—With the next of M. Clementel's "personal and unofficial" communication to Ambassador Herrick, on the French debt question filed for information with the debt funding commission, official Washington turned attention today principally to the more definite developments expected with relation to the status of American war claims against Germany when that subject comes up this week before the conference of allied finance ministers in Paris.

Examination of M. Clementel's memorandum did not lessen the feeling in administration circles that it was a hopeful sign, although it contained no concrete proposal as to ways and means of refunding the French debt. The dispatch from Ambassador Herrick transmitting the document was sent by Secretary Hughes to Secretary Mellon as the chairman of the funding commission. It was said definitely at the state department, however, that it did not warrant the calling of a special meeting of the commission, since it was specifically confined, as Paris press advices had indicated, to expression of the minister's own ideas on the question.

Secretary Mellon's study of the memorandum failed to provide him with any information on the French views in addition to what he was said to have obtained already from his conversations with Ambassador Jusserand. In some quarters, it was expected he might send an informal request to M. Clementel for specific details on the suggestions already made. This, however, will not be definitely decided upon so long as there is hope that further word may come from Ambassador Herrick throwing new light on the subject.

The French minister's course in submitting his ideas in the form of the memorandum was regarded as the treasury as being a departure from the usual method in such matters, but no explanation of the procedure was advanced in any quarter.

The memorandum was not made public. It was regarded with interest in administration circles, however, because it appeared to set at rest any suggestion that France might be thinking of ignoring her war debt to the United States and also because it disclosed that French finacial officers were at least giving serious thought to the subject of methods of refunding the debt.

Secretary Mellon said late today that the memorandum confirmed press dispatches concerning a suggestion from France that she be allowed 80 years nad a ten-year moratorium in which to pay the $4,000,000,000 debt.

When the first press comment came from Paris intimations that a formal proposal had been presented to Ambassador Herrick by the French government involving cancellation of interest to date and a ten year moratorium and an 80-year period of one per cent., thereafter with an amortization rate of one-half of one per cent. official Washington seriously expected something of a much more definite character than was received. It was not until the text of the memorandum was at hand today, in fact, that it was realized that the Paris government had not seen its way to initiating a refunding agreement by making a definite proposal.

There can be no question, however, that Secretary Hughes and Secretary Mellon feel that important results may flow from the conversations in Paris, possibly in the reasonably near future. It is honed strongly that the side discussion they have precipitated in both countries has helped to open the way for a definite move toward clearing up the situation.

In the meantime, Secretary Hughes has taken up the most recent British note contending that the full amount of American war claims against Germany should not be chargeable against annuities to be paid by Germany under the Dawes plan. In his answer, dispatched yesterday to the London foreign office, and for their information, to Ambassadors Herrick and Kellogg and James A. Logan, American representatives at the coming Paris conference, the secretary reaffirmed the attitude of the Washington government that the American claims were entitled to equal treatment with those of the allied governments in the allocation of German payments by the conference.

At the same time, the American communication, which was not made public, is understood to have reiterated a desire not to press unduly the question of the time of these payments and to have directed the attention of the British government to the previous expression of willingness to arrive at a compromise with regard to the period over which the payments for both American army of occupation costs and American war claims might be stretched.

The Washington government does not see that there is anything about the claims it is presenting which requires reference to arbitration, as suggested in London. It has not filed any demands for reparations on its own account. The claims consisting of those made by American nationals and approved by the American-German commission set up for the purpose.

FINANCE MINISTER TO MEET IN PARIS TOMORROW

Paris, Jan. 5.—(By The A. P.)—The famous cloak room in the French foreign office, where Woodrow Wilson, Georges Clemenceau and their fellow peacemakers prepared the treaty of Versailles, will assume the aspect of the treaty-making days on Wednesday of this week when the allied and American diplomats and ministers meet there to settle some of the conflicts of the peace. And it is the general opinion that the discussions at issue are likely to furnish a few sessions that may surpass in warmth some of the liveliest meetings of the big five.

The demand of the American government for a share in the proceeds of the Dawes plan as a means of paying the American reparation claims and cost of the occupation of the Coblenz bridgehead will come up early in the proceedings.

In view of the large attendance of allied finance ministers and experts, together with the representatives of the Washington government, it is expected that the conference will decide to refer most of the questions on its agenda to committees, holding full sessions only when the details of the problems have been threshed out in committees.

LLOYD GEORGE'S VIEWS OF CONDITIONS IN ITALY

London, Jan. 6.—David Lloyd George told an audience here tonight that liberalism was the sole hope of Italian democracy. Freedom in that country, he said, has been completely suppressed.

Repression, arson, confiscation and murder, he continued, have become the instruments of government and "there has been nothing like it in Italy since the atrocious rule of King Bomba."

"If the struggle against this histrionic despotism were left to the socialists alone," asserted Mr. Lloyd George, "the Italian people would be confronted by a tragic choice between the violence and tyranny of fascism on one hand and the chaos and ruin of socialism on the other. But the liberal party of Italy, broken to the contracts and the whirlpool of the war, is now recovering its strength and is giving a hopeful lead to those desiring to see the Italian nation once more a free people.

"The great liberal leaders Giolitti, Orlando, Salandra and Nitti are moving toward a new struggle for Italian freedom."

Some thirty automobile owners at police headquarters Monday morning to answer to a slight breach of the city ordinances in parking on crosswalks. That many cars were tagged by Traffic Officer Ernest Bombria and the drivers obeyed orders to appear before Chief of Police Allan McArthur where they were given reminder. There is something more to the story, however, which caused the tagged motorists to feel maltreated in having to make a ride to the police station and that is that the crosswalk lines painted on last summer are quickly disappearing and in some instances are totally invisible. The ravages of snow and ice and constant traffic have served to practically eliminate all marks designating safety zones, and as one out-of-town driver put it, one would need a magnifying glass to find out whether or not he was committing a law violation. The traffic officer's duty is to cause all violators to report to headquarters where it remains the duty of the chief to reprimand them; but those apprehended Monday are gifted in the conviction that there also is the duty of keeping the crosswalks visible. This is especially necessary in the case of motorists who are not familiar with the city and its ordinances, and is also a necessity to safeguard pedestrians who would prefer not to come into the jaywalker class. The practice of parking cars furthermore has the tendency of adding just one more reason why Willimantic should be unpopular with visitors and tourists and as indicated by Monday's procession to the station, a little paint or a suitable sign would accomplish a great deal toward making friends for the city.

The resignations of Charles L. Bost and Joseph P. Cotter, are included in the almost wholesale retirement of minor officials and employes from the local American Thread plant, due to the present depression in the cotton industry which necessitates lowering the cost of overhead expenses. Joseph Cotter is one of the oldest employes of the company, as regards service and has been provided with a handsome pension as regard for his long term of faithfulness. March 17, 1886, Mr. Cotter became an employe of the old Willimantic Linen company, as a carpenter in Mill No. 4, then under construction. For many years this mill was classed as one of the largest one-story buildings in the world. At a later date Mr. Cotter, became carpenter, foreman and chief millwright, assisting to the present date under the American Thread company which took charge of the plant in 1898. He was an organizer of the American Thread Fire Brigade and was its chief for a score of years. He has been actively identified with civic and social movements of the company during his employment. Charles L. Bost has been bookkeeper for the department under Mr. Cotter's charge for the past seven years. Previously he was a member of the Lincoln & Bros Lumber and Coal Co., now disbanded.

Central Labor Union hall was the gathering place of one hundred and twenty-five guests, including the B. P. O. E. band, Saturday night, at a reception tendered Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wallace Piche, in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The silver wedding was marked by the carrying out of an entertaining program, in charge of Fred Tayler, master of ceremonies. The program: Fred Taylor, vocal solo, Shadows Fall; little Miss Marie Connelly, dance, Sailor's hornpipe; Henry Moran, song, That Old Fashioned Mother of Mine; the Connolly sisters, Margaret and Alice, whirlwind dance; Mrs. Grace Ashton, song, Doodle-Do-Do; Miss Florence Gervis, soft shoe dance; the feature number was Silver Threads Among the Gold, sung and dramatized by Mr. and Mrs. Piche. Other piano and vocal selections were by George E. Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Piche received many gifts from friends, relatives, the B. P. O. E. band, and employes of the swift spooling department of the American Thread company. Mr. Piche was born in Baltic, the son of Jeremiah and Elize St. Onge Piche. He has resided here for the greater part of his life and has been a member of Willimantic bands for over thirty years. Mrs. Piche (Annie McCormack) was born in Yolountown, the daughter of David and Sarah McKee MacCormack. Two daughters were born to them, Mrs. John T. Healy, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Alice Viola Piche of this city. Guests from out of town of the celebration included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edgar and Mrs. Ella Niles and daughter Ruth, of Stonington; Mrs. Martha Holmes, New London; Mr. and Mrs. William Stiles and Mr. and Mrs. William Stiles Jr., Talcottville; William MacCormack, South Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. John Healy and Misses Margaret and Nora Healy of Worcester.

The Central building, a business block on Union street, has changed hands, being sold by Arthur J. Dubreuil to Samuel Eisenberg. The building was remodeled several years ago from the wooden structure known as the Boynton place after its purchase by Mr. Dubreuil. The building has stores on the ground floor, and living apartments in the two upper stories. The lower floor is occupied at present by a restaurant, a cigar and tobacco store, billiard and pool room, barber shop and bowling alleys in the basement. The new owner, Samuel Eisenberg, recently disposed of the Surprise Store, a dry goods and men's clothing store, which he conducted on Jackson street since his coming here from Haverstraw, N. Y., 18 years ago. In the future Mr. Eisenberg will devote his time strictly to the management of his new purchase.

A gift of $200 has been made to the Congregational church in Chaplin by E. L. Mansure, of Chicago, a summer resident of the town of Chaplin.

Rev. Edwin M. Pickos conducted the funeral services held Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Mary E. Barber, at her home in South Coventry. The bearers were George W. Barber, Otis Sutherland, William Cleveland and Charles Barber. Burial was in Nathan Hale cemetery, South Coventry. Avery & VanZandt were in charge.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, 53, who died Sunday in St. Joseph's hospital from lobar pneumonia, was born in Green Bay, Wisconsin, May 1, 1871, daughter of Ole and Emma Thompson. She is survived by her husband, Burnside Taylor, of New York, two children, Mrs. Leroy Gurmond, and Chester Taylor of New York, a sister, Mrs. W. E. Taylor of this city, and two grandchildren.

Richard L. Wiggins, foreman of the spool shop at the American Thread company, after a very recent return from the hospital and an internal operation, suffered a double misfortune, falling on Church street on some ice on the walk, breaking his right arm just below the shoulder.

On a charge of intoxication to which he pleaded guilty, Mike Douski, of Norwich, appeared in court Monday morning, and received a sentence from Judge F. H. Foss of a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $18.16, which he paid. He was taken into custody by Officer Hormidas Caisse, while creating a disturbance on Brook street, shortly before midnight Saturday.

The case of Abraham and Molly Krug, charged with failure to furnish heat of at least 68 per cent in the flat of their block, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peck, was continued again until 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The "Fathers' night meeting" of the Windham Parent-Teachers' association was held Monday night at Windham Center school. "Father nights alternate in this club with Mothers' afternoons" on the first Monday of every month. Rev. James Graham, pastor of Windham Congregational church, spoke on his experiences in the World War. Professor H. A. Seckerson of Connecticut Agricultural college gave a talk on The Importance of Drama in the Community, dwelling on the need for community enterprise, especially in the smaller country towns, and the fitness of drama as a medium for bringing the people together for something for which they are all interested. Coffee and cake were served by the women of the association.

Of the towns organized and actively working with drama in preparatory for work on the circuit later, Andover seems to be in the lead with preparing a comedy in three acts, "His Uncle's Niece" and two one-act plays, "Spoiling the Broth," and the farce entitled "Free Speech." In Hebron, the Dramatic club is rehearsing a three-act society comedy, "The Regiment of Two," for production in February, after which a group of one-act plays will be scheduled for presentation on the circuit, after try-outs at home. One of these is to be Booth Tarkington's "Bimbo, the Pirate." The others have not been chosen.

At the top of Post Hill in Columbia Saturday afternoon a big gasoline truck tried to stop at the top of the hill in front of the Robinson farm. This is quite a hill, one of highest points, in fact, in this part of the state, and the trap-rock road was slippery. The driver jammed on the brake, and the heavy vehicle skidded, swayed, and turned completely around and started back to Willimantic, before the driver was able to get it under control.

Owing to the illness of Bert Lyman, conductor of the Hampton band, the two-act comedy and dance which were to have been given in Hebron Saturday night by that organization had to be postponed indefinitely. The play, "Squaring It With the Boss," has already been given in Hampton and North Windham.

JOSEPH ROBETOR'S BODY FOUND IN SHANTY

The body of Joseph Robetor, 68, was found Sunday afternoon in a shanty on the John Costello farm, in Mansfield, where he had possibly died from apoplexy as early as Saturday night. Medical Examiner Dr. F. R. Converse of West Willington was called and determined the cause of death. Mr. Robetor was both a woodchopper and the manufacturer of ax handles in the town of Chaplin, where he had been a resident for some fifteen years and had a small factory. The shanty where his death occurred is located about half way between Storrs and Eagleville and is half a mile from the Costello farm.

TEN PER CENT. CUT JAN. 12 IN AMERICAN THREAD MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 5.—A cut of ten per cent in the wages of the employes at the Willimantic office of the American Thread Co., was announced Monday afternoon, to go into effect January 12. The cut will be general in all the company's mills in Holyoke, Fall River, Westerly and this city. This is the second reduction in wages made in the mills since the war, the other being 22 21-2 per cent. made January 1, 1921, and followed in April 1923, by an increase of 12 1-2 per cent.

JEWETT CITY

Not a little interest is being taken in the public meeting to be held at the A. A. Young, Jr., Fire company's house Thursday evening. The needs of the borough in the all important matter of adequate and efficient fire fighting apparatus have caused Chief Thomas Wakely and his men to decide to place the matter squarely before the property owners of the borough.

Jewett City is subject all the time to an ever-increasing fire menace. Records stand to prove the increased losses and the advance in the number of alarms recorded. Chief Wakely has in his years of service as a fire fighter come into close touch with a number of fire problems which he is able to so place before the property owners as to convince those who think that Jewett City doesn't need a pumper that it does, and that most emphatically. Chief Wakely has some of the best backing in town when he says that the company's inefficient Ford hose truck should be supplemented by the purchase of a pumper. First, the present truck will not carry, if it is to make speed, the necessary equipment needed. At the LaBarre fire in December the streams through 500 feet of hose were of such little force that the chief found much to criticize. Had there been the usual stiff northeast winter wind at this high locality, the upper part of the town must have burned.

If a fire occurred at the Riverside schoolhouse, the standpipe in the building would take all the pressure from the small main that runs up School street. To fight from the outside, in an attempt to save the lives of the hundreds of children, a pumper would be, and is, an imperative necessity, with the river near by from which to draw. In event of a bad fire in the Ninigret or Ashland villages, without a pumper with power to give a two-nozzle 500-gallon stream at high pressure, the firemen, as willing and efficient as they are, would be fighting a losing game against the unnecessary handicap of impaired water supply with force.

Chief Wakely is anxious in the matter; he has already received the promise from the Ashland Cotton company that they will meet and equal the subscription of any of the other industrial concerns of the borough. At the meeting opinions can be expressed and information given that must insure favorable action by those whose property is subject continually to the ever-present menace of fire.

A large part of the day Monday was marked by almost spring weather, the mercury rising to 46 degrees.

A clipping and picture from a recent issue of the New York Evening Journal was received in town Monday which is of local interest. John ("Si") Plunkett, a native of Jewett City, is seen in the foreground, true to life, as he was known here. The item reads: "The 'Tub' changed hands today. "Mr. Zero," less well known by his right name of Urbain Ledoux, gave up the eating place he has made famous, to a committee of three men, who guaranteed to feed the jobless men for five cents a meal, although they are no: sure how they are going to do it."

The picture shows the ceremony, as the deed of the "Tub" is being passed to "Si" Plunkett.

Jewett City people know "Si" to be a man of marked versatility, and are sure he will make the same success of slinging Broadway hash, that has attended his other ventures in the business line.

News of the death of Mrs. William Barr, which occrred January second at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Temple in Claremont, N. H., was received in the borough Sunday. Mrs. Barr has lived for several years in Jewett City where she conducted a boarding house. Her patrons were always made to feel that her house was a home. On several occasions she gave birthday parties for some of her boarders. No work was too hard for her to do, and neatness and good cooking were her specialties. She has been in failing health for several months, and was taken to her daughter's home a few weeks ago. Her husband and several children survive her.

Wills; associate conductress, Mrs. Sarah Hinchcliffe; chaplain, Mrs. Ellen Paul; marshal, Mrs. Lillian R. Crumb; organist, Miss Ethel A. Thompson; Adah, Mrs. Marion B. Hill; Ruth, Miss Gladys I. Jeffers; Esther, Mrs. Mena Hiscox; Martha, Miss Bessie I. Thompson; Electa, Mrs. Mabel Kinnie; warden, Mrs. Grace W. Webster; sentinel, Percival Collins.

There was a large reunion on the holiday of relatives and friends from Westerly, Chicago, Canada, Danielson, Willimantic and Providence at the home of Henry Barber, of Main street, Jewett City. A turkey dinner was served. During the day there were violin solos, quartettes, piano solos and trios, during the afternoon dancing was enjoyed by all in the quadrilles prompted by Mrs. McCarthy.

Potato's Travels

The potato plant is a native of America. Growing wild on the plateaus of Mexico and Chile it made its way first to Spain, then to Italy and Vienna and finally won the plaudits and the appetites of the rest of the Old World. Sir Walter Raleigh was responsible for its introduction into Ireland in 1580.

Many a man's strong argument is in reality nothing but a loud noise.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

A trip of 40 miles by the freight train leaving New London 75 years ago was the cause of considerable discussion and marked the performance of a wonder to people here in those days.

Fights all over the country for control of state houses were noticeable and President Taylor was finding southern states somewhat against his stand on the slave question.

News in part from the columns of The Courier in 1850 is as follows:

Tuesday, January 1, 1850—The Courier did not publish on New Year's day in 1850.

Thursday, January 3, 1850—We are glad to be able to state that the Hartford and Willimantic railroad has at last been completed, so that the cars now run to the Willimantic depot and the through passengers have only to to step off of one train into the other. We presume that arrangements will soon be made for sending passengers and baggage through from Hartford cars.

Forty passengers boarded the first class cars at the West Side depot and fully a dozen boarded the second class cars. Over a score of people got off at this station, indicating that Norwich is patronizing the road.

The name of the postoffice at Wilkinson, Windham county, has been changed to Quinebaug. The postmaster or Lippitt post office, R. I., has notified us that the name of that office has been changed to Phoenix post office under which name it will hereafter be known.

News has been received here of the burning of the beautiful state house of Alabama. All state records were saved and the legislature will meet for the time being in the Presbyterian church.

The New Year ball of the Firemen's Benevolent association proved to be a great success as usual and there was a fine attendance at the ball.

Saturday, January 5, 1850—Rev. Mr. Bill of Bean Hill lectured before the Young Men's Lyceum, last evening, at the town hall, on Music. We were not able to be present but hear that it was most interesting.

New postoffices have been established in the state at North Franklin, New London county, and A. J. Rogers appointed postmaster; at Mansfield Station, Tolland county, and Enoch Hovey appointed postmaster; and at East Suffield, Hartford county, F. A. Sykes appointed postmaster.

HOUSTON TO HAVE EQUESTRIAN STATUE

"Like the city that spreads over the District of Columbia, and the capital of Nebraska, Houston, Texas, where the second largest equestrian statue in the world soon is to be set up, was named for one of the outstanding leaders and heroes of America," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "But because Sam Houston, the subject of the huge statue, carried on his work on the frontiers rather than in the relatively crowded East, his fame has suffered.

"Sam Houston might be considered a sort of Average struck between Daniel Boone, Andrew Jackson, and George Washington—which makes him more typical of American leaders of the past century than most of his fellows," continues the bulletin. "Like Boone he loved the frontier, was an excellent woodsman, and was recognized as a leader by the Indians as well as by his fellow Americans. Like Jackson he was a rough and ready, but an admirable soldier. And like Washington, he combined military skill with a natural ability to command attention in the council chamber. Like Washington, too, he played a prominent part in shaping the destiny of his country. His was the major role in freeing one-twelfth of the present territory of the United States from Mexico and annexing it to the Union as the state of Texas.

"Few men have held so many positions of authority in different jurisdictions as Sam Houston. He was a member of Congress from the state of Texas and Governor of Tennessee, commander-in-chief of the Army of Colonial Texas, President of the republic of Texas, Senator from the state of Texas and governor of Texas.

"The city which is the namesake of General Sam Houston is more happily and less arbitrarily designated than most communities that bear the names of famous men. It was almost on the site of the city that General Houston, commanding the revolutionary army of Texas, defeated Santa Ana, president and commander-in-chief of Mexico, in the Battl of San Jacinto on April 21, 1836, and made possible the state of which Houston is now on the leading cities.

"If the old general could see through the bronze eyes of the effigy which will be set up near the scene of his pregnant victory, he would behold a vastly different region from that over which his soldiers fought with their muzzle-loading muskets. The long grass in which 'the Mexican Napoleon' was found hiding the day after his defeat has been replaced by the close clipped lawns of tens of thousands of dwellings of a modern American City. The few old trails have turned into a checkerboard of paved business streets, while railroads and electric lines and shell highways radiate out into a region of farms, orchards and ranches. The place bristles with skyscrapers—more, Houstonians' assert, than any other city of like size.

"One of the noteworthy transformations is that which has made once inland Houston a seaport. Buffalo Bayou, on whose banks Texas independence was won, is no more. Modern fairy wands—steam shovels and dredges and a few million dollars—have turned the sluggish old stream into the Houston Ship Canal which has made the city a sort of American Manchester. Ocean steamers traverse the canal to a basin on the city's fringe and help to move the 5,000,000 bales of cotton that are marketed through Houston annually.

"The population of Houston is an unknown quantity. In 1920 the city had 138,276 inhabitants. The Census Bureau refuses to guess at the present number. It puts Houston in a sort of hall of fame with about a half dozen other cities which, it is officially explained, are growing so rapidly that an estimate would be valueless. Unless Houston requests a special enumeration as some other cities have done it will have to do its own guessing until Uncle Sam's next official counting of noses in 1930.

"Houstonians have one grudge against their fellow countrymen of the north and east. If your name is Saunders and persons you meet carelessly call you 'Sanders' or 'Zander,' you will understand their indignation and annoyance at the constant mispronunciation of their city's name. The first syllable is not pronounced as if it were 'house' or 'whose' but like the verb 'to hew' or the masculine Christian name 'Hough.'"

Broadway Theater

The Paramount screen version of J. M. Barrie's stage play, Peter Pan, a Herbert Brenon production for Paramount, is the feature at the Broadway theater this week. The picture is an daptation by Willis Goldbeck and features Betty Bronson Ernest Torrence, Cyril Chadwick, Virginia Brown Faire and Anna May Wong in the leading roles.

Five years ago it might have been said that such a picture couldn't be made. And it would have been true. For Paramount needed every last particle of its long experience and every trick known to present-day motion picture production to make Peter Pan a possibility. Just such a picture is Peter Pan.

Everyone knows the story which is even more pleasing in its screen form—and Betty Bronson in the title role! They searched far and wide for a Peter Pan type and found Miss Bronson right under their very noses in the Hollywood studios. To say that she's a "find" is putting it mildly. She's perfect!

Ernest Torrence, as the frightful pirate captain Hook, gives a characterization which overshadows even his role of Jackson in The Covered Wagon. And the same goes for each and every other member of the cast. It is said that six months were spent before a camera was turned on Peter Pan that it might be as near perfection as it was possible to make it. Let us spend six months in preparation on a few more of our productions if this is the result, say we.

In addition to this master picture there is also a great vaudeville program.

Coming to Broadway Theater

On a little snow-covered porch a colored jazz band, in Santa Claus costumes was playing "shaky" tunes. Christmas decorations were on all sides. Lights gleamed brightly from a hundred globes on a huge Christmas tree and tiny icicles hung from the porch eaves.

It was a typical holiday scene. You could almost feel the frost biting your ears and each instant you expected to hear the jingle of distant sleigh bells.

Yet within fifty feet the warm sun beamed down upon an outdoor bathing pool in which slim beauties disported gaily.

It was all at a motion picture studio of course—and it was during the filming of Mrs. Wallace Reid's fine photodrama, Broken Laws which F. B. O. brings to the Broadway theater on Sunday.

The Christmas scene was but one of the colorful episodes in Broken Laws. It represents a Christmas party at the private home of a very "jazzy" young matron who has invited a crowd of friends to celebrate the holiday. More and more hilarious grows the party as the guests make frequent trips to the punch bowl. And as the party is at its height, two little children creep from their beds to look upon the revelry and form opinions which later in life greatly affect their conduct and their future.

Broken Laws is a vital drama of today, carrying a punch and a lesson at the same time. It is played by a splendid cast including Mrs. Wallace Reid, Percy Marmont, Ramsey Wallace Jacqueline Saunders, Virginia Lee Corbin, Arthur Rankin and many others. R. William Neill directed.

Breed Theater

Wine of Youth, King Vidor's picturization of Rachel Crother's play, Mary the Third, is the feature attraction at the Breed today. This Metro-Goldwyn picture is a faithful transcription of how a typical flapper of modern days decides which of her beaus to marry by taking them both on an unchaperoned camping party.

Eleanor Boardman proves her right to stellar honors as the flapper in question, while Pauline Garon appears to fine advantage as her closest girl friend. No less than eight leading men are in the picture. They include Ben Lyon, William Haines, William Collier, Jr., Bobby Agnew, Johnnie Walker, Creighton Hale, Niles Welch and James Morrison. Carey Wilson make the adaptation.

The Pathe News, Felix the Cat and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Woman's Auxiliary to Meet Today.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the Woman's auxiliary of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. will hold its regular open meeting, and it promises to be most interesting.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wallace S. Ailis at 305 Broadway. In addition to the regular business Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard will render soprano solos and Miss Amy L. Coggswell will give interesting readings. The president, Miss Marion Bishop, will preside, and there will doubtless be a large attendance.

WELL ONE DAY IN BED THREE

That Was the Life of Mrs. Hollister Until she Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyandotte, Michigan.—"After my baby was born I did not do my own work for six months and could hardly take care of my own baby. I always had a pain in my right side and it was so bad I was getting round shoulders. I would feel well one day and then feel so bad for three or four days that I would be in bed.

One Sunday my mother came to see how I was, and she said a friend told her to tell me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So the next day I got a bottle and before it was half taken I got relief. After I was well again I went to the doctor and he asked me how I was getting along. I told him I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and he said it did not hurt any one to take it. I am always recommending the Vegetable Compound to others and I always have a bottle of it on hand."—Mrs. HENRY HOLLISTER, R. D. No. 1, Box 7, Wyandotte, Mich.

ATTENTION! Motor Car Owners

Effective January 5th, 1925. A charge of 25c will be made for testing and filling batteries, and tightning and cleaning terminals. The Battery Service men of Willimantic agree that service fairly done and charged for is just as truly service as though it was done for nothing. The testing for state of charge-filling, the cleaning of terminals, etc., are a kind of service, which, if honestly performed, should be paid for. In reality these acts constitute battery maintainance as distinguished from the not uncommon word Service, which to some mean doing something for nothing. Therefore, owing to the constantly increasing number of cars requiring battery service and ever increasing cost, the Battery firms listed below agree that they are only fair in asking this nominal charge for honest work.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said Monday omrning that he will hold an inquest relative to the accident that cost Miss Anna McCauley her life. Miss McCauley, a Providence young woman who had been employed at Mechanicsville, was so badly injured on a Sunday evening last month, when struck by a car driven by County Game Warden Charles M. Letters, of Putnam, the accident happening in that city, that it was later found necessary, at the Day Kimball hospital, to amputate her leg. Miss McCauley lingered itunf eadv Sunday evening, suffering greatly much of the time, and then died.

Coroner Bill was notified during Sunday of the precarious condition of Miss McCauley and went to the hospital. Miss McCauley could not be interviewed and Coroner Bill was unable to obtain any facts from her as to the accident and the circumstances surrounding it. Miss McCauley's condition had been so serious at all times since she was injured that a statement could not be obtained by the coroner. Something as to the accident is related in the Putnam news this morning.

Up to Monday afternoon Coroner Bill had not definitely fixed the time for the inquest.

The substitution of motor-driven cars for trains on the local branch of the New Haven road has aroused in the minds of many here what effect it will have on the mail and express service. It was stated at the postoffice Monday that the mail service will not suffer, as it is rare that any matter ever is received here from the south at 9.36 a. m., the time at which one of the new cars would arrive here instead of a train. As to express service, that will occupy the attention of business men and it was stated Monday that deliveries will be carefully checked with a view to taking such action as may be deemed necessary in case it is found that shipments here are delayed through the substitution of the new cars for the trains.

Monday afternoon, at the Congregational church in Brooklyn, funeral services for Gurdon A.Parker were conducted by Rev. John R. Pratt. There was an unusually large congregation, testimony to the high esteem in which the young man was held in his native town. During the service Mr. and Mrs. Marshall J. Frink and Mrs. Charles S. Hyde sang My Faith Looks Up to Thee, and Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me. Miss Helen Witter was at the piano. Burial was in the South cemetery. The bearers were Byron Parker and Charles Parker, cousins of the deceased, George Herr and George Nelsen. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Mr. Parker died Friday night at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where he had been a patient for two days. He was a son of George A. and Carrie M. Greenman Parker and was born in Brooklyn September 4, 1903. Mr. Parker leaves his father, a brother, Frank, 14 years of age, and a sister, Muriel, 10. His mother died about three years ago.

Judge W. Fering Woodward, secretary of the Danielson Firemen's association, made known Monday that an effort is being made to recruit the membership of the organization. More honorary members of the department are needed to build it to the required strength. Honorary members may be of great value to the department in an emergency. Such members at all times may enjoy the facilities of the nicely appointed club rooms of the central fire station on Academy street. Danielson, having no paid fire department, depends upon its citizenship to furnish the personnel for as good and efficient a fire department as is to be found in any town the size of Danielson in New England. Rarely has the number of members fallen to a point where it has seemed necessary to ask the public for volunteers to recruit its strength, but that happens to be the case at the present time. This fact being known to the public, it is not unlikely that a sufficient number of volunteers for membership will present themselves promptly.

A price war is on in the raw fur market in this territory. Prices are being jacked up by sharp competition for the furs that are taken by the trappers who work out of Danielson and many other communities hereabouts. Though the fact is not generally sensed, the raw fur business transacted in this section each winter amounts to scores of thousands of dollars. It is a bigger business than the public generally knows about. Hence, a price war is of more than passing interest. Pelts may bring a somewhat fixed price to the trapper who is prompt to sell and maybe considerable more to one who shops about a bit for a market, before disposing of his wares. The sales season is now at its height, though many pelts have been marketed during the past month.

Being a woodchopper isn't so bad in these modern days—as to lonesome, long and dreary nights after the labor of the da vis over. Go into a woodchopper's camp on one of these winter nights and likely as not one will find the choppers listening to some splendid orchestra, broadcasting from a metropolitan hotel. Or the men may be taking note of the closing quotations of the day's market, or hearing a lecture on some interesting subject. Out in the back country districts, in lonely wooded section, the miracle worker is bringing its messages through the air to help shorten and brighten the evening hours for men who work hard in the daytime. A lumberman's shack in these winter days of 1925 is really in touch with the world. The radio has worked a wonder for such men.

Monday's mild weather, with temperature above the freezing point for several hours, helped clear what little ice remained from the surface of the state highways hereabouts. The danger to drivers now is to suddenly come upon some shaded section of highway where the sun has been unable to do its work and where, consequently, a film of ice remains. There are only a few such places hereabouts, in contrast to conditions a few miles to the north.

Confusion is bound to result from the similarity during the night season of the new registration plates of Connecticut and Massachusetts automobiles. The background of the Connecticut plates is dark blue, the background of the Bay state plates balck. Both have white figures of similar type. Try distinguishing between the registrations of cars from these states at night, when the cars are rolling at a good pace, and one will realize the difficulty. Officers hereabouts already have commented upon the chances that exist for confusion.

State highway crews are doing good work in sanding icy sections of trunk line highways in this territory, adding to the degree of safety with which one may drive over the roads.

The body of Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald, who died in Elizabeth, N. J., Sunday, arrived here Monday. Mrs. Fitzgerald was for many years a resident of Brooklyn and of Danielson.

The motor-driven railway truck, replacing passenger trains on the local branch of the New Haven, reappeared on the northbound run Monday morning, after an absence of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Morrissette of Wauregan have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Morrisette, to Rene L. Taillon of Bristol, Conn. Miss Morrisette has devoted a number of years to teaching and for a time was engaged as a teacher in the schools of Killingly.

Though a drive was made to have all former service men make their applications for a bonus prior to January 1 of this year, it is pointed out that such applications may continue to be filed until January 1, 1928, a period of two more years.

Daniel O'Connell, agent here for the New Haven road, has been a recent visitor with relatives in Franklin, Mass.

George A. Battell of Pawtucket was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Monday.

Alfred Pate, formerly agent here for a cotton manufacturing concern, was greeted by many friends Monday. Mr. Pate is returning to this territory to be connected with the cotton manufacturing industry.

N. A. Witter has gone to Florida to remain until April. Cards postmarked at Jacksonville last Friday were received by friends here Monday morning.

State Officers Ross Urquhart and Merrill Keith of the Danielson barracks will be in Hartford this (Tuesday) evening to attend the inaugural ball.

Local attorneys will be in Putnam today (Tuesday) for the opening of the January term of the Windham county superior court for the consideration of cases on the criminal list.

Drills will be resumed by the personnel of the Service battery at the state armory this evening, following the holiday respite from the duty. After the drill the members will enjoy a smoker.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Morrison have included a visit in Florida to their southern itinerary.

Have my registration plates arrived? Has my bonus come in yet? These are questions frequently asked these days of the postal force. Many times the answer is "NO."

There is to be a public installation on the evening of January 14 of the officers of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, at the organization's hall here.

This week's game for the Service battery will be with the Monties of Willimantic, one of the strongest teams in this part of the state. The contest should develop some excellent basketball.

This is a momentous week for prisoners held at the county jail in Brooklyn to answer to criminal charges, as they are to be put to plea in the superior court in Putnam.

The exodus of members-elect of the legislature from towns hereabouts began Monday afternoon and this morning will find the majority of the members in Hartford.

PUTNAM

Fines and costs assessed and collected by the city court during the past year totaled $11,095.03. Nine-tenths of this amount was imposed on and paid by violators of the liquor law, who numbered forty-seven, an average of about $200 each. Arrests for intoxication were 146.

The total number of arrests was 242, divided as follows: Intoxication 142, assault 3, breach of the peace 11, non-support 2, common drunkard 4, violation of motor laws 39, liquor laws 47, breaking and entering 1, train riding 3, insane 7, theft 1, dog law 1, rape 1, runaway boys 2, larceny 7, vagrancy 2, milk law 2, breaking jail 1, child labor law 3, gambling house 1, residing in disorderly house 2, perjury 3, frequenting disorderly house 9, conducting disorderly house 2, frequenting gambling house 4 worthless check 1, abuse female child 1.

These cases were disposed of as follows: Paid fines and costs 95 put in charge of probation officer 27, committed to jail 30, held for outside offices 24, bound over 33, nolled 4, committed to Norwich State hospital 5, judgment suspended 7, released by captain 4, continued 15, placed on file 38, complaint withdrawn 1, forfeited bonds 10, discharged 10.

During the year 352 men were given lodging at the police station. Doors found open and secured numbered 51.

Miss Anna McCauley, 33, of Providence, died Sunday night at Day Kimball hospital from injuries sustained December 10th in an automobile accident. She was caught and crushed between two cars. Her leg was so badly mangled that amputation was performed immediately. After recovering from the shock of the accident and the operation sh eseemed to gain strength and recovery was hoped for, but septic poisoning set in and ended in death.

She lived at 930 Manton avenue, Providence, with three younger sisters, both her parents being dead. For six months prior to the accident she had been employed as a sewer at the Beachmont Worsted Co., and boarded at the Mechanicsville inn. Miss Florence Roberts, whose home is also in Providence, worked with Miss McCauley at the Beachmont Company plant. The latter's sister, Miss Ethlyn Roberts drove from Providence on the second Sunday in December in a Ford coupe and took Florence Roberts and Miss McCauley for a ride. Coming down School street just as darkness fell the car stalled and the occupants started to get out to try and discover the trouble. Miss McCauley was poised on the running board on one foot and the other within a few inches of the ground, when another car came by so close to theirs that she was caught and her leg crushed between them.

This car, a Ford coupe, was driven by Charles Letters, county game warden. He says that no lights showed on the car that was stopped and he did not see it in time to avoid the collision. There are conflicting stories about the lights, but nothing definitely known to show that Mr. Letters did not exercise due caution. The car, it is understood, belongs to the state, at least the liability insurance is carried by the state.

It has been claimed that both Miss Roberts, the driver, and her sister declare that their lights were burning. Two of the first to reach the site of the accident say that the headlights were on, but they did not look to see if the rear light was. Mr. Letters' car was traveling in the same direction as the car he struck and he insists that no lights showed.

Two physicians were called and the injured woman was given prompt attention. An automobile driven by Owen Marsh, of Webster, was called with Francis Greene as a passenger. The latter took off his necktie and gave it for use as a tourniquet.

At a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Monday, the resignation of Daniel J. Byrne was accepted and Arthur S. Macdonald was elected in his stead for the unexpired term. A resolution was passed to ask the city council if it will stand one-half of the expense of erecting a sign at Miller's Corner, on Woodstock avenue, to aid traffic in taking the right road at that turn.

Miss Carolyn Morse has been visiting relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Janet C. Shepard left Monday for a visit to Boston, Washington and the south. She expects to be gone several weeks.

Maude Adams, known to everyone as the stage star supreme, and portrayer of "Peter Pan," who is devoting her life to science. She has caught the Peter Pan "never get old" spirit, and is using her energy in her new pursuits. Some time ago, she retired from the stage, and went to work secretly in a laboratory. She has now come to New York, and up in the theatre district, she is in a locked room with a few trusted aides, working out on some secret scientific experiment, which will benefit mankind, as have the discoveries of Mme Curie, Louis Pasteur, Thomas Edison and others.

WESTERLY

In continuance of the Westerly trial calendar of the November term of superior court for Washington county, came in Monday morning shortly before 11 o'clock in the superior court house, Westerly, with Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner on the bench, for the third day of the present Westerly sitting. Following last Friday's adjournment, when in the Matarese automobile damage case the judge directed a verdict for the defendant, the automobile damage case of Mary B. Cashman of New London, formerly of Hartford vs. John Donofria, alias, of Westerly was taken up with Attorney Gallagher for the plaintiff and Roche for the defendant. A jury was empanelled with Eugene Barney of Westerly, foreman. The attorney for the plaintiff told the court and jury that the case was one of trespass in the case for negligence when Dec. 28th, 1923, at the function of Broad and Williams street in New London the Standard sedan, operated by the plaintiff was smashed by the auto truck operated by John Donofria (John Adamo), of Westerly. It was claimed that the defendant's truck was operated carelessly and recklessly and that the sedan was pushed off the road onto a park and against a telegraph pole. It was damaged, and as a result a bill of $363.75 for repairs and $125 for painting was paid by the plaintiff. He would ask that the jury award proper damages.

Mrs. Mary Bradley Cushman, now of New London, gave testimony that she was proceeding about 15 miles an hour on her way to Hartford on Broad street. With her at the time were Dr. Lindsley, Captain Loaman and Mrs. Waddington of Baltimore. No one was injured, but her car sustained a broken axle, wheel, left front fender, broken running board, and a bad dent in the left door. Repairs to the car were made by George Brown of the Highland garage.

In cross examination Attorney Roche found from the plaintiff that she had driven an automobile since 1916 and had owned the present 8-cylinder car since 1921. When she applied the brakes on the day in question although it was stormy the car did not skid.

When Attorney Roche asked her if she had not already been paid damages by an insurance company Attorney Gallagher objected and when the question was pressed a second time, Judge Sumner said it was untimely and improper and if Attorney Gallagher wished he would take the case from the jury and pass it. After a short conference Mr. Gallagher agreed although Mr. Roche wished an exception noted that the witness had not answered the question. Judge Sumner announced: "The case can be taken from the jury and passed."

The action other than criminal, Edward Haswell Buffum vs. Elizabeth Haswell was called and Attorney Roche told the court that the plaintiff's Attorney Rathbun, was in Boston.

Angelo M. Guarino vs. Westerly Motors, Inc., was called and Attorney Dunn said that the plaintiff attorney, Ferguson, was at the regular town council meeting which had adjourned and he was nowhere to be found. The divorce case of Bliven vs Bliven was not ready. When Attorney Dunn returned to the court room Judge Sumner directed, as the Guarino case was not ready, that the jurors be excused until Wednesday morning when the Guarino-Westerly Motors case would be begun at 10.30 o'clock.

Court adjourned to that time.

The Westerly Historical society is to hold its postponed January meeting Thursday evening in the assembly hall of the Wilcox Memorial and Public library. The president of the society, Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple, will speak on "Happenings in Westerly," the facts for the talk being gathered from a scrapbook recently presented the society by Albert P. Pendleton, who recently retired from being long proprietor of a provision store on lower Main shtreet, in a section of Westerly in olden times known as "Bung Town."

President Clifford W. Campbell and Councilman Charles Fowler were the only absentee members of Westerly town council, when the January session was held at 9.30 Monday morning in the council rooms of the Westerly town hall. There were present Councilmen Thomas Morrison, who was elected president, pro tem., Utter, Rossi, Nichols and Smith, Council Clerk Whipple and Town Solicitor Ferguson.

Mrs. Annie York, secretary of the Watch Hill Improvement society, appeared with a letter to the council, as she stated upon advice before the budget meeting of the council was held, previous to the annual Westerly town financial meeting. In the letter application was made for $500 for the purpose of giving attention to care of the streets and gutters at Watch Hill. Town Solicitor Ferguson said that the council were unable to appropriate money for private purposes. Mrs. York said that the few women members of the improvement society had contributed $750 for work of this nature, a part of which might have been caused by Westerly visitors to the Hill. This year it would be necessary to have $1,000 for the purpose of carrying on the work. Mrs. York was advised by members of the council to consult the Westerly Highway commission, Engineer A. J. Leon was the man she was told to see first.

A letter was received from W. R. Fowler, of the Westerly Board of Trade relative to the advisability of the town of Westerly spending money for advertising purposes; providing that an act be drawn for the general assembly subject to the vote of the Westerly financial town meeting. On motion of Councilman Utter, seconded by Councilman Rossi, the vote was passed and the assembly members were requested to secure its passage.

As the town had accepted the provisions of the R. I. Mothers' Aid law, the bill of Miss Maude Price, directress, for $11.51 in the 1923 year was O. K'd by the council.

Postmaster Thomas Lenihan was given authority to renumber Spruce street. It was also brought out that Postmaster Lenihan desired the name of Main shtreet in White Rock changed to White Rock road, as it conflicted with Main street in the business section.

Building permits were approved for the following: David Smith, Pleasant View; George M. Pendleton, Joseph A. Brown, Cross street; Harry Coleman, Weekapaug; H. A. Dunning, Pleasview; Mrs. George Nicho's, Watch Hill; Herman Learned, Franklin street; J. E. Champlin, Post road; James L. Clarke, Hobart street; Dr. Walter Grenold, Elm street; Charles Litman, Beach street, and Wells R. Fowler, Elm street. Joseph Bevacqua was granted a permit to erect a gasoline station on Canal street.

Formal notice was received from the state returning board in Providence announcing the election of a senator and two representatives from Westerly.

The application of Frank Ward of the Bradford Athletic association at Bradford for a license to play football on Sundays from January to May, was granted.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, superintendent of health, reported one case of mumps, two of whooping cough and three cases of scarlet fever.

Eight arrests for December were reported by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. The report of Chief Brown for the past year showed a total of 216 arrests, 28 raids, 17 persons taken into custody and one raid for stolen clothing.

There was but one application for a milk license which was granted to William L. Richmond.

The bonds of the town treasurer and town sergeant were approved by the council.

William Crockett and John Rhodes were appointed police constables.

The usual police and traffic and town bills were ordered paid.

The funeral of Miss Catherine Sullivan was held Friday orning at 9.30 o'clock from her home, 39 Garden street. In a solemn mass of reqiem, at St. Michael's church at 9 o'clock, Rev. J. J. Keane was celebrant, Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., deacon, and Rev. J. F. Quinn, sub-deacon.

There was scripture reading by Miss Betty Whitford and prayer by several of the members. The talks were given by Rev. Arut L. Schoning and Thomas Burdick. Rev. Mr. Schoning's talk was entitled The Proofs of Our Discipleship, and the subject of the talk by Mr. Burdick was The Place of Prayer.

COLUMBIA

William A. Collins and Dwight A. Lyman, who have been ill, are now well enough to be out.

During the past week, while the state roads in town were quite slippery, a sawrig drawn by a horse down the hill leading from the Green toward Hebron began to slide with the horse down the hill. The driver managed to turn the horse and sawrig into the ditch, preventing an accident.

The drought which has existed here during the fall and winter has caused many of the wells on and near the Green to be very low, while some are entirely dry. Several of the residents are obliged to go some distance to a brook to obtain not only water for cattle and fowls but for drinking and cooking purposes also. One person has to carry eight pails of water a day for his chickens, while others go in automobiles with various receptacles to be filled. The water at the lake is also low, while the dam is being repaired. It is getting to be a serious inconvenience and a grave danger, in case of fire. The suggestion has been made that the town sink a large and deep well on the Green, insuring an unfailing supply of water for the residents on occasions like the present drought, and for use in case of fire.

Mrs. Fred A. Hunt has had an attack of pleurisy during the past week, being confined to her bed, but is now able to sit up.

William Wolff and Clinton Wolff began Friday to fill their icehouses, and are the first in town to harvest the crop. Each had 500 cakes plowed out Thursday and completed the cutting and housing of it by Saturday night. The ice was cut at the lake and was about 12 inches thick. Auto trucks were used in transporting the ice, putting about 250 cakes a day into each house, the lake being about two miles from the icehouses.

During the school holidays Clayton Hunt has had his auto truck for carrying the mail and high school pupils thoroughly repaired and overhauled.

The annual meeting and fellowship supper of the Columbia Congregational church was held at Yeomans' hall Saturday evening, attended by about 65 persons. At the business meeting after the supper A. A. Latham, the clerk, reported that the church had received 14 members during the year, lost 7 by death or removal and that there had been 6 baptisms, the present membership being 136. L. E. Winter was elected secretary; E. F. Lyman, treasurre; Henry B. Hutchins, a trustee, and H. W. Porter, a member of the standing committee. Letters from absent members were read, and an offer presented by Mrs. Mary B. Yeomans to give $300 toward the expense of wiring the church for electric lights and for fixtures, provided the society lay hardwood floors in the church. Mrs. Yeomans' offer was referred to the trustees for consideration, to be reported upon at a special meeting. The Ladies' Aid society reported a membership of 38, and the Christian Endeavor society 31. Financial reports were made by the treasurers of the church, Sunday school, Woman's Missionary society, Ladies' Aid and Christian Endeavor societies, also outside benevolences, a summary of which showed: Cash on hand Jan. 1, 1924, $368.07; received in 1924, $2,643.03; total, $3,011.10; paid for local church expenses, $1,844.26, and for missions, $763.06, leaving a balance on hand, $403.78. The pastor made an address on the needs of the parish and what is the purpose of our church, urging more interest in church affairs and larger contributions.

TIME TO ACCOMMODATE PUBLIC

Some criticism is being made because a ten-day period of grace is not permitted by the motor vehicle department for getting the automobile markers at the opening of a new year.

In all probability the motor vehicle department recognizes that there would be quite as much disposition to wait until the tenth of January before trying to get the markers as there is procrastination until the last day of the year. In other words pushing the date along would make no difference.

What seems to be needed, however, is greater effort on the part of the motor vehicle department to meet existing conditions, and no better evidence could be desired for this than the position taken by prosecutors in announcing that because of the failure of the department to supply the demands for markers those who failed to display new ones at the opening of the year would not be prosecuted.

The number of cars in Connecticut increases every year. This means a bigger demand for registrations at the close of the year. Tax collectors and offices where other kinds of licenses are obtained take the rush condition into consideration. They not only urge early payments but they put on additional help and they keep open extra hours in order to accommodate the public. That is a consideration which is due to the automobile users of Connecticut from the motor vehicle department.

Instead of forcing the large number of auto owners from all corners of Connecticut to get their markers at three or four centers there should be a branch in every city of the state at least during the month of December, and during the final week there should be enough extra clerks to take care of whatever business develops, even if it becomes necessary to keep the offices open evenings.

With such efforts as that to accommodate the public, a different public response might be expected. Being required to stand hours in the outdoor cold of midwinter while a hundred may be waiting in line or while some individuals are getting a hundred or more markers apiece isn't exactly pleasing to the automobile owner, especially if he finds the door shut in his face when the mid-afternoon whistle blows and he is many miles from home. Besides it requires much valuable time.

CHRISTMAS TREE FIRES.

With the horrible details of the schoolhouse fire at Babb's Switch, Okla., fresh in mind, a second one with fatalities in which a Christmas tree figures prominently occurred in a small hospital in Boston where one patient was found dead, 18 were removed and a fireman may have been fatally injured.

Here was an institution, with more than one exit and with windows unbarred, but where patients were in various degrees of helplessness subjected to the dangers of fire from a Christmas tree. That at least is the point at which the fire started and it furnished unusually fine food for the flames just the same as it always does when even so small a blaze gets started.

In connection with these fires it is to be noted that the fire department of New York city has advised the throwing away of the Christmas trees, and in support of its action pointed out the fact that the drying of the trees during the ten or more days they have been in the house makes them all the more inflammable and a real menace to life and property.

It is no new revelation that is being brought to light in connection with the Christmas tree. The combination of the trees and lighted candles has been so long recognized as dangerous that it is seldom found at the present time. But there are other ways in which the quick burning trees can get afire. No one knows what started the Boston blaze, but there is certainty that something did and the tree was at the very point where it made matters much worse.

There isn't anything much prettier than a nicely decorated Christmas tree. It has its delights for the young and old, the sick and the well, but in spite of the many instances where it has figured in the causing of fires, burned out homes and public buildings there fails to be thrown about it that degree of care which is required in order to insure safety to those directly concerned.

VOTING MACHINES IN NEW YORK.

By the action of the new attorney general of New York state in calling upon New York city to provide voting machines for elections in accord with the law which calls for the machines in first class cities in that state, the test of the law is to be made.

Because of the advantages which are provided by the voting machine it should be expected that the cities would be eager to install them without having it urged upon them. In view of the short time in which election results are available, in view of the elimination of the long and tedious counting, and the squabbles as to what the voter meant by his ballot, in view of the accuracy of the count, even though the vote is a tie or shows but a majority of one, the mechanical device has merits which cannot be disregarded. The voting machine might not eliminate conditions which are attributed to metropolitan voting districts. It doesn't prevent a person from voting twice, it doesn't stand in the way of a vote being cast for a dead man and it doesn't distinguish between parties; those things must be guarded against otherwise. But it simplifies the casting of voters, is accurate and quick. The voter knows that he is not going to be disfranchised in the counting room.

New York will of course fight the introduction of the machines. They will be looked upon as an interference with the established system upon which much dependence is placed and as the result of which much uncertainty invariably prevails regarding the results. The voting machine eliminates the wrong counts, the forgetting of ballots, the throwing out of votes and the interpretation by the counters or moderator as to just what the voter really intended, whether he did or not.

New York state, however, is not the only commonwealth in which populous communities should be eager to get the benefits of the voting machine.

PROVIDING THE TOYS.

Now that Christmas is over there may be a better appreciation of the size of the American toy bill. The National City Bank of New York has been getting some figures on this subject and it is authority for the statement that the production of toys by American manufacturers amounted to $56,000,000 in 1923. Just what that means in the way of new business can be gathered from the contrast which is afforded by comparison with the 1900 figures, when the American output totalled $4,000,000.

That doesn't measure the toy bill of this country for it is to be remembered that millions of dollars worth are imported. It is estimated that imports of toys alone in the year just past amounted to $5,000,000 and that for the past ten years there has been an import and export business of $70,000,000.

In these days most everything is attributed to the war. Certainly this country was depending very heavily upon other countries for its toys prior to the war. When that struggle opened toy making abroad ceased, but even if it hadn't the war would have made the importation of much of the toy trade impossible. As with dyes and other things, on which we had been depending heavily on Europe, it became necessary to produce ourselves. Toys are necessary and Americans can make toys quite as well and profitably as others can. We found it out because we were forced to it. We continue it because it is good business.

There must always be playthings and it is pleasing to know that Americans are able to provide for the multiplicity of demands in this direction. But whether domestic or foreign products, toys must be had.

OSLO COMES BACK.

For 300 years Christiania has been the capital of Norway. That city will continue to be the seat of the government but with 1925 it went back to the name which it formerly bore of Oslo. It is short and easy to pronounce and spell. It is in fact a joining of old and new cities.

Oslo is not a young city. It was founded 900 years ago by Harold III. and for six centuries he and his successors ruled there. There might never have been any change but for the fact that a disastrous fire wiped out the old city in the reign of King Christian. At that time his realm included both Norway and Denmark, and instead of rebuilding Oslo he established a new city across the fjord and in honor of himself called it Christiania. By that name it has since been known.

In time Oslo recovered but the capital was never moved. By a vote of the people there is now a joining of the old city of Oslo with Christiania, or vice versa, and the old name will serve for both. It is in fact a consolidation meaning a bigger city under the original name.

It may be a bit difficult for many to become acquainted with the new name of the Norwegian capital, but perhaps no more so than keeping up with the change in pronunciation of European cities, or the frequency of the change in the names of Russian cities. Oslo can be regarded as a simplification of the Norwegian capital's name, which is not always the object sought or accomplished when the renaming of cities is undertaken, or new pronunciations are adopted.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Apparently Connecticut led the list of tea drinking communities in its early Colonial days.

The Science Service Bulletin of a recent date states that German scientists have reached the conclusion tea is a greater stimulant than beer. After making that assertion the article goes on to call attention to the beautiful specimens of drinking vessels introduced into the colonies in the early days of American settlement. Tea drinking vessels are given first place on the list and after some interesting examples of tea drinking by the Dutch of New York it states that although slower in getting into New England the young women in those days adopted it afternoon tea drinking as their form of entertainment and used methods in brewing the tea that seem strange to us now.

As early as 1730 caution was advised in the excessive use of tea, and Connecticut is given the first place in the list of its general use as an afternoon beverage for callers.

The Service Bulletin is responsible for this statement: There is a pretty well authenticated story of some young ladies in Connecticut who in their eagerness to test the new drink boiled it in a kettle and served it like broth with the leaves for thickening.

The Dutch of New York are said to have drank their tea in a manner peculiar to themselves. They put a lump of sugar in their mouth and held it there while they sipped the tea, thus getting the sweetening as the sugar was dissolved on their tongue. One Colonial historian of New York writes that in 1756, "Our people are shamelessly gone into tea drinking," and to the stimulating effect of strong tea is attributed by some the ability of revolutionary soldiers to bear the military punishment of flogging.

In exports for the quarter ending September 30 Connecticut advanced its standing on the list of states from the 25 to the 23 place, outstripping the states of Mississippi, Tennessee and North Carolina which had previously been ahead of it. The highest shipments were ores metals and manufactures of them, except machinery and vehicles, which amounted to $5,397,471, next in importance came rubber manufactures then in the following order chemicals, hardware, textile products, electric machinery and apparatus, metal-working machinery and paper except printed matter. New York headed the list of exports and of the New England states Massachusetts was the only rival to Connecticut, while Connecticut led its nearest rival Kansas by $224,246.

The grand totals for the first nine months of 1924 give Connecticut export valuations of $626,852,326 and Iowa, which was its runner up fell below by approximately one million dollars.

A new story of Chief Justice Taft is going the rounds. It reads like this: When the former president was delivering his first argument before the supreme court of the United States of which he is now chief justice, he was young and most anxious to make a fine impression. He was also beginning to acquire what is commonly known as aldermanic proportions. The day was hot and young Taft made his plea both energetic and eloquent. When he finished his collar was wilted and beads of perspiration stood on his his flushed and well rounded cheeks. But Taft was conscious that he had been closely watched by his friend Justice Harlan, sitting on the supreme bench, and when he saw Harlan scribble a few words and pass the note to a messenger to be given Taft he was as pleased as Punch, feeling certain it was a note of congratulation. Thus it read, "Say, Bill, how much do you weigh, anyhow?"

When Senator Moses, chairman of the sub committee working on the proposed bill to raise postal salaries explained the measure before it was to come up for a vote, he made clear a difference between postal cards and post cards which the average layman did not know existed, and would naturally wonder at the proposed difference in rates. "A postal card," said the senator "is a card issued by the government and requires no additional stamp; a post card is a card got up by private individuals or organizations, and requires additional postage. The so called "picture postals" come under the classification to post cards and it is on them and not on the cards issued by the government that the proposed increase postage would apply." The senator went on to say that usually such post cards took the place of letters, and were personal communications only.

Members of the militant faction of suffragists are saying harsh things about the delay they encounter in senate hearings on their proposed equal rights amendments to the constitution. Whether or not a woman must take her husband's name and his domicile on marriage is one of the great questions of that proposed amendment, and that the women urging its passage are working hard to secure support of their theory that a married woman ought not to take her husband's name on marriage, nor should children of that marriage be necessarily given the name of their father, nor should a married woman be compelled to take the domicile of her husband as her legal residence, etc.

The senate judiciary committee has set several dates for hearings on the measure, but this far they have not been acceptable to the leaders of the amendment movers, and they are finding a lot of talk with Sub-chairman Ernest. It is unlikely that the rights bill will be brought to the front this session, as even its ardent advocates realize appropriation bills will take up all the time after Muscle Shoals is cleared from the slate.

Senator-elect Bingham of Connecticut will reach Washington this week and will be one of the speakers at a farewell banquet to be given in honor of Ambassador Jusserand, who quits his post there in a few weeks.

Congressman Tilson is presiding over the house as it sits in consideration of the appropriation bills now out of the committees.

The sale of personal property of the late Senator Brandegee as ordered by the courts here to take place next week will include notable paintings and other works of art contained in his home in this city. Among them are valuable portraits of Washington, John Paul Jones, Lafayette, Daniel Webster and Henry Clay by notable artists. It is expected the sale will draw dealers and collectors from New England as well as from large cities elsewhere.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Gilbert Murray, whose tests in mental telepathy are attracting world-wide attention, has been regius professor of Greek at Oxford University for many years, a post which he also occupied in Glasgow University from 1889 to 1899. Nevertheless, Sir Gilbert is far from confining his attention or his writings to classified subjects, and brings to every subject he touches, particularly foreign politics, a freshness of outlook which makes his writings readable as well as learned. It is interesting to note, in a writer who is particularly English, that he is a native of New South Wales. Sir Gilbert has lectured extensively in the United States and Canada. His first visit to this side was in 1912, when Amherst College induced him to reside there for a season and aid in restoring interest in the classics.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

One day last spring when George Requirer and I were driving in Palos Park, I saw such a delightful nook for a picnic that all summer long I have been wishing to have a supper party out there. Last week I finally arranged it, getting together a most congenial crowd of Dix Amies girls and our man friends. I planned delectable repast and told each of the girls what to bring.

"What's your contribution?" asked Ursula Moore when I notified her that she was to supply French chops to be cooked on the camp stove. "I suppose you're taking something specially grand, Lucille."

"Oh, no, Ursula," I replied good naturedly, "I'm merely looking after the equipment, but that's quite a responsibility with paper dishes, napkins and the cooking outfit to mobilize. I think I have really the hardest job of all."

But as it turned out I was so busy getting a new sports suit to wear that some of the details I was to attend to escaped my mind until the morning of the day of the picnic. Then I had to telephone Polly Gray to borrow her brother-in-law's camp stove. She appeared quite vexed about it.

"Of course I am glad to help," she explained, "but I'm helping mother make the Banbury tarts you asked for, and they're some task, Lucile."

"Oh, well you're such a whiz, Polly dear, you'll have them all done in no time, and then you can run out to your brother's for the stove on your way over here."

"Very well," she replied none too pleasantly.

Just when the party was gathering on our porch to start, a sudden storm arose, and the rain fell so steadily that after waiting an hour, we knew that even if it ceased the ground would be entirely too wet for an al fresco meal. I looked around at all the long faces and laughed.

"What's so funny?" asked John Fenwyck.

"I was just thinking how jolly an indoor picnic will be." I answered gayly. "We can all go to my Uncle Bob's house, and have our picnic there He and Betty and little Elizabeth are touring the Berkshires, and we have the key to the house. We can have no end of fun there. Let's go!" And go we did. We had the jolliest kind of time eating on the screened veranda, and dancing in the living room later. We sang too and had charades, and I am sure we all enjoyed the evening just as much as if we had been outdoors. I congratulated myself on having saved the situation in such a delightful way.

"For mercy sakes what's going on here?" asked Betty, who suddenly appeared among us with little Elizabeth hanging sleepily to her hand.

"For mercy sakes?" I echoed, "where did you come from, and where's Uncle Bob?"

"He's putting away the car. We had to come home sooner than we expected and we have driven since 5 this morning, and we're so tired we can't see," moaned Betty, without the slightest gesture of hospitality toward all the merry party in her home.

Indeed her behavior was so cold toward every one that our indoor picnic came to a precipitate end, and even when I thanked her sweetly for the use of her house she made only the slightest response. I felt that she probably was tired and in the morning would be sorry for her rudeness. But not so, for she called me up early and reproached me for leaving her [illegible] what she called "an unspeakable mess."

[illegible] how I felt to come home really exhausted from a rather hard trip, and find all the dishes dirty, the furniture shoved around every which way, and a hole burned in my new porch rug where you set up that silly camp stove. Really, Lucile, I don't understand how—"

"Oh, Betty darling," I interrupted her. "I'm dreadfully sorry that our little lark disturbed you. I didn't realize, dear, that you're getting along to a point where you don't sympathize with young people. You see, I thought you'd be glad to—"

"Never mind, Lucile. There's no use to discuss it," she said, and I hung up the receiver with a feeling of pity for poor Betty, who is allowing herself to get old and fussy before her time.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Gas and Electric Plant.

Mr. Editor: The people of Norwich owe The Bulletin a debt of gratitude for the valuable information on the gas and electric plant, given them in your issue of Jan. 1.

Those who did not read it should get busy and do so, then when it comes to a vote on the question of keeping or selling the plant they will be able to vote more intelligently.

One fact should never be lost sight of and that is that the plant is worth just as much to the people of Norwich as it is to any private individual or corporation. Twenty years of practical experience in trying to run the plant has taught the most stupid of us that it can't be successfully done in Norwich.

The fact that the people got stung badly by taking over the plant is no rational reason why we should be worse stung in the getting rid of the plant. The plant should go to the bidder or bidders who will guarantee to give the people of Norwich gas at $1.35 or less per thousand, electricity at 8 cents or less per KW hour and pay for the plant the nearest to what the city paid for the plant, including what the city lost in taxes while trying to run it.

There would be nothing gained in selling the plant for more than it is worth as that would simply mean larger capitalization that would make the people pay the same or more than is being paid for gas and electricity at the present time.

There are some interesting facts being brought out at the hearing of the Muscle Shoals bill in the U. S. senate, viz., Mrs. Cullom of Toronto, Ont., used up 334 KW hours of electricity doing all kinds of work in her home for which she paid $3.35 as a fraction over one cent per KW hour. Mrs. King of Washington, D. C., used 334 KW hours in her home for which she paid $23.18 or a fraction over six cents per KW hour. If they were paying for 334 KW hours in Norwich it would cost them $33.40, ten cents per KW hour.

The people of Norwich have been robbed right and left for gas and electricity and it should have been cut out some years ago.

Yours sincerely,
G. L. CROSGROVE.

Wiring at the Beebe House.

Mr. Editor: The newspaper report of the fire that destroyed the house occupied by A. H. Beebe, Salem turnpike, East Great Plain, on Dec. 23rd, incorporated my report as to the improbability of this starting from the electric wiring recently installed.

One sentence reads "Harry Cohn of 229 Laurel Hill avenue was wiring the house about 250 feet to the east, and discovered this and sent in the alarm." I wish to emphasize that this was another and separate house, the one occupied by Mr. Gawarek. This house was connected under exactly the same conditions as Mr. Beebe's. I have inspected work done by Mr. Cohn and found it installed in a reliable manner. Mr. Cohn did not wire the house occupied by Mr. Beebe.

Also when cellar cooled, I inspected the conduit and meterboard and took this apart and could find no part of the work that was not standard, and cannot find any possible or probable reason why fire could have started from the electrical installation.

Yours very truly,
N. C. PIERCE,
Superintendent Distribution.

Crissinger Had to Give up Farming

When Daniel R. Crissinger maimed his hand in a sawmill on his father's farm it looked as if his days of usefulness as a farmer were over.

Born on the Crissinger farm near Marion, Ohio, he attended the country school and helped with the chores and crops, and indications were that he would be a successful farmer. Then his hand was caught in the saw and permanently crippled. Recognizing that the boy would be unable to do hard manual labor, the father decided to educate him for the law. Sent to Buchtell College at Akron, Daniel was graduated at 24 and going to Marion, where his father had become a lumber dealer, he read law in the office of Judge William Z. Davis.

Soon he began to make up time in his tardy education. Entering the law school of the University of Cincinnati, he completed a two-year course in one, and was graduated at 26. Back in Marion, he became a law partner of Judge Davis.

Without a sufficient number of clients to keep him busy, he ran for prosecuting attorney on the Democratic ticket, and won. Now 28 and drawing a salary of $35 a month, he built a house from lumber donated by his father, and married.

Successful in the dual office of prosecuting attorney and county attorney for two terms, he was elected city solicitor of Marion and served three terms. Made attorney for the Marion Shovel Company his practice grew until he was one of the leading lawyers in that part of Ohio. He was made vice president of the Stock Yards Company, was counsel for the Erie Railroad and a director in the telephone and many other companies. Then he twice ran for congress and was defeated both times.

Having organized the City National Bank and Trust Company of Marion, he supervised it and at 59 became its president. President Harding appointed him comptroller of the currency a year later.

In 1922, at 62, he was made governor of the Federal Reserve Board. And among his riches are several farms near the one on which he was injured.

A Little Talk on Thrift

SAVING TIME

An important educational and social betterment organization has undertaken a survey of how people spend their idle time. The object is to make recommendations which, it is hoped, will lead to the advantageous employment of leisure hours.

This movement emphasizes one of the important phases of practical thrift, namely, the conservation of time. We are apt to think too much in terms of money only.

Thrift means the conservation of most efficient use of all our possessions.

If it would be possible to translate our wasted hours into terms of dollars and cents we would be surprised at the results. The average man and woman probably wastes more value through lost time than through squandered money.

It is also to be borne in mind that wasted time often leads to wasted money, wasted health and a lowering of one's moral standards.

One of the best ways to practice thrift is to keep at work to keep doing something that is worth while and is along the lines of self advancement and self improvement.

It was through the practical employment of spare time that Lincoln acquired an education, and men like Carnegie, Hill and Edison worked themselves up from positions of minor importance.

Thomas Jefferson made it a rule always to keep a good book within reach and whenever he had even a few moments of spare time he utilized them in helpful reading.

Every employer will tell you that if you want to build yourself up and make advancement do not become known as a time-waster.

Thrift of time is a lesson all must learn before success can be achieved. —American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

An Appropriate Remark

Harry was the toastmaster at a banquet given in honor of one of the organization's members. When the time came he was obliged to tell the members that the time for speechmaking was very limited, and then introduced the first guest of honor.

He was a lawyer, and, as he arose and addressed the toastmaster, said: "I take it, Mr. Toastmaster, that since the time is limited, I am to bow and sit down."

All the folks at the table tittered except the toastmaster, who retorted calmly, "That is a very appropriate remark."

Mr. Brown's Scheme

Mr. Brown came home the other evening with a neat little brown paper package. "It's a collar for that dog of Black's," he explained.

Mrs. Brown unwrapped it and gave a little cry of astonishment. "It's too good for that dog," she told him.

"Yes," he said. "I gave $2.50 for it."

"Two dollars and a half? What on earth for? I don't understand at all. You've always said that you loathe that dog."

"Yes, that's just it," Mr. Brown agreed. "With that collar on someone is sure to think the brute is worth stealing, and I'm living in hopes."

She Speaks the Language.

Golf is nearly the sole topic of dinner conversation in the family of Ruth, who is nine. Reproved gently by her mother for eating a olive of watermelon too near to the rind one day early last fall, Ruth replied: "But mother I was 'sperimenting. I found out it was just six bites to the green."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

"Toot, toot, tooty, toot, toot!"
Blew the whistle loud and shrill,
As the Rabbitville-Lettucemere Express
Came 'round Old Strawberry Hill.

Out of the little station house near the railroad crossing jumped Sam Scare Crow with a big red flag. Standing right in the middle of the road, he waved it back and forth, up and down, and three times sideways. After that, of cotrse, everybody knew that a train was coming along. But, dear me, a deaf and dumb person could have heard that whistle. My goodness yes, three times and a half.

Just then, all out of breath, up hopped Little Jack Rabbit, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw.

The next minute, with a rush and a roar, and a whizzerty bang and a steam guffaw, the express train passed over the crossing on its way to Rabbitville. On the platform of the last car stood Rastus Coon, the colored porter, waving his paw.

"Hurray!" shouted the bunny boy, swinging his khaki can.

"Glad to see you," exclaimed Jim Scare Crow carefully rolling the flag around the stick. "Come into my little house. It's nice and cosy inside. I think I'll like this job better than being in the corn field. I'd rather scare people away from a railroad crossing than flap my coat tails at a flock of crows."

When they were both seated in the tiny cabin-like house, the little rabbit on a three-legged stool and Sam Scare Crow on a wooden bench, the bunny boy pulled the paper from his pocket.

"Oh, that's how you learned that I was here," laughed the old scarecrow, lighting his corncob pipe. "The Bunnybridge Buzie is a good newspaper. All the news that's fit to print, and plenty of it."

"I bought it from Reddy Comb, the Rooster Newsboy," explained the little rabbit. "Cost me two carrot cents But that's nothing if it brings one to a good friend."

"Well, well, well," mumbled the old Scare Crow a tear glistening in his eye, "is a call on me worth two carrot cents? Mighty glad you came. Want a lettuce leaf?" and the kind old fellow held out a big green lettuce all clean and shiny. Then, puffing away on his corncob pipe, he watched the hungry little bunny boy nibble until there wasn't a nibbleweena left.

"Thank you," said the little rabbit. "Now I feel better. "I'd hate to feel hungry for more than a minute or three."

Just then Robbie Redvest hopped on the sill of the tiny window. Cocking his head on one side, he twittered:

"Look out for the choo choo train
When pitter patter goes the rain.
You may not hear the whistle loud
When thunder claps are in a cloud."

"Don't worry. I'll take good care of this crossing," answered the old scarecrow, and in the next story—

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain — the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary trouble and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

COULD MAKE RE-VALUATION OF NORWICH PROPERTY IN 5 MONTHS

The Norwich tax analysis committee held another one of its series of meetings Monday evening in the assessors' office at the court house and heard an explanation given of the Somers system of service for city tax assessment by Walter R. Pollick, president of the Manufacturers' Appraisal Co., of Philadelphia, one of whose representatives had spoken before the committee as one of its earlier meetings.

James E. Case, chairman of the committee introduced the speaker, who gave a very clear explanation of the Somers system of real estate valuation. In response to questions that were put to him at the conclusion of his talk, he said that his company could easily do the Norwich work in five months and that the terms upon which they make a contract provide that the city can cancel the contract at any time upon written notice of a week. It is also provided that three-quarters of the fee to be charged shall be paid in semi-monthly payments and the remaining one-quarter when the committee is satisfied that the work has been done satisfactorily.

The work would be carried out, Mr. Pollock said, by sending two or three people here from his organization and employing under them twenty or more local people for clerical and other lines of work. After the system had once been installed there would be no cost of maintenance afterwards.

In discussing the question of taxation, Mr. Pollock said that people do not object so much to paying taxes, but they do object to paying taxes on an inequitable basis. What the system his company uses does is to bring about a general opinion that equitable conditions have been arrived at. The company has assisted tax appraisers in nearly fifty cities and the plan followed is to have one or more experts in the system assist the assessing authorities in determining the comparative street valuations in the central business district, expressing value-opinions in terms of price of the unit-foot. The unit-foot when appraised represents the worth of each single street or highway to the land fronting thereon, one foot front, with a depth of 100 feet.

The unit-foot valuations are ascertained by public discussion, and when finally determined, represent the consensus of opinion of the community.

The business center street frontages having been appraised, a basis exists for valuing in similar manner the adjacent districts. Citizens' committees assist the assessor, and the result is a public value-opinion that is acknowledged by the community as fair to all property-owners, whose land holdings have all been measured by the same yardstick of opinion.

The unit-foot valuation represents the reflection upon block frontages of but a single street, with one foot of frontage 100 feet deep. But most lots as actually owned are of greater or less depth than 100 feet. If such individual lots are deemed to possess usefulness from a single street only, the Somers depth percentage will convert the unit-foot valuations into front-foot valuations, the front-foot prices of course being greater than the unit-foot prices if the depths exceed 100 feet. Lots which are deemed to possess corner influence are computed by the Somers corner tables, taking into consideration the sizes and shapes of lots, the relations to the several streets, and the unit-foot appraisals of the street values. The effect of such computations is absolute uniformity in land site valuation.

The Somers System Service comprises the employment of one or more experts in building valuation methods under whose direction all buildings are accurately measured and described upon cards, with the appraisal at new reproductive cost per square foot of floor space, and the application of factors of depreciation, taking into consideration age, use, mechanical deterioration, obsolescence and lack of utility. The building cards, as well as the land computation records, constitute a permanent record of the basis for all assessments, useful in possible appeals and in future revision of tax valuations.

The maps used show only the streets and blocks, without any other lines or marks.

President Pollock was accompanied by G. H. Ehrenborg, one of the staff of the appraisal company, which has done work in New London, Winsted and Stratford in Connecticut and is now at work in Saybrook.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Chairman Case announced that another meeting of the committee would be held next Monday evening.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH REPORTS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The annual meeting of the members of the First Baptist church was held Monday evening in the church parlors, over 100 members being present. The meeting was preceded by a banquet which was served by the women of the church, after which the business session was opened with prayer by Deacon Frank Robinson.

Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the church, then called for the annual reports of officers and departments heads, responses being made by the following: Miss Mazie I. Mr. Dunbar, who outlined some of the work for the coming year, mentioning in particular the educational work, social work, young people's work and Americanization. Treasurer Mrs. George Rathbun's report showed that the past year had been most successful from a financial viewpoint and that the church financially had improved over a year ago. Miss Gladys Thornes reported for the benevolence department and Walter M. Cowan reported on collections. The report of the trustees was given by Deacon Charles R. Cross, who also reported for the deacons, and Mrs. Minnie E. Amburn rendered a report of Church Aid society work for the year. The World Wide Guild report was given by Mrs. E. C. Dunbar, showing a year filled with activities and Mrs. E. J. C. Leach reported for the flower committee.

The election of church officials for the coming year resulted as follows: Clerk, Miss Mazie I. Stamm; treasurer, Mrs. George Rathbun; benevolence treasurer, Miss Gladys Thornes; trustees, Charles R. Cross, E. LaRue Bliven and Frank D. Davis; deacon for three years, Deacon Charles R. Cross, who has held this office for many years; deaconess for three years, Mrs. Frank L. Lathrop; deaconess for one year, Mrs. William Gilchrist; auditor, Earl W. Stamm; executive council of the church—pastor and deacons, officers of church and heads of committees and departments and Mrs. Grace E. Willey, Earl W. Stamm, Mrs. E. J. C. Leach, Mrs. Lena Perkins, Mrs. Charles S. Stamm, George Amburn, Mrs. Frank P. Church, Mrs. Charles R. Cross and Frank D. Davis.

The church then voted to accept the following officials of the church school, namely, Walter M. Cowan, superintendent; George H. Amburn, assistant superintendent; Miss Marguerite Copeland, secretary; William C. Amburn, treasurer; Mrs. Lena Perkins, chairman of birthday fund; Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven, Miss Bernice Willey, George H. Amburn and Miss Jesse Lynch, educational committee.

A vote of thanks was given the women of the church who had prepared and served the annual banquet, also to the members of the church choir and the organist for their work during the past year.

Superintendent Cowan spoke briefly on a reunion banquet by members of the Xens, a society recently disbanded, notices to be sent out to the old membership, thanking them for their work for the church.

At the close of the meeting Rev. Mr. Dunbar spoke briefly, thanking his parishioners for their loyal support during the past year and stating that the church is larger in membership and better organized than a year ago. He also asked for recommendations for future action by the church.

The committee in charge of preparing the banquet comprised Mrs. Minnie E. Amburn, chairman, Mrs. Grace E. Willey, Mrs. Fred Wilson, Mrs. George Rathbun, Mrs. Lena Perkins, Mrs. William Gilchrist and Mrs. Frank LaThrop. The serving was in charge of Mrs. James L. Tourtellotte, assisted by Mrs. Ethel Duerr, Mrs. Gertrude Amburn, Mrs. Fannie Pineault, Mrs. Carrie Howard and the Misses Althea Church, Edna Jones, Bernice Willey, Elizabeth Hogue, Marion Lathrop and Marion Browning.

RETAIL MERCHANTS BUREAU HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

At its annual meeting Monday morning in the rooms of the Norwich chamber of commerce the Norwich Retail Merchants bureau elected Abner Schwartz president for the coming year. Considerable routine business was transacted at the meeting and consideration was given to several matters in the interests of the bureau.

Attention was called to the unsatisfactory mail service during the holiday season. It was not claimed that the local post office officials were in any way negligent but the fault was laid to the insufficient force to handle the work. The matter of the bureau holding a dinner meeting in the near future was referred to the directors with power. The annual election then took place as follows:

President, Abner Schwartz; vice president, J. B. Caron; secretary, John M. Lee; treasurer, C. Edward Smith; directors for one year, Max Rabinoviteh, Lee Clegg, N. Eugene Smith, Alexander Sharpe, Maurice Epstein.

The retiring president, Will L. Stearns, was tendered a vote of thanks for his services during the past year. Mr. Stearns requested that he be not considered for re-election.

FOLK SONG RECITAL IS DELIGHTFULLY GIVEN

A crowded hall greeted Miss Ellenor Cook Monday evening at her artistic folk song recital in Slater hall annex under the auspices of the Norwich Music association. This is the second appearance of this talented young artists, and the intervening time has, if possible, added more charm and ability to a real interpreter of songs.

In the first group of songs from Poland, Miss Cook in holiday costume, instantly captivated her audience with her innate understanding and spontaneous joy in the singing.

The second group was delightful in the Czechoslovakian costume, especially the cycle of a maiden's wooing. Naive and typical as are these songs, Miss Cook gives them with natural simplicity and wholly sympathetic interpretation.

In the piano selections by Miss Cook, one felt the individuality and musicianship that characterizes her work. Nocturne in D flat major by Chopin was the encore. The final group from Russia was a fitting climax to a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

Miss Cook responded with two Czech songs.

Miss Ruth Haun at the piano gave artistic support at all times and was appropriately costumed for each group.

The following was the programme:

I

TEACHING OF GEOGRAPHY AND NEWSPAPER READING

Declaring that "geography is a stepchild of the American public schools," Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, addressing the Association of American Geographers urged that the geographers support the movement now in progress in various American cities to have geography taught in high schools.

Dr. Grosvenor called the failure to teach geography in high schools one of the anomalies of American public school education.

"Geography is a basic subject," he continued. "It enters into history, science, literature and even the languages. It is a cultural subject of abiding interest and lifelong intellectual fascination. It is a vocation adjunct to many kinds of business and the professions."

A knowledge of geography is essential to understanding the news, and better teaching of geography would stimulate intelligent reading of newspapers, he added. He pointed to a condition which arose in Washington schools where 40,000 obsolete geographies still contain maps of Europe as it was before the World war. The National Geographic Society cooperated with a Washington newspaper in printing a descriptive story and an outline map of the New Europe in an edition of that paper and 50,000 proofs later were struck off by newspapers suitable for pasting in school geographies. Newspapers in other cities followed this example.

"A direct service to schools The National Geographic Society now renders in the issuance of weekly sets of bulletins to some 30,000 school teachers for use among about 750,000 pupils," Dr. Grosvenor said. "These bulletins, which constitute a gift to American education, supplement geography texts with up-to-date, interesting, informative, illustrated bulletins on geography. They add to the zest of the study; they enliven it by making contact between the day's news and geographic facts; they take the subject out of the laboratory and make it a part of life.

"The National Geographic Society, with its membership of nearly one million has broader facilities for popularizing the use of maps than any other single agency in the world.

"In the last several years The Society has distributed a total of nearly 11,000,000 large maps, printed in six colors and sent to members along with their National Geographic Magazine.

"The Society virtually is a University of Geography. It is conducting an elective course—a great class of geography—patronized by millions of pupils of all ages.

"Our student roster—that is our membership—reaches to every community of the United States of 50 or more white persons, and to 152 nations, colonies and mandatories; to every country, in fact, which has a postal system. Some of our members have to be reached by reindeer sleds, mule-back and camel caravans, in coolies' packets and by queer watercraft."

In recounting the findings of the National Geographic Society's expeditions during 1924 Dr. Grosvenor said:

"In selecting subjects for exploration we endeavor to find fields that will appeal to the interest of the average American. It is he who provides the funds for our work and we, as his trustees, insist that the project we invest his money in should help and encourage his geographic interest."

Two of the Geographic's expeditions described by Dr. Grosvenor which combined adventures and popular interest were those of Joseph F. Rock and Frederick Wuslin in China.

Mr. Rock entered Yunnan to study the fascinating problem of how corn, indigenous to America, apparently was transplanted to China before 1492; and to hunt for a blight-resisting chestnut tree, for interesting birds and animals and for new fruit and flower immigrants.

Turmoil along the turbulent China-Tibet border delayed Mr. Rock's work. He was counselled to come home and await more peaceful times, but he preferred to "carry on." As a result he already has amassed experiences which add the zest of adventure to the normal interest in a region where Nature and man amaze—a region of leaf-eating monkeys, snow-crowned mountains, rope bridges which swing protesting mules across the frequent streams, green parrots feeding on red berries, gorgeous valleys of brilliant flowers, and bejeweled males.

In the racial twilight zone between China and Tibet, the Society's Central China Expedition sought human traces of east Asia's history before the Chinese came, hunting for the largest non-anthropoid monkey in the world, and collecting botanical specimens in a region virgin to scientific study.

With a string of 27 camels, Frederick R. Wulsin and his aides pushed from Mansu into parts of Mongolia where only nomads live. He then worked his way south toward Kweichow, where dwell the mysteries non-Chinese tribes of China.

The two or three million of the non-Chinese populace who survive in little-known Kweichow afford one of the most interesting living racial problems known to science.

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadelli: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Campho-sole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible skin trouble, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I was a cripple. Later by luck and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Campho-sole. You can imagine my surprise after using Campho-sole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Campho-sole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Campho-sole. After all the years I suffered it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teesdale, 1217 High St., Camden, N. J.

KELLY IN DANGER OF BEING DROPPED IF HE PLAYS ON TEAM WITH O'CONNELL

New York, Jan. 5.—(By the A. P.)—George Kelly, first baseman of the New York Giants, was the center of a miniature baseball tempest today as a result of revelations that he had signed to play with a San Francisco basketball team whose roster also included Jimmy O'Connell, former Giant outfielder banished from baseball for attempted bribery.

The outstanding development was a sharp declaration from President Heydler of the National league that he would favor Kelly's suspension from baseball, if facts reported from San Francisco were borne out. This statement prompted immediate dismissal from the team by the president of the basketball league, who asserted a desire to avoid any embarrassment for Kelly.

Kelly, it was brought out, had not yet played with O'Connell, nor had the club, in fact, planned to use the two in the same game, but the removal of the latter was not construed by President Heydler as clearing Kelly's connection with the situation. The National league executive, while reticent to discuss the matter, indicated his belief that the damage already had been done by the Giant first sacker in originally agreeing to play on the team which included O'Connell. Whether or not he would be actually associated with the banished player, he held, was merely a technicality.

President Heydler's attitude toward Kelly also applied to Sammy Bohne, Cincinnati infielder, also a member of the basketball team. In Bohne's case, it was recalled that he was implicated with Pat Duncan in charges made by a Chicago sports publication that they were approached by gamblers seeking to have them "throw" games to the New York Giants in a critical series in the middle of the 1923 season. Cognizance of these charges was taken by President Heydler when he called Bohne and Duncan for a hearing, as a result of which they were exonerated and, upon President Heydler's advice, started suits against the publication, which are still pending.

While President Heydler did not specifically say so, there seemed little doubt that the national league would go into the San Francisco case carefully and, if the facts warranted, take decisive action regardless of the fact that O'Connell's removal has eliminated any chance of direct contact on the basketball court between the players.

When the San Francisco reports first were shown Heydler, he did not hesitate to take a decisive stand. In addition to his brief statement that he favored Kelly's suspension if the facts bore out the story, the National league head seeed amazed that Kelly would be associated with O'Connell in any way. He appeared to consider any association whatever with O'Connell as being a very grave matter and pointed out that Kelly's culpability lay in the fact that he had been accused by O'Connell of guilty knowledge of an attempt to bribe Heinie Sand, the Philadelphia shortstop, in a game near the close of the 1924 season. The league president said he would regard such association as a reflection of clean sport as a whole.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants declined to comment on the developments. Attention was called to a clause in the Giants' contracts forbidding members of the team from playing basketball or any other sport between seasons without specific permission of the club, but McGraw indicated he would not invoke this rule to prevent Kelly from playing the court game.

MIDDLEBURY APPEARS ON YALE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

New Haven, Jan. 5.—Yale's football schedule for 1925 duplicates that of 1924 with but three exceptions, according to the schedule given out tonight by Alfred L. Ferguson, Jr., of Greenwich, manager of the team.

The University of Pennsylvania will play Yale on October 17 in New Haven taking the place of Dartmouth which faced the Eli eleven in middle October last season for the first time in many years. The Yale-Pennsylvania game next fall will be the first between the two universities since 1893.

The opening date has been given to Middlebury college of Vermont, replacing the University of North Carolina which has opened the football season in the bowl for the past few years.

Yale will play Brown in Providence next season, this being the first time in the long history of football between the two universities that the game has not been played here. The schedule follows:

October 3, Middlebury; 10, Georgia; 17, Pennsylvania; 24, Brown at Providence; 31, Army; November 7; Maryland; 14, Princeton; 21, Harvard at Cambridge.

TILDEN REFUSES TO DISCUSS NEW RULING

New York, Jan. 5.—(By The A. P.) Although the United States Lawn Tennis association will not act until February at its annual meeting on the newly framed amateur rule, including its player-writer features, the effect of the new proposal on the playing activities of William Tilden, national champion and most prominent player-writer, already has aroused considerable discussion.

Tilden himself discusses the question in a syndicated article published today but when asked by The Associated Press for a statement of his position, he declared:

"I do not wish to be quoted on the player-writer question or its effect upon my status this year until after the new amateur rule proposal has been acted upon by the United States Lawn Tennis association. As a matter of fact my plans are indefinite but it is obvious that I cannot outline my position until the new rule is effective."

Friends of Tilden, however, pointed out that his newspaper contract, which calls for him to provide stories daily on the outstanding title events in which he takes part, would conflict sharply with the new player-writer rule which forbids a player to write "for pay or for a consideration, current newspaper articles covering tournament or match in which he is entered as a competitor."

Tilden signed the report of the special committee which drafted this as well as other provisions of the proposed new amateur rule, recently approved by the executive body of the U. S. L. T. A., but his friends hold that he did so with the thought that it was the best solution of the player-writer problem, regardless of his personal situation. The chief point established by the new proposal, they point out, is that no question of professionalism is involved in the player-writer issue. The original rule, drafted a year ago, which aroused such a storm in tennis ranks last season, would have barred player-writers from amateur ranks. This interpretation has been superceded by the new proposal.

Those intimate with Tilden represent him as not desirous at this time of reviving discussion on the merits of the new rule proposal. He is satisfied, they say, that the new proposal will work for the best interests of the game and anxious to let his personal position take care of itself in the future.

Tilden, it is understood, views as a possibility his retirement in the near future from the game which he had dominated for the past five years, but his friends are convinced such action would not altogether be based on the feature of the amateur rule proposal which most affected his player-writer status. The champion already has engaged in motion picture work and is interested in several other projects, all of which have made increasing demands on his time.

DEMPSEY WILL FIGHT IN NEW YORK THIS SUMMER

New York, Jan. 5.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, will fight in New York this summer, Dan McKettrick, matchmaker of the New Henderson Crater in Long Island City, who is regarded as eastern manager for the champion, announced today.

This information, made public at a dinner in connection with breaking ground for the massive stadium, was received over the telephone from Manager Jack Kearns in San Francisco this morning, McKettrick said. Kearns also declared, according to McKettrick, that Dempsey is free from contracts, having affiliations with no promoter.

Reports that the champion has been signed for bouts with Harry Wills and Tommy Gibbons are without foundation, Kearns is reported to have said.

Pressed for information as to whether the champion would appear at the Henderson arena, which is expected to seat 110,000, McKettrick would only say, "You know my relations with Kearns and Dempsey." This indicates, according to followers of boxing, that the champion's appearance in the first big bout in the new stadium is virtually assured.

It was reported today that contracts for the radio broadcasting of boxing matches for the crater, as the structure is to be named, already have been signed.

ANOTHER VOLLEY BALL LEAGUE OPENED AT Y

A new volleyball league began in the business men's gymn class at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, resulting in some of the fastest games played on the Y courts this season. The teams are named after automobiles, and in yesterday's games the Cadillacs succeeded in outdistancing all other competitors, closely followed by the Buicks. The Reos were a little late in the race, while the Hudsons apparently had a little difficulty in starting at all, probably due to the fact that it was a new "machine."

The business men's class at the Y is proving to be the biggest and most enthusiastic men's class that the association has had in many a day, and their class days are always a time of real fun and sport.

Standing of teams:

Cadillacs	3	0	1000
Buicks	2	1	.667
Reos	1	2	.333
Hudson	0	3	.000

ONLY $60,000 OFFERED FOR GIBBONS-FIRPO BOUT

Chicago, Jan. 5.—When Thomas Rice, representing the National Sporting club of London, arrives in New York with an offer for Tommy Gibbons to box Luis Firpo in England early in March, he will not find Eddie Kane, manager of the St. Paul heavyweight, very enthusiastic about such a match.

Kane said tonight the purse offered by the National Sporting club is about 50 per cent. of what the contest would be worth if decided in this country. He left with Gibbons for Grand Rapids, Mich., instructing Rice to communicate with him there on Rice's arrival. Gibbons will meet Jack Burke, rugged Pittsburgh light-heavyweight and a former sparring mate of Jack Dempsey's in a 10-round bout at Grand Rapids on Thursday night.

"When we wanted to box Firpo in New York, he wouldn't consider it," Kane said. "That was before he was plastered by Weinert and Wills. That contest would have netted Tom and Firpo about 150,000 each. As I understand it, the offer of the London promoter is somewhere between $60,000 and $100,000. You can see where Gibbons would get off by agreeing to split a purse of that kind when the bout would draw at least three times that figure in this country.

"I won't say we are going to refuse. But from the apparent facts, the offer is about 50 per cent. of what the match is worth."

Rice is due to arrive in New York tonight or tomorrow.

SUB BASE TAKES MEASURE OF WESTERLY CYCLE FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Pawcatuck, Jan. 5.—Westerly's Cyclists on the marked court were no match for the fast Submarine Base basketball team, and the tars led the parade, winning Saturdays game by a 36 to 16 score. Attired in snappy uniforms of blue and white, a faster team than the one that stepped upon the floor here representing the Sub Base was not seen in many a moon.

The tars swept away the Westerly Cycle defense as though there was no opposition at all. Depending upon fast work, the Navy five took the lead from the very first whistle and held it throughout. When a faster pace was demanded of the Base players they responded greatly, with no apparent effort. The Cyclist five was outplayed from the beginning, and it was but a question of the final score when the game terminated was the local team aware that they were outclassed and bewildered by a faster, snappier and smoother working five.

Compton with eight goals from the field led the parade where the admiral usually takes command. Lewis with three double deckers was closely followed by Murphy, O'Hare and Bartz. Ralph with a lone field basket and four goals was tied with Gilmore for high honors for the locals.

BULKELEY-PLAINFIELD GAME IS CANCELLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 5.—Bulkeley's next performance upon the chalked court has to be extended over until Saturday, the game with Plainfield High scheduled to be played at Central Village being cancelled at the request of the latter management received a communication to the effect that the floor on which the game was to be played was under the process of construction and that it was impossible to have the Orange and Black perform as per schedule. However, Plainfield was invited to shift the place of the fray to the Bulkeley headquarters at the Y. M. C. A., but this arrangement did not seem to suit the Plainfield management and the cancellation of the game followed.

Rhode Island State College freshmen is the next in line to be taken on, with South Kingston being the seat of the festivities. This contest will be played on Saturday, and will give the Bulkeley hoopsters some experience which will help in future contests.

NURMI MAKES HIS DEBUT TONIGHT AGAINST AMERICA'S BEST RUNNERS

New York, Jan. 5.—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distance running star, will attempt tomorrow night in his American debut at the Finnish-American games in Madison Square Garden, to demonstrate whether he can show on the indoor track the marvelous ability which carried him to unprecedented triumphs in the Olympics last summer.

Within an hour and a half, Nurmi will run two races, one at a mile and the other at 5,000 metres, against the pick of his American and Finnish rivals, thus attempting to duplicate indoors the remarkable achievement he scored at Paris when he won the Olympic 1,500 and 5,000-metre runs on the same afternoon.

"The Phantom Finn," however, faces a far more difficult task than the one he tried at Paris where he was at home in the cinders. Tomorrow he will have his first real competitive test at indoor running and in doing so will encounter veterans experienced in all the angles of this game.

In the mile, Nurmi will have as his chief rival, Joie Ray, veteran former American champion who has primed himself for a comeback. Jimmy Connolly, Walter Higgins and Lloyd Hahn are other stars expected to press the Finn in this event.

At 5,000 metres, Nurmi will face his keenest competition in all probability from Willie Ritola, who also starred for Finland in the Olympics and in continuing his efforts to this one race in an effort to avenge the setbacks he sustained at Paris at the hands of Nurmi.

Close to 10,000 track and field followers are expected to pack the Gardens to capacity to witness Nurmi's performance including 3,000 of his countrymen who have unbounded faith in his ability not only to win but to add a few new records to the long list he already holds.

Nurmi will be the chief center of interest in the Finnish-American meet, which marks the opening of the Metropolitan indoor season with a spectacle which probably has few, if any parallel in the history of the sport. The field of stars including Olympic heroes, 22 American champions, 14 intercollegiate titleholders and representatives of Canada and Hungary, in addition to Finland and the United States, comprises the greatest array ever assembled for an indoor track carnival here. Thirteen events are listed.
